Police Guard Bruce As Osteopath Measure Is Killed

You Should Have Been Hanged, Crowd Taunts, After Ex-Lt. Governor's Opposition to Measure

TORONTO, March 29—(CP)—Three provincial police constables were called to a committee room in Ontario legislative buildings today to protect Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, former Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, from an angry crowd after the private bills committee turned down a proposal to allow osteopaths, chiropractors and drugless therapists to use the designation of doctor.

The committee killed the bill after hearing Dr. Bruce declare: "I beg you in the interest of the sick people of this province not to do this iniquitous thing."

As the slight, white-haired physician left the small room which had been jammed to the doors, a group gathered around to criticize him for his opposition to the bill.

Bystander Shouts Violence.

"You should have been hanged," was one taunt hurled at Dr. Bruce, who resigned last fall as Lieutenant-Governor. The three constables pushed back the crowd and escorted him down the corridor to the office he formerly occupied as Lieutenant-Governor.

Dr. Bruce had been one of the last to leave the small committee room. He was at the front of the room, separated by a railing from the spectators' benches. The door was reached by a narrow aisle with room only for two people abreast. Crowds jammed into the aisle with the result people at the front where the committee sat had to wait until the aisle was comparatively clear.

After T. A. Blakelock (Lib. Halton), sponsor of the Bill, urged support, Salter Hayden, K.C., of Toronto, outlined qualifications of chiropractors, osteopaths and drugless practitioners.

People might say there would be confusion if these people also used the designation of doctor, he said. There was, however, no confusion in Manitba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Nova Scotia, and British Columbia, where the title was used.

"Isn't there a suggestion that the people in Alberta are confused?" asked D. A. Croll (V. Windsor-Walkerville), committee chairman.

Fears Confusion.

Committee members applauded Dr. Bruce as he placed the case for the medical men before them. Granting of the requested permission would confuse the public. He reviewed several cases where patients had been attended by drugless practitioners. In consequence of a lack of diagnosis a man had lost his life.

Another case concerned a woman whose blood had been tested by a machine. It diagnosed her ailment as dementia praecox and found symptoms of epilepsy and a streptococcic condition of the blood. A regular physician found no trace of these.

"These machines are remarkable," said Dr. Bruce. "They took a couple of drops of blood and an indicator on the machine pointed to the disease, the necessary treatment, the diet which should be used, the sex, age and race.

'I'm not sure but that it tells their policits,' he added.

SOVIET DIRECTOR OF ARCTIC FLIGHT UNDER SUSPICION

MOSCOW, March 29 (A.P.). — The government said to-day that "criminal, anti-Soviet activity of wreckers" had been found in the northern sea route administration which is headed by Dr. Otto Schmidt who directed last summer's Polar flights to North America and the Polar weather observations by four Russian scientists.

Without naming Dr. Schmidt, the Council of Commissars, equivalent to the Cabinet, adopted a resolution blaming the sea route administration for the perilous position of Soviet icebreakers and ships drifting helplessly in the Arctic ice.

The resolution found the work of the northern sea route in 1937 "unsatisfactory" and called for a detailed report by April 15.

The specific criticism for the drifting Arctic ships dealt with the fact that almost the entire icebreaker fleet, and nearly half of the freighters that ply the northern route and were caught in the ice last autumn, are "exposed to imminent danger."

The resolution attributed "blunders" to the "inactive and conceited attitude" of the sea route administration.

The resolution was prompted by the plight of three icebreakers convoying ships which have been drifting towards the Polar basin the past five months.

The N.S.R. not only has charge of the great Soviet program for settlement and economic development of the Arctic reaches, but also supervised such spectacular feats of exploration as the flights over the North Pole to North America in 1937 and the work of the four Polar scientists whose ice floe drifted into the Greenland Sea whence they were rescued by a Soviet aerial-ship expedition on February 19.

Tornadoes Kill 5 Down South

FERRIDAY, La., March 29 (A. P.). — Five persons were killed and at least 18 others injured by tornadoes in Arkansas and Louisiana last night and early to-day.

A narrow-diameter storm killed three and injured seven in the Turtle Lake section three miles west of here to-day. Two children were killed and 11 persons hurt when a tornado destroyed five farm homes a few miles north-west of Texarkana, Ark., last night.

Hanson Ourso, 38, and his two sons, Johnny 15 and Clifford 9, were crushed to death when their home collapsed at Turtle Lake. The Arkansas victims were Charles Barnett, 4, and Billy Ray Davis, 2.

Miraculous Escape

A mother's heart leaped in agony on Monday afternoon when she saw a railway engine pass over her two-year-old son. But she was transported with joy a minute later when the train crew lifted him, not injured at all, from beneath the engine. The little boy, seen here with his mother, was Stewart Cameron "Sonny" Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, 409 Bethune street. The little boy when picture was taken was still shivering with fright and clutched his mother spasmodically, but other than that he suffered no ill effects from an experience that usually brings mangled death with it.

HITLER THUNDERS OUT HIS CONTEMPT FOR DEMOCRACIES

BERLIN, March 29 (AP)—While some German writers were commenting in acid mood on the death of Colonel E. M. House, Chancellor Hitler at the sport palast poured vials of contempt upon democracy.

Hitler thundred in his plebiscite campaign speech last night that "more national socialists were murdered in this country (Austria) than in the whole Reich."

Whipping the enthusiasm of his hearers into white heat, he went on: "And those murderers, those lawbreakers, they are democrats: the world praises them and closes its eyes to their evil deeds, the same as in Spain, where hundreds of thousands have been burned or otherwise done to death—those democratic hypocrites refuse to see it."

Boy Dragged Unhurt From Under Engine

Falls Directly In Front of C.N.R. Locomotive; Front Part Passes Over Him Without Touching

If little Stewart Cameron Brooks, 25-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brooks, 409 Bethune street, lives to be a very old man it is not likely that he will be able to recall a time when he was closer to death than he was for a few seconds shortly after 6 o'clock Monday night.

Falling directly in front of a C.N.R. locomotive near the Hunter street crossing the tiny lad was dragged out from beneath the engine by a horrified train crew, prepared to extricate a mangled body. To their joy and amazement, however, they discovered the little fellow had miraculously escaped injury, the cow-catcher and front part of the locomotive having passed over him without touching his small body as he lay flat between the rails.

When an Examiner reporter called at the Brooks' home shortly afterward little Stewart—the family all call him "Sonnie"—was sitting on his father's knee, a trifle frightened, his big eyes still carrying a startled look, but apparently unhurt and with but the faint suggestion of a bruise on his forehead as the only visible sign of the miraculous escape he had just had.

"He's not usually as quiet as this," the father explained, as he fondled the little fellow.

PLUMP ALBINO ROBIN

CHINESE SLOWLY ROLL JAPS BACK

SHANGHAI, March 29 (AP).—A great Chinese army today was reported to be pushing back the Japanese along a 100-mile front in Central China.

The fighting centred in Shantung Province, eastward from the Tientsin-Pukow Railway. Chinese claimed a victorious sweep northward with the Japanese falling back.

Japanese disputed this, but the best available information indicated the Japanese had withdrawn from a gigantic hairpin area between the Tientsin-Pukow railway and the town of Lini.

Together the two armies had more than 100,000 in the field. In one engagement just outside Lini, Japanese retreated to a base 13 miles northwest.

At one of these towns, Taierchwang, 300 Japanese troops tunnelled under the wall and held its gate until Chinese wiped them out in two hours of bayonet fighting.

Favors Provincial Sweep Plan; Vote Is Delayed

Elliott, Peterborough M.L.A., Speaks in Opposition; Hydro Probe To Be Wide Open—Roebuck Barred

TORONTO, March 29—(CP)—A wide-open probe of Ontario Hydro matters, embracing actions of the present Liberal government and possibly those of former Conservative administrations, is in prospect. Vested with wide powers, a 12-man legislative committee headed by Attorney-General Conant was named yesterday to make the inquiry which opens May 2.

The committee will be without A. W. Roebuck, the Hydro Commission's spokesman, in the first administration of Premier Hepburn. Over Conservative protests, the Premier yesterday refused to add the name of his former attorney-general and Hydro spokesman to the committee. A Conservative motion to have him on it was defeated without division.

First suggestion for such a broad inquiry came from Mr. Roebuck on Friday when the Premier, implementing his promise to investigate circumstances surrounding negotiation of contracts with three Quebec power companies last fall, agreed to defer action on the committee motion till it could be reworded to cover this. Yesterday, he said it would not be fitting for Mr. Roebuck to sit as a judge on his former acts which might come under committee scrutiny.

The House deferred action on another motion yesterday—proposal by F. G. McBrien (Con., Toronto Parkdale) that the various provincial legislatures be given authority to legalize sweepstakes for hospital maintenance. After a debate which split party lines, the Premier suggested a vote be postponed until more members could be heard.

Hepburn in Favor.

Mr. Hepburn, however, favored the motion which also was supported by Conservative Leader Leopold Macaulay. Labor Minister MacBride, only other Cabinet Minister to speak, also approved it.

"I'm not going to be led around by the nose by any minister of the Gospel," said the Premier recalling protests against the proposal. "I want to say that I dont think there are any greater hypocrites than these gentlemen. I have been pursued, hounded, importuned every place I go by church organizations to buy tickets on raffles. Yet when a thing like this comes up, they're the ones that oppose it."

Because he did not like hypocrisy in any form, he was prepared to take his political life in his hands and vote for the resolution. Deploring hypocrisy, the Labor Minister said he met some of the people who protested against sweeps asking him to buy raffle tickets when he was Mayor of Brantford.

Disclosing he had been flooded with protests, Mr. Macaulay said he would vote for the resolution to get the thing out into the open. Moreover, if the Bill stopped the continual holding of raffles it would be beneficial. Almost daily he was asked to buy a raffle ticket for something in his riding. The time had come to investigate the "petty blackmail levied on members."

MINISTERS RISE OVER HEPBURN'S 'HYPOCRISY' RAP

TORONTO, March 29 — (CP)— Charge by Premier Hepburn in the Ontario legislature that ministers opposed to legalizing hospital "sweepstakes" in the province were "hypocrites" brought swift replies from church authorities.

Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce, moderator of the United Church, said he was "still definitely opposed to sweepstakes and I'm not a hypocrite."

"I believe the clergymen of Ontario, in public spirit, in clean speech and in good sportsmanship, have nothing to learn from Premier Hepburn," said Rev. Walter C. Almack, Glenmount United Church pastor, who was in the legislature gallery yesterday and heard the Premier's assertion.

"Was it not hypocrisy for him to appeal to a distinctly religious sentiment like charity to disguise the fact that he was asking a democratic government to bolster up a national vice?" asked Mr. Almack.

"In my opinion the ministers of Toronto will not be concerned about Premier Hepburn's opinion of them" said Rev. Joseph Wasson, moderator of the Toronto presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. "I am opposed to sweepstakes. Anyone who reads British religious papers realizes the hold gambling has on the British public. We don't want to see that happen here."

Hopes Premier Misquoted.

"To characterize any group of citizens as hypocrites is unworthy of the dignity of the Prime Minister of Ontario," said Rt. Rev. Peter Bryce.

"I hope that Mr. Hepburn has been misquoted or that he spoke hastily in the heat of controversy and did not mean what his statement would imply," Rev. Dr. Bryce added.

"I know the clergy of all Communions in Ontario and have no hesitation in saying that they are as sincere a body of men as may be found in any class of society in Canada. All they ask is that their representations be given the same consideration that would be accorded any other body of citizens." If sweepstakes were legalized, he added, new rackets and racketeers would be encouraged and legalized gambling would do incalculable harm to the morals of children.

Below Premier's Dignity.

Rev. C. E. Silcox, general secretary of the Council for Social Service, said: "I consider his remarks on a par with previously uttered statements by Mr. Hepburn and far

HEPBURN NEEDS OUR PRAYERS MINISTER SAYS

Peterborough Ministers Indignant Over Charge

"Mr. Hepburn may insult the people of the churches who sent him the protest against gambling; the churches will exist when he is gone," declared Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church, in reply to the Premier's charges that ministers are hypocrites. "We pray for him every Sunday; he is in great need of our prayers," said Mr. Young.

The clergy in Peterborough was highly indignant over the slur cast upon them by Premier Hepburn in Legislature Monday afternoon. A number refused comment on the grounds the statements made by the Premier were so vulgar as to be best forgotten quickly, so that the name of the province and of parliament would be less sullied.

"With reference to the Premier's remarks that ministers are hypocrites, I presume he means in regard to gambling," declared Mr. Young. "Having served in the ministry in Ireland in the cities of Belfast, Dublin and Cork, and having spent nine years in London, Ontario, I can truthfully say that none of the churches I served ever had a raffle of any kind. I cannot remember an instance in which the proposal even came up for consideration. It was definitely banned and everyone in the congregation recognized that fact. Mr. Hepburn's sweeping accusations are simply not true.

Full of Inconsistencies.

"Mr. Hepburn's statements in the debate are full of inconsistencies. He says, 'There is nothing that will justify gambling on economic grounds.' On what grounds then does he justify it? Is it on moral grounds? I did not know that he was so deeply interested in the moral welfare of the people. As regards the argument that the legalization of sweepstakes would prevent money going out of the country, what proof is there of that contention? It will increase the gambling spirit amongst the people and they will put their money in the lottery that gives them the best chances of winning. The measure will bring in an army of professional book-makers who will thrive on the vices of a gullible public. The money that would normally go for bread and groceries will go in many cases to support a host of parasites who contribute nothing to the social well-being."

"I have noticed that when the Premier gets peeved at anyone who opposes him, 'hypocrite' is a favorite word of his," commented Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United Church. He said there is not a clergyman in the Province but who is sincere in the belief that the principles of the proposed bill is wrong. Sweepstake tickets may be bought by members of his congregation, but not to his knowledge, he said. If they are being bought, then it is probably by some of the 34 people who did not vote in favor of the resolution, he said. "I think the man is making a very unjust charge," he added.

"I have no statement to make," said Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray

Find Swing Music Speeds Up Heart

DETROIT, March 29.—(CP). — Swing music can do things to the human heart the most ardent swing fan would hardly believe, according to tests conducted at the University of Detroit with the heartograph. Genevieve Crowley, 19, a student at the University listened to a band playing a "sweet" version of "Auld Lang Syne." Heh heart beat was steady and unexcited. But when the band started to "swing it," her heart speeded up, and the indicator on the heatgraph jumped in rhythm with the music.

The heartograph also showed an increase in blood pressure of 30 points and in pulse beat of 16 points. Two other students showed similar responses. Dr. Donald Campbell, who conducted the experiments, has concluded that merely sitting through a hot swing tune will give the heart as much excitement as it would get in a 100-yard dash.

23 To 33 Percent Of Sweeps Would Go To Hospitals

Hepburn Says If Measure Passes Province Will Have Absolute Control

TORONTO, March 29.—(CP). — Ontario's interest in a legislative privite bill designed to make possible provincial sweepstakes reached fever height to-day with Premier Hepburn leading a non-political fight against critics of the bill.

In an interview to-day Mr. Hepburn said hospitals received about 16 per cent. of proceeds of the British sweepstakes. He proposed the percentage in Ontario would be set at 25 or 33.

'If sweepstakes are conducted in Ontario they will be under the absolute control of the Provincial government," he said. "Hospitals or other parties would not be allowed to conduct them. Every effort would be made to arrange that hospitals get as large a share as is practicable."

The Premier estimated Canadians had contributed $4,000,000 to Irish hospitals in the last seven years by buying more than $20,000,000 worth of sweepstakes tickets.

Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House leader, thought hospitals should benefit by 50 per cent of the proceeds in Ontario.

Think Russian Fliers May Still Be Found

Ottawa, March 29 (CP)

HOPE is still held that the six Russian fliers, missing in the Arctic after they were forced down on a flight from Russia to the United States, will be found, according to W. R. Wilson of Toronto, radio engineer for the Sir Hubert Wilkins rescue party which has conducted searches for the fliers.

Wilson conferred today with Transport Department officials and left later for Toronto.

CORNWALL—A skeleton staff of workers went into the local mills of Canadian Cottons Limited today to prepare the plants for resumption of full operations tomorrow, ending the latest of a series of walkouts since the general strike of last summer.

Afraid To Put Me On Hydro Committee, Want Whitewash, Says Roebuck

Toronto, March 29 (CP)

ARTHUR W. Roebuck, former attorney-general, said today he was not appointed to the special committee of the legislature investigating Hydro contracts because "the government was afraid to put me on the committee".

"It is evidence that it's a whitewash the government wants and not an investigation," Mr. Roebuck said.

"The main purpose of the committee is the investigation of [illegible] new Hydro contracts, it is stated. I had absolutely nothing to do with them."

He added it would be a relief not being on the committee as sessions would be long and he had a living to make.

The commission will inquire particularly into contracts entered into with four Quebec power companies and may extend its scope into operations over several years.

Greater Production of the Soil Key to Prosperity Says Ford

Claims Nobody Wins At War But Financiers Who Promote It

DETROIT, March 29 (A.P.). — Henry Ford, back at work after a two months vacation on his Georgia plantation, reiterated in an interview to-day his conviction that a prosperous era is ahead.

The industrialist talked about wars, dictatorships, and immigration and said he was plunging into preparations for volume production of his cheap tractor.

"Nothing that has occurred during the last few weeks," he said, "has changed my belief that a prosperous era is ahead of us. It will come through a greater realization that all wealth comes from the soil and that there must be a greater cultivation of the land."

Ford, nearing his 75th birthday anniversary, said he had spent much of his Georgia vacation conducting experiments with his new tractor.

He said he has not changed his convictions about the futility of wars.

"Nobody wins in a war but the financial interests that promote it and make preparations for it," he said.

New Accident Car Ends In Smash

Vancouver, March 29 (CP)

Only One Problem Not Acute In Europe Says Hoover, And That's Parking

New York, March 29 (AP)

FORMER President Herbert Hoover came home from Europe today with seven or eight new honorary degrees, 15 or 18 new medals and the conviction that a general war is not imminent in Europe.

Decrees, medals and the conviction—a conviction persisting in spite of the extensive military preparations he witnessed—were gathered in a two-months tour of 14 countries.

Asked if he thought there would be a general war in three or four years, Hoover said he saw "no immediate prospect of war."

"The spirit I found everywhere was one of defence, not of offence. Every government in Europe is engaged in extending its military forces, and in five years time expenditures on armament and military forces have increased from $4,000,000,000 a year to $8,000,000,000."

He declined to speak of his conversations with Hitler and other European leaders, but commented: "The only problem in Europe that is not acute is the parking problem. They have plenty of space for cars."

Spanish Loyalists Rush Foreign Troops Into Line

Franco's Victorious 20-Day Drive is Slowed As He Masses Troops on 60-Mile Catalonia Front

HENDAYE, France, March 29 (AP)—International brigades of the Spanish government army moved to the front today to check the insurgent sweep into Catalonia.

The foreign fighters for the republic went into the trenches on the eastern bank of the Cinca river to reinforce Spanish troops in their desperate stand to hold the rich northeastern corner of Spain.

The insurgents, driving into this largest remaining sector of government territory, were massed on the west bank of the river along a 60-mile central front.

Meeting his first serious resistance in the 20 days of his mass offensive, General Franco sought to consolidate insurgent forces in this sector for another push toward Barcelona and the sea.

Moors Cross The Cinca. 4

The government resistance formed suddenly on the flanks of Franco's army, after one column of Moors broke government defences at Fraga Sunday, crossed the Cinca and threatened Lerida, key city on the main highway to Barcelona.

The insurgent advance was delayed Monday, while the northern wing mopped up government resistance around Barbastro and a southern segment pushed slowly down to Mequinenza.

Barbastro is 38 miles northwest of Lerida and 110 miles northwest of Barcelona. Mequinenza is 25 miles southwest of Lerida and 98 miles west of Barcelona.

Government military advices said counter-attacks in the central sector drove the insurgents from the heights of Fraga, 15 miles southwest of Lerida, just west and outside the Catalan border.

Across the Cinca from the main insurgent army, the government held line of fortified hill-top trenches, long designed to save Catalonia from invasion. A brigade of anti-Fascist Italians was reported helping to man these defences.

BULK FREIGHTERS GET UNDER WAY

CLEVELAND, O., March 29 (AP)—First movement of bulk freighters on the lower Great Lakes got under way yesterday with the clearing of the Elba from Toledo and Sierra from Detroit to load coal.

The Elba, of the Pickands Mather fleet, and the Sierra, of the Tomlison fleet, are the first Great Lakes bulk freighters to clear for loading this season. The Donnacona of the Canada Steamship Lines is outfitting at Ashtabula and will clear shortly for Hamilton, Ont., with coal.

The Sierra went to Huron for a part load of coal and then will go to Sandusky to finish. She will take her cargo to Detroit. The Elba will carry coal between Sandusky and Toledo with a number of trips scheduled to Erie, Pa.

With the latest report of the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association showing ore stocks at lower lake docks at 37,158,401 tons, nearly 15,000,000 more than a year ago, vesselmen are making no immediate preparations for bringing down cargoes from the iron ranges.

FIND TWO BODIES IN SUNKEN AUTO

SACKVILLE, N.B., March 29 (CP)—Bodies of two men were recovered early today from an automobile which plunged into the Tantramar River near here last night after crashing through the rail of the approach to a covered bridge.

One was identified as that of Gordon C. Allan, 49, a Halifax salesman. The other remained unidentified.

The boys who reported the accident said they were sitting on the rail of the bridge when an automobile approached from the direction of Amherst, swerved to one side and crashed through the wooden railing at the bridge entrance.

10,000 Rats Trapped Near Amherstburg

AMHERSTBURG, March 29.—At least 10,000 muskrats were trapped in the brief but busy trapping season which just closed here.

The marshes along Big Creek, near Amherstburg, yielded more than three times as many rats as last year, trappers report.

For less than three weeks, from March 5 to 20, trappers toiled from dawn to dark covering their lengthy trap lines, while others labored to skin the animals and dry their pelts.

The financial returns are not to be lightly dismissed, for last year a single skin brought $1.93, and all are sold to fur companies. The price will be down this year, however, principally because of the abundance of the creatures.

4,540 RURAL MAIL ROUTES

OTTAWA, March 29 (CP)—The Post Office Department operates 4,540 rural mail routes in Canada, Acting Postmaster-General Euler told Gordon Graydon (Con., Peel) in the House of Commons yesterday. The total annual contract price of those routes is $2,722,050.

Approximately 63.6 per cent. of the present contracts were renewed on the last expiry date and 36.4 per cent were up for tender.

HOUSE APPROVES SEED GRAIN LOAN BILL FOR PRAIRIE

OTTAWA, March 29.—(CP). — Provision for the seed grain requirements of farmers in Alberta and Saskatchewan who failed to harvest a crop last year to-day has the approval of the House of Commons.

After a day-long debate the House yesterday passed through third reading a bill authorizing Federal guarantees for seed grain loans in Saskatchewan up to a limit of $14,500,000 and in Alberta to a limit of $1,900,000. Besides the provision of seed grain the guarantees cover repairs to machinery, feed for horses during seeding and fuel for tractors.

To-day the House likely will resume debate on the want-of-confidence motion of the Social Credit group and if it is disposed of estimates of various departments will be considered.

The seed grain bill contemplates loans being made by banks to municipalities to provide the seed and assistance required to enable drought-stricken farmers to put in a crop, the loans to be guaranteed first by the Provincial governments and secondly by the Federal government.

This is the third year of the present drought cycle that the guarantee system of providing for seed grain has been followed. For four years previously money was loaned to the provinces to enable them to make loans to the municipalities.

Finance Minister Dunning told the House the amount outstanding on these loans from 1932-36, less repayments, was $22,310,000, of which $1,106,000 was owing from Manitoba; $18,009,000 from Saskatchewan, and $3,195,000 from Alberta. These sums covered the crops of 1933, 1934 and 1935.

Under the guarantee system used to provide for seeding the crops of 1936 and 1937 in the drought areas the Dominion had not yet been required to advance any money. The guarantee does not become effective until three years after the advances are made by the banks.

A Bennett Challenge.

Conservative Leader Bennett challenged the authority of the Government to authorize the Canadian Wheat Board to convert its holdings of wheat futures into cash grain and hold it for delivery to the Alberta and Saskatchewan Governments for seed. He said such action was inconsistent with the terms of the Wheat Board Act.

Mr. Dunning said it was a simple transaction. The Board had authority to hold futures and convert them into cash grain. It also had authority to sell grain and it did not matter whether it sold to the Ministers Are Sincere.

"Hypocrisy? Why, the whole thing is nothing but hypocrisy," declared Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. He believed that ministers are sincere in their convictions but pointed out that their congregations and their own organizations are sponsoring the principle of sweepstakes. The entire church body will have to get a Christian attitude against gambling before the clergy can oppose such measures, he said. "Any minister can get a snap vote on any question he likes," he pointed out. "Fifty walk out, fifty don't vote, and fifty vote for the measure and he calls it a unanimous vote; it's nothing of the sort."

Whenever anyone crosses the Premier in anything he wants to do, Mr. Hepburn calls him some name or other, declared Adjutant Neil Warrander of the Salvation Army, chairman of the Peterborough Ministerial Association. "He's a regular dictator that way. I don't suppose it makes much difference to the clergy what he says, but it is too bad a man in his big position can't control himself better than he does."

"I'm not surprised that Hepburn should make such statements," said Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church. "It is nothing more than I would expect from a man of his type, following as it does on his other rash statements. It is an insult to the clergy of course, but I'm not feeling badly about it."

Peterborough Canoes Shipped To Southern Rhodesia

These three canoes have started on a 5,000 mile journey to Southern Rhodesia. Of special construction, of lengths 18, 19, and 20 feet, they will be used there for taking tourists on trips over inland waters. Four natives will paddle as many as four passengers in each canoe. The canoes are built like Canadian freight canoes, but in deluxe finish, of native cedar in natural finish. They are being shipped to the Rhodesia Railways Limited.

Television Hinted Paying Revenue C.B.C. In 10 Years

Could Be Started Tomorrow, Brockington States; Anticipates More Income From Broadcasting

OTTAWA, March 29—(CP)—Television might become a practical industry in Canada and a source of revenue to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation within 10 years, the House Committee on Radio was told today.

Television could be started "tomorrow," L. W. Brockington, chairman of the corporation's board of governors, told the committee. He also anticipated more revenues from broadcasting stations and from an increased number of listeners paying receiving set licence fees.

"Do you believe television will come in Canada within the next 10 years?" J. Earl Lawson (Cons. York South) asked.

"I think it quite possible," the witness replied.

"Would it be a source of revenue to the corporation?"

"I think so," Mr. Brockington replied. "Television might be started in Canada tomorrow."

A. M. Edwards (Cons. Waterloo South) wanted to know why the corporation desired to eliminate advertising—if there was any great agitation against it.

Three Schools of Thought.

There were three schools of thought on advertising programs, Mr. Brockington replied. One did not have any opinion one way or the other. He believed, however, that commercial broadcasting should be removed from National radio when that was possible.

He was informed, Mr. Brockington said, that some private stations "with the effrontery to form the spear-head of attack upon the Corporation" had been making considerable profits while only required to pay $50 a year for the use of the air. The time was long overdue when they should be required to pay more.

It was the ultimate policy of the Corporation to take control of all high-power broadcasting in Canada, Mr. Brockington said. Some permits had been granted for private stations with power up to a maximum of 1,000 watts, but no increases would be permitted above that maximum, to private stations, Mr. Brockington said.

Eventually it was the intention to restrict private stations to "purely local functions."

Mr. Brockington expressed the opinion that the new license fee rate of $2.50 a year should be sufficient but he could not say definitely or prophesy what might be necessary in four or five years.

The Broadcasting Corporation was "not set up for profit," Mr. Brockington said, "nor was it set up for loss."

SPRING FLOODS TIE UP TRAFFIC

LINDSAY, March 29. (C.P.). — Spring floods made roads almost impassable in Haliburton County to-day with many farmers almost isolated. Many farmers had to travel on horseback to secure food and provisions for their families.

Regular train service was temporarily abandoned on Saturday when floods caused washouts on the tracks between Kinmount and Gooderham. Local sectionmen rose to the occasion, however, and equipped a gasoline-driven "jigger" with car cushions for the comfort of passengers, carrying twenty-five by this means.

Dr. Frost of Kinmount commandeered the novel service for essential visits to patients in the outlying sections.

Looking Back
On This Date

To-day is the one hundredth anniversary of two events which had marked results upon the future of Canada: (1) The Earl of Durham was appointed governor-general and high commissioner. (2) Samuel Lount and Peter Matthews were found guilty at Toronto of sedition and were condemned to death.

Fred Williams

Durham did not want the talk of attempting to bring peace to the Canadas. He refused it more than once, and consented only at the personal request of his young Queen Victoria, for whom he had successfully carried out a diplomatic mission to the czar of the Russians. He made it a condition that he should be given full powers of clemency as well as of severity, because it appeared to him to be a case where a number of those who had taken up arms had been seduced into disloyalty, and he wanted the power to pardon them, and at the same time administer to such of the leaders of the revolts in both provinces as were in custody salutary punishment. His policy was a wise one; he put it into force; but unfortunately, he was overruled by London, and he resigned in despair. But during his brief stay (the events of which will be told in this column as the anniversaries come), he sowed the seeds of a new confidence in British freedom which came to a fruitful harvest three years later when the provinces were united as a consequence of his report, the very basis of all the self-government enjoyed by the British Commonwealth of Nations to-day.

The condemnation of Lount and Matthews was expected. But it created a wave of indignation among the common people of the province (who petitioned by the thousand for clemency) that it revived many embers of the fire of revolt which had died down since December and gave Mackenzie and his allies in New York and Michigan fresh excuse for incitements to invasion. Had there been an Atlantic cable, Lount and Matthews would not have died on the scaffold; orders to be merciful were on the way while they were preparing for their fate. But they arrived too late; and Lount and Matthews became Canada's first political martyrs, honored by succeeding generations, while the men who sent them to their death are forgotten. Had Durham arrived before April 12, he would probably have prevented this double martyrdom. When he did come he found that much of what he had planned for the upper province had to be changed. The Liberal that he was, he knew the potent power this double martyrdom must have upon all but the hard-boiled official Tories, and he foresaw just what happened. This double centenary is highly significant in its interrelations.

65 Gallons Of Gas Taken In Break-In

(Examiner Correspond. —)

HASTINGS, March 29. — A check up on Monday afternoon revealed that 65 gallons of gasoline were stolen when thieves broke the padlock off the gas pumps at Brinklow's Garage. Front Street, on Thursday night last. Chief of Police W. Wellman, who is investigating, has failed to uncover any clues as to who was responsible for the act.

BAR NO PICTURES

HALIFAX—(CP).—Nova Scotia's board of censores examined approximately 5,500,000 feet—or 1,040 miles—of film in 1936-1937, and not a single picture was condemned, according to statistics issued by Chairman C. H. Bennett of the board.

ROTARIANS OFFER MANY NEW IDEAS IN WELFARE WORK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 29. — Rotarian Dwight Bennett led in a discussion which brought forth several suggestions for the club's work in community welfare which is to take effect during the coming summer.

Although the club has done much in giving surgical treatment to children in the town with the aggregate running to a considerable sum since the club's inception Mr. Bennett reminded the members that financial position of the club prohibited any elaborate schemes during the year, and with the Government closing down on games of chance, it will probably be more difficult to raise money. He suggested that the rural communities might receive more attention by the sponsoring of a Calf or Foal Club. The speaker further intimated that much could be done in our own community in giving leadership to the younger boys.

Rotarian Harold Neal thought that offering prizes for bird houses would be a step towards encouraging industry among boys. Rotarian Arthur Armour maintained that the town needed a public lavatory more than anything else and suggested that a suitable location would be found on the Government-owned land at the east-end of the bridge on Bridge Street. The club could put the suggestion to the Council and offer to make a contribution towards the building.

Another suggestion was that the club supply a competent life-guard who could act also as an instructor in swimming and diving at the Tourist Camp during the summer. It was moved by Dr. H. B. Longmore that suggestions be left in the hands of the executive to bring in a report together with recommendations at the next meeting.

"We should do everything possible to encourage the young people to engage in all water sports as swimming is one of the finest exercises in the world," interjected Rotarian A. Rapport as the meeting came to a close.

U.S. ROAD DEATHS DROP

CHICAGO, March 29 — (AP). — Automobile traffic fatalities in the United States, for the fourth consecutive month, showed a decrease in February, the National Safety Council announced today. Following an all-time high, in 1937, of 39,700 deaths, the council reported safer driving during February brought about a 16 per cent. reduction in fatalities compared with February, 1936, and 20 per cent. less than January of this year. Two thousand one hundred and eighteen deaths were reported in February.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

The amazing 10-cent jump for No. 1 Manitoba Northern cash wheat behind a Winnipeg May future advance of five cents high-lighted world wheat trading to-day. At the final bell futures were 5 to 1¼ cents higher, May $1.23¾, July $1.12 to $1.12¼, and October 91⅞ to 92⅛ cents.

Premier for No. 1 Northern wheat for shipment at opening of navigation improved five cents to 30 cents above the May future, highest cash wheat premium since the Great War years.

Spectacular top grade premium bulges since mid-March high-lighted trade to emphasize scarcity of these wheats in shipping position and unwillingness of holders to release their supplies.

"Christianity In The Church Needs Christian Homes," Says Speaker At Lakefield Banquet

Dr. Walter T. Brown Speaks At Opening Of United Church Parsonage

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 29.—"Christianity in the Church cannot survive unless it can maintain Christian homes," said Dr. Walter T. Brown, principal of Victoria College, Toronto, when he addressed a large audience in the Lakefield United Church Monday night, at the conclusion of the banquet held to celebrate the opening of the new United Church Parsonage.

At 6.30 p.m. a delicious banquet was served in the Sunday School room by the Women's Association of the church, and between the banquet and the after-dinner speaker, time was allowed for an inspection of the parsonage, which was completed about February 1 of this year.

Everyone was loud in their praises of the modern, well-equipped home, which satisfactorily combines beauty with utility, and comfort with convenience.

After the inspection, the crowd returned to the church, where addresses were given by the two guest speakers, Dr. Walter Brown of Victoria College, and T. M. Wesley of Camborne; a former pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, one of the churches which, along with the Lakefield Methodist Church, combined to form the present congregation. A fine musical program, arranged by Mrs. H. E. Moore, added to the evening's enjoyment.

The auditorium of the church was decorated with Spring flowers, as were the banquet tables downstairs.

Musical Program.

The evening program opened with a hymn, after which Rev. George F. Kelly, pastor of the Lakefield United Church, welcomed the large and representative gathering. He then called on Misses Helen Kelly and Lois Yale, who played a pianoforte duet; Mrs. J. R. Hull sang "Thanks be to God" as a vocal solo, following which Rev. T. M. Wesley delivered his address.

He said in part: "The last time I stood in this pulpit was a difficult day for me, and for many of us. I was not only saying good-bye to friends but we were closing up a church which had become dear to us all. We made the sacrifice, believing that it would be a worth-while one.

Now we find our hopes have been fulfilled. It is a fact that your amalgamation is very perfect and complete. You people here should feel that whatever sacrifice it entailed has been a worthy one. And now I want to congratulate, not two congregations, but one.

You have invited me to assist in the opening of a new building. I like to think that this new building contains part of both old churches—a portion of the former church on the hill and a part of the old parsonage whose position it now occupies.

I want to compliment you on the building, and on the church property. I cannot think of a congregation this size with a better church and manse. You have every right to be proud of it. You have done the work well and those who follow will say: 'They builded well.' You have put quality there and that is a worth-while thing to do.

Woman Started The Home.

People have been building homes for a long time. In the early days, cavemen found that a cave answered their needs as a home. It provided protection, privacy and a storeroom for the fruits of the hunt.

"Then one day, woman became dissatisfied with a cave and said, 'This place is getting draughty, we'll have to do something about it" and so at woman's instigation, an improved home was built of willow branches and mud plaster. Continued improvements led to the modern brick structures which have beauty of line as well as protection, etc. Modern homes are an expression of our sense of beauty, and of our progress in culture. We have learned to study architecture and to see beauty in it.

"Increasingly we find that homes must be more than a protection and a store-house. They are the expressions of our personality—a sort of overcoat for the soul!

"The home you have built conforms to very high standards of architecture. You will find that it will mean a great deal to you, and in comfort, to your minister and his wife. It will pay you rich dividends in satisfaction," Rev. Wesley said in conclusion.

Miss Cora Charlton gave a vocal solo, entitled "The Piper from over the way," and Mrs. Dora MacMillan and Miss Eva Hendren sang a vocal duet, "Dreams of the Summertime."

Welcomed Home.

Rev. Kelly then introduced Dr. Brown, saying that in speaking of Dr. Brown in Lakefield, no one remembers his degrees, but everyone calls him "Walter." It is sometimes said that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country. Dr. Brown is the exception to this rule, for here, in his own community, we do appreciate him and are glad he came back to speak to us tonight."

Dr. Brown, opening his address, remarked that his memory goes back to many ministers who occupied the pulpits of these churches during his boyhood.

"There was John McKeowen, at Knox Church, and St. Barton at the 'Methodist Church,' whose funeral I attended three months ago," Dr. Brown recalled. "I remember he used to have a flower garden and offered a prize for the best blooms. I won that prize with flowers from my garden, but I am sure my mother had more to do with those flowers than I did."

"Tonight you are opening the new parsonage—I have a great love for building. If I were to give up my college work now, I'd become a builder. It is something constructive. When I heard you were building a parsonage last summer, the first thing I did, was to come over and inspect it. And I congratulate you on the substantial building. In a recent report on housing in Ontario we find that 4 per cent. of all houses become obsolete every year. The average life of a house is twenty-five years. The old parsonage has stood much longer than that. Mother has been here 65 years, and her memory does not go back to the time of its building. You have built a fine substantial building, but don't be surprised if you have repairs to make on it next year. Don't blame the contractor or the occupant. There are always repairs to be made in a house the first year. And let me tell you something I have learned in building boats. Don't think because you have a new boat that it doesn't need painting at the end of the first year. It is far better to paint at the end of the first year and not at the end of the 2nd, than to paint at the end of two years. So when repairs come in, get them done at once, it will pay. Repairs on a new house are like taxes. You can grin and pay them—or else (the alternative), you needn't grin!

"On driving through the country I see some houses I would like to dynamite. Two-storey and two and a half storey farm buildings standing towering up in the centre of a bare field. A one and a half storey building is most practical for a farm home. It can be made compact. I would like to see finer looking houses on our countrysides," Dr. Brown continued.

Paint Barns White.

If we could paint barns in Ontario white, it would transform the landscape. In New England all the barns are white, and it makes a tremendous difference to the beauty of the landscape. But at present, we in Ontario can't afford it. I wish some enterprising paint dealer would paint several barns throughout the country white as an advertisement, just to show people what a difference they make to appearance of the landscape.

As I drive through the country, I see houses, and think of homes, I am convinced that the heart of the nation lies in the home.

Christianity in the church cannot survive unless it can maintain Christian homes. In Ontario, we are apt to take education as it is handed to us by the Department. Asked where the responsibility for education lies, the answer is, of course, 'in the home.' The kind of education a child gets is determined by his home, because in the last analysis you can't educate the child unless you educate the home.

We owe great debts to our homes. I became educated because of the impulse in the home. We are grateful for new homes. You can't build a community of citizens unless people have homes. I am not sorry that people have to pay taxes. It gives them a sense of responsibility. We hear rumors of Communism and Fascism, etc., in European countries. These methods of government are all dictatorships. These are not what our forefathers tried to establish here. If you have the responsibility of citizens you won't permit such form of government here. 'Our forefathers builded for themselves a place'—those who couldn't stand the strain drifted off. Our forefathers were 'yeomen'—independent farmers. Abraham said, 'I will make of thee a great nation.' I believe that the northern half of this continent has a chance to become a great nation—made by people who will not pick up stakes and run. We must be able to stand on our own feet—be independent citizens if the country is to come back. I feel that Ontario is safe and that citizens will pick up their responsibilities, Dr. Brown said in conclusion.

Rev. Kelly thanked the speakers and entertainers and all those who helped with the evening's entertainment. He invited members of the congregation to feel free to drop in at the manse at any time, since it is your home as well as mine; and home is a place where friends can come at any time without embarrassment. Mrs. Kelly and I will always be glad to have you.

The hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds" brought the evening to a close.

REPORT FAVORS RE-DECORATION PUBLIC SCHOOL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 29. — Considerable expense for repairs to the Public School was foreseen when George Free, chairman of the property committee presented his report of a recent inspection of the schools to members of the Board at their meeting held on Monday. Mr. Free indicated that the window sills in the High School were in need of paint, while in the Public School a considerable portion of the outside woodwork would have to be painted. Speaking further of the condition in the Public School he stated the whole building was in very bad condition and recommended that the Board make an immediate start at re-decorating.

Screens For Windows

For the High School he recommended an addition cupboard for the domestic science room as well as screens for the windows in this room. On motion of A. J. Armour the Board decided to obtain estimates on repainting the outside of the Public School and the matter of cupboards and screens was left in the hands of the property committee. Reminding the Board that the Council wanted all requisitions in this week Mr. Irwin indicated that approximately $7,650 would be required for High School expenditures and $12,525 would be needed for the Public School which would mean the total school levy would be only $500 above last year.

Principal C. S. Haig of the Public School asked that Cecil Stephens, an assistant on the staff would be absent for from one to six weeks and suggested the board take action at once to get a supply teacher. The matter was left in the hands of the Internal Committee.

J. A. Irwin advised the other members that the report of the Internal Committee for salary revision had not been carried out as he had understood it and implied that the committee had decided at their special meeting that no increase in salaries of High School teachers would be granted this year. "I don't remember any increases being given to the High School staff," said Mr. Irwin, "there must be some mistake." However, the rest of the committee maintained that the increase of fifty dollars for two of the teachers had been discussed and the report remained unchanged.

A flare-up between the caretaker of the high school and W. Roy Loucks was precipitated when Mr. Loucks suggested the Board was giving Mr. Massey a present of $90 during the next two months. Mr. Loucks stated that it used to be a one-man job and now it is a "two man job" with Mr. Massey allegedly paying an assistant at the rate of $45 per month. "It would be cheaper for the Board to hire two men all the year around with a slight increase for caretaker's salary, than to give a contract similar to the one just awarded to Mr. Buchanan (the assistant caretaker) to clean the walls in the building for $200. There is considerable repair work to be done around both schools this year and I believe the Board could save money if it adopted this procedure," said Mr. Loucks. Describing as "hooey" the allegation that he was trying to get Mr. Massey's job away from him the matter was finally dropped, and the Board adjourned after passing the accounts.

MADOC

Mrs. Keating of Toronto is the guest for a few weeks of her sister, Mrs. C. Henderson.

Mrs. H. Mulholland of Madoc is improving slightly following her recent serious illness.

Orley Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Bennett, is reported to be seriously ill.

Miss Marina Burket and her mother, Mrs. Burket, of Madoc, are spending a few days in Kingston, the guest of the latter's daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Connell.

Will Hart, postmaster, is confined to the house with a cold.

Garagemen Held Up By Thugs In Wild Chase

A thrilling automobile chase that might have ended tragically for James Tarbutt and Douglas Dalgleish, shown in the upper picture, culminated instead in the arrest on charges of armed robbery of Orval Hannon and Howard Jackson, both of St. Thomas, Ont. Dalgleish, on RIGHT, proprietor of a service station in Maitland, a small village near Brockville, Ont., and Tarbutt, his employee, gave chase to Hannon and Jackson after the latter had driven away without paying for gas they purchased. Their quarry, on being caught, drew guns and forced their pursuers to drive them back to Maitland and then to Merrickville. At another service station where the car stopped for gas, Tarbutt made a break for liberty and escaped after the bandits had sent a bullet winging by his head. Dalgleish was forced to continue driving, but was released when the car broke down on a lonely road after the unwilling driver had purposely let the clutch burn out. Provincial police picked up the trail and the two men surrendered without a struggle. They were lodged in Brockville jail. The garage owned by Dalgleish is shown in the lower picture.

SONS ARE GUESTS OF THEIR FATHERS ST. JAMES' BANQUET

An annual event of much interest took place last night when the fathers and sons of St. James' United church joined together for a happy social hour and enjoyed a sumptuous banquet prepared by their wives and mothers.

Spring flowers and pussy-willows adorned the tastefully laid tables, at which covers were set for about one hundred and twenty-five fathers, sons and guests.

At the head table with the chairman, M. H. Drysdale, president of the Brotherhood under whose auspices the banquet was held, were the pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Craik and Mrs. Craik, Rev. C. L. Brown of Springville, guest speaker, and all the artists taking part in the fine program presented.

The toast to "The King," proposed by J. Freeman, called for the loyal response, "God Save the King."

Robert Hardie entertained the audience with a group of clever tricks, for which he was loudly applauded.

In proposing the toast to the church, Robert Kitchen declared it to be 'the greatest institution in our land.' He spoke of its vital affect upon the community and expressed the hope that in the future its influence would be even more widespread.

Rev. Mr. Craik, on behalf of the church, replied to Mr. Kitchen's tribute in an informal address and referred to the three great steps in the life of a Christian, as being faith, hope and charity—or love, and urged the fathers and sons to embrace and follow this three-fold ideal.

The toasts were interspersed by pleasing musical selections, with Ashton Fife capably presiding at the piano throughout.

Delightful Group.

"The Trumpeter" and "The Big Brown Bear," sung by Miss Marion Wood, made a delightful group, while Miss B. Curtis, soprano, was heard to advantage in "Dear Little Boy of Mine" and "The Bells of St. Mary's."

Giving the toast to the Fathers, Eric Douglas touched the core of this wonderful relationship when he paid tribute to the fathers. In return for their sacrifice and love, he urged the boys to live up to a father's hopes and high ideals for them.

J. O. Fife, in reply, thanked the sons for this sincere expression of their affection and assured them that 'our sons are the hope of the world.' He spoke of the task and the high responsibility in both church and state, passed on to the sons of this generation and stressed the need for them to measure up to this trust.

Eric May brought a beautiful message in song in his group of solos "The Open Road" and "Little Irish Girl," while a pleasing variation in the program was the Hawaiian guitar numbers played in duet by Misses G. Hunt and D. Anderson.

Guest Speaker.

"The great fellowship represented here to-night has gone further than the home," said Rev. C. L. Brown in introducing his very fine address to the fathers and sons. He maintained that this relationship was manifested in many such organizations as the Y.M.C.A. and the Brotherhood.

Behind every problem boy there is probably a problem parent—for no boy is born bad. He is either misunderstood or neglected—his parents meant well but did not do well.

The speaker enumerated various reasons as to why the church apparently made stronger appeal to women than to men, but "Christianity is for all—men and women alike.' The church has a message and a work for each individual and the Christian religion is not effeminate, but manly and courageous.

The gospel ought to appeal to every father and the Christian virtues may be transmitted, not so much by word as by influence and this obligation should be shared by the father as well as the mother.

In closing the speaker said that a good father makes a good citizen and repeated the words of Edgar Guest in a father's prayer, which begins with the words, "Lord make me tolerant and wise.'

The chairman thanked Mr. Brown for his inspirational message and also those who so kindly contributed to the success of the evening, while Mr. May moved a sincere vote of thanks to the ladies who provided the banquet.

Community singing, under the enthusiastic leadership of Henry Turner, brought to a conclusion this, another milestone in the history of St. James' Brotherhood.

COMPEL ELECTORS TO USE FRANCHISE

TORONTO, March 29.—Legislation that would compel electors to exercise their full franchise in municipal elections was strongly endorsed last night by William J. Stewart, C.B.E., four times Mayor of Toronto.

"Surely there are enough people British in spirit who will go out and vote the full ticket," said Mr. Stewart. "The proposal, which should have the support of the Government, would affect those minorities who concentrate on the sure election of one political candidate, as is evidenced by the increasing vote made by Communst candidates in this city."

Mr. Stewart declared emphatically that he was content to be ruled by a Government of the people, but he was not content to be governed by a minority group, particularly by representatives who are elected by a minority vote given power through "plumping." The present system practically invited minorities to place their representatives in high positions.

"The sooner people realize in this country that the underlying issue in elections is either the preservation of British institution and principles, or not, the better it will be for the country. If they do not exercise their franchise to the full, they are contributing directly to those parties which are sponsoring subversive doctrines," said Mr. Stewart.

Blue Danube Waltz Brings Delightful Program To End

Etta Coles And Naomi Yanova Duo-Pianists Are Heard In Concert Program

Possibly the subscribers of the Peterborough Concert Association may have felt that the gayest, most sparkling and melodic music played by Etta Coles and Naomi Yanova, Canadian duo-pianists, at the Collegiate Institute Monday night was also the saddest, the classic of light and tuneful waltzes, "Blue Danube" of Johann Strauss, one of the immortals who in his time and for posterity personified the spirit of the old Vienna that was snuffed out a few nights ago while the rest of the world, that learned to dance to its graceful rhythms, slept.

Final Number

It was the final number of the program, the perennially popular Blue Danube, richly embellished by the arrangement of Abram Chasins, as the program related, and superbly sung on the two pianos, but instead of its unheard accompaniment of graceful, gliding feet of legions of dancers, its overtones of rapture were lost in the harsh lingering echoes of the brutal boots of Storm Troopers.

The Vienna Has Past.

Instead of the prolonged applause, it would have seemed more fitting if the audience had stood with bowed heads for the vanished Vienna that first heard the lilting refrain of the Blue Danube waltz, and now, is no more, dead as Austria is dead, bludgeoned by that new sceptre of vaunting ambition, if not of tyranny, the Berlin-Rome axis.

After all, it was only a concert, unaffected and even unaware of the fate that has befallen the old world city of art and music and science on the Danube.

The waltz of Strauss as Miss Coles and Miss Yanova played it at their two pianos filling the central stage at the Collegiate seemed more fraught with pathos than the earlier number, "Tears," by Rachmaninoff, inspired by a verse from a poem by Tutcheff, to quote several lines:

"Tears of mankind, Oh! tears of mankind
Pouring as streams of rain
In the dull autumn light."

The young ladies in their expressive pianism communicated from that music the sombre mood of pain and defeat and lost hope. It was darkly atmospheric, but surely not so dark as the old city of grace and glamour that now must accept the standards of music and everything else set by Adolf Hitler who thrills to the Badenweiler march.

Fault of the Times.

If the Blue Danube seemed last night to be pitched in a minor key it was not the fault of Etta Coles and Naomi Yanova; it was the fault of the times and the boding sense of loss they engender and of grossness and discord.

The concert was the last of the series undertaken by the Peterborough Concert Association, and, following the two that have gone before, should ensure an increased subscription list for next year.

The program was as follows: Two Bach chorales, arranged by Mary Howe: (a) It is a True Saying; (b) Sheep May Safely Graze.; Fantasia and fugue in A minor, Bach, arranged by Harold Bauer. Gavotte by Gluck. Scherzo from "Midsummer Night's Dream." Mendelssohn. "Tears" and "Tarantelle," Rachmaninoff. Encore, "Minuet," Suboeck. Andantino varie, Schubert. Laideronette, Empress of the Pagodas, and Beauty and the Beast from the Mother Goose suite, Ravel. Malaguena, by Leucona. "Aquarium" and The Cuckoo in the Depth of the Wood by Saint-Saens. Polka, a burlesque, by Lennox-Berkeley. Blue Danube Waltz. Encores: Gavotte, Saint-Saens; Waltz, Arensky, Sicilienne, Bach.

Delicate pianissimos and the gentle sweep of movement in the first chorale, and the recurrent pastoral theme of the second, played with acute sensitiveness of mood contrasted sharply with the mass of tone built up in the fantasia. Grace and power were reflected at the two keyboards in those opening numbers, which also demonstrated at once the co-ordination of values and the complete rapport Miss Coles and Miss Yanova have developed in their eight years' association as concert pianists. They seemed to minimize the technical difficulties of the scherzo by their proficiency, and the andantino of Schubert was marked by a polished legato.

"Malaguena" was a grand show piece, full of excitement and melody, glittering cadenzas and crashing chords. Soft tone colors and gentle movement and mood were finely brought out in the Saint-Saens numbers, and the polka was racey and almost rowdy stuff suggesting what was regarded as swing by a high-kicking dancer in the gay and noisy nineties. The Arensky waltz of the generous encores glowed with melodic beauty and broad, robust rhythm. The audience's requests for three encores was an eloquent evidence of the impression Miss Coles and Yanova made in their first Peterborough engagement.

Not A Strong Case

Members of the senate of the University of Western Ontario, London, asked the provincial government to increase the grant made to the university by $25,000. The government grant is $260,000, the same as the year before. To the Minister of Education it was explained that the additional $25,000 would be used to restore salary cuts to all members of the staff.

We doubt whether that is a strong enough case to present to the provincial government in the search for more funds. If the government were to grant the request it would mean collecting an additional $25,000 from the people of Ontario in order that the staff of one school might have its salary list restored to the proportions of 100 per cent. days. The percentage of students who attend university compared with all the young people who receive education in our primary and secondary schools is very small. While there are rural teachers working for salaries which are entirely inadequate it would seem neither just nor right to take $25,000 of public funds to be applied to bettering the salaries of one group of teachers in London.

A Strike Called Off

A strike which has been in operation in Woodstock at the plant of LaFrance textiles, has been called off. The plant has not at any time been brought to a standstill in operation. There were battles and court cases and a number of police from outside points. But in the end the strike has failed.

One reason given for the failure is lack of funds. Organization work was carried on in Woodstock and shortly after a strike was called. There was no central fund from which to draw, and the workers had few reserves on their own behalf. When they quit work then their income did the same thing.

Another factor in having the strike called off is reported to have been the attitude of the relief office to those who applied there. Nine strikers applied for relief and a number had intimated their intention of doing the same thing. Civic authorities in Woodstock sought guidance from the provincial offices in Toronto and the answer was "Our policy has always been and will continue to be, no relief for strikers."

The men making application knew there were no union funds to help them; they were made aware that when they were classed as strikers there would be nothing for them at the relief office. That left only one way open to get the funds needed for existence—call off the strike and go back to work.

Nearly all these cases run much the same. Now that the decision has been made to return to work, LaFrance company says it is not at all certain it needs many of its former employees. A number have been working steadily, and orders are not what they should be. So there are in Woodstock people who are ready and willing to return to work; they may get work and they may not. Whether the fact that the strike has been called off will change the ruling of the relief office is something on which no information is furnished.

One can have every sympathy with a group of workers who need more pay in order to have a better standard of living, but the manner of getting it is something which requires a deal of wisdom and plain thought. Organizing and calling a strike and bringing hundreds of workers out with no means for their support is not likely to produce results. In too many cases it is actually putting the workers in a weakened position from the outset.

No "Fixed Address"

It is not uncommon to see reference in police court items to people "with no fixed address." It is becoming a much-used phrase and refers to transients. It is taken to mean that the individual cannot name a town or a house in the town or city where he lives; no street address; no postoffice box number; Nothing at all to indicate he has a home.

It is not easy to become reconciled to the idea that we have a large number of people in this country who do not belong any place. Such condition is far removed from what we term normal; it is separated entirely from that to which we have been accustomed.

There was a transient in the Examiner office today. He did not object to talking about where he had been and where he intended to go. He was not seriously thinking about going to work. Truth is this man makes his way selling shoelaces; he said it was not hard to get rid of sufficient each day to make sure of a bed and something to eat, and for more than that he had small desire.

Getting nearer the question about "no fixed address" we found the shoelace man had none. He had been born in a town in Middlesex county, leaving there when he was 18 years of age. He went west and finally took up some land, but did not make a go of farming. His mother died when he was a boy and his father died about nine years ago. He was an only child and as far as he knows he has not a relative. If he went back to the town where he was born he says he would know no person because he left the place 40 years ago. In those 40 years the shoelace man said he had never had a home apart from a shack he put up when trying to homestead some land. For some time when working he had a room in a boarding house but for seven years he has not had that. He said it was better to keep on moving from place to place, otherwise there was apt to be trouble with the police.

Had he any friends or acquaintances? Yes, but he had no way of calling on them. He met them here and there on the road or in police stations at nights. We learned there were many men today of whom it could be said they had "no fixed address." No home, no relatives, no place to go. And the shoelace man said there were no prospects of a change.

Picture Of A Reporter

Don Brown, reporter for the Edmonton Journal, was detained by order of the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Alberta Legislature. It looked for a time as though Mr. Brown would be sent to jail. But he was set at liberty instead which is much better as going to jail with spring coming is not so good.

Mr. Brown has had his picture printed in a good many papers. And that is unusual for a reporter or for any person engaged in the newspaper field. We know of no printed rule on the subject but such pictures are not often published.

Reporter Brown in the course of his work would probably have asked a good many people for their picture. He would have written stories about these people; good people; ordinary people; people in trouble and out of it.

And he had to go on working quite a while before he did something which earned for him the distinction of being the reporter who had his picture printed in the papers.

Catching Suckers

There was an item in the paper from home this week, and it took little space. It announced: "The boys have been catching a number of suckers in the creek between the old tannery and the railway culvert." And that is all; just those few words. But they are sufficient to show that all is well in the old village. A good many things have changed; the names on the stores are pretty much all different now; the three blacksmith shops have gone; the main street is paved whereas they used to spread gravel to fill in the holes each spring. The people living there are nearly all strangers, but the boys are taking suckers out of the creek near the old tannery, and they have been doing that for years.

The method of taking them is different today, but in the stream running through the corner of the village the spear was commonly used. Suckers we have found in recent years have a family name which is quite impressive—Catastomidae—and the game laws appear to extend to them a mild form of protection.

One never did learn to be a good sucker spearman all at once. It was necessary to pass through a sort of apprenticeship. The small boy generally began by holding a torch at night, and the torch had to be secured from the band room in the village hall. It was the same sort of torch which would be used to provide illumination the night the band played out on the square. There was a science in holding that torch just so; when it was held just so then the man with the spear could operate to advantage. Generally it was necessary to get the feet wet while being a junior torchman, but of course when one seeks to acquire knowledge the price must be paid. The recompense at the moment was that one was generally handed a sucker to take home, although a sucker could not well compensate for wet feet. The folk at home generally scoffed at the sucker; they pronounced it poor soft thing full of bones.

Just how the village boys today are taking members of the family Catastomidae from the creek near the old tannery we do not know. But we are glad they are doing it because it seems to form one connecting link between past and present. And such connecting links are scarce enough.

Funds Of Political Parties

From Ottawa there is a report that a complete overhauling of part of our electoral system is going to be made. It will have to do with the raising of campaign funds, and these may in future have to pass under the watchful eye of an official who will be called an "inspector general" or "comptroller general." Admittedly either is an impressive name and will provide a new position for some individual.

Individual riding associations of political parties are to be incorporated, and the manner in which funds are secured for the central organization are to come under scrutiny. Contributions are to be placed on the records which means they will become public property.

There are two things worth considering in this. (1) Finding out who is making contributions to the political parties in a large way, and (2) trying to arrive at some conclusion which will show us whether the obtaining of the information is worth what we will have to pay the officials and their staff for securing it.

The making of large contributions to the central fund of a political party is something about which the average voter would like to know. If he has considered the matter at all he knows these contributions are not made because the donors are loyal to their party. Business does not hand out its money just for the sake of having one political party beat another. We are quite sure these larger givings are looked upon as business investments. Those who make them consider they will be in a favored position when they have requests to make of their government.

The average man who goes and marks his ballot may consider he is the individual who has much to do with the rise and fall of governments. But the average man after voting has little more to say or ask. He may have elected his candidate, but he fails to see that the man who made the large contribution to pay expenses is the individual who may have much to do with the candidate after he has been elected. The large gift would certainly make the going easier for the large giver following an election. If it would not work that way then the large gift would never be made.

The second question is the practical value of this information once it has been gathered. An officer with a high-sounding title is proposed. He will need an office, a secretary, and some helpers. In this way there will be an addition made to our expenditure and it will continue year after year. If he has to keep in touch with political organizations in each of the 245 electoral divisions of the Dominion he will find himself dealing with organizations which in number will be 245 multiplied by the number of political faiths in each riding. And from all that information he will surely draw much which is of no interest at all. Public concern is centred chiefly if not entirely in the larger contributions. If the average man in the average riding desires to do something when the hat is passed at election times then that is pretty much his own business. We do not favor starting the creation of an expensive department on election organizations. The purpose of such legislation could be well enough served by making it necessary to furnish information regarding the larger donations.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Undoubtedly the reason the Ontario government is protecting municipal sinking funds is that the members know such funds are easily sunk.

British Columbia is out to fight Japanese exploitation of the province's timber. As far as Japan is concerned the coast authorities say Woodman, spare that tree.

Wallaceburg Chamber of Commerce is urging the Highways Department to prevent the destruction of trees along the highways. Now and then car drivers manage to nip off a couple more.

The provinces that object to the Dominion government having control over loan sharks evidently do not consider the plight of the victims of such financial pirates worth bothering about.

Mike Meehan of Kenora may not be interested in naval craft as a general thing but he must have felt a little excited the other day when Battleship won the Grand National and $150,000 was Mr. Meehan's award.

Both Premier Hepburn and Leopold Macaulay are in favor of government-supervised hospital sweepstakes. Evidently they are realists who realize that Canadians are buying sweepstake tickets anyway.

Hon. Harry Nixon accuses Ottawa of leaving the provincial government holding the bag in every scheme in which there have been joint interests. Even the Conservative opposition could not be more severe than that.

PUZZLED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I watched them pave the street one day, they said the thing was there to stay, it was the best in town; they dug and scooped away for days, and experts measured many ways, they went a long way down.

¶ They put in drains like how they should, they seemed to lay them pretty good, for they were there to stay; they put in gravel, then some stone, a monstrous roller toiled alone, and packed it every way.

¶ On top they piled in good cement, mixed up by some exacting gent, they spread it on with care; and thereon men drove car and nag, and folk around were heard to brag, a splendid thoroughfare.

¶ The thing had cost a lot we knew, but then the spending time was through, men took their tools away; we'd never have to worry more, the road was smooth as any floor, and it was there to stay.

¶ Two years gone back a pipe got plugged, and then more tools and carts they lugged, and they brought many men; 'twas then I went out and inquired, the pavement that we all admired, must be torn up again.

¶ This week more pipes went bad I hear, and workers came from far and near, just like they did before; the road they say is permanent, but I can't see just what they meant—they'll dig it up once more.

Question Asked By Two Members

(From Official Parliamentary Reports)

On the orders of the day;

Mr. R. E. FINN (Halifax): I desire to call the attention of the government, particularly of the Minister of Pensions and National Health (Mr. Power) to a serious situation which has arisen in Halifax in connection with the Camp Hill hospital. I regret to say that a warning I gave a year ago was disregarded—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member is in order in putting a question to any minister, but I do not think he is in order in making a speech, giving special reasons for the question he intends to put.

Mr. FINN: I am not making a speech.

Mr. SPENCE: Make your speech short.

Mr. FINN: I will dispense with it. The question I should like to ask is why an East Indian seaman stricken with smallpox was admitted to Camp Hill hospital, which is supposed to be devoted to returned men and women, so that an orderly who was in attendance on this patient also has been stricken with smallpox, and according to a letter just received it is feared that there may be an epidemic. The hospital is quarantined so that no person may enter or leave.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. FINN: I may not be quite within the rules of this house in making this explanation, but I think the matter is sufficiently serious to permit some little latitude being given.

Hon. C. G. POWER (Minister of Pensions and National Health): Mr. Speaker, the other hon. member for Halifax (Mr. Isnor) was kind enough to give me notice of a question along similar lines.

Mr. FINN: He did not give me notice.

Mr. POWER: I have prepared a reply. The question put to me by the other hon. member for Halifax was this:

It has been brought to my attention that a sick mariner was recently taken off a ship arriving from the far east which entered the port of Halifax and sent to Camp Hill hospital. Later it was learned that the patient was suffering from smallpox and died. Since then, others in the hospital have contracted this dread disease and, I understand, two orderlies are reported seriously ill.

In view of the danger of the spreading of this disease throughout the city of Halifax, I would like to ask the hon. minister:

(1) If he has been made aware of this matter.

(2) What steps have been taken to prevent a spread of this disease.

(3) If it is the intention of the minister, in future, to allow quarantine cases, particularly of sick mariners, to enter Camp Hill hospital.

To this I have had the following reply prepared by the officers of the department:

The ss. City of Auckland arrived at Halifax on Monday, March 7. She was boarded by the quarantine officer, and the captain reported to him that there was no illness on board. Nevertheless, while the boat was being deratized at the request of the captain the immigration medical officer was advised that one of the members of the crew was ill.

The sick person was removed to Camp Hill hospital where the case was diagnosed as one of smallpox. The patient was then removed to the quarantine station at Lawlor's Island where he died on March 9. On March 18 I was advised that the orderly who attended the smallpox case at Camp Hill hospital had contracted smallpox and that instructions had been issued to remove him to Lawlor's Island together with a nurse and orderly and all those who had been in contact with the patient unless they had been successfully vaccinated. On March 19 I was notified that a second orderly, who apparently had had a successful vaccination, had developed smallpox and that he was removed to Lawlor's Island together with two nurses and an orderly.

With respect to what steps have been taken to prevent a spread of this disease I would say this: As soon as it was ascertained that the patient was suffering from smallpox, the medical officer in charge of Camp Hill hospital issued instructions to vaccinate everyone in the hospital; to prevent anyone leaving the hospital and to prevent all visitors entering therein. All members of the crew of the ss. City of Auckland were vaccinated as well as all employees of the immigration building. Buses used in the transportation of the crew of the ss. City of Auckland to and from the immigration building and ship were fumigated and the bus drivers vaccinated. In addition, the crew of the quarantine boat, Salucan II, and members of their families were vaccinated. The city health officer and provincial health officer were notified and both gave every assistance that they could in preventing the spread of infection to the people of the city. Both expressed themselves as being satisfied with the measures taken by the quarantine officers and medical officers of Camp Hill hospital.

When advice was received that the orderly who had attended the patient at Camp Hill hospital had become ill with smallpox, all inmates of the hospital who had not shown a successful vaccination were revaccinated and complete quarantine imposed on the hospital.

PENSION GRABS.

(New York Sun)

THE WHOLE cause of social security is hurt by such testimony as was produced at the opening session of the Social Security Board's hearing to determine whether Federal grants to Oklahoma for old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children should be withdrawn. An investigator for the board testified that in three counties of the state the number of old age pensioners exceeded the estimated population over 65, the minimum age at which a pension may be received, and that in 19 other counties old age pensioners numbered at least 75 per cent. of the estimated population over 65.

POLL TAX

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Could I use a portion of your space to make a few comments on the Poll Tax a single man has to pay. Just because a man is single that doesn't mean he has lots of money to spare. After a single man pays his board he hasn't very much money left to pay his way and to provide for a rainy day. I know the city has to get money to pay expenses, but 5 dollars is really oo much. If it was 2 dollars that would be all right.

Every year some single men get away without paying it. It's not fair that some have to pay all the time, while a lot go free. There is no reason why single girls should not pay Poll Tax, because they are making as much as single men these days and in many cases more. Thanking you for your space, I remain your truly,

POLL TAX PAYER.

BEHIND THE WHEEL

Editor Examiner:

Sir: It is with much surprise and regret that such remarks as appear in your edition of March 26, should be directed towards our motorcycle officers.

These young ladies mentioned may be an exception to some of the people walking the highways for the purpose of obtaining a "lift" or merely walking to or from home.

As we are all entitled to be protected, by each other, the officer mentioned was no doubt trying to protect them from the terrible conditions that prevail on our highways today.

There is a mention of a hitch-hiking law. If you or I were making the laws of today, provided that you were using the highways as others do, I'm afraid there would be a few, well needed laws like one to prohibit jaywalking and hitch-hiking on our highways.

Get behind the wheel of a large transport truck or ride with a commercial traveller and cover some of our through highways. See for yourself what is going on, and see how many times you will swear, because some unheeding human will walk out in front of you or get in your path when you are meeting another car or truck.

We have respect for human life, but why some people invite or dare you to run them down is beyond all the laws.

Hoping, that the fathers of these young ladies will overlook this apparent misunderstanding and try to help our officers in their duty to protect us all, I remain yours truly,

TRANSPORT OPERATOR.

How "Confession" Is Secured.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

QUEER HAPPENINGS at Soviet trials have mystified outside observers. Some light is provided by a former Russian commissar who ultimately obtained acquittal, one of the few to do so, after having seen or experienced the horrors of Soviet camps and prisons. This man fled to Warsaw, leaving his family behind, and there told his story to the correspondent of the London Sunday Express.

Arrested on charges of espionage and anti-Stalin activity, he was put in the Lubianka prison in Moscow. The ceilling was only seven feet high. His story continues:

"Brilliant lights blazed the whole time, month after month. The little window was covered by steel shutters. There was no day and night. It was all the same.

"On the wall was a notice written in English, Russian, German and French, which ran, 'Anybody opening the shutters will be shot immediately.'

"Every hour or so an Ogpu guard would open a little shutter in the door, push the muzzle of a pistol through and follow me round with it.

"I tried to sleep on the hard wooden bench by covering my eyes with my coat to shut out the light. An Ogpu guard came in, shook me, said, 'There is no sleep here.'

"The Lubianka Prison is as silent as the grave except when one hears the whispers of a man talking to himself, or a sudden cry from another cell.

"One is forbidden to make a sound, and you feel as though you are in a cemetery.

"Once when I was being taken to a cross-examination I saw a boy being dragged down a passage by three men. The boy cried out. They struck him heavily in the face, pried his mouth open, forced an iron clamp on his tongue.

"'This is a house where no one speaks!' they said.

"I was eight months in the Lubianka Prison, and had about forty-five cross-examinations, many lasting as long as six or seven hours. The Commissars would sit in comfortable chairs, with plates of delicious food and bottles of wine before them. They would say: 'Confess and you can have what you like.'

"Finally they offered me a glass of water. I drank it, and then before my self-realization went I knew what it was. It was the 'talking drug.'

"I laughed till my sides split for five minutes. I suddenly felt in marvelous health and good spirits. Then I felt the most inexplicable urge to shout out everything I knew.

"It was impossible to resist. Will power had, of course, been sapped by months of solitary confinement and dead silence. But still, nothing I had said could incriminate me.

"Finally, when the room was nearly dark, they brought me a harmless-looking document to sign. Suddenly I realized that the papers were so arranged that they intended me to sign a full 'confession,' hidden behind the first sheet.

"They always threatened: 'If you don't confess your relatives will be arrested'."

Later this man was taken to another institution where there were 25,000 prisoners. He was put in a room 25 feet by 20, in which there were 167 other accused persons.

As a commissar he saw concentration and labor camps where, he believes, there are 4,000,000 altogether. Up in the White Sea area men fell trees, and if they fall in the snow from exhaustion they are just left to freeze to death.

Stalin's word is law, and so long as he rules there will be no change of conditions.

Relatives Seek To Locate Them.

THERE ARE several papers in Canada which run departments for missing relatives or friends. In all there must be many people who have "dropped out of sight" as far as relatives and friends are concerned. The following list is taken from the last issue of the Montreal Herald and Weekly Star:

BAILEY, Frederick—Came to Canada from England when 15 years old. Born at Watford, Hertfordshire. Half-sister inquires. Write to Mrs. Daisy Fizell (nee Knight), Mountainside, Manitoba.

CROWLEY, Clifford—Born at Montreal. Removed from Ladies Benevolent Society, child welfare institution in Montreal in 1905 by Rev. E. King, Anglican minister at Windsor Mills, P.Q. Sister Lucy Pearl inquires. Please write Mrs. John W. Hambleton, Box 27, Glen Robertson, Ontario.

DAVIS, Lloyd—Missing from home at Amherst, N.S., since February 9, 1938. Fair complexion, fair hair, hazel eyes, thin face, slim build, 5 ft. 3 in. tall, 17 years old. Fare home will be paid if boy writes. Parents inquire. Write to James E. Gould, 255 Church St., Amherst, N. S.

HARRISON, James—Born at Smithers, B.C., about 18 years ago. Left there 7 years ago when father died. Last heard of in Winnipeg with mother. Half - brother inquires. Write to Robert Green, Angila, Saskatchewan.

McBAIN, Jeremiah — Age about 66 years. Born in Huron County. Last heard of in Michigan, about 45 years ago. Sister inquires. Write to Mrs. Thomas J. Kennedy, R.R. 2, Rockwood, Ont.

MacISAAC, Ronald Archie—Born at Dunnegan, Inverness Co., Cape Breton. Last heard of landing at Vancouver, B.C., in January, 1932. Sister inquires. Write to Miss Lena MacIsaac, 12 Nelson Ave., Quincy, Mass.

SULLIVAN, John—Last heard of 8 years ago at Smith Post Office, Lesser Slave Lake in the Peace River country. Mother inquires. Write to Mrs. M. Sullivan, Sleemans, Ontario.

WESTON, (Harold Oscar)—Born in England; about 44 years of age. Came to Novia Scotia, with parents in 1902, last seen or heard of in Halifax, N. S., in 1911, or thereabout, when he came to the orphanage home to visit his brother and sister, Cyril Weston and Eileen Weston. Brother inquires, Cyril E. Weston, Hartland, N.B.

WOOD, Joseph Edwin—Born in Yorkshire, England. Last known address at Fort William, Ontario. Sister-in-law inquires. Write to Mrs. Elizabeth Wood, Marquette, Manitoba.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

KEEP THY HEART with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. . . . Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established. Turn not to the right hand nor to the left: remove thy foot from evil.—Prov. iv, 23, 26, 27.

Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded; and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you. Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing. . . .

Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.—Phil. iii, 13-16; iv, 8.

FREE OF DUTY

(Regina Leader-Post)

THE EVIDENT position of the Saskatchewan Legislature that neither gifts during lifetime nor at death to educational, religious nor charitable institutions should come under the Succession Duties Act is soundly based.

Prior suggestions that all such gifts should be involved in succession duties imposts created a feeling in the province that here was something that almost certainly would seriously jeopardize essential undertakings. There is little encouragement to giving to worthy causes if a man is to be taxed for such giving.

TEA DRINKERS.

(Manchester Guardian)

AN ESTIMATE just published that every man, woman, and child in Great Britain drinks 1,900 cups of tea a year, confirms in one detail the somewhat more picturesque statement of a United States official some years ago.

Supposing, he said, that an Englishman, an American, a Russian, a German, an Austrian, a Frenchman, and an Italian sat down to tea together and ordered the cup that cheers in proportion to the relative consumption of their respective countries, the Englishman would find himself confronted with nearly 2,000 cups, the American with just under 400, the Russian with 275, the German with 36, the Austrian with 20, the Frenchman with 18, and the Italian with only one.

CREWS TRAIN FOR BIG RACE IN ENGLAND - MEXICANS HAIL OIL LAND SEIZURE

Trans-Canada Airlines Mak e Exhaustive Safety Tests

Exhaustive tests are now being made by Trans-Canada Airlines to ensure the safety of the proposed trans-Canada passenger service, which will be inaugurated in the near future. At present only one regular run is in operation—between Vancouver and Seattle. Test mail flights have recently been successfully made between Vancouver and Winnipeg, and are being carried on at different points throughout the West. When present tests have been completed, huge airliners, capable of taking aboard 850 pounds of mail, baggage and express, besides 10 passengers, will make regular runs across the Dominion. The baggage is carried in the nose of the fuselage and UPPER LEFT shows cargo going aboard. The modern Lockeed Electras used by the Trans-Canada Air Lines consume 45 gallons of fuel an hour. The two forward tanks, which are being filled, UPPER RIGHT, hold 85 gallons each. In addition to these there are two 15-gallon reserve tanks in the centre section of the wing. Retractable landing gear is another part of the modern equipment to be used by the airline. This landing gear is raised and lowered electrically, indicators on the instrument panel showing the pilot just where they are. A mechanic, LOWER LEFT, is shown giving the landing gear its daily check to ensure that it is in perfect working order. Signals between the aeroplanes and their landing bases play an important part in aviation and this traffic control projector, LOWER CENTRE, flashes signals to aeroplanes about to land or take off. Different colored lights are used in the projector to direct traffic. Weather observers are another important cog in the compact organization to make trans-Canada flying safe. This chap, LOWER RIGHT, is not playing with the balloon. He is one of the many observers who supply reports and forecasts to Trans-Canada Air Lines' stations across the Dominion. These small, hydrogen-filled balloons are released and their flight observed through a theodolite, an instrument which registers the direction and velocity of the wind.

Claire Divorced

Claire Dodd, stage and screen star, reversed the old story of the hardworking husband who came home only to be confronted by demands of his wife that they "step out." She is shown in court as she obtained a divorce from Jack Milton Strauss, real estate broker, after picturing herself as a hard-working wife who would often come home from the studio to face demands from her husband that they go out to night clubs.

H.M.S. Revenge Prepares To Greet Enemy

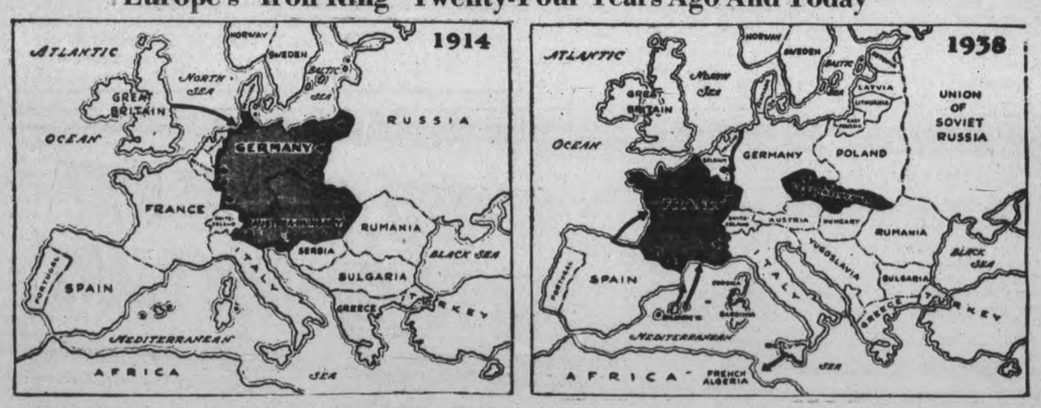
Europe's "Iron Ring" Twenty-Four Years Ago And Today

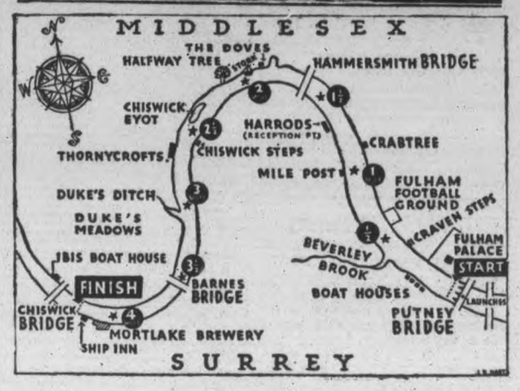


The present European situation brings back unpleasant memories of the hectic days preceding the Great War of 1914, when governments engaged in a wild armament race which ended in war. Then, as now, Europe was split into armed camps. The map on the RIGHT, shows how the Central powers, (Germany and Austria-Hungary) were ringed by the arms of allied enemies in 1914. The map on the RIGHT, shows the present situation with France and Czechoslovakia in a virtual iron ring. France also fears that she will have enemies to her south, in Spain, should the insurgent forces win the present bitter civil war which is raging in that country.

Mexicans Hail Cardenas' Seizure Of Oil

After cheering the action of President Lazaro Cardenas in expropriating foreign-owned oil properties in Mexico for alleged failure to comply with labor laws, these laborers gathered in Mexico City's main plaza to dramatize the event. They are burning a coffin representing the oil companies after soaking the coffin—in oil. Cardenas has promised indemnities to the foreign-owned oil companies. Vincent Cortes Herrera, RIGHT, has been appointed by Cardenas to be general manager of the expropriated oil industries.

Oxford And Cambridge Crews Working Hard In Preparation For Historic Clash



April 2 is the big day in the year for Oxford and Cambridge universities in England, and also for a good many English sporting fans. That's the day the eight-oared crews of the two schools meet for their annual race on the Thames, a race that attracts hundreds of thousands to watch the struggle from the river banks. The Cambridge crew is shown above and the Oxford oarsmen alongside as they worked out on the river in preparation for the meeting. The map shows the course to be taken over the four and a bit miles of the Thames from Putney to Mortlake.

CHATHAM-FALCONBRIDGE BATTLE TO 1-ALL HOCKEY DEADLOCK

MAROONS STAGE PLAYOFF UPSET ON TORONTO ICE

TORONTO, March 29.—Chatham Maroons provided one of the biggest hockey upsets of this season by holding Falconbridge Falcons to a 1-to-1 tie in the first game of their Allan Cup playdowns two-game, goals-to-count, series at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. The second game will be played tonight.

The speedier Falcons were bogged down by the persistent checking of the Maroons, who clung to their men like flies to glue. And if the Falcons did shake their checks they had to contend with a hard-hitting defense and a cool, deliberate goal-tender.

With the exception of the last five minutes of play when the Northerners sent five men to the attack, the Maroons held the Falcons in check and had just as much if not more of the territorial play. The Maroon defense time and again broke up what appeared to be dangerous Falcon thrusts and turned around to threaten the Falcon goal.

Turned In Good Display

What started out to be a ragged kitty-bar-the-door game developed into a real thriller as the teams warmed up to their task. While both teams handed out plenty of heavy bodychecks and at times carried their sticks high, not one penalty marred the game. It was the type of hockey that a penalty might have been the turning point in the game.

Early in the first period it became apparent that the Falcons were going to experience difficulty with the persistent checking of Chatham. And as the game wore on the Maroons never gave up their relentless pursuit of the Falcon puck-carrier.

Both goaltenders were called on to make brilliant saves as first one team and then the other threatened. Higginbottom saved the Falcons twice in the final period, when Maroon players broke away from Falconbridge ganging attacks. On the other hand, Peardon was called on to make some brilliant saves while the Falcons swooped around inside the Chatham defense zone.

Murrell Opens Scoring

After a listless first period, when both teams seemed very uncertain and resorted chiefly to solo sorties, both teams applied themselves in the second period. For a while, as the action swept up and down the ice and the checking became more and more rugged, tempers flared and many a butt-end and elbow flew. Late in the period Murrell sent the Chatham supporters, who made up a large part of the crowd of 1,138, into raptures with his beautiful solo effort. He picked up the disc at his own blue line and, staying close to the left boards, stickhandled past the entire Falcon team and coasted in to beat Higginbottom with a low corner shot which the goaltender had no chance to save.

The Falcons began to apply the pressure a little more strenuously after that and held a slight edge from then until the end of the period, but were unable to score. When the final session started the Northerners continued the pressure and were finally rewarded when Captain Hal Cooper banged in Don Grosso's rebound off the boards behind the goal. Again the clubs let down for awhile, but as the period wore on Falcons again opened up and sent first four and then five men on the attack.

Falcons Pressed On End.

Time after time they bore in on the Maroon net, but they were either beaten by Peardon or steered into a corner by the Chatham defense. Even though they were bottled up in their own end of the ice for the greater part of the last half of the period, Maroons were very dangerous and staged breakaways which brought the crowd to its feet repeatedly.

But the Maroons, too, experienced plenty of trouble breaking through the Falcon defense and beating Higginbottom. For the last two minutes of the game the Falcons kept Maroons tied into their own zone almost incessantly, but still they could not get by Peardon.

Peardon was the mainstay of the Maroon defense, but he was very ably assisted by the defense of Stoddart and Le Hereux. Up front, Hinnigan and Lemiski, as well as Murrell, were dangerous, although the entire Chatham team showed very well. Don Grosso played a bang-up game for the Falcons on the forward line, but the work of Higginbottom in the North-Enders' net and the fine checking of Dixon and McEwan, starting defense pair, was comparable to that of the Maroon defenders.

Falconbridge. — Goal, Higginbottom; defense, McEwan and Dixon; centre, Hastie; wings, Hodges and Grosso; subs, Bellinger, Cooper, Stewart, Loree, Brady and Geddes.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AT THE organization meeting of the local lacrossers last fall, the appointing of an executive committee was left in the hands of these officers: President, H. S. Leybourne; vice-prexy, Harry Tudhope; secretary, Jim Lehane; treasurer, Doug Miller; grounds committee, Pete King, Jim Lehane and Doug Miller. The officers had a meeting over the weekend and named the following executive: Pete King, chairman, Ken Kingston, Frank Buckland, Frank Randle, Hubert Legros, Fred Helson, Ira Dundas and Red Creighton. Manager of the team will be Frank Randle again. The club hopes to get grouped in the O.A.L.A. with Brooklin, Oshawa, Roden and East York. Won't be long till there is more dope on the local squad.

* * * * * * *

KEN COLLING of Belleville recalls an incident of the old C.O.B.L. some 13 or 14 years ago here. He says Stan Hagerman of the Quinte crew was a hit with the gals and also a dangerous diamond hitter—except against Al Heckman of the Petes. Al wouldn't lay 'em across for Stan but hooked him to death. Following a local win here over the Bellevilles, a gal tried to strike up a conversation with Hagerman. She pointed to the pile of bats and asked what they were for. "To hit the ball with," Stan retorted. "What would happen," pursued the lass, "if you didn't use a bat?" And Stan mumbled: "As far as I'm concerned the results would be about the same, as long as that big lug Heckman is pitching"

* * * * * * *

WHILE THERE is considerable speculation as to local ball imports this year, the customers shouldn't lose sight of the fact that we have some doggone good homebrews who will be with the Petes again. Young chaps who learned the game here and have no superiors in their positions anywhere around the Central League. Also some mighty good hurlers, who weren't born in Peterborough, but have been around this town for varying periods. Guys like Russ Kitchen, Gunner Whitehill and Joe Jakafby. Quite a few of the other fellows are not only first-rate diamondeers but good pucksters in the winter time. Players who don't have to take a back seat from anyone in amateur company around this Province.

* * * * * * *

WHERE WILL you find a better young senior receiver in the business than Eddie Starr? A fine hitter and peppery efficient catcher. He is tops in his department in the C.O.B.L. absolutely. The same applies to Bill Calladine on third. And Les Burton in left field. While Al Clark has shown he is a dandy young shortstop. Bun Kingdon and Cy Whatley are capable infielders, also. Starr, Calladine and Kingdon played much good hockey for the senior "B" Petes last winter. Burton was with the intermediate Bees, while Clark was with the junior Colts. And Whatley played in the Senior City Puck Loop. Not being manager of the local ball club we don't know if all these guys will be with the 1938 Petes or not, but most of 'em will and the rest ought to at least rate a spot as utility infielders.

* * * * * * *

QUITE APART from their fine fielding, three of the above-named local ball players did some potent clouting last year—in fact, practically every season. Starr led the Petes with .347 and was third in the loop belting list, only McQuaide and Jubenville topping him. He outhit Tommy Foley. Burton clouted the apple at a .326 clip, and Calladine hit for .312 last season. Clark had a dandy summer in fielding but didn't hit just as well as he can do. Is a bit shy of southpaws for some reason or other. Cy Whatley and Bun Kingdon were below hitting form, too. Same with Chuck Kearns. And a couple of our hurlers weren't consistently good over the schedule. But the Petes didn't do badly last summer, and with a bit of bolstering this year, ought to really go places. A few good imports along with the pick of the homebrews, and we should field a nice ball team.

* * * * * * *

HAD A letter this a.m. from Fred Collins, former Petes' pilot, now staying in Trenton. Says he: "Was pleased to read of Eddie Murphy getting the job to handle the Petes and feel sure he will make a good job of it. I do hope it is not bull about a new first baseman and lefthanded pitcher. You can't beat the big guy, Russ Kitchen and I feel sure Gunner Whitehill will have a good season. With boys like Russ, Joe, Eddie, Bill, Cy and the rest, you are not so badly off. I hope the new outfielder can slug across a few runs as the club sure can use a few hitters." Fred goes on to advise the local squad to make sureo f getting to out-of-town games in plenty of time this year and not be arriving just at game time. And he is looking forward to the time when he'll be back here, as the "Skipper" always thought this was a swell sociable town, where a stranger who liked sports felt right at home from the start.

* * * * * * *

WE HEAR the Peterborough Baseball Club plans to handle the transportation angle differently this season. Get away from donated cars, which are sometimes found unavailable at the last moment, or are late getting away, or breaking down en route. Run it more like the Hockey Club does. In this way, the team travels pretty much together and arrives about the same time in Kingston, Napanee or Oshawa. Are insured against accidents, too, and rarely arrive late. It is quite a handicap to put on players, that is when they arrive in, say, Kingston late. Stiff and tired from a dash of 130 miles, they must hurry into uniforms and start playing right away. Too big a task and it takes 'em several innings to get loosened up properly. The 1937 Petes lost several ball games on this account. But local officers intend to eliminate this hazard for the Liftlockers this season.

* * * * * * *

A BIT of plain and fancy riding of the referees was indulged in by the Oshawa writer recently after Sudbury won 3-2 from the Generals, as they got all three markers with the Oshawa team shorthanded. And Jack Maunder, ex-Lindsayite, now with the Sudbury Star, took a rap at Dinty Moore the other day for his poor work in the third Falconbridge-Goodyears' game. Said he was blind to holding, interference and behind-the-net sawing, leaving all the penalty calls to the other arbiter. This was our complaint against Moore when the Petes lost in Niagara Falls. Not that Dinty was biased but just inefficient, or else too easy. Of course, we have yet to see a sports writer who didn't crack down on referees and umps from time to time, same as fans, players and officers do.

* * * * * * *

UP AND down Sports' Rialto: Bill Corbett, former Oshawa junior ball promoter, has been appointed senior diamond manager in St. Catharines . . . . Since the Cataracts' senior Cossa loss to P.C.I., the Falls and St. Kitts' scribes are practically ignoring the series . . . . Jo-Jo Graboski was named No. 1 centre player in the U.S. eastern amateur puck circuit; Hershey won it, and Drake Jopling will be back here any day now from N'Yawk . . . . Aurora won the first of the O.H.A. junior "C" finals from Orangeville, 4-3, last e'en . . . . And Chatham Maroons surprised Falconbridge by a 1-1 tie last night in the first of their two-game playdowns . . . . Lindsay feel they'd like to return to junior "B" ranks next winter with Peterborough and the Lakeshore teams; they'd be plenty welcome . . . . Barrie open their junior "B" three-in-five finals tonight in Kingston . . . . Bill Johnston, who didn't quite make the Petes' pitching staff last summer, is begging a chance with the GM-men, and promising he'll lick the locals every start . . . . You can get the Leafs' playoff in Boston over CKCL at nine tonight . . . . Look at all the worry we duck all winter by firmly refusing to get interested in N.H.L. games until the free-for-all playoffs arrive!

BAER IS RATED IN SECOND SPOT IN LOUIS TITLE

WASHINGTON, March 29 (CP).—Max Baer, former world heavyweight champion, who began his fistic comeback with a decision over Tommy Farr, British Empire heavyweight ruler, received official recognition Monday when the National Boxing Association rated him second among the challengers for Joe Louis's heavyweight crown.

Eddie Wenstob of Edmonton was ranked fourth among challengers for the light heavyweight title of John Henry Lewis, with Tiger Warrington of Liverpool, N.S., eighth.

Maxie Berger, Canadian lightweight champion of Montreal, was ranked tenth challenger for Lew Ambers's crown, while Johnny Gaudes, of Winnipeg, ranked fifth and Baby Yack of Toronto placed sixth among challengers for Sixto Escabar's bantamweight title.

Ratings for all divisions in numerical order:

HEAVYWEIGHTS: Champion, Joe Louis. Challengers, Max Schmeling, Baer, Tony Galento, Farr, Gunnar Barlund, Nathan Mann, Bob Pastor, Clarence Burman, Al McCoy and Jimmy Adamick.

MIDDLEWEIGTHS: Champion, Freddie Steele. Challengers, Young Corbett III, Fred Apostoli, Solly Krieger, Glen Lee, Al Hostak, Walter Woods, Billy Conn, Teddy Yarocz, Ben Brown and Ossie Stewart.

FLYWEIGTHS: Champion, Benny Lynch. First and American Champion, Jackie Jurich; Peter Kane, Tiny Bostock, Small Montana, Little Dado, Jimmy Warnock, Tut Whalley, Valentin Anglemann, Ernst Weiss, Pat Palmer.

Petey Sarron, former featherweight champion, was dropped from the ratings. The Commission's Ratings Committee said he had outgrown the featherweights, and had fought no lightweights of prominence.

WAITING FOR HIM

KENTVILLE, N.S., March 29 (C.P.). — Arthur Hiltz walked into police headquarters here and told Chief John Brown he had lost his wallet, containing a large sum of money.

"What's your name?" asked the chief.

"Arthur Hiltz, Lakeville—my name is stamped on the inside of the purse."

"How much was in it?"

"Two hundred and sixty dollars," Hiltz said, "all in $10 bills."

Blake Bags Three

Three goals in any hockey game is a noteworthy feat, but in the playoffs it merits an extra star or two. Toe Blake, flashy left winger with Montreal Canadiens, and one of the best in the league, turned the trick in the first playoff game against Chicago Black Hawks as he and his mates marked up a 6-4 victory.

Curling Club Head Proposes Annual Banquet For Members

Gathering Around Festive Board Gives Friendly Air To Annual Meeting

"I see no reason why with the population we have in Peterborough, that our curling membership could not be increased to where it was a few years ago," thus spoke President E. R. Shirley at the annual meeting of the Peterborough curlers, held in their club rooms last night.

At the beginning of his address he spoke very feelingly of the untimely death of Basil Magee, a young and most promising curler. He gave an extensive review of the season's activities, brought forth many useful ideas for next year's committee to consider and in conclusion, he thanked all who had in any way worked for the good of the club.

One of his main ideas was the suggestion that next year the committe might hold an annual banquet instead of just an ordinary meeting. It is felt that an event such as that might help the cause of curling a great deal.

The secretary's report was read by H. F. Foote and was favorably received as was the treasurer's report and the auditor's report and the report of the bonspiel committee.

Retain Rink System

By a very small majority the meeting decided to stay with the present way of choosing their rinks —namely the skips choose their own vices and then draw for their leads and seconds.

After the new officers had been elected and the prizes had been presented, E. R. Shirley presented to G. Cairns, on behalf of the club, a case of pipes as a token of their appreciation for his services at all the bonspiels during the season—George was taken completely by surprise but made a very neat reply. After a vote of thanks was passed to the auditors and the press the meeting adjourned, with the thought that it was one of the best seasons the club ever had.

Comeback?

Last year Toronto Maple Leafs had a fellow named Joey Ganten-bein stationed at shortstop through the entire schedule. This year they may have the same young man there, but not if Bill Urbanski (above) can help it. Bill starred for Montreal Royals in the International league back in 1930 and since then has been in the majors. Set down with a broken leg he is attempting a comeback and thus far in the training grind has looked very good.

A TURTLE RACE

DETROIT, March 29 (AP)—University of Detroit students today announced plans for the "first annual intercollegiate turtle racing derby" here April 11. They stipulated that shots of adrenalin, glucose and other substances that convert the slow footed reptiles into veritable Man O'Wars will not be allowed. Each entry will be appropriately painted with the colors of the college it represents.

SKI CLUB ENJOYS SUCCESSFUL YEAR IN WINTER SPORT

The Peterborough Ski Club wound up the most active season in its entire history on Monday night. Nearly a hundred members and guests attended the annual ski banquet, reviewed the year's activities, presented trophies, and brought in a new board of directors.

Members of the new board, which will choose its own officers, are: Jerry Duffus, Graham Eastwood, Jack Holland, Otto Laderach, Lahring Parsons, Isobel Reid, Ross Thompson, Toby Westbye, Bob White. Gordon Matthews was unanimously chosen an honorary member of the board.

Sensation of the evening was Gordon "Spike" Matthews, 12-year-old skiing marvel, who was presented with half a dozen cups, won in competition. He won first in the Zone championships in the Junior B downhill, first in the Junior B slalom, first in the Junior B jumping, first in the Junior B long standing jump, first in the Junior B combined slalom and downhill, and took the Baadsvik Trophy for combined downhill and slalom, in the club championships.

Jack Holland was presented with a silver mug for his victory in the Senior B jumping at the Zone championships. To Peter Rhodes went a cup for winning the Junior C downhill. Karl Baadsvik and Tom Lillico received silver medals. They stood second in Senior A and Junior B jumping respectively. Jim Bond won two bronze medals for third place in the Junior B downhill and slalom events.

Club Champion.

In club championship events Karl Baadsvik took both trophies offered, the Hall Trophy for combined jumping and cross country, the Peterborough Canoe Company Trophy for combined downhill and slalom. The Rishor Trophy for combined jumping and cross-country in the Junior class went to Russell McIntosh. Spike Matthews took the Baadsvik Trophy for combined downhill and slalom in the same class.

"We have made much progress in our club this year," commented President Art Rhodes. He cited outstanding improvement in the skiing form of Karl Duffus and Spike Matthews as an example of what may be expected from the club members in future, and urged that club officials next year devote increased time to training junior members. "The future of this club lies in the work you do among those junior members," he said.

Secretary Lahring Parsons reported a balance of $135 will be on hand when all accounts are paid. Work of R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne as chairman of the Winter Sports Committee, was lauded.

Shirley Plans Trip To See Quints

HOLLYWOOD, March 29 (CP)—Shirley Temple, the child movie star, plans to visit the Dionne quintuplets at Callander, Ont., during her six weeks vacation starting in June.

Her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Temple, said the vacation will take Shirley to New York and points of interest in between by motor. A trip also will be made to Northern Ontario.

Mrs. Temple said she had rejected a number of radio and personal appearance offers for Shirley totalling at least $350,000.

DRILLON AND DILLON TIED FOR HONORS IN N. H. L. ALL-STARS

Hockey Writers Are Undecided On Best Right Wingman For League All-Stars

Babe Seibert Of Canadiens Only Survivor Of 1937 Squad

TORONTO, March 29 (CP). — Hockey's super-man, the all-star performer, is a colorful, intelligent puckchaser who learned his hockey on Ontario's rinks and, near his 28th birthday, has carved a career in seven years of major league play.

The composite is drawn from the 12 players named in the Canadian Press eighth annual National Hockey League all-star teams. Thirty-one hockey writers in N.H.L. cities balloted for veterans moving past the peak of the average all-star's brilliance and for youngsters who won't reach it for years.

The selectors chose carefully, leavening the fire and speed of youth with the experience of 10-year men, weaving brawn and brains into an all-star layout violently changed from last year's. They sought crowd appeal and found it in abundance.

For the first time since the Canadian Press teams were inaugurated in 1931 the selectors voted a tie, failing to settle the season-long contest between Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers and Gordon Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs for right wing supremacy.

Following are the Canadian Press teams:

First Team.	Alternate Team.
Goal
Thompson (Boston)	Kerr (Rangers)
R. Defence
Shore (Boston)	Coulter (Rangers)
L. Defence
Siebert (Canadiens)	Seibert (Chicago)
Centre
Cowley (Boston)	Apps (Toronto)
R. Wing (Tie)
Dillon (Rangers)	Drillon (Toronto)
Drillon (Toronto)	Dillon (Rangers)
L. Wing
Thompson (Chicago)	Blake (Canadiens)
Coach)
Patrick (Rangers)	Ross (Boston)

Their average age is almost 28, their average height 5 feet 11 inches and the weight 178 pounds. Six of them were born in Ontario, two in Alberta and one each in Saskatchewan, New Brunswick and Manitoba. Dillon, the first United States player to be chosen, was born in Toledo, O., and grew up in Thornbury, Ont.

Drillon and Dillon, continuing their confusing alliterative company, had the fight for right wing to themselves and made it as close as it could be. Dillon was chosen by 16 writers, Drillon by 15. But the 22-year-old scoring champion was given 14 alternate team selections to Dillon's 11, and this deadlocked them with 59 points.

Indecision was evident nowhere else in the writers' selections. They returned Tiny Thompson of Boston Bruins, first in the all-star lineup in 1936, to the netminding job with a decisive majority over Dave Kerr of Rangers.

Veteran Defensemen

And, having placed a 32-year-old netminder between the posts, the selectors provided him with a pair of 33-year-old super-stars for a defence. Eddie Shore of Bruins and Babe Siebert of Canadiens, broken up as a Bruin combination after they were selected for the first team in 1936, were reunited without serious competition.

The rearguard has a record of 35 years National League service—Thompson with 10 years, Shore 12, and Siebert 13.

The rushing Canadien defenceman, on three consecutive all-star teams is the only survivor of last season's first lineup. Swept from the scene with their manager, Jack Adams, were four of the world champion Detroit Red Wings—Norm Smith, Ebbie Goodfellow, Marty Barry and Larry Aurie. With them went Harvey Jackson of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Bill Cowley, the third Bruin on the team, attains all-star recognition at 26 years of age and after only four seasons in the N.H.L. He had twice as many—16—first team votes for the pivot job as Syl Apps of Toronto, last season's outstanding rookie.

Paul Thompson, Chicago Black Hawks' greatest scoring threat, joined his brother on the first team with a decsive majority over Toe Blake of Canadiens, who waged a close fight for the alternate left wing job with his teammate, George Mantha, and Lynn Patrick of Rangers.

Patrick Is Best Coach

Perhaps the least surprising victory was Lester Patrick's in the coaching job. The grey-haired New York Rangers' pilot made way for Adams last season after having piloted every first team since 1931. He came back with twive as many votes as Art Ross of Boston, making his first appearance in the selections.

Art Coulter of Rangers moved on to the alternate team right defence spot with little opposition but Earl Seibert of Hawks had a close fight for the left defence job for which 15 players were given votes.

Following is the complete vote:

First team:

Goal — Thompson, Boston, 18; Kerr, Rangers, 13.

R. Defence—Shore, Boston, 23; Coulter, Rangers, 6; Horner, Toronto, 1; Young, Detroit, 2.

R. Wing —Dillon, Rangers, 16; Drillon, Toronto, 15.

Alternate Team:

Strength Counts With Speed In Stanley Cup Playdowns

Amerks And Chihawks Are The 'Tough Guys' Of Hockey This Season

TORONTO, March 29 (C.P.). — Lester Patrick's ideas on streamlined hockey have had to go by the boards in the walloping that leads to Stanley Cup finals, possibly to assume new prominence next season.

New York Rangers' skilled manager was quoted during the National League schedule as believing that hockey's bumping and bruising were destined to yield a little to speed, that the defencemen eventually would be fourth and fifth forwards. His club has brought that scheme nearly to realization.

But in the first stage of cup playoffs the teams built primarily for speed have been knocked from contention and the big heavy-duty machines are carrying on. The streamlined clubs—Rangers and Montreal Canadiens—looked badly worn and torn as they passed out.

The truth is that speed and more speed is all right through most of the schedule, but when the heat is on there must be some bulk and rugged power, even if some fleetness is sacrificed. Perhaps Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins are playing for the league championship because they best combine size, speed and ability to give and take, like Detroit's world champions of the last two years.

Strength in Front Line.

So New York Americans and Chicago Black Hawks—blessed with size along the front line as well as on the defence—have knocked off Rangers and Canadiens. The two begin their best-of-three semi-finals at New York to-night with scarcely a minor injury on either roster, whereas each of their victims had two men on the sidelines with serious hurts when the first round ended and others were playing despite bandages and liniment.

Toronto seeks a third straight victory and possession of the Prince of Wales Cup as league finals shift to Boston to-night. After winning the first games 1-0 and 2-1, the Leafs have only to snatch one in three to reach Stanley Cup finals with Americans or Hawks, but they won't be taking chances to-night. They can be counted on to play the same close-checking hockey that marked their opening upsets and that reversed the 8-5 odds on Bruins to a heavy Toronto margin.

Harvey Jackson Hurt.

Leafs and Bruins haven't come through the preliminary gunning unscathed. A couple of fleet left wingmen, Harvey Jackson of Toronto and Ray Getliffe of Boston, may be out of to-night's battle, Jackson with a sprained arm and Getliffe with a lef cut that required five stitches. Leafs took Murray Armstrong of their Cyracuse farm to Boston in the possibility Jackson might not play.

Amerks and Black Hawks are the "tough guys" of this season. They've wrestled when necessary and chopped when necessary; they've heckled the officials and haven't bothered looking around to see if the other fellow got up when he fell. And they're alive and well and in semi-finals. The survivor will still be tough when finals come.

Hockey Record

Results and Standings

TAMPA, Fla.,—Frank McCormick, the youngster brought in to play first base for the Reds, leads his teammates in grapefruit league hitting with a .421 average. He has belted 24 safeties in 57 trips to the plate, five were doubles and three triples.

BILOXI, Miss.—Cleveland's Indians today released three players to Milwaukee of the American Association as part payment for Third Baseman Kenneth Keltner. They were Infielder Oscar Grimes and Pitchers Tom Drake and Kenneth Jungles.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Owner Clark Griffith of Washington Senators is trying to shame his team into doing a little better. "We can beat American Association teams and that's all," he growls with an obvious intent that his players overheard. The Senators have lost five or six games with big league foes, three by shutouts.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. — Manager Frankie Frisch, who had plenty of question marks when he opened St. Louis Cardinals training camp, thinks Don Gutteridge and slingin' Sammy Baugh will take care of two of them, shortstop and third base, if their hitting can be improved.

BILOXI, Miss. — Bill Hallahan, veteran National League hurler, will get a pitching assignment today as Philadelphia Phillies meet Cleveland Indians in the third game of the clubs' spring series.

ARCADIA, Fla. — Boston Bees, about the hardest working ball players in Florida, are going to be even more so. After watching Mike Balas, the Lowell, Mass. rookie give his sparkling relief performance against the Tigers, Manager Casey Stengel advised the rest of the hurlers to follow the boy's example and work daily.

Memorial Cup

(By the Canadian Press.)

Perth Blue Wings won the only Memorial Cup playdown game last night in defeating Verdun Maple Leafs 6-4 in the first game of their best-of-three series. There are still six teams left in the running for the Dominion junior hockey crown, as follows:

East.

Quebec—Verdun; Ontario—Sudbury, Oshawa, Perth.

West.

Manitoba—St. Boniface; Alberta—Edmonton.

BELLEVILLE OUSTS KINGSTON TEAM

BELLEVILLE, Ont., March 29. — (CP).—Belleville Hi-Speeds defeated Kingston 5-2 here last night in an Ontario Hockey Association juvenile championship series game. Belleville, which won the first game of the two-game, total-goal series, took the round 9-6.

Hi-Speeds scored three goals in the first perod and two in the second before Kingston got into the scoring column in the third period. Ethier, Goyer, Clare, Walton and McGuire were Belleville's snipers. White and Earl scored for Kingston.

CAN.-AM. LEAGUE OPENS ON MAY 11

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., March 29.— (CP).— The Canadian-American Baseball League, comprising two Canadian clubs, at Ottawa and Cornwall, and six New York State teams, will open its 1938 schedule on May 11.

The schedule, released at league headquarters here to-day, revealed Ottawa will open on that date on the home grounds of the Gloversville-Johnstown club, while Cornwall will invade Rome. Ogdensburg will be at Amsterdam and Oswego at Auburn. The regular season will close Sept. 5.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

GREENSBORO, N.C., March 29 (AP)—Cunnel Ruppert is so pained with the way his world champions are playing in the Grape Fruit League he is about determined to head back north ... Henry Armstrong may find the going tough against Barney Ross, but he ought to polish off Lew Feldman in not more than a couple of rounds tomorrow night...

Harry Thomas may last a bit longer against Joe Louis in Chicago Friday, as Joe needs the exercise and if Glenn Lee trips Fred Apostoli in New York on the same night, well, you can sue us.

Old Strangler Lewis has opened quite an eating place in Hollywood and that reminds us that we are sorry we had to miss Jimmy Braddock's opening in New York the other night...There's a teacher named Lefty Gomez on the faculty of the New York School of Music and another named Ben Chapman ...Ben teaches the piccolo...

Freddie Corcoran, crack tournament man for the Professional Golfers Association, says the top notch pro golfers never discuss the game after the office closes...Hockey, baseball and boxing, all right, but no shop talk. . . Maybe that's why they're on top...Note to Mrs. Ruby Drew, Danville, Va.: Sorry, but your old man is right...You call it "Breets"...

Fights Last Night

(By the Associated Press.)

Bowling Beauty

Miss Jo Ettien is a pretty fair bowler and that goes for both herself and her scores. Because of her beauty and perfect combination in athletics the smiling trundler won the title of "Model Girl of 1937" in Hollywood. She is seen practising on the maples for the U.S. women's bowling congress to be held in April.

Starting Blocks Now Official

Starting January 1, 1939, short sprinting races are to start with starting blocks, according to the edict issued by the Union of International Light Athletics during their congress in Paris. One of the types of starting machines is shown being tested by Trossbach, hurdling champion of Germany.

West.

Western semi-finals—Trail versus Flin Flon at Saskatoon. (Third of best-of-three game series. Each won one). Port Arthur versus Red Lake at Edmonton. (Second of best-of-three game series. Port Arthur won first).

Allan Survivors

(By the Canadian Press.)

Moncton Maroons fell by the wayside in the Allan Cup race, meeting elimination last night from Quebec Aces, to leave eight teams in contention. Maxville Millionaires would have made a ninth if they do not default to Cornwall Flyers. Those still in are:

East.

Quebec— Quebec; Ontario—Falconbridge, Chatham, Cornwall, Maxville.

West.

Ontario — Port Arthur, Red Lake; Manitoba—Flin Flon; British Columbia—Trail.

BETHANY

PRIZES AWARDED FOR QUILT BLOCKS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, March 29—The Misses Liley and Mattie Thompson and Mrs. Fred Thompson, were joint hostesses for the postponed monthly meeting of the Bethany branch of the Women's Institute. There were fourteen members present with eight visitors.

Unfinished business was dealt with in discussion on the proper housing of fire equipment. It was decided to accept the kindness of former caretakers for the present time. Ways and means were discussed to add to the already neat balance which is on hand. Several incapacitated members had been remembered with fruit and other delicacies, and letters of appreciation read by the secretary.

The following program was then rendered: A reading by Miss Richardson entitled "Naming the Baby"; reading by Mrs. W. Rowland, "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," which proved very amusing; Mrs. H. Payne, reading, descriptive of wedding of old time costume recently worn at a wedding in a nearby city.

Quilt blocks, of a uniform size made by members, were on display and to be used later in making of a quilt. Prizes awarded, in order of merit, were won by Mrs. Herbert Fallis and Mrs. H. H. Ryley. Contest prepared by Mrs. F. W. Reynolds, "Important topics of the day," Mrs. Holden winning the largest number of correct answers.

Closing song sung, "Good Night Ladies," and National Anthem, followed by a dainty lunch provided by the group in charge of meeting.

Mrs. Padgham and Mrs. Muckle were appointed judges over the various items of interest. Mrs. Clarke tendered a vote of thanks to the joint hostesses. Next meeting will be held at the rectory.

On The Rampage

Eel's Creek, one of the most beautiful streams in Peterborough county is usually a well-behaved rivulet that, seen in mid-summer, never fails to impress with its sparkling water speeding along between rock-bound shores. There are times in the spring, however, when the ice is breaking up that even Eel's Creek gets out of hand and these photographs taken by the Examiner's Apsley correspondent show that it can really cause trouble by these outbursts. These pictures were snapped at the outskirts of Apsley along the Bancroft road the other day and the view on the RIGHT shows the road under several feet of water while the other photograph gives an idea of the swollen condition of the creek just above the village.

ROCK LAKE CABIN IS LOST BY FIRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, March 29.—Rock Lake Hunt Club have just received word from a Harvey farmer that the camp they had re-built last Fall has been completely destroyed by fire some time during the Winter.

The camp was large enough to accommodate eighteen or twenty men, if need be. They have no idea how the fire originated but it almost must have been the work of an incindary, for even the stove and pipes are useless. The camp was left open to accommodate firerangers, trappers or anyone else who needed it. The Hunt Club used it only during the two weeks of the hunting season. So far none of the Club have been back to investigate, but some will very soon.

FAVORS SWEEP

was among opponents of the sweeps. A. H. Acres (Con. Carleton) supported the resolution.

Indication the Hydro probe would concern issues that figured in the 1934 election came when Mr. Nixon told Mr. Henry: "You and your O. P.S. (Ontario Power Service) bonds will be up again. Johnny Aird may have a different story to tell, too."

The references were to Mr. Henry's possession of O.P.S. bonds when the government took over the Abitibi Canyon Power development from the concern and to Mr. Aird receiving money from the former government.

Just "A Joke"

Mr. Roebuck who led the fight for cancellation of the Quebec power contracts in 1935, said such a committee without him would be "a joke." One of the tasks of the committee would be to investigate contracts negotiated last fall with the Beauharnois, Gatineau and MacLaren-Quebec power companies.

Mr. Roebuck, who resigned from the government last spring because he disagreed with Premier Hepburn's opposition to the Committee for Industrial Organization during the strike of automobile workers at Oshawa, has criticized the new contracts as a reversal of government power policy. He said last week one of the "motives" for his resignation was because he knew, but had no proof, a new Beauharnois contract was in prospect.

The former attorney-general was unsuccessful also in his request that action on the committee resolution be postponed until members could see the special report issued by the New York State power authority. It said powerful interests were trying to thwart the St. Lawrence waterways project and force New York State to accept private power from Quebec.

"Insofar as the bunkum emanating from my friend opposite is concerned, it is possibly some more seaway propaganda," the premier replied. "Just because we do not subscribe to the seaway, we are branded as tools of the power interests."

"I have never bought a sweepstake ticket," Mr. Hepburn said in reference to the sweepstake resolution. "I have been to a race track only once. I wouldn't go across the road to see a race."

There was much hypocrisy about the whole thing, however. No paper "is more guilty than the Toronto Star." It had carried stories of sweepstake winners and editorially opposed the move by Mr. McBrien.

Selling of sweepstake tickets was going on. He did not know whether the Dominion government would amend the criminal code to grant the provinces the requested authority. If it did, Ontario would be flooded with tickets from Quebec where legislation asking the authority was passed in 1934.

Several members had complained of lack of funds for support of hospitals. As provincial treasurer, he received a percentage of the money taken in by pari-mutuels at racetracks. Perhaps part of the money paid their hospitals came from that source.

"Why be hypocritical about the (sweepstake) business? It's going on. I'd rather see it brought into the open. I don't like hypocrisy in any form. That's why I'm prepared to take my political life in my hands and vote for this resolution."

Men who went down daily to brokers' offices or to the race tracks were protesting against sweeps. That was just show. Collectively people were sanctimonious but "individually we're a bunch of hypocrites" and he was not going to be included in the number.

the other side," Mr. Brooks told the Examiner, "and Sonnie toddled after me. He had got nearly across when he evidently heard the train coming and must have got frightened and tried to run back again. The first I knew about it was when they got Sonnie out from under the engine."

The train was a C.N.R. light extra consisting of a locomotive and van and was on its way from Lindsay to Belleville in charge of Conductor J. O'Leary and Engineer A. Perkins, both of Lindsay. It was approaching the Hunter Street crossing from the north at a slow rate of speed when the fireman, looking out from his side of the cab saw the little boy running directly in front of the locomotive. He shouted a warning to Engineer Perkins, who jammed on his brakes so quickly that the heavy locomotive was brought to a stop in miraculously quick fashion.

Then the crew piled out and the boy was found to be lying between the rails between the leading and second pair of driving wheels—that is about eight feet back from the front of the locomotive. There were no signs of injury and when the little fellow was carried into his home and Dr. J. M. O'Brien was called his examination failed to reveal any evidence of "Sonnie" being hurt, except possibly a slight bruise on the forehead.

It is not clear whether the boy stumbled over the rail and fell in the path of the engine or whether he was hit and pushed over by the cowcatcher but in any event he fortunately fell clear of the rails and lay so flat that there was clearance for the locomotive to pass over him. The scene of his escape was a few feet north of the Hunter Street crossing and almost directly in front of his home.

three months in cases where convictions are registered for reckless and drunken driving is provided in a bill introduced by Highways Minister McQuesten. The bill also would widen the powers of the ministers and magistrates to cancel both driving permits and motor car licences.

Other amendments would provide: That no other glass other than safety glass shall be installed in any motor vehicle after Jan. 1939. (Already the act forbide the sale of new cars not equipped with safety glass); that the arrangement of traffic lights with the red light at the top and the green at the bottom shall be standardized throughout the province; that where a vehicle is about to make a left turn it may be overtaken and passed by another vehicle on its right side; that where flares are required to be placed near a disabled commercial vehicle, such flares shall be maintained until dawn; that the length of time for the service of of a summons issued for violation of the act be extended from 10 to 15 days.

OBITUARY

MRS. MERCY D. HOGLE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 29.—Mercy Daly Hogle passed away at her late residence, Township of Sidney, on Friday. Her husband predeceased her November, 1934. She was a daughter of the late Dr. Everett Hastings Coleman, and has resided in the township for the past 65 years. Mrs. Hogle lived a life of service to her family and community and was highly respected by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss three sons: Charles and Roy of Belleville, and Glencoe of Mimico, Ont.; two sisters, Mrs. Adelaide Rice of Detroit and Mrs. Julia Ridings of Waterville, N.Y.

The funeral took place from her late residence, Monday, conducted by the Rev. J. Flatt of Bayside. Interment was made in Belleville Cemetery.

MASON ORR McCONNELL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 29. — Mason Orr McConnell, a well-known and highly respected resident of the Township of Rawdon, died at his home, Mount Pleasant, on Saturday afternoon after an illness, which had extended for several years. He was born on the farm on which he died 75 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira McConnell. He carried on farming operations but retired from ill-health several years ago. He was a member of the Mount Pleasant United Church, and an active church worker. Fraternally he was identified with Wellman's L.O.L. No. 172 and Wellman's R.B.P. No. 747. His wife, formerly Angeline Guernsey, predeceased him four years ago, and surviving are two brothers, Edison of Vardy, Sask., Hilliard of Detroit, Michigan, and one sister, Mrs. J. E. Chambers of North Bay.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from his late residence to Mount Pleasant United Church, where a large number gathered to pay their respects. Interment was made in the cemetery adjoining the church. The services were under Orange direction.

Provincial Governments, millers or exporters.

The minister further explained the price at which the Wheat Board would sell grain to the Governments had not yet been settled. It was considered a fair price could be arrived at by averaging the market price from last July 31 to the date at which delivery would be made.

The estimate of the probable price was $1.40 to $1.45 a bushel and this would include freight charges equalized over the whole area on the delivery to the grain to the municipalities.

Not Enough for Seed.

Saskatchewan last year did not produce enough wheat to provide for its own seed, Agriculture Minister Gardener said.

The average for the province was about two bushels an acre, and it required a bushel or more to seed an acre. When the wheat produced last year was cleaned and unsuitable seed taken out there would not be enough left to provide for seed requirements.

This added to the difficulty of meeting spring seeding requirements as it meant more wheat would have to be shipped in from outside the province. Mr. Gardiner said it was estimated some assistance would be required by farmers in Saskatchewan in the seeding of 12,000,000 acres.

Deferring to the views of western members, Prime Minister Mackenzie King agreed to an Easter adjournment from April 8 to 25. He had first proposed an adjournment from April 13 to 25, but the longer period will give members more time to visit their constituencies.

Mr. Mackenzie King told the House he was not in a position to say whether the Government would proceed with an amendment to the British North America Act to give the Federal Parliament jurisdiction over unemployment insurance. All the provinces have not yet consented.

A FAIRLY active condition prevails on this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects, although the accent may be on the personal rather than business activities. Friendship and personal popularity figure to the extent of matrimonial ceremonies, with their attendant merriment in celebration. In such social and romantic excitement, be careful of accidents, excesses and be alert to any suspicious circumstance.

If This is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a very happy and lively year, probably in the pursuit of pleasure rather than more sordid objetives. Friendship, courtship, marriage and all manner of friendly contacts and social functions claim the attention as to excesses, accidents and be watchful for duplicity or schemes.

A child born on this day may be lively, fond of fun and merriment and very attractive and popular. It may be clever, shrewd and gifted in writing.

BUILDING SEASON LIKELY TO OPEN BEGINNING OF MAY

Construction of the Bell Telephone Company's new office in Peterborough will likely be begun in May, and the installation of the equipment for the dial system that will be in operation in the second half of 1939 should be under way early some time next winter.

It will occupy most of the lot on the south side of Hunter street west nearly opposite the present building, and will be of two stories and basement. All the company's local services including the commercial department now separately located at the corner of Hunter and Chambers street will be combined in the new building, according to information received this morning.

Dial numbers will begin at 3,500, changing the association of many small numbers that have been retained by some of the company's customers in this city for many years.

The Bell job is one that is being anticipated by the building tradesmen as setting the local pace for the year. The C.G.E. hospital project, the enlargement of the Y.W.C.A. are two others that seemed to be assured for this year's work, and several others are rumored, together with enquiries about costs of houses that indicate an interest might develop into a satisfactory year for the outdoor trades.

MUSKRAT PELTS BRING ONE DOLLAR

The opening of the trapping season Friday has already brought a few muskrat pelts into the city selling at $1 to $1.10. Traps along Pigeon Creek were temporarily put out of use by Sunday night's frost that covered the water with nearly two inches of ice, according to the report of a trapper from that district. Nights since the opening of the season have been too cold for the seasonal run of muskrats, but it is expected that a change in the weather will produce at least an average supply of pelts.

Dies At Sea

The news will be received with sincere grief in Peterborough of the death at sea of the Right Reverend John Taylor-Smith, who was Chaplain General of the British Army from 1901 to 1925. He was on his way from Australia on board R.M.S. Orion after a world cruise. Bishop Smith was in Peterborough a little over a year ago, the guest of Canon and Mrs. J. D. Paterson.

CUT ADVERTISING RATES.

An item more newsworthy than the famed "man bites dog" story came to light in Peterborough on Monday night when the Ski Club held its annual banquet. Eric Westbye, editor of the Telemarker, weekly news bulletin of the club, rose to his feet with a worried look on his face and reported that his paper had made a profit of $30—and he apologized. The paper should not make such a substantial profit on $100 worth of advertising purchased by merchants in the city, he explained. He wanted the advertising rates reduced next year.—J.F.P.

REV. TAYLOR-SMITH WELL-KNOWN HERE DIES ABOARD SHIP

Chaplain-General of the British Army from 1901 to 1925, and at one time private Chaplain to Queen Victaria, the Right Reverend John Taylor-Smith died at sea yesterday on board R.M.S. Orion, while on his way home from Australia after a world cruise. Bishop Taylor-Smith's passing will be sincerely mourned by many in Peterborough who had an opportunity to meet him on one of his visits to this city.

Bishop Taylor-Smith was in his 79th year, and had spent most of his life in travelling to the various outposts of the Empire where his duties took him. For over twenty-four years every garrison of the British army looked up to him as their Bishop.

His early service was in the Diocese of Sierra Leone, often referred to as the "white man's grave." After his first period of service there, when he was Chaplain to the British forces during the Ashanti campaign, in addition to his diocesan duties, Bishop Taylor-Smith was called home to become private Chaplain to Queen Victaria, and live in residence at the court, mostly at Windsor Castle and on the Isle of Wight. He was made a Commander of the Victorian Order for personal services to the Royal Family and a Knight Commander of the Bath on his retirement from the army, though his ecclesiastical rank of Bishop precluded his using his army rank of Major-General and his knighthood in his name. He received also the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, when he took part in the investiture in July held by the King.

Friend of Royal Family.

Bishop Taylor-Smith is very well-known in Peterborough. He has preached in All Saints' Church here on several occasions, and was expected last September, but dates fo his world tour would not permit of a stop-off. A letter received only Friday last, written in Australia, carried a message to the congregation, which was passed on by the rector at Sunday morning's service. Canon J. D. Paterson spent part of last summer with the Bishop at his home, and also at the English Keswick Conference. He last saw the Bishop at Montreal in September.

Coming to Peterborough soon after his retirement from the army, the Bishop addressed a mass meeting of returned men in the Grand Opera House and afterwards marched with them up George Street to the Legion Hall, where he was entertained, the meeting only breaking up at 2 a.m., when he pleaded old age, and stated he had been up since 6 a.m. for his daily audience with his Master. He had addressed local service clubs on several occasions.

Ski Club Banquet

Ending the most successful season in their entire history, members of the Peterborough Ski club wound up the year's activities on Monday night at their annual banquet, attended by nearly one hundred skiing enthusiasts. (1) Four members of the club who have been active and attractive members, albeit a little weak on the skiing, are shown here, joining in the community singing that was a feature of the banquet. They are singing "It Was Only an Old Beer Bottle". In the front row are Isobel Milliken, LEFT, and Berna Jane Foley; while behind them stand Laura Chartren, LEFT, and Pat McCarrell. (2) Gordon "Spike" Matthews, 12-year-old skiing marvel of the club, won six trophies during the season, five of them in junior competition at the Ontario Zone championship meet here, the other the Baadsvik trophy in club competition. Spike is seen here gathering up five of the trophies just after they had been presented by R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne. (3) Karl Baadsvik stands behind some of his trophies, won during a long and successful career. Friends say these trophies are only about one-fifth the number Karl has at his home. He added a few more last night. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Dog Saves Wilberforce Family Escape From Burning Home

Big Newfoundland Gives Alarm Which Wakens Sleeping Parents

LINDSAY, March 29. — Fire of undetermined origin, fanned by a strong north-west wind, destroyed the general store and residence of F. D. Agnew at Wilberforce on Monday. Loss is unofficially estimated at $5,000.

A Newfoundland dog, pet of the Agnew family, is probably responsible for saving the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Agnew and their two sons. When the fire gained headway through the store, it awakened the dog, which barked a warning rousing Mr. Agnew. He awakened his wife and children and they made their way to safety.

The store, the only general store in the village, also housed the Canadian National Telegraph office, and it was destroyed.

The dog awakened the Agnew family at 2 o'clock. By the time they had vacated their home the store and house was obviously doomed. The flames had gained considerable headway and were being assisted by a strong wind from the north-west. Residents of the village did all in their power to save the building, but were unable to cope with the fire. Nothing was saved from the store or the home.

Several outbuildings and sheds in the rear of the house and store were destroyed also. The loss is said to be only partially covered by insurance.

SIX PLEAD GUILTY TO BEING 'FOUND IN'

Six young men who were found in the premises of 169 Charlotte street last Friday night when a police raid unceremoniously stopped a lively crap game, stepped in front of Magistrate Langley at police court this morning, promptly and pleaded guilty to having been "found in" a disorderly house and just as promptly were assessed a $10 fine and costs of $3.25 each. There are several more to be tried on the same charge and altogether the financial returns from this little bit of police activity will make Chief Newhall's department one of the biggest crap game winners of the current season.

Incidentally as a revenue-collecting agency the police court has been doing a very neat little business the last few days. On Saturday the first dividends returned from the Charlotte street gaming raid added $126.75 to the municipal treasury. Monday morning eleven young fellows meshed in the police net when five officers crashed the gates at an Auburn street unofficial refreshment parlor Sunday morning, obligingly kicked in with $10 and $4.50 costs for a grand total of $159.50 and this morning the half dozen crap shooters sweetened the pot to the extent of another $79.50. No wonder one of the blue coats was heard whistling "It's Nice Work If You Can Get It" this morning after Inspector Reid had finished the job of collecting the fines.

EDWIN T. LUSH IS HIGH TENDERER AS MARKET CLERK

Peterborough will have a new market clerk for the year beginning April first as the result of the decision of the Property Committee Monday night to accept the tender of Edwin T. Lush, 190 London Street who offered $1,296 for the collection of market tolls. The only other tender was from James B. Brown who has been clerk for a number of years and whose bid was $1,260.

"There is only one thing you can do under the circumstances," said Mayor Hamilton when the two tenders were read. "You'll have to give it to the higher tender."

Appreciative references were made by Chairman Ald. McCannan and Ald. Dutton to the experience of Mr. Brown possesses in handling the job and to the services he had rendered.

The majority of the committee, however, felt that when there was nothing against the qualifications of Mr. Lush, his tender should be accepted, it being the higher of the two and a motion to that effect, moved by Mayor Hamilton and seconded by Ald. Bradburn, was carried.

ANCIENT CEREMONY STARTS NEW YEAR

The vernal equinox on March 21st when the sun enters the sign of Aries, upon its selectial journey around the Zodiac, marks the ancient beginning of the New Year, commemorated by the Rosicrucian Order.

The District Commissioner, R. Farthing of 416½ George Street, Peterborough, states: "For centuries the peoples of the Orient celebrated the beginning of the New Year on or about March 21st, when this astronomical phenonenon occurred, and which also being the spring, appeared the logical time, as in nature it was a season of resurrection and awakening. The ancient Egyptians declared the advent an occasion for festivities and partook of a symbolic feast of wheaten bread, salt and the juice of the grape, representing the material and spiritual elements of man's nature.

"The traditional history of the Rosicrucians," relates Frater Farthing, "records its establishment during the reign of the Pharaoh Amenhoteb IV., 1350 B.C., who instituted the ancient ceremony of this feast, which is continued in commemoration in the same ancient manner by the Rosicrucians through the world today. The exact date is annually proclaimed by the Imperator of the Order in San Jose, California. It is also the occasion for the installation of the officers of the local lodges and chapters.

TRIPE-EATING CONTEST

Arthur Stephenson, weighing 112 pounds, has accepted the tripe-eating challenge of Jack Bentley, weight 210 pounds, of Scholes, England, and each man must eat at least 14 pounds of tripe, the loser to pay for the repast.

ARE RESTAURANTS VIOLATING BYLAW BANNING STALLS?

Ald. G. N. Gordon believes that some of the Chinese restaurants in Peterborough are violating a city bylaw prohibiting stalls in such places and that this condition is conductive to illegal drinking and undesirable conduct.

A letter to this effect from Ald. Gordon was read at Monday night's meeting of the Property Committee. The communication called attention to the existence of a bylaw and also to the fact that in some restaurants in Peterborough the stalls were eight or ten feet high. Ald. Gordon reminded the committee that the Crown Attorney in Lindsay had made charges about undesirable conditions in some of the restaurants here.

In the discussion that followed the reading of the Gordon letter members of the committee stated that while the bylaw as they recalled it banned stalls, they did not feel that low partitions in a restaurant created the kind of stall the measure was aimed at. It was pointed out however that in some of the local eating-places there are high partitions.

It was finally decided that before taking any further action in the matter that Sanitary Inspector McPherson be asked to make a report on the stalls in the various restaurants in the city, a motion to this effect moved by Ald. Dutton and seconded by Ald. Stocker, being carried.

TRAVELLERS PLAN ANNUAL OUTING

At a lunch held Saturday, attended by about fifty travellers working Eastern Ontario it was unanimously decided to hold the third annual Travellers Goodwill Picnic at Victoria Park, Cobourg, Wednesday afternoon, July 6.

In the morning the travellers will be hosts to the children from the orphanages in Oshawa and Peterborough for games, races and lunch. In the afternoon they will be hosts to the merchants, their families; the employees and their families for games, races, basket picnic and vaudeville entertainment.

Last year over four thousand were in attendance. The co-operation of all travellers working Eastern Ontario is desired to help in this years picnic.

The following officers were elected, for the ensuing year:

President, Harold Thurston; Vice-President, Wally Mills; Sec.-Treas., Joe Samuels; with the following committees: Welfare—Tom Simpson, Cliff Cowle, Darcy Ellis, J. A. Wiederhold. Advertising and Registration—Doug. Doller, Joe Florence, Emmerson Hodgins. Parks and Tents—Andy Anderson, Chas. McCullough, Bob Venning. Hotels and Supper—Tommy Thompson, O. W. Fuller, Jack Browes, Cy. Quartermaine. Prizes—Fred Smith, Bill Hollway, Frank Morrison. Sports—Joe Hillier, Rex Punchard, Reg. Williams. Entertainment—Wally Mills, Gordon Sutherland, Ed. Wellheiser.

LOST TWO FINGERS.

Lloyd Hooten, 30-year-old Cavan farmer, is in Nicholls Hospital, recovering from an accident Monday which cost him two fingers on his left hand, and injured two others on the same hand. He was cutting poles on a circular saw on the farm of his brother, Roy Hooten, and the fingers were severed when his hand apparently slipped. He was rushed to Nicholls Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. D. W. Clark.

Toronto's newest centenarian, Miss Maria Perry, celebrated her 100th birthday on Monday. A deaf mute, she is a member of a prominent Cobourg family with connections in Peterborough. At her birthday party in the Julia Greenshields' home were four residents of this city. They were her cousins, Mrs. M. E. Bliss, Miss G. M. Perry, Mrs. Walter Perry and Mrs. J. H. Ferguson.

COMPLAIN OF ASHES

Complaints in regard to ashes being deposited in a lane between Rink and Townsend street, between George and Aylmer streets were considered by the Property Committee Monday night. As the lane is on private property the members of the committee felt there was nothing they could do about it unless the conditions were regarded as a menace to the public health. Sanitary Inspector MacPherson will be asked to investigate the conditions.

APPEAL IS ENTERED

An appeal on behalf of Alex. Lyons against the judgment of Judge McGibbon of Lindsay, upholding the conviction recorded by Magistrate Gee in the local police court against Lyons several months ago on a charge of illegal sale of liquor. Magistrate Gee found the accused guilty and sentenced him to three months imprisonment. The judgment was appealed but was upheld by Judge McGibbon. Now a second apeal which will be heard by the Ontario Appeal Court is being made.

BOYS ARE CHARGED

JR. W.A. EXAMINATIONS.

A number of girls from All Saints' Jr. W.A. held their annual examinations based on "Talks on New Ways" in the chapel. After the examinations games were played under the direction of Mrs. and Miss Connolly, assisted by Miss Allen and Miss Anderson. A delightful program followed: Recitation, Helen Dummitt; song, Helen Friendship; piano solo, Irene Ellis; reading, Mrs. Connolly. Dainty refreshments were served at a table adorned with pretty flowers. The afternoon was brought to a close by the girls gathering around Mrs. and Miss Connolly and singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and 'Auld Lang Syne."

NEW DESK AT LAST

For a number of years an item has appeared in the municipal estimates for a new typewriter desk for the city clerk's office but somehow or other the appropriation has got lost in the shuffle. This year however the desired piece of office furniture is actually going to materialize for at Monday night's meeting of the Property Committee, Chairman McCannan was authorized to purchase the desk on motion of Mayor Hamilton and Ald. Bradburn. "The old desk is falling to pieces," Ald. Stocker remarked.

CONGRATULATE M. COUGHLIN.

The following item is carried about Mike Coughlin, a younger brother of John Coughlin of the Coughlin Monument Work, Peterborough, by the Herald a North Toronto weekly: "Mayor Ralph Day forwarded congratulations in a letter received by Mr. Coughlin an old and highly esteemed resident of Erskine avenue.... The occasion was Mr. Coughlin's 81st birthday. Last year the North Toronto Bridge Club, of which Mr. Coughlin is a member, tendered him a dinner celebrating his 80th birthday and His Worship (then controller) was chairman of the occasion and by the same token Mike plays a mean game of bridge yet." John, his older brother, is on the job at his plant in Peterborough every day.

New Scales Needed

A letter from Fred T. Hart, senior inspector of weights and measures pointed out the necessity of new scales at the market. The letter stressed the fact that the present scales which broke down recently, were half a century old and had been designed to take care of horse-drawn loads which did not exceed five tons in weight while modern motor transports carried three or four times that load. Inspector Hart recommended that the city should instal a modern motor truck scale.

Members of the committee agreed that the present weighing equipment had outlived its usefulness and there was some discussion as to the size of the new scales that all felt were necessary. Ald. Dutton suggested a maximum of 30 tons but Mayor Hamilton doubted whether one that size would be needed. It was decided on motion of the Mayor and Ald. Dutton that the committee chairman be authorized to secure prices on 20 ton and 25 ton scales.

Filing Cabinets

Two tenders were received for fittings is the form of filing cabinets for the vault in the city clerk's office, one for $328 from Sid Black, representing the Steel Equipment Company and the other for $385 from the Office Specialty Company, Newmarket. As there was some doubt as to some of the details, the matter was left over until the next meeting; a motion from Ald. Stocker that the tender of Sid. Black be accepted, being withdrawn.

ALDERMAN DUTTON OPPOSES SPENDING MONEY ON MARKET

"Personally I am opposed to spending a cent on the present market square or on the building known as the market hall," said Ald. James Dutton when the market question bobbed up again at Monday night's meeting of the Property Committee. "I feel you could spend all kinds of money there and still not have a market when you got through."

The matter came before the committee by reason of a letter from former mayor J. J. Turner, who said that he had always taken an interest in the market when he was in council and who suggested a metal roof over the sides of the present market square or the transfer of the market to the Brock Street rink which he thought would be a splendid building for the purpose. "You would also get rid of a nuisance about which people on Brock Street complain," the letter in effect said.

"I feel," said Ald. Dutton, "that if you ever started a market on Brock Street the people there would soon think that they had a much greater nuisance than anything they now complain of. I think there is a great deal of merit in Ald. Glover's suggestion that the old street railway car barns on King Street might be converted into a market."

Ald. Wilson agreed that such a location would be an ideal one for the purpose.

It was finally decided on the suggestion of Ald. Dutton that the Property Committee inspect the old car barn with a view to judging as to its suitability for market purposes.

CHAPTER 47

"THE FIRST on the murder scene is Mr. Norris, because 'e's got nothink to delay 'im," explained Sergeant Beef. "Then up comes Dr. Thurston, calling out 'er name, and Mr. Williams and Mr. Townsend, and start breaking the door in. Wot's appened to the others you may well ask. Two of them's got something to 'ide before they puts their noses out of their doors. There's Mr. Strickland, with the diamond pendant, wot Mrs. Thurston 'ad giv' 'im before dinner, lying on 'is dressing table as bold as brass. 'E 'as to conceal that before 'e dares open 'is door. And there's Stall with two 'undred of the best in 'is room, 'e can't come running down before they're away. Then there was the chauffeur. Well, don't forget 'e 'ad been sent for to Mrs. Thurston's room that evening. I shouldn't be surprised if 'ed been on 'is way down the stairs when 'e 'eard those screams, and got a nasty turn, and run back to 'is own room for a minute. Somethink of that, anyway.

"Then you breaks the panels of the door, and look in.' 'Ullo,' you say, 'murdered, is she?' For there she lies in a pool of blood, you think. And Dr. Thurston, 'e walks across to 'er and examines 'er, and says she's dead. And you start searching the room like mad, thinking that someone's been in there a-murdering of 'er, just as you was meant to think. And all the while the poor lady's smiling to 'erself, thinking she's 'aving a rare joke on you. So she was, up to then.

"So you looks 'igh and low, up the chimney, out of the winder, and under the carpet, not knowing as you know now, that no one 'adn't been in there since Stall was there, and 'im only for a couple of minutes. But at last you've finisher, and leave the lady alone. Mr. Townsend and Mr. Strickland and Mr. Norris go out in the gardens, while the chauffeur comes for me.

"Then, with no one else there, and an alibi established, it ain't no trouble to slip back in the room, murder the poor lady, and drop the knife out of the window in time for Mr. Townsend to find it on the ground. See? I told you it was simple.'Ardly worth telling. But, you seemed to want to know 'ow it was done."

"But good heavens, Beef," I said, really appalled by the story which sounded uncomfortably true, "what proof have you got?"

"Proof?" repeated Beef. "I got plenty of proof. D'you know 'ow I got onto this? Why, examining those bloodstains you was all so sarcastic about. You see, in that sort of way I've got a bit of an advantage over these gentlemen I mean, I can't work out theories like what they can, I only wish I could. Only we're taught things in the police, see? And one of the first jobs in a case like this is to 'ave a good look at the bloodstains. Well, I done that, and found something funny about 'em. It was a clean pillow slip, or 'ad been before the blood was on it. And the stains on the pillow slip was blood, real blood. But when I came to look at the pillow itself inside, what d'you think I found? Not only blood, but red ink! That taught me a thing or two. Oh, I says, so that was it, was it? Acting dead, was she? And the pillow slip with the inkstains on been took away after the real murder, was it? Only there wasn't a chance to take the 'ole pillow, wasn't there? I see. That's 'ow I come to discover it. Of course, I got the pillow and the pillow slip. Exhibits A and B, them. That's proof enough, isn't it? And not circumstantial, wot's more."

So at last we knew who was guilty. As Sergeant Beef said, the evidence of the pillow and pillow slip was not circumstantial, but was hard and certain proof. I cannot pretend that I had suspected Dr. Thurston, because it had seemed to me impossible that he, who had been with us from the time that Mrs. Thurston went to bed until we had found her apparently murdered, could have had anything to do with it. Who could even have suspected that his accomplice, his unfortunate and unconscious accomplice had been none other than the murdered woman! It seemed very horrible, but even as I realized it, it seemed diabolically clever.

But there was one man who had evidently decided to remain loyal to Thurston. The doctor was about to speak in answer to Sergeant Beef, when Williams placed a hand on his arm. "Doctor, as your lawyer I forbid you to say anything in answer to this at present. The whole thing is outrageous, and we shall be able to prove that this blundering fool of a policeman has made some fantastic mistake."

Lord Simon leaned back easily. "Not this time, Williams," he said. "I am not one to get excited about the polly old police, but I'm climbin' down a peg." Then he added, "Lord, what a relief it is to have been wrong for once! You don't know the monotony of infallibility!"

"I also, the great Amer Picon, shall rest contented. At last I have made the faux pas. Hooray, as you say in English, it is a great change for me!"

And Mgr. Smith murmured softly, "I am so pleased. So pleased."

"At all events," said Williams fiercely. "say nothing, doctor, till we have conferred." Then he turned to Beef. "I take it that there is no objection to Dr. Thurston coming with me to the study for a while before you . . . take any more steps?"

"None at all, sir. There are police in the grounds and no one can leave. I will give you 10 minutes."

The two went out of the room, and Sergeant Beef made an unpleasant noise as though he were sucking his teeth, as indeed he probably was doing. Then suddenly he rose heavily to his feet.

"I don't know whether I ought to leave them . . ." he began.

But his words were rudely interrupted. There was the sound of a revolver shot which seemed to shake the house, and sang deafeningly in my ears for some seconds. We jumped up, and ran out into the hall. The study door was open, and full length on the ground lay the weightly bulk of Dr. Thurston, while in his right hand was still clasped his revolver. Williams stooped over him, and Beef followed.

"I'm afraid there can be no doubt about death in this case," Williams said. "It must have been instantaneous."

"How did it happen?" I asked.

"He led me in here, then asked if I would leave him alone for a moment. He said he wanted to collect himself before conferring with me. And foolishly I agreed. For some reason it never occurred to me that this was his intention. I had scarcely opened the door when I heard the shot behind me."

"Let's go back to the other room," I said, for the body of the dead man was gruesome. There was an expression of startled horror on Thurston's dead face which was unendurable. Before we left him, however, a rug was laid over the corpse, and Beef took care to lock the door when we were all out of the room.

"Well, that seems pretty well to prove your theory, sergeant," said Williams, when we had got back to the more natural atmosphere of the lounge.

And indeed it further proof was necessary I felt that here it was. What could be more conclusive than the suicide of the protagonist? But it appeared that Beef was modest.

"Wot theory?" he said. "I 'adn't got no theory."

"Oh yes, you had," said Williams, "and a very brilliant one, and as it now turns out amazingly true. Poor Mary! I wonder what Thurston's motive was? I expect we shall see when we come to go through her papers. It was a fiendishly clever idea, though, for Thurston to persuade her into that pretense, and then, with his alibi established, for him to go back and murder her."

Sergeant Beef was standing between us and the door.

"'Oo said anythink about Dr. Thurston going back and murdering 'er?" he asked suddenly.

For a moment I did not understand the implications of this extraordinary question, then I was horrified to see that the sergeant had pulled out a pair of handcuffs and drawn himself up to his full height.

"Samuel James Williams," he said, "it is my duty to arrest you. You are charged with the murder of Mary Thurston. You will be further charged with the murder of Dr. Alexander Thurston. It is also my duty to warn you that anythink you say may be used in evidence against you."

Before I had recovered from my surprise I saw that he had slipped his handcuffs over the lawyer's wrists.

"But . . . but . . .". I said. "You've just been proving it was Dr. Thurston. . . ."

"I beg your pardon, sir, I 'aven't been proving nothink of the sort. I knowed it was 'im all through."

Sergeant Beef then did a very commonplace thing. He blew loudly on a whistle.

"Really!.. said Lord Simon, whose sensibilities were touched by the sound.

Two policemen entered.

"Take 'im along." said Sergeant Beef. "'E won't say nothink, being a lawyer. But 'e's for it, oright. 'Anged by the neck till 'e's dead, 'e'll be."

The sergeant thereupon helped himself to a glass of beer, and after thoroughly sucking the ends of his straggling ginger mustache, he said, "You see, gents, I 'adn't got no theories, not like yours. I still think they was remarkable. But I did 'appen to know 'co done it.

Enchanting Lily Pool for Small Garden

Rock Garden for Odd Corner

Water lilies floating at the surface of a tiny pool. Masses of yellow alyssum and white arabis in an informal rock garden. It's a summer paradise within the space of a few square yards.

To make this lily pool, simply sink an old tub in the ground, as our diagram shows. Fill tub to within six inches of the top with garden soil, add a thin layer of clean sand and then water.

Hardy water lilies planted in April or May will bloom this summer. Fit your pool into the landscape by rimming it with irregular stones, planting clumps of day lilies or marsh iris at its edge.

Think of every season when you plan your rock garden. In a sunny spot plant snowdrops, wild tulips, grape hyacinths for spring; rosy creeping phlox for summer; showy asters for fall; evergreen bearberry for winter beauty.

Our 32-page booklet gives easy exact instructions for the planting and care of all kinds of lovely pools and rock gardens. Plants for sun and shade.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO MAKE ROCK GARDENS AND LILY POOLS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of the booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

The Deceased Have No Right to Rule the Living, Especially When Happiness or Marriage Is Endangered, So Ways Should Be Found to Circumvent Such Plans.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am an elderly widow. When my husband died he left me very comfortably situated, but he planned that my son and his family should live with me.

However, we just cannot get along together on account of my son's wife, who makes everything very unhappy for me. This distresses my other children very much as they see I am depressed all the time and have lost the interest and pep that was characteristic of me in former times. I desire more than anything in the world to live my last years in happiness and peace, and I know that my children want the same thing for me. So what must I do about this unpleasant situation which has arisen?

A VERY UNHAPPY WOMAN.

Answer:

The only sane thing for you to do is to tell your son and your disagreeable daughter-in-law that they must get a home of their own. This will be for the good of all concerned, for no doubt your son's wife's hatefulness is largely due to her resentment at having to live in another woman's house instead of having her own home in which she would be mistress and which she could run as she pleased.

When a mother-in-law and a daughter-in-law can live together in peace and happiness it is a miracle because everything about the situation tends to make them clash. The only way it is ever solved amicably is by one of them being self-abnegating enough to make a doormat of herself voluntarily and let the other one trample over her.

Otherwise they will always be in each other's hair, for each will be determined to be the boss and run the house in her own way. The Turk who could bear no rival near the throne was no more jealous of his prerogative than is every woman of her right to do as she pleases in her own kitchen.

Then comes the conceit of both age and youth which are bound to result in head-on collisions, for mother-in-law thinks that because of her age and experience she knows everything; that her ways are the only ways, and daughter-in-law is firmly convinced that she is inspired wisdom because she is modern and all of mother-in-law's ideas are fossilized and should be junked. So your experience in not being able to get along with your daughter-in-law is the common experience of all women who try to live with their sons' wives. The only remedy is to break up the arrangement even if you have to sell your house and go to live in a small apartment or boarding house.

Don't be afraid to broach the subject to your son and his wife, because they will jump at it and be as glad to be rid of you as you will to be rid of them. And don't feel that you should be bound by your husband's plan for you all to live together. The dead have no right to rule the living and, besides, he would be the first to want you to give up an arrangement that seemed feasible to him, but that has worked out so badly.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Do you think the modern idea of colleges having courses in the study of marriage a wise policy? Should a young man who gets a salary of $1800 attempt to give his fiancee an engagement ring that costs $300?

UNWILLING BACHELOR.

Answer:

I am heartily in favor of the study of marriage being included in every college curriculum. Since virtually all young people expect to marry, why should they not be taught in school something about how to make a success of the most important thing they are ever going to do in life? It is amazing, when you come to think of it, that for thousands of years we have spent so much time and money teaching youngsters higher mathematics and the dead languages and law and medicine and so on, but we have never thought it worth while to include marriage in the branches of the higher education.

Yet what boys and girls need to know more than anything else in the world is how to tell whether they are in love for keeps, or just have a passing heart attack; how to pick out a husband or wife and how to get along with same after they have been acquired.

Heretofore we have left the matter entirely to individual experimentation in which the knowledge acquired always came too late to be of any service. So if school girls and boys can be taught in school the A B C of how to be happy though married, it will save many a disaster. That a college course in marriage meets a long-felt want is amply proven by the fact that the classes are all crowded.

A psychologist who lectures in one such class tells me that he stresses nothing so much as heredity, and that he tries to make his students realize the importance of picking out for a husband or wife the kind of man or woman that they would like to have for the father or mother of their children. That in itself justifies the college course in marriage. For if you can make boys and girls conscious of their responsibility to their children they will use more discretion in selecting their mates.

I do not think that on an $1800 salary a boy can afford a $300 diamond engagement ring, and I don't think the right sort of a girl would want him to put that much money in one. She would know that he would have to run into debt for it, and any woman who is party to a man's extravagance is a poor bet as a wife.

* * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—A friend of mine tells me that it is not proper to give a widow an engagement ring. He says that is for young girls who have never been married and that the Duke of Windsor did not give Wallis Warfield a ring because she was a widow.

A WIDOW.

Answer:

What nonsense! Of course, a widow gets an engagement ring whether it is her second or third or fourth offense. And what about that square-cut emerald engagement ring that we read so much about in the papers that the Duke gave Mrs. Simpson?

THE EXAMINER FASHION SERVICE

Here's the sort of dress every smart woman craves for spring. It's dressy, but yet has a tailored look which makes it perfect for town or afternoon wear. The simulated redingote effect gives a long, slim line that is wonderfully becoming to 14 or 44. You'll like the flat diaphragm created by the bias and decorative pin tucks. A dashing scheme is black and pink print contrast. Navy with powder blue is another popular spring combination. Its slim lines make it so easy to wear under your coat for first cool spring days. Amazingly simple to sew. It cuts in one-piece from the shoulder to hem. The model also includes high neck version.

Style No. 2073 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material with 1 yard of 27-inch contrasting.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND MR. STUBTAIL

Uncle Wiggily's paws were aching and tired from being pinched in the split log he tried to pull apart in the woods. But the poor rabbit gentleman could not pull the two pieces of the log farther apart to free himself. He just had to stay there as if caught in a trap.

"And the silly part of it," said Uncle Wiggily as he twinkled his pink nose, "is that I got into this trouble myself. If I hadn't wanted to break the log apart so I could carry half of it home for my open hearth fire, this never would have happened. But I hope some one is coming to rescue me."

He had heard footsteps or pawsteps or something getting nearer as he was held there in the split log.

"The question is," thought the rabbit gentleman, "who is coming? If it's a Bad Chap it is all up with me I can neither fight nor run away. Oh, this is dreadful! I hope it isn't a Bad Chap!"

"I'll soon set you free"

Uncle Wiggily knew the Fox, the Wolf or the Bob Cat would ask nothing better than to catch him as he was now, with both front paws pinched in the split log. And, knowing this, the rabbit tried harder than before to get loose. But it was of no use.

Then, all of a sudden, there was a loud rustling noise in the bushes, a crinkling sound in the old dried leaves on the ground and Uncle Wiggily shivered and said:

"Well, here comes a Bad Chap!"

But it was nothing of the sort. It was jolly Mr. Stubtail, the bear gentleman daddy of Neddie and Beckie.

"Hello, Uncle Wiggily!" growled Mr. Stubtail. He didn't growl because he was cross but because that was his manner of speaking. "Hello, Uncle Wiggily! What sort of a game are you playing?"

"This isn't a game," answered the rabbit gentleman and now his paws hurt him so he could hardly twinkle his pink nose.

"What is it then if not a game?" asked the Bear.

"I'm pinched!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I'm pinched by my paws in this log I tried to pull apart for firewood."

"Oh, dear me! So you are!" growled Mr. Stubtail as he took a look. "But I'll soon set you free, Uncle Wiggily. I'll put my big, strong paws in the crack of the log and pull it apart so you can loosen your paws. Get ready now!"

Mr. Stubtail put his paws in the crack beside Uncle Wiggily's paws. The Bear pulled both ways, one way with each paw.

"Quick, now! Pull 'em out, Wiggy!" he shouted.

As soon as the pressure on Uncle Wiggily's paws was released, the rabbit gentleman was free.

"Thank you, so much, Stubby!" he said.

"Oh! Ug! Er! You—you're welcome!" graunted the Bear. "But—ugh!"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Now my paws are pinched. I'm caught in place of you!" growled Mr. Stubtail. "Help! Help!"

"I'm not strong enough to help you," said the rabbit. "I'll go get the Police Dog." But there was no need to do that. All of a sudden along came prancing Uncle Butter, the goat gentleman.

"I'll pry and split that log apart for you with my strong horns!" bleated Uncle Butter. And that's just what he did. Soon by the goat's horns, the log was split wide apart, Mr. Stubtail could pull loose his paws and then he carried the wood home for the hearth fire in the bungalow.

Mr. Longears was very grateful. And if the stairs don't try to climb all the way up to the roof instead of stopping at the top floor, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's golf clubs.

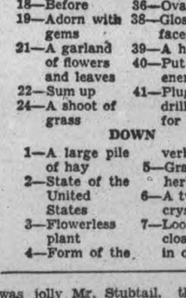
"The Authority on Authorities"

NO TIME TO DOUBLE

WHEN YOU hold a strong two-hiter, it is not a time to make informative doubles. Better by far, bid one of your suits so that on a later turn you can complete the story to your partner by showing your other suit. If you don't show a suit on your first chance, but double instead, you may not know what to do on the next round. Doubles are usually most valuable on hands which can support any of three suits safely, play at no trump or offer one fine suit bid if your partner answers with misfits.



(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

South made a third hand bid here of 1-Club, which West doubled. North put in a bid of 3-Clubs, East passed and South bid 3-No Trump. West now realized the mistake he had made in not showing one suit on the first round, as he feared showing either suit at the four level. As he had no alternative, he decided to double.

The opening lead was the heart 8, covered by the J and K. Six club tricks were next cashed, on which South noted West's discards were a club, a heart and four spades. Reading him for five spades, South led a spade and put on the 7, which West was forced to win with the A. West then played his three high hearts and led the diamond K. This was won with the A in dummy and the spade 8 played to the K. Nine tricks were cashed, with the loss of three hearts and one spade.

Correct bidding by West would have landed his side in four hearts or four spades, either of which could have been made.

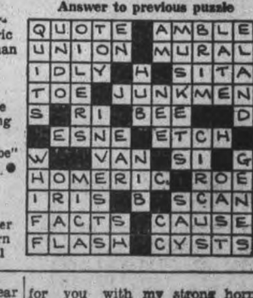
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the club K cashed and followed by the A, how should South plan the play to make 5-Hearts?

Mother's Favorite For Coughs And Colds

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold. They get overheated, get their feet wet, and do a dozen things the mother cannot prevent.

Mothers should never neglect the children's coughs and colds, but on the first sign get a remedy that will give relief, and for this purpose we would highly recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss, and its promptness and effectiveness in loosening the phlegm and healing the bronchial tubes is such that the trouble is checked before anything serious may develop.

Mrs. J. Stahl, Solsque, B.C., writes:—"For some years I have been using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for myself and family of four children. I have used lots of other kinds of cough medicine, but I like 'Dr. Wood's' best, as it acts much more quickly than any of the others."

Fathers' Night King Edward H. and S.

Monday evening was a special "Fathers' Night at the regular meeting of King Edward Home and School Association held in the kindergarten at the school with the president, Mrs. E. H. Hubel presiding.

The fathers and guests present were welcomed by the president before the business session, after which the meeting was turned over to G. H. Cutmore, who was chairman for an interesting program.

A. R. Kennedy, editor of the Examiner, was the guest speaker, and held the close attention of his audience with delightful reminiscences of the past, compared with present times. A much enjoyed musical program was as follows: guitar and vocal solos, Tommy Parker; ventriloquist, Charles Cole, who also sang several comic songs, accompanied at the piano by Jack Smith; Scottish songs, Robert Hendry, accompanied by Mr. Smith; solo, Harold Lee, accompanied by Mrs. Kitney.

It was decided at the meeting to hold the annual 'open school' and spring tea sometime in May. The attendance banner was won this month by Miss Sally Leonard's room. Refreshments were served after the program by Mrs. G. Harris, social convenor and her assistants.

Mark St. Group Entertains At Anson House.

An enjoyable evening was spent when Group 4 of the Women's Association of Mark Street United Church visited Anson House and presented a program of music for the residents.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland, in his usual happy manner, acted as chairman, the first part of the program consisting of community singing with Mrs. Telford at the piano. "Wonderful Words of Life" was the opening hymn, followed by old familiar songs. A solo by Mrs. S. Mitchell was much enjoyed, as also were selections by Rufus Payne, C. Telford and A. Stevens. C. Telford provided delightful harmonica music, and a duet was sung by Mrs. Telford and Mr. Stevens. The program closed with a chorus by several members of the group. All joined in singing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," after which Mr. Rowland pronounced the benediction.

Party for Member Mays H. & S. Association.

Miss Eva Howarth, whose marriage takes place on Saturday, was entertained last evening at a delightful party by the members of the Home and School Association of Mays School. W. Sheppard of Monaghan Road was hostess for the pleasant affair.

During the evening an address was read by Mrs. A. Briscoe, a past president of the Association, and a presentation made to the guest of honor by Mrs. W. Carter, immediate past president on behalf of the Home and School.

An enjoyable evening of games and community singing included a humorous mock wedding, with Mrs. Jack Cooper as the 'bride', Mrs. W. Wheeler, as the 'groom', Mrs. Morley as 'trainbearer' and Mrs. Carpenter acting as officiating 'minister.' A solo, "I Love You Truly" was sung by Mrs. Cooper. Refreshments closed the happy party, served by the social convenor, Mrs. E. Brierly and her assistants.

Hastings Personals

The euchre and dance held under the auspices of Hastings' L. O. L. No. 558 on Friday evening was one of the best to be held in the hall. Nine tables of euchre were played and a series of ten games. The ladies first prize was drawn for by Mrs. Earl Clark and Mrs. W. Warner each winning nine games. Mrs. Clark was declared winner of a china cheese dish. The ladies second place was tied by Mrs. L. E. Scriver, Mrs. H. Scriver and Miss Mary Puffer each one winning eight games. A draw decided Mrs. L. E. Scriver winner of the prize of a marmalade jar. Four gents tied for first prize, Messrs S. Birch of Norwood, Russel Patterson, Wm. McMillan and Donald Beamish winning eight games. Donald Beamish was declared winner of a necktie. Messrs Richard Bannon and Roy King won seven games and a draw decided Roy King was winner of a pair of suspenders.

Following the euchre, cake, sandwiches and coffee were served by the members and the room was cleared for an old-time dance, with music furnished by Messrs Don Beamish, Fred Hand, Philip Ford and Winnifred Beamish.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The fountains of abiding satisfaction are within. No outside well can give us the waters of satisfaction and peace. They have all been tried, and men and women are foolish to try them still. No, our well of satisfaction must be one that is not endangered by change of circumstance."—J. H. Jowett.

Dear Friends:

Maybe you have been trying to draw satisfied water from someone else's well, and found neither peace nor contentment when you drank it. It might suit them, but be a bitter draught to you. Why not draw some from your own well?

Every one of us are a complete world in ourselves, yet affected by all the other worlds around us. We live more or less like those around us, yet entirely unlike. We all think, but each differs from the other in thought. We eat differently, yet we all eat.

We walk, dress, have opinions, breathe, sleep, all of us do these things, yet all do them in a different way. And in the doing of them, if we do not please ourselves, if we are not satisfied, it is likely because we are trying to live like someone else.

Supposing you do not like yur life as it is, copying someone else's way of living will not bring yuu happiness. Draw from the well within you, reach out for the things that will suit you, not what suits another.

You might as well try to wear someone else's clothes who was taller or shorter, heavier or slimmer than you, expecting them to fit, as try to fit someone else's mode of life to your personality. It cannot be done, for it will sag here, be too tight here, too lose there and a misfit all over.

Sometimes we meet someone congenial to us, who have many of our likes and dislikes. But we do not touch on all sides, we would not be satisfied with their complete mode of life, because we have different personalities. Neither would our mode suit them, for the same reason.

So you see how evident it is that we must draw from our own well, if we want to be satisfied. We must find our own form of happiness if we are to be at peace with ourselves.

And that is the mistake so many make, expecting from outside of themselves what should come from within. We need the fun of comedians, need stimulation from each other, exchange of ideas, but all this isn't us in ourselves. Do you get my meaning?

To be self-satisfied is a form of egotism which grates on others making them wonder how we got that way. We don't want to be like that. But, if we are not satisfied with our method of living, if all the time there is a something nagging at us from within, then rest assured it is because we are drawing someone else's well, and it is not agreeing with us.

Water is supposed to be the purest thing there is, but all water is not pure. It can be polluted by various things, and altho' looking crystal clear to the eye, yet can make us dangerously ill. And the same thing may apply to the water you are using from the well-spring of another.

So many want the form of happiness they see another enjoying, yet when they try it, they get nothing but headache and heartache from using it. Choose your own form, it will fit you far better. If you don't know what it is, find out, and the surest way to know for you, is the feeling of inward peace it gives you.

Not the feeling of staleness, not the "don't care" attitude, but the true knowledg that you are drinking from the personal well within you. Not someone else's way in life, but your own true way. Only when you do this will you get true peaceful satisfaction. Your well springs from the personality God gave to you alone.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Millbrook Personals

A feature of peculiar interest at the morning service in St. Andrew's church on Sunday was the presentation of the books, given as wards, to the members of the junior congregation who had established an attendance record during the year.

Those receiving prizes were Roy Dawson, who has not missed being at church service on Sunday morning for the past three years, and who, at the New Year, received the pastor's special award for a perfect record in 1937; Brentin Dawson, David and Evans Hatherly, Dorothy, George and Teddy Sisco, Teddy McDowell, and Raymond Powell.

The minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco, spoke on "Behold the Man," and following the sermon Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Miss Eva Hansman sang, "Face to Face."

Ken and Phyllis Kidd, and B. B. Dawson, president of the Peterborough Presbytery Y.P.U., attended a meeting of the Presbyterial executive in Peterborough on Friday evening.

Hearst Scion Weds Dancer

David Whitmire Hearst, son of the publisher, William Randolph Hearst, pictured leaving Grace church, New York, with his bride, the former Miss Hope Chandler. Only the families of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. Hearst, a former dancer, is the daughter of Mrs. Samuel Coley, of New York. The couple sailed on the Queen Mary immediately after the wedding for a honeymoon in Europe.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Good luck to the homemaker who can run a home for five on $39.00 a month. I am sure she must be near crazy trying to do it. Trying to help her save 50 cents a week, even if she can we forget that she has three active children wearing out clothes all the time. Shoes and stockings wear out quickly. I think Christine wonders how she does so well out of it. I would like to help her so to her I am sending $1.00 to start. Some of us are more fortunate than others, much more, and we forget that anything we have is not ours but God's and He means us to share with those that are in need. Sincerely, Mac.

ANSWER: Your one dollar bill was immediately dispatched to Mrs. S. L. with your letter. I appreciate your generosity and am sure she will. As soon as I hear from her I will publish her reply.

You must realize without my saying how gratifying it is to us to have the Cookery Page serve this purpose of clearing house between readers, not only to exchange recipes and ideas but to express brotherly love in a material way such as you have done. Our sincere thanks to you.

QUESTION: You mention to buy coarse rolled oats. Why? A long time ago you published a recipe "Nut Chews." It calls for 1 cup whole wheat. What do you mean by whole wheat? I tried to buy it as a cereal, but could not and I am sure you don't mean the kind we feed the hens.

In the recipe Chocolate Crispie Clusters it calls for a bar of chocolate. Is that Sweet Chocolate? You mentioned the kind Fry's Bournville, but I can't get that in the country. Thanks, Mrs. R. E. S.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

We recommend coarse rolled oats because they contain more of the whole oat, than the fastcooked product. Much of the bran outer coat, the germ and most of the vitamins are preserved in the coarse oat, which incidentally does not need long cooking for normal growing children and adults.

Whole wheat is called cracked wheat by the millers. It can be bought for about 5 cents per pound at flour and feed stores and is actually the whole wheat kernel ground into about 6 or 8 pieces. Porridge made from this is delicious.

The chocolate required for Chocolate Crispie Clusters is sweet chocolate—ordinary chocolate bars would do—I am sure if you wrote to Fry-Cadbury's in Montreal they would tell you where you could get Fry's Bournville in your district.

QUESTION: I have some spiced prunes now on hand which I think are simpler to prepare and are excellent. My husband loves them and he has been a prune hater for years.

No doubt the recipe you printed in a recent issue is very good—I have not tried it—mine is: Use any amount of prunes and simmer either with or without slices of orange, but use stick cinnamon and whole cloves. When tender chill. Remove seeds and stuff with nut meats, I use English walnuts. Spread out flat on a baking sheet or dish. Pour syrup around them, using one-half cup sugar and one cup water, heat through. Serve warm or cold around meat platter.

I also have a very simple recipe for Johnny cake which is excellent: 1 cup corn meal, 1 cup flour, ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 level teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg. Mix all together and bake in moderate oven. Hoping this will help someone in simple cookery. Mrs. E. M. B.

ANSWER: That method of spicing prunes is delicious and I am grateful to you for sending it, also the Johnny cake. Write again, we would like to be of help to you.

QUESTION: Could you please help me by giving a simple recipe for macaroni and cheese?

Let me compliment and thank you for your cookery page and say for my self and friends, good luck.—Mrs. A. P.

ANSWER: Thanks so much for your kind wishes.

Macaroni and Cheese

One-quarter lb. macaroni (left whole or broken). Cook 20 minutes in 3 pints boiling water, then drain and rinse with cold water. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, stir in 3 tablespoons flour until blended, then stir in 3 cups hot milk until thick. Have ready 1½ cups old cheese grated. Put the macaroni, cream sauce and cheese in alternate layers in buttered baking dish, sprinkling each complete three layers with a little salt and pepper. Top with a few fine crumbs and dots of soft butter and paprika and bake in oven of 325 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes. If it seems too moist for your taste bake 1 hour.

This casserole of macaroni may be varied by using tomato juice in place of milk. Or part chopped ham in place of some of the cheese.

Write again when we can help you.

Knox Drama Club Presents Comedy

Knox Dramatic Club deserve 'a big hand' for the presentation last evening of the hilarious three act comedy, "Hill Billy Courtship" to a large audience in the Lecture Hall. The parts were splendidly portrayed throughout, and the audience was kept in a continuous state of laughter and interest from beginning to end.

In an excellently acted and directed production it is difficult to pick out the actors deserving most of praise, but it is especially noteworthy that some of the cast were taking part in theatricals for the first time and played their parts magnificently. Warren Trotter as the mountain nitwit, "Wash Jeddo," who causes a stir up with his letters to a marriage bureau; Harold Charlton as the Italian, "Louis Cattaro, and Hazel Wagar and Dorothy Battle as the radio hillbillies, who have returned for a visit to their native hills, were particularly good.

The cast of characters was as follows: Luke Stillsby, "in love with Mountain Flower, N. Hughes; Emmy Peppin, "flower of the Hills," Eunice Barnes; Ma Peppin, "Mother of the Flower," A. P. Huffman; Lulu and Sudie Triffett, "radio Hillbillies." Hazel Wagar and Dorothy Battle; Wash Jeddo, "Mountain, nitwit," Warren Trotter; Sol Silverstein, "Hebrew Manager," Ralph Charlton; Louis Cattaro, "The Italian," Harold Charlton; Pappy Stillsby, "A feudist," Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt; Bridget O'Flannigan, "A Wild Irish Rose," Betty Lytle; Rev. Boswell, "The preacher man," Howard Hall.

A second performance will be presented this evening in the Lecture Hall.

Hint Arsenic In Mystery Death Of Ottawa Tea Addict

Police Check To See If The Strength Of Imported Indian Brew Involved

OTTAWA, March 29 — (CP). — Mystery death of a tea-addict patent attorney to-day caused authorities to order an inquest, apparently in the belief he might have suffered slow arsenic poisoning.

The man, Thomas Cole, 59, and a former tea planter in India, died last Friday in hospital. Authorities withheld a death certificate pending an autopsy. The autopsy was said to have disclosed traces of arsenic in the vital organs.

Police and others were reticent in discussing the case, but some stress was placed on Cole's tea-drinking habits. He was said to have imported his tea specially from India, to have brewed it unusually strong and to have consumed it in unusually large quantities.

Dr. W T. Shotwell, the city's consulting analyst, was reported to have made a careful examination of Cole's stomach contents.

Meanwhile it was said an examination was being made of the tea to determine if it could have been the source of the poison. No authority could be found there to suggest how arsenic might have found its way into the tea containers.

INJURY AND INSULT

TORONTO, March 29 — (CP). — Insult and injury, always an unwelcome combination, went hand in hand for Ray Meade's mother-in-law. Complaining about the condition of the road in front of their home, Meade told a suburban council:

While canvassing the neighborhood for signatures to a petition regarding the road, his mother-in-law fell on the rough surface and broke her leg. Then, the ambulance driver summoned to take the woman to hospital, took one look at the road, declared it wasn't safe to drive over. They had to carry her down to the ambulance.

Reich Ambassador

Hans Adolf von Moltke, Reich ambassador to Poland since 1931, has been named to succeed Joachim von Ribbentrop as ambassador to England. The latter left the London post to take the position of German foreign minister.

Want to Know Why You're Constipated?

Would you give a million to shake off that dull, dopey, played-out feeling that often comes with common constipation? Then stop a minute and think.

What have you had to eat this week? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? Probably the reason you're constipated is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean how much you eat. It means a kind of food that isn't entirely consumed, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines which helps a bowel movement.

What to do? Eat some Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. This crunchy toasted cereal is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains both the intestinal tonic vitamin B_1 and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. See if you don't get off your heels and on your toes! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Suicide Succeeds On Second Try

BROCKVILLE, Ont., March 29.—(CP).—Mystery to-day surrounded the identity of a man whose body yesterday was found hanging from a tree north of the Canadian National railways tracks west of here near Lyn junction. It was cut down after dark by Provincial Constable W. J Franks and an undertaker.

The body, apparently there for three days, was discovered by Roderick Eyre, a resident of the neighborhood. Dr. T. F. Robertson, chief coroner for Leeds, was undecided as to whether or not an inquest would be held.

The man, about 30 years of age, had evidently made two attempts to hang himself. Strands of a broken rope were found on the same limb as that from which he was hanging.

INSTITUTE HONORS JANETVILLE PAIR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, March 29.—The annual grandmothers' meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. James Howe on Thursday afternoon, when over fifty members and visitors were present. The president, Mrs. Bert McMullen, presided, and after the usual opening exercises, the minutes and correspondence was read by the assistant secretary, Mrs. M. Armstrong.

Included in the correspondence was a letter from the district secretary, Mrs. Sanderson, of Lindsay, with a suggested list of articles for the exhibit at the Lindsay Fall Fair.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. Campbell, presented an encouraging report and the proceeds of the two recent euchre parties amounted to more than $15.

The convenor of the grandmother program, Mrs. J. Capstick, now took charge and announced the following numbers given by the grandmothers: Chorus, "When You and I Were Young Maggie"; reading, "The Modern Grandmother," Mrs. A. Heaslip; paper, "Grandma," Mrs. Capstick.

An outstanding number on the program was a humorous recitation given from memory by one of the oldest grandmothers, Mrs. Thomas Richardson, and entitled "The Trials of Bridget Malone," with encore also in Irish dialect, entitled "Change About."

A special feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a lovely lace tablecloth to the host and hostess, who were that day celebrating their forty-first wedding anniversary. The presentation was made, on behalf of the Institute, by Mrs J. Capstick, and a well-worded address was read by the president, Mrs. McMullen. Mr. and Mrs. Howe each made suitable replies, after which all joined in singing "Let's Grow Old Together."

Afternoon tea was served with special tables centred by crystal vases with sweet peas being reserved for the grandmothers.

The house was prettily arranged for the occasion with spring flowers, narcissi, daffodils and sweet peas, the latter being an anniversary gift to Mr. and Mrs. Howe from their grandchildren.

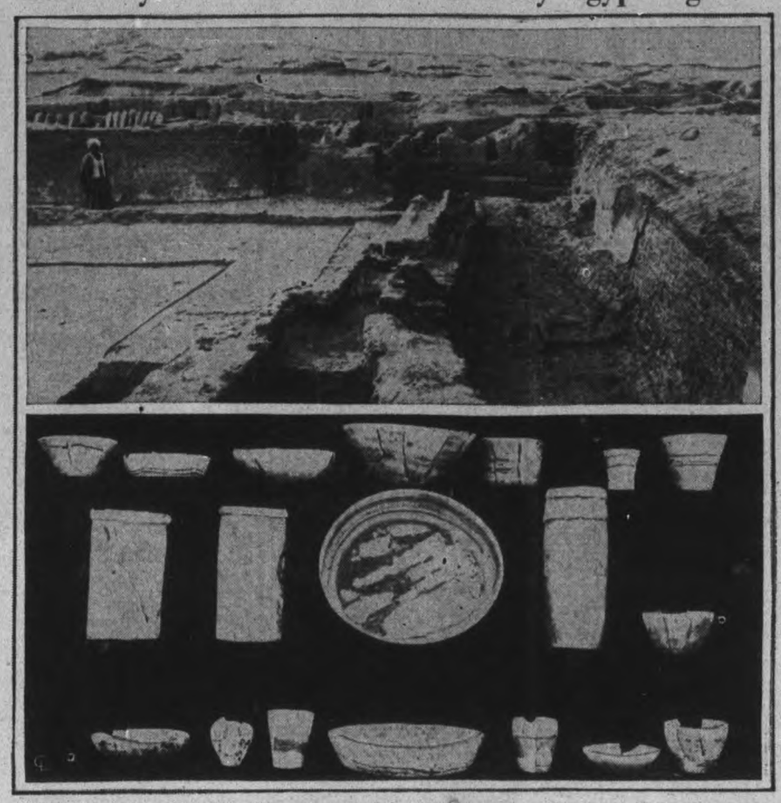
STEWART HALL

The Stewart Hall Women's Missionary Society held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. D. Thompson on Thursday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. George Hanbidge with fourteen members present. Mrs. Thorne led in prayer and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. A temperance reading was given by Mrs. Savigny, also a reading entitled "How pulling teeth helped a missionary to preach the gospel" was given by Mrs. Dawson.

Plans for holding an Easter thankoffering service were completed and several business matters discussed. A letter was read by Mrs. B. Matchett, from the supply secretary, asking that the bale of clothing be sent in June. It was decided to bring second-hand clothing to the April meeting to be repaired for the bale. The meeting was closed with prayer by Mr. Rowland.

A missionary quilt was quilted by the ladies during the afternoon. Supper was served and a social hour spent.

Discovery Of First Pharaoh's Tomb By Egyptologists



Members of an Egyptian Department of Antiquities Field Mission, recently unearthed at Sakkara, Egypt, ruins which they believe to be the long-lost tomb of Menes, (Aha, the fighter,) founder of the first dynasty of Pharaohs. Although two eminent British Egyptologists have advanced claims of having uncovered Menes' tomb at two other locations, the repetition of the names Menes, and absence of any other names at the Sakkara excavations would indicate that they are the authentic tomb of the first Pharaoh. Numerous pieces of pottery, and furniture and reed matting, still stuck to the walls, have been taken from the site thus far. The ABOVE pictures show operations at the Sakkara excavations and some of the articles taken from the tomb.

Propose Ploughing Cable Into Bed Of Atlantic

4,200-Foot Tow Chain Will Be Used On Job To Escape Damage By Trawlers

NEW YORK, March 28 (CP).—A new attempt will begin this week to end damage to transatlantic cables by ploughing them into the bed of the ocean, out of reach of the heavy drags on the bottom of fish trawling nets.

The Western Union Telegraph Company will send its cable ship Lord Kelvin to sea within a few days with a specially designed plough to cut a furrow in the bed of the ocean and feed the cable into the furrow, which will close over it.

The greatest difficulty previously faced by the crews laying the cable was the lack of any line or steel rope to drag the plough without developing torque or a twist. Therefore one of the longest and heaviest link chains ever forged was produced for the job. It is 4,200 feet long.

Each link made of nickel steel, weighs 3½ pounds. The chain will be placed aboard the Lord Kelvin tomorrow and the cable laying expedition will then head for the waters off the Irish coast where the heaviest damage is done to the underwater lines.

TRENT RIVER

Group 2 of the Ladies' Aid held a quilting at the home of Mrs. Robert Carnrite, Thursday.

The Misses Nora Forestell of Stirling and Mary Doherty of Hastings were week-end visitors with Mrs. P. Flynn and nephew, James Doherty.

Mrs. George Vanvolkenburg has returned from Wooler, where she visited her uncle, Mr. Henry Richards, who is confined to his home through illness.

Mr. Gordon Shearer attended the jury at Cobourg for several days during the past week.

Mrs. Earl Vanvolkenburg and little daughter, Laura Ann, have returned from Campbellford after visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nesbitt and family.

Messrs. Fred and Bill McLaughlin spent the week-end in Toronto and attended the Maple Leaf hockey game.

Wesley Whidman gave up his position as pianist for the church and leader of the choir on Sunday, having accepted a similar position at Norwood United Church, but has planned to direct choir rehearsals during the week up till Easter.

Thomas J. Brown had a birthday anniversary on Friday.

Miss Viola McGee, daughter of Mrs. Allan McGee of Donegal, who entered Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, as nurse-in-training, is confined to bed through illness in the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton Stewart of Campbellford have taken up residence on John Hay's farm, recently vacated by George Reid and family.

IMPORTANT PROBLEMS

CHARLOTTETOWN — (CP). — Important problems demanding solution in Prince Edward Island Agriculture were pasture improvement, use of limestone and the question of weed control, B. F. Tinney, assistant superintendent of the Charlottetown Experimental Station, said during a lecture to a seminar.

Quick Leg Work Saves A Life

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 29—(CP).—T. H. Copps of Hornepayne to-day owed his life to Customs Officer C. F. Leggat, who saved him from falling beneath the wheels of a moving train in the local station.

Copps missed the step as he was boarding the train which was just starting to pull out of the station yesterday.

Leggat seized the hand rails and wrapped his legs about the falling Copps. Leggat, who weighs 140 pounds, managed to hold the 205-pound Copps until the train was brought to a halt at the end of the platform after travelling about 200 feet.

"I guess I am stronger than I thought I was," said Leggat.

Immigration Officer T. J. Wyatt said Leggat was a real hero. "If it had not been for his quick thinking the man would have been crushed to death under the wheels."

WORLD'S FASTEST ANIMAL

In a short race, the cheetah is the fastest of animals. It can cover 100 yards at the rate of 70 miles per hour.

Refuses Money

Charles E. Fenton, of Midland, Ont., had the unique experience of drawing a horse in the Irish sweepstakes and then refusing to accept the $2,300 prize. Unknown to his wife, Mr. Fenton took the ticket in her name. Upon learning that she had drawn a horse, Mrs. Fenton refused to accept the money, so her husband cabled instructions that the money be returned to the Irish hospital. Mr. Fenton is shown ruefully gazing at the stove in which he burnt the winning ticket. He will, however, receive $150 for selling the winning ticket to himself.

IN THE FAMILY?

BATON ROUGE, La., March 29 (CP)—A brother of Senator Huey Long, who ruled this state in dictatorial style until an assassin's bullet ended his career in 1934 may become governor of Louisiana.

Earl Long is the political man of the hour at the Baton Rouge State House, built in Kingfish Huey's administration. He is lieutenant governor and will be in line for automatic succession to the gubernatorial chair if, as many expect, Governor Richard Leche is appointed to a newly-created federal judgeship in eastern Louisiana.

CANADIAN TROOPS FOIL LUDENDORFF BY SAVING ARRAS

TWENTY YEARS AGO TO-DAY

(Written for Canadian Press)
By CAPT. W. W. MURRAY, M.C.

The participation of the Canadian corps in the German offensives of March, 1918, was slight. While Canadian motor machine gunners and Canadian cavalry performed heroic feats on the front of the beaten Fifth Army, the four strong divisions of the corps continued to keep watch and ward over Vimy Ridge. Except for their incursion into the Passchendaele fighting five months before, they had not been moved from the Vimy sector since they stormed the Ridge in April, 1917.

This fact was well known to the Germans; and a frontal attack against the corps with the recapture of Vimy as its objective was, for a number of good and sufficient reasons, excluded from the enemy's program. However if Ludendorff was to achieve his purpose of crushing the British, Vimy had to be taken; and the German leader conceived the plan of reducing it from the south. This meant crumpling General Julian Byng's Third Army and pressing forward to Arras.

On the morning of March 28 this attack was launched. Canadian battalions in reserve to the front line brigades were immediately "alarmed" when the rumblings of gun fire immediately to the south betokened the opening of this phase. During the dark hours of a drizzling morning they "stood to," waiting for orders to move.

The Move South

As the morning advanced, they were marched short distances to various rendezvous, there to board motor lorries. In board daylight, they moved southward, parallel to the front line only a few miles away, over roads that were being heavily shelled by the enemy, and through villages which panic-stricken civilians were hastily abandoning.

The whole situation was obscure. Another offensive was in full swing, but the convoys of trucks sped still farther to the south, out of the Third Army area, and into that of the defeated Fifth Army. Late in the afternoon a halt was called and the convoy was turned round. Back came the Canadian battalions, this time to Arras.

Disembarking the Canadians truged forward in the darkness, their orders to bolster the line of the 15th British division. At Telegraph Hill, some few miles east of Arras, contact with the survivors of this gallant formation was established. Daylight of March 28 saw the enemy's path to Arras barred by the Canadians. His attack was not resumed.

Screen Star Slashed On Film Set

Hauling Accidents Send Wood Up

CHAPLEAU, Ont., March 29 (C. P.). — Price of firewood soared in this district 150 miles north-west of Sudbury to-day following accidents to teams of contractors.

A team of horses used for bringing out the remainder of the wood cut for the Fortin Brothers, Chapleau contractors, plunged through the ice and was drowned. Earlier a tractor belonging to the Lemieux Brothers fell through the ice, and Edgar Pellow, another wood contractor, lost a horse which broke through the ice.

Early spring break-up shortened the season by making roads bad and small lakes dangerous to cross and several hundred cords of wood are still left in the bush.

Western Blizzard Buries Prairie Over 5 Feet Deep

8-Foot Drifts at Medicine Hat Halt Bread Delivery; Dozens of Cars Stranded; Fear Heavy Stock Loss

CALGARY, March 30—(CP)—One of the worst spring storms on record in Western Canada continued unabated today, burying farmlands of southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan under snowdrifts from five to 10 feet high, blocking highways and damaging buildings in districts where the wind reached a velocity of 40 to 60 miles an hour.

Dozens of automobiles were stranded in giant drifts on rural highways, bus and train schedules were disrupted. At least two persons were unreported and others suffered from exposure or met accidents in traffic as the blizzard cut visibility to a minimum. Heavy loss of rangeland livestock was feared.

Sight Missing Bus.

Unreported for more than 24 hours in the blizzard that raged across Southern Alberta, a school bus, driven by Mrs. K. Brown of Parkland, was sighted by members of a search party late this forenoon.

The bus was sighted seven miles southwest of Parkland, a short distance from the farm home of Fletcher Johnson, where it was believed Mrs. Brown may have sought shelter. The searchers were nearly two miles from the bus when it was sighted amid deep snowdrifts.

George Nixon, Parkland garage operator, and George Bayes, school trustee, who started in search of the woman bus driver at noon yesterday, are safe. The two men reached Parkland today after battling through four and a half miles of heavy snow. They abandoned their car at the farm home of Cecil Campbell, where they spent the night.

Drifts as high as eight feet lined Medicine Hat sidewalks last night and bread deliveries in the city's outlying districts were impossible although milk trucks got through earlier yesterday. A 12-year-old Medicine Hat boy lost his way to school in the storm and was found in a snowdrift, exhausted and suffering from exposure. He was given first aid and taken to his home.

ATTACK ON BRUCE HIGHLY DEPLORED

TORONTO, March 30 — (CP) — Statements deploring the incident in the Legislative Buildings yesterday when Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce was nearly mobbed, were issued to-day by representatives of osteopaths and chiropractors.

A crowd surged around Dr. Bruce yesterday after he testified before the Private Bills Committee opposing granting of the title "Doctor" to chiropractors, osteopaths and drugless healers.

"No one deplores this incident more than we do," said D. V. Hoskins, chiropractor and chairman of the joint committee seeking the title for their members.

"The committee having left the building did not see what happened."

"It was a very regrettable incident," said Hubert J. Pocock, speaking for the Ontario Academy of Osteopathy. "Undoubtedly it was some of the spectators who were annoyed to the breaking point because of the unfair evidence presented by Dr. Bruce.

EXPORTS EASING, BENNETT FEARS NEW DEPRESSION

OTTAWA, March 30 (CP).—Members of the House of Commons will divide three ways when a vote is called on a Social Credit want-of-confidence motion which has been hanging fire for several weeks. Indications are the vote may come today.

By an amendment moved yesterday, Conservative Leader Bennett extricated his followers from the necessity of either voting confidence in the Government or supporting the Social Credit motion.

That motion, proposed by John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, was that "for the effective removal of poverty from Canada this Government has neglected and is now neglecting to use the resources of the Dominion as adequately as the people of this country have a right to demand."

Mr. Bennett said he had no objection to the terms of the motion but did not like the way it has been linked in the debate with Social Credit theories. So he proposed to add the words, "But that the adoption of Social Credit as enunciated by followers in this House will afford no immediate remedy."

So on the Bennett amendment the Social Creditors will vote with the Liberals to defeat it and on the main motion the Conservatives will vote with the Liberals to defeat the Social Crediters.

Debate was adjourned last night by J. J. Kinley (Liberal, Queens-Lunenburg) who will continue today. Just before the House rose Finance Minister Dunning tabled further supplementary estimates for the present fiscal year which ends tomorrow. They total $36,717,668.

New Slump Coming?

Mr Bennett wound up his speech on the Blackmore motion with a warning to the government that the distress signals of another depression were apparent. Canada's exports were shrinking, the favorable trade balance was diminishing and unemployment was increasing.

The same signs were on the horizon as in 1929 when the former Liberal government declined to heed them. The present government was doing nothing to avert the blow.

Mr. Bennett recalled the long battle his administration waged after taking office in 1930 to keep Canada's credit sound and turn an adverse balance of trade into a favorable one. He suggested some similar action to that taken by the former government to restrict imports through tariffs and dumping duties might have to be taken soon to maintain the integrity of Canada.

The Conservative government had used tariffs more in an effort to

BECAME SCARED FLED DEAD MAN DRIVER ADMITS

Ottawa Youth on Trial For Belleville Crash

BELLEVILLE, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Frank A. Cross, 23, of Ottawa, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler here today for preliminary hearing on a charge of criminal negligence in connection with the death of Edward Labrash Feb. 19 last on the highway one mile east of Belleville. A. B. Collins, K.C., acted for the Crown and the accused was defended by Charles A. Payne, K.C.

Bernard A. Rennick, department of highways engineer, produced a sketch of the section of highway where the fatal motor accident occurred. William C. Dingman told the court Labrash was in good health when he left his house about 11 o'clock on the night of the accident. He said Labrash was quite hard of hearing.

Dr. R. A. Flynn gave the cause of death as a fracture of the skull, multiple bruises and lacerations. Ernest Legendre, transport driver, told the court of finding the body on the highway at about one o'clock on the morning of Feb. 20 and of notifying the police.

R. B. Downey of Crookston said a green car passed his car near the railway tracks, stopping in front of the brick yard. In stopping it swerved to one side. He stated there was ice on both sides of the highway and that the traffic was not particularly heavy.

Glass From Cross Car

Traffic Officer Sam Irvine told of investigating the accident, stating that broken pieces of glass were found on several spots in the roadway. Defence counsel admitted that the glass was from the Cross car and the case proceeded. The officer told of apprehending Cross on the parade grounds of the Royal Canadian Air Force near Trenton and the finding of the car bearing certain marks on the fender. He said the window in the right front door had been shattered.

A statement allegedly given by the accused was produced and, after argument, was admitted, when the officer stated Cross had been properly warned by Inspector Gardner of the provincial police. In the statement Cross admitted meeting a tractor-trailer near the brick yard, the lights of the vehicle blinded him.

"At this point," said Cross in his statement, "I felt a jar and later stopped the car, while I and my companion, Bruce Foster, got out and saw a man lying on the side of the road. He was dead, we thought. We became frightened and left the scene of the accident."

TAILS TO THE STORM

CALGARY, March 30 (CP).—Drivers of bread wagons had a tough time to keep their horses headed in the right direction during yesterday's blizzard here. A horse's predilection for turning tail to the storm resulted in a wagon turning over in downtown Calgary and bread was scattered in all directions.

Move From the Cities Il Duce Advises

Warns Italy to Prepare for Worst in Aerial War; Boasts Navy Has Fuel "For Sufficient Time"

ROME, March 30—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today called on the Italian people to meet the menace of aerial warfare by moving from big cities into small towns, villages and the countryside.

Four hundred black-shirted senators rose to their feet with cries of "Duce! Duce!" as Mussolini strode into the Senate to deliver his anxiously-awaited speech on Italy's armament program.

Aroused by a three-day propaganda campaign, the Italian people eagerly awaited the speech. Loud speakers carried Mussolini's words to a big overflow in the square behind the Senate and to the expectant nation.

Mussolini assured the nation that in case of war Italy could count on fuel to operate the navy for "a sufficient length of time."

Possible lack of oil in wartime has been a cause for Italian anxiety.

He lauded Italy's war-making power, asserting the nation could "completely mobilize in a short time a number of units greater than that engaged in the Battle ofg Vittoria Veneto"—Italy's Great War victory in which 57 divisions fought.

He warned his Fascist followers, however, this must not lull them to sleep.

Cost No Object.

"Precisely because much has been done, it is necessary to tell ourselves that still more remains to be done and that we shall do it, whatever the cost," he declared.

Calling for emigration from the cities, the Duce said:

"From this moment I say that all of those who can organize their existences in small towns, in villages and the countryside would do well not to wait until the 12th hour.

"In case of war everything which prevents mobilization (such as civilian movements from the cities) might be prohibited. So much the worse, then, for those who have not foreseen this and are late.

"War from the sky is destined to assume an even greater importance in to-morrow's war."

By arming further, at whatever cost, Mussolini said, "We intend to assure general peace, but above all 'our peace.'"

He continued:

"We reject illusion and Utopias, and for this reason we left the shop that sells them, in Geneva.

"That which has always counted and still counts among peoples is their war-making ability."

He recalled that Napoleon once said the Italians would become one day the world's best soldiers.

"That's what we want," he declared. "We desire that Napoleon's prediction will become a Fascist and Roman reality of our time."

DETROIT POLICE FLATTEN 50 OUT IN STRIKE BATTLE

DETROIT, March 30 (AP). — Police and United Automobile Workers' pickets, both swinging clubs, fought at the entrance to the Federal Screw Works today, for the fourth time in three days. Fifty pickets were knocked down and one policeman was injured as the police escorted approximately 50 non-strikers into the plant.

The injured policeman, Abraham J. Matlen, was taken to receiving hospital for treatment of a cut over one eye. One picket was taken into custody.

Several hundred pickets, many of them women, attempted to block the employment entrance as the non-strikers arrived to begin work.

One hundred and fifty-eight policemen, armed with night-sticks, opened a path through the massed pickets to the employment entrance.

The pickets carried heavy sticks, a foot and a half long, to which small signs were affixed but which they used as weapons when the fighting began.

Half an hour after the first clash, the police were holding the employment entrance while the pickets were massed around other portions of the plant.

The U.A.W., a committee for industrial organization affiliate, called the strike Monday following the announcement of a 10 cents an hour wage reduction.

Must Tax Company Full Assessment Is Board's Finding

City Ordered to Pay Costs of the Action; Company Will Take Case to Court of Appeal

A decision of the Ontario Municipal Board announced on Tuesday increases the assessment of the De Laval Company from $60,000 to $222,400 and charges to the city the costs of the action which was taken by Alderman G. N. Gordon through the Court of Revision and subsequently to Judge Smoke.

The assessment of the company was fixed at $60,000 in February 1933 for 10 years by a bylaw which received the approval of the qualified ratepayers of the city. The first assessment terms in 1912 amounted to $19,500 with an increase to $50,000 in 1923.

Had No Authority.

The Court of Revision had decided that it had no authority to deal with Mr. Gordon's appeal against the course of the city's assessment department in continuing the assessment of the company at $60,000, and, when the case was dismissed by Judge Smoke, Alderman Gordon referred it to the Ontario Municipal Board. He had contended that the bylaw increasing the fixed assessment from $50,000 to $60,000 embodied only a renewal of the previous agreement. The Board's decision comments on this point to the effect that although the company had given some extra consideration, the fixed assessment was actually only a renewal of the previous contract.

The assessment of the company as set out by the Municipal Board for 1937 is as follows: Land $18,000, buildings $121,000, business $83,400; total $222,400.

Mr. Gordon said that the judgment requires the city to assess the company at $222,400 instead of $60,000 as of 1937, and consequently the tax rate for 1938 should apply to the larger amount.

It was further reported today that the De Laval Company would appeal from the Ontario Municipal Board's decision to the Court of Appeal.

One of the findings of the judgment issued yesterday, according to Mr. Gordon affirms that the Court of Revision has authority to deal with the case.

BLIZZARD STOPS HIKE

CALGARY, March 30 (CP). — A hike to "Eastern Canada" was abandoned yesterday by Bob Smith and Peter Valley. Caught in a blizzard, the youngsters, both 11, returned home, after spending part of the previous night in a dug-out on the eastern outskirts of Calgary. They left home Monday morning. "We were going to walk to Eastern Canada," young Bob told his parents.

RELIEFERS MUST WORK

CALGARY, March 30 (CP).—Calgary's relief recipients who plan a strike April 1 learned yesterday the penalties for failure to work on civic projects, if it does not bring automatic suspension from relief rolls, will mean losses in quota's ranging from $5 to $8 a month. The jobless plan a strike in protect against reduced schedule of relief allowances effective April 1.

J. F. BRECKENRIDGE BELMONT FARMER IS LAID TO REST

HAVELOCK, March 30. — Members of the Masonic Order of the district from Peterborough to Marmora and Campbellford, former colleagues of the county council of which he was once Warden, and many other friends from his own neighborhood attended the funeral of J. Frank Breckenridge, Tuesday afternoon from his farm home on the sixth concession of Belmont to Havelock cemetery on the road to Trent Bridge.

The pall bearers were: Rork Ferguson, M.P., Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A., Reeve Roy Brown of Burleigh-Anstruther, Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore, Harold B. Rye and Morley E. Smithson. Five of these men were like the late Mr. Breckenridge, graduates of the Wardenship of Peterborough county, and the sixth, Mr. Elliott, was attached to him not only by fraternal ties but also through their political and municipal interests. It was recalled yesterday that Frank Breckenridge proposed the nomination of Mr. Elliott at the convention which began his successful quest of the honor of representing the county in the provincial Legislature.

Service in Church

A long procession of cars, a mile or so of them, wound along the twisting road of the sixth line of Belmont to Havelock where the funeral service was conducted in Knox Presbyterian Church by the pastor, Rev. K. P. Perrie, assisted by Rev. S. A. Kempt of the United Church. Attending this service were ladies of the Order of the Eastern Star of which Mr. Breckenridge was Worthy Patron at the time of his death. The church was crowded to standing room, and as many other people waited outside.

At the cemetery the burial rites of the Masonic Order were conducted by T. Percy Lancaster, ex-M.L.A. at the family plot beside the graves of the parents of the deceased, Mr. and Mrs. David Breckenridge, and also of his only son. The chief mourners were Mrs. Breckenridge and her four daughters, Mrs. Blake Haig, Misses Muriel and Lula all of Toronto and Miss Isabel of Trenton.

His death came as a distinct shock to the community, in which, during his lifetime he had gained a host of friends. In his 57th year, Frank Breckenridge was reeve of the townships of Belmont and Methuen from 1923 until he retired in 1930. In 1929 he was Warden of the county. He was exceedingly well liked and his advice was often

6 FLORIDA DEAD LAID TO 'ENSOL' CANADIAN-MADE

Suspect Cancer "Cure" Had Been Contaminated

ORLANDO, Fla., March 30. — (CP).—Six women have died here and four other persons have been stricken with tetanus in the past 24 hours following injections of "ensol" in treatment for cancer, President H. A. Day of the Orange County Medical Association disclosed to-day.

At Chicago, Dr. Morris Fishbein of the American Medical Association said the drug used at Orlando apparently had become "contaminated."

He recalled that ensol, manufactured at Kingston, Ont., was introduced in 1935 and that at time the A.M.A. warned against its use as an "unstandardized produce."

Dr. Day said the six deaths had occurred in Orlando hospitals since midnight. They and the four who are in serious condition were stricken with tetanus (lockjaw) yesterday.

Dr. Day said in every case death came much sooner than usual in tetanus cases.

At hospitals, the dead were identified as Mrs. Jack Sweetman, Mrs. L. J. Jackson, Mrs. W. R. Thompson and Mrs. Elizabeth Sunderburke, all of Orlando, Mrs. W. C. Braswell of Holopaw, Fla., and Mrs. H. B. Hornage of Cocoa, Fla.

Dr. Day said every effort was being made to locate all persons who had recived the injection treatment for cancer. He declared the serum used in the cases which had proved fatal came from the office of a physician here. Most of the injections, he said, were administered Saturday.

Dr. Day said he believed the "ensol" serum could be bought at drug stores.

The County Medical Association president requested the State Board of Health to send representatives here to aid autopsies. He also notified the American Medical Association of the deaths.

Coroner Eugene Duckworth said he would name a jury "of leading citizens to make a thorough investigation." He had not set a time for the inquest.

Dr. Day explained the serum had been used here for some time with no ill effects reported.

Connell Offers Aid.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 30 (CP). — Dr. Hendry Connell, Kingston physician, who discovered the 'ensol' treatment for cancer, said today he was "ready and willing" to go to Orlando, Fla., if necessary, to assist in investigating the deaths of six persons who died after taking the drug.

"I have been in touch with an Orlando doctor, and I am convinced one bottle of ensol became contaminated after it left Kingston," Dr. Connell said. "Other bottles in the same shipment have been used at Orlando without harmful results."

Dr. Connell said 125,000 bottles of ensol have been shipped to various parts of Canada and the United States since he announced discov-

CORNWALL MILLS' STRIKE OVER AGAIN

CORNWALL, Ont., March 30. — (CP).— Fifteen hundred workers went back to their jobs in the three local mills of Canadian Cottons Limited to-day, ending the latest in a long series of tie-ups in the local industry since the general strike of last summer.

The workers returned in accordance with the settlement reached between Mayor Elzear Emard of Cornwall and executives of the company at a meeting in Montreal, a settlement subsequently approved at a union meeting here.

Both sides indicated the latest settlement, following the strike call issued last Saturday, would bring permanent peace in the industry which has experienced 14 shutdowns since last summer. The management said that only one small department would be delayed in the re-opening of operations and otherwise all sections of the mills are back in full operation.

Fresh Divisions Are Rushed To North China Front

Chinese and Japanese Seek To Break Deadlock In War-Torn Area

SHANGHAI, March 30.—(AP)—Chinese and Japanese high commands dispatched reinforcements of all available planes, tanks and artillery into the 100-mile triangle bounded by Yenchow, Suchow and Lini today in an effort to tilt decisively the seesawing scales of battle north of the Grand canal.

Offsetting Chinese victories in the past 10 days, Japanese recaptured Tsining and Lincheng, keypoints on the Tientsin-Pukow railway system down which the Japanese have been endeavoring for three months to march to Suchow, junction point with the east-west Lunghai line.

Fresh divisions were launched into the Central China struggle by Chinese commanders in a counter-attack and bitter fighting was in progress.

A rapidly executed pincher movement was threatening the complete encirclement of a Japanese force estimated at 5,000 at bay between Yihsien and Taierchwang, points on a feeder line of the Tientsin-Pukow railway, according to a telephone report received at General Chiang Kai-Shek's headquarters from General Li Tsung-Jen.

$80,000 In Paintings Stolen From Car

Detroit, March 30 (CP)

THEFT of 15 paintings valued at $80,000 was reported to suburban Dearborn police today by A. E. Jones, Detroit art dealer, and A. E. Varston of Detroit, owner of six of the paintings.

Jones, who said the paintings —mostly landscape scenes—were insured for $80,000, told authorities they were left in an automobile while he and Varston were eating in a cafe. When he and Varston left the Cafe, the car was gone, Jones said.

London, Ont., March 30 (CP)

"IT was an expensive party" declared Magistrate Donald Menzies in court today when he imposed fines totalling $320 on two Toronto couples who visited a London hotel and left without paying their bills.

Howard Steen, 28-year-old tree surgeon, was fined $100 and costs for false registration and $50 for fraudulently obtaining board and lodging from the hotel.

If the fines are not paid he will serve 30 days in jail.

Mrs. Bertha Rose was fined $100 and costs for false registration. Her jail term will be 30 days if the fine is not paid.

Robert James Kelly, 25, was fined $50 and costs or 30 days for fraudulently obtaining board and lodging. His wife, Vivien Ruth, was fined $20 and costs for using a fictious name in registering at the hotel.

6 Weeks Of Robbery Rampage Sends Youth Down 5 Years

East Kent Gang Leader Is Found Guilty On Thirteen Charges

CHATHAM, Ont., March 30 (CP) —Sentence of five years in Portsmouth penitentiary for armed robbery with violence was imposed on Gilbert Jones, 23, Orford township youth, by Judge Uriah McFadden in county criminal court today. Sentence on 13 other charges under the criminal code will run concurrently.

The slightly-built youth, who committed one crime after another in East Kent over a six-weeks period earlier in the year, stood silent and apparently unmoved while the judge pronounced sentence and then was led back to jail by Governor Phil Daigneau to await removal to Kingston.

After Acting Crown Attorney A. D. Bell had moved for sentence on the charges, to which Jones had previously pleaded guilty following his transfer here from Windsor, where he was arrested on a hit-run charge. The judge reviewed the offences.

He stood guilty of three charges of motor car theft; one charge of breaking and entering with intent, carrying a maximum penalty of seven years; four charges of housebreaking with a 14-year maximum, four charges of breaking into

$10,000 Policy Of 1873 Bans Payment For Death By Indians Or Dueling

AN unusual insurance policy issued in 1873, which placed many restrictions on the activities of James L. Higgins, former insurance broker here, has been discovered. Higgins died 10 days ago at the age of 94.

The policy states that its $10,000 coverage would not be paid if Higgins lost his life to "hostile Indians," and was also liable to cancellation if he was killed in a duel, or lost his life in violating the law or aiding an insurrection. The policy matured in 1923.

Further, Higgins was not permitted to "remain beyond the settled limits under the protection of the United States except to the settled limits of the British provinces, or north of Winnipeg or Quebec, or between July 1 and November 1, south of Tennessee, except east of Alabama, or within 100 miles of the sea coast."

The policy also prevented his travelling on the high seas, joining the army, working in a mine or for a railroad, without the permission of the insurance company.

No Farm Subsidies Says Dewan

Aid Will Come, However, in Soil Tests, Seed Cleaning, Fighting Disease, and Organizing Swine Clubs

TORONTO, March 30 — (CP) — As long as Hon. P. M. Dewan is Ontario Minister of Agriculture he will strive to give all possible assistance to agriculture but there will be no subsidies. He indicated this in the legislature budget debate yesterday as he forecast government steps to benefit farming.

More research at the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph, in an effort to reduce damage from Bang's disease and other animal ailments, assistance in soil testing and seed cleaning and organization of swine clubs were forecast by the minister. Departmental inspectors would cooperate with regular dairy inspectors to trace down all low-quality cheese.

Only government representative in the six speakers taking part in the budget debate, Mr. Dewan stressed that before the department made any policy changes he con-

JEWISH DRAMA HIGHLY PRAISED

TORONTO, March 30.—(CP). — Praise from Malcolm Morley, British adjudicator, and applause from a capacity Hart House Theatre audience resounded in the ears of Jewish Little Theatre actors today after presentation of "Awake and Sing," their entry in the Central Ontario Regional Drama Festival.

'I did very much admire this performance," Mr. Morley commented at the play's end last night. The slickness of the production and the sincerity of acting is a credit to the group."

The three-act play by Clifford Odets, American playwright, tells tensely the stark human drama of a middle-class Jewish family in New York's Bronx. A tenement flat, scene of the entire action, was "ingeniously contrived; everything seemed right to me," said the adjudicator.

Main criticisms of Mr. Morley centred on grouping and accent. Both, he said, were responsible for lost climaxes.

Col. H. C. Osborne, Ottawa honorary director of the Dominion Drama Festival, spoke briefly. Tonight three one-act plays are on the program.

MEXICAN LABOR NEARING REVOLT ON OIL DILEMMA

MEXICO CITY, March 30—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas, summoning an "urgent" session of Congress to help him, was confronted to-day with near-revolt by a segment of labor, and a vigorous United States protest against expropriation of the $400,000,000 oil industry.

The protest was presented to the Foreign Ministry yesterday by Ambassador Josephus Daniels. A high Mexican official indicated it was an energetic note demanding explanation as to how Mexico intended to pay for the 17 United States and British oil properties.

The indications of Labor dissatisfaction came from Carlos Flores, Labor Department Inspector in Tampico and member of the powerful union there which controls 6,000 ex-employees of the Aguila (Royal Dutch Shell) Company.

Flores contradicted assertions by union headquarters in Mexico City that all was peaceful among the workers. The Tampico union ousted a government-approved administration council and demanded wage increases and other benefits.

Better Off Before

"We are all discontented." Flores said. "We were far better off before."

Tampico reports said every storage tank there was filled with oil, and there was no place to put crude or refined oil since the loss of foreign markets created by expropriation of the companies March 17.

Asphalt, packing, shipping, marine and other departments of all shipping terminals were closed, and nearly 3,000 part-time workers were released. From Poza Rica came reports workers there were not paid Sautrday or Monday, although the Oily Labor Syndicate asserted "payments were effected normally throughout the industry" last weekend.

Congress probably will meet early in April.

$2,000 SCARE

LOS ANGELES, March 30 (AP)—When the chimpanzee walked in for dinner Mrs. Anna Stein and her family walked out. They didn't exactly walk, she explained in a $2,000 damage suit today, they ran in all directions. She fell and hurt herself as she fled to lock herself in a bedroom, while "Jiggs," the chimp, mounted the table, ate his fill, then amused himself by smashing dishes and things.

The suit was filed against Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis and Louis Weiss, owners of the chimpanzee.

EMBARRASSING TRIP

VANCOUVER, March 30 (CP). — Alderman H. D. Wilson told fellow-councillors yesterday he experienced his "most embarrassing moment" recently when he was forced to drive a distinguished civic guest around Vancouver in an "old rattletrap." He advocated purchase of a new civic automobile. Only comment came from Alderman John Bennett, who said he thought Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario "set a fine example when he discarded 24 cars from his government's service."

Artists For 1938-39 Concert Series

MARJORIE LAWRENCE

REGINALD STEWART

TRUDI SCHOOP

Three outstanding programs are being planned by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Concert Association for its 1938-39 series. First on the list is Reginald Stewart distinguished Canadian pianist and founder of the now famous Promenade Symphony Concerts in Toronto. Then Marjorie Lawrence soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company since December 1935 and prior to that of the Paris Opera Company and finally there will be presented Trudi Schoop and her dancing comedians who will offer riotous dance comedies with fragrant humor and frothy burlesque.

6 FLORIDA DEAD

ery of the treatment in July, 1935.

All Ensol Shipped Free.

"We have never made a charge for ensol," he explained. "It is shipped free of charge to clinics interested in using it for treatment of cancer."

Shocked by the news from Orlando that six persons had died after receiving injections of the drug, Dr. Connell said he made a quick investigation in his laboratory and then telephoned Orlando.

"There can be no question that only one bottle was involved in the Florida cases," he said. "I am sure the ensol contained in that bottle was not contaminated before it left here. It might have become contaminated in several ways.

"Until I know how the drug was administered and so on, I am in the dark about that. Possibly the syringe used for the injection was infected."

A Dr. Connell Discovery

KINGSTON, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Ensol, a drug used in an attempt to arrest development and to control cancer, alleged to have been the cause of six death in Orlando, Fla., was discovered in Queen's University laboratories here by Dr. Hendry C. Connell.

First announcement of the discovery was made July 17, 1935 by Dr. Connell. A specialist in diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, he said at that time he realized his announcement might be regarded as premature but his laboratory findings were positive and conclusive and early clinical effects uniform and "remarkable."

In October, 1935, Dr. Connell described his discovery in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, official organ of the Canadian Association. The Journal in the same issue carried an editorial stating that Connell's work "cannot be lightly passed by."

In a bulletin issued in January, 1937, Dr. Connell said ensol was not a cure and that "its present limitations are fully recognized, acknowledged and accepted." Over 25,000 injections had been given to patients at the Kingston clinic alone, he said, and in no case had there been any harmful reaction.

In the same bulletin Dr. Connell said a large amount of ensol had been supplied "gratis" to physicians from the affiliated laboratory at Philadelphia.

A DEADLY DIET

LIVERMORE, Calif., March 30 (AP)—Ten-year-old Gertie died of indigestion. An autopsy disclosed that Gertie, a cow, had eaten a can opener, safety pins, electric socket, chain, brass buckles, wire, needles, screws, pebbles, glass, a watch chain, a bullet, hairpins, a cogwheel, hooks and eyes, paper clips, rubber and cotter pins.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30 — Prices for bacon hogs advanced 50 cents during the week, to bring $10 f.o.b. on Tuesday, when local shippers loaded three cars bound for Peterborough.

Concert Association Is Planning Outstanding Series Next Year

Many subscriptions have already been received for the Peterborough Concert Association's series for 1938-39, Dr. J. J. Craig, president, informed the Examiner to-day. The success of the first season which closed Monday night was a guarantee for the next series which will present Marjorie Lawrence, the Australian soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, Reginald Stewart, Canadian pianist, and Trudi Schoop and her dancing comedians. Dr. Craig said the Association is expecting to increase the number of subscribers for next year.

DANIEL LYNCH

The funeral of Daniel Lynch, whose death occurred suddenly on Friday, at his home in Otonabee, was held from the residence of his nephew, Frank Lynch, on Monday at 9.30 to the Church of the Sacred Heart. The Solemn High Mass was sung by his nephew, Rev. P. J. Lynch of Kearney, assisted by Rev. C. J. Moloney as deacon, and Rev. G. Maher as sub-deacon. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the church of the Sacred Heart, delvered a very suitable sermon, recalling the past life of the deceased, being always a faithful member of his church, and amongst his friends held an honorable place. Also present in the sanctuary was Rev. V. Corkery of this city.

The deceased, 73 years of age, was born in Otonabee, resided there all of this life and had made a wide circle of friends, which was proven by the large gathering who assembled to pay their last respects. Of a large family, one sister, Mrs. Katherine Corkey survives; also 16 nephews and 19 nieces.

Interment was made at St. Peter's Cemetery; Rev. P. J. Lynch and Rev. C. J. Moloney officiating.

Pall-bearers were John Corkery, Michael Calnan, Joe Burns (nephews), Patrick O'Bryne, William McAuliffe, Vince Hayes, George Moloney, Herbert Sophie. Honorary pall-bearers, very close friends of the deceased were Joe Lynch, Thomas Petrie, Thomas Heffernan, Joe Fitzgerald, Wesley Webster, Jim Fitzgerald, Samuel Redmond, William O'Leary.

MRS. WILLIAM M. GOAHER.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 30.—The death of a former resident near Hastings occurred on Thursday evening, March 24th, in the person of Eliza Stevenson, beloved wife of William M. Goacher of Meyersburg. Deceased who passed away in the Campbellford Hospital, was born in Percy Township, a daughter of the late William Stevenson and Sarah Free, and was in her 75th year.

She leaves to mourn her loss a sorrowing husband and family of two children: Mrs. A. Gordenier (Almeda) of Belleville and James at home. Three brothers and two sisters who mourn her passing are: Thomas of Creston, B.C., George of Hastings, Dr. William of Belmont, Manitoba; Mrs. W. E. Anderson (Millie) of Roland, Manitoba, and Miss Mary Stevenson of Hastings.

The funeral was held from her late residence on Saturday afternoon. Service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Plant of Norham, and interment was made in the Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford.

The floral tributes were from the family: George and Mary Stevenson, Mrs. H. Stevenson and family, L.O.L. No. 526, Campbellford, and Mrs. J. Dillworth and Jennie.

Flower-bearers were: George, Fred and John Jones of Meyersburg.

Pall-bearers were: John Goacher of Toronto, A. Gordenier of Belleville; W. R. Stevenson of Toronto, J. E. Stevenson of Hastings, A. Wildman of Peterborough, W. Wildman of Norwood, nephews of the deceased.

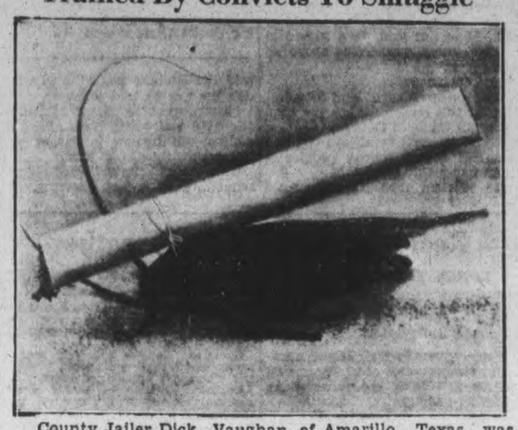
Trained By Convicts To Smuggle



County Jailer Dick Vaughan, of Amarillo, Texas, was puzzled when prisoners in solitary confinement succeeded in having cigarettes smuggled into their cells. One prisoner broke under questioning and told Vaughan how it was done. The cigarette was tied to the back of a cockroach. One of the beasties is pictured here in the act. Talk about your trained fleas!

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

No. 1 Northern cash wheat price rebounded from a 10-cent advance yesterday and tumbled more than three cents as seaboard and overseas demand slackened. The futures market averaged lower to close ½ to 1⅜ cents under yesterday's final prices, May $1.23¼; July $1.10⅝ to ¾; and October 90⅜ to ½.

Bearish cross-currents hammered May wheat three cents under opening gains of more than a cent. July and October futures were lower throughout.

Scattered export trade in Canadian wheat on investment orders supported futures which were handicapped by adverse intermarket spreading operations. Reversal of yesterday's spreading operations proved weighty on the May option.

Rains in Central Kansas and improved moisture conditions in the United States and Canadian Spring wheat belts encouraged selling in all North American markets, and at Liverpool.

Health Run Down Housework A Burden

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and miserable, but is it any wonder that when they are run down in health they become nervous and irritable, weak and worn-out, and the lightest household duties seem a drag and a burden?

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are a remedy that all nervous, tired-out, weary women should take to help them back to the blessing of good health, and when this is done their household duties will be a pleasure instead of a burden.

Mrs. A. K. McLean, Pleasantfield, N.S., writes:—"A short time ago I was in a badly run down and nervous condition. I got so that my housework became a burden to me. I started taking Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, and now I feel like a different person, and again am able to do all my own housework.

Hereafter I shall always recommend H. & N. Pills to my friends."

NOT KNOWN WHEN YUKON ROAD WILL BE CONSTRUCTED

VICTORIA, March 30 (CP).—Supporters of the proposed motor highway through British Columbia from the United States boundary to Alaska today studied statements by two political leaders and decided the road would be built—but they still couldn't tell when.

The highway—one major uncompeted portion of the "dream road" from the far north to Buenos Aires in South America—would provide a continuous 5,790-mile motor road from Mexico City to Fairbanks, Alaska. That distance is considerably less than half the total mileage of the completed Pan-American Highway.

Comment favorable to construction of the United States-Alaska section was made by President Roosevelt in his "good-will" visit to Victoria September 30. The president said he thought the project would be "advisable" as soon as governments of Canada and the United States 'find it's time to do it.

"The more good roads there are, the more people will travel," he said.

Less than a month later, Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia returned to the Pacific Coast from Ottawa and Hyde Park, N.Y., where he visited the president, to tell interviewers:

"The highway will definitely come. Look at it this way—Alaska and the United States are two neighbors, and the only way they can get overland contact is through our territory."

Mr. Pattullo said there was "nothing definite" to report on the project, however, although he would shortly begin action to work out "really definite progress."

Apparently the principal delay in starting work on the highway lay in financing. Engineers' estimates have placed the cost at about $12,000,000 so far as Canada is concerned—$7,300,000 for the 504 miles yet to be built in British Columbia, and $4,680,000 for the Yukon Territory's 480-mile section.

Already completed in the Pan-American highway is a completely-paved roadway from Vancouver to Mexico City. Another 832 miles, for the most part paved, runs from Vancouver to Hazelton, B.C., on the Canadian National Railways northern line to Prince Rupert.

From Hazelton the proposed road would run northward to Atlin, B.C., then across the Yukon Territory through White Horse and Dawson. Part of the remaining 371 miles through Alaskan Territory to Fairbanks has been built.

Opponents of the scheme claim the proposed highway would be primarily an American military road and, as such, should not be permitted by Canada.

Supporters say construction of the road would provide employment for thousands for at least five years, provide a market for the surplus products of the central interior of British Columbia and open up the mineral, timber and agricultural resources of the northland.

South of Mexico City, 165 miles to Tehuacan is now passable by motor, and the rest of the road to Panama will probably be finished soon. Then there is a 400-mile stretch of jungle and mountain to the Colombian border in South America.

South America has considerable sections of excellent road, but there are rough and rugged patches. In Peru the government laid down 2,000 miles of good road from the northern border to Chile. From there to Santiago in Chile motorists can travel 1,577 miles.

From Santiago a highway leads eastward over the Andes mountains, but the heavy snowfall keeps it closed to motor traffic in the winter. At Mendoza in the Argentine this road joins the Argentine section of the highway which carried on for 850 miles to the southern terminus of the Pan-American roadway, Buenos Aires.

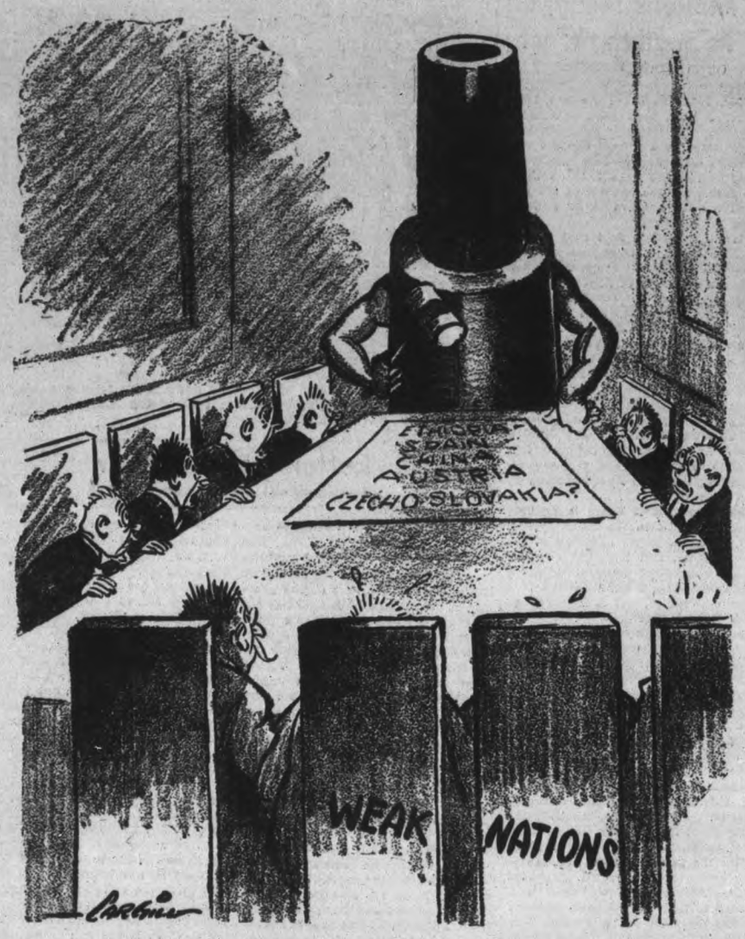
"THE IRON CHANCELLOR"



CAPE 1937 TRADE WAS HIGH RECORD

PRETORIA, March 30. — (CP-Reuters.)— The year 1937 was a bumper one for trade in the Union, and numerous South African import and export records were broken.

Imports for the year reached the highwater mark of £103,382,242 ($516,911,210) the first time the hundred million pound mark had been passed. In 1936, itself a good year, imports aggregated only £86,250 the year before.

Exports tell the same tale of prosperity. The 1937 export total was £125,395,436 ($606,977,180) as against £110,191,811 ($550,959,055) the year before.

The Union's favorable visible balance of trade last year was thus £22,013,194 ($110,085,970) as compared with £27,892,450 ($159,462,- the year before.

As usual the United Kingdom was South Africa's best customer. Last year Great Britain took 81.2 per cent of the Union's exports and was responsible for 42.4 per cent of this country's imports. The British Empire bought 84.1 per cent of South Africa's exports and sold to the Union 51 per cent. of its imports.

Among the foreign countries the United States led the way in respect of imports into the Union. That country supplied 20.7 per cent. of South African imports. Then came Germany with 5.5 per cent, Japan four per cent and Belgium 2.7 per cent.

When it comes to importing South African goods, however the situation is rather different. While the United States sold nearly £20,000,000 ($100,000,000) worth of goods to this country it bought in return only £1,338,529 ($6,692,645) worth. Germany bought for £4,930,196 (24,650,960), Japan for £3,308,471 ($16,542,355'. France was a particularly good foreign customer, buying about three times as much goods as it sold to South Africa.

'Toss 'Em, But Don't Kill Them' Pickets Ordered, Court Told

Pair Hired In Kitchener To Go To Woodstock Strike Scene

WOODSTOCK, March 30. — Admission they had been recruited on the streets of Kitchener to aid in picketing and beating-up workers who refused to join the strike at the Lafranc textile plant here was made by two Kitchener men, Donald Ferguson and Stanley Maciewicz, in city police court Monday. They were charged with assault with intent of doing bodily harm to Michael Smith, and pleaded guilty. Magistrate McCrimmon reduced the charges to one of common assault and suspended sentence.

The strike itself was called off Saturday afternoon after nearly a month of difficulties.

Twenty Peper-upers.

Ferguson said there were about 20 men brought in on March 3 from that city to "pep things up." They were divided into groups of about six or seven.

"We were called intoa a room," he said, 'and Alex Welsh, the union organizer, told us to take a good look at a Woodstock man who was there so that we would know him again."

We were to follow him and he was to turn sideways as a signal when he saw a scab. Alex Welsh told us to toss the scab around but don't kill him.

Telling of their getaway after the mixup with Smith, Ferguson said: "We ran through an alley and then went back to the union hall. We told them there that we had been in a fight with Smith and that he had torn Stanley's trousers. Some man took us to the Canadian National Railway station and then Alex Welsh took us to house where we stayed with a man called "Scotty." Welsh didn't want us to go out but about nine o'clock we went back to the union hall. Welsh said: 'The cops are looking all over for you. You'd better duck."

Attack on Chauffeur.

The attack on Mike Smith, company chauffeur, took place about 8 a.m. March 4, in front of a restaurant.

Following the attack accused admitted they had been taken to the house of a striker here, kept for a day and then driven back to Kitchener.

Collapse of the strike Saturday was followed to-day by 12 families of the strikers being placed on the relief rolls. Previous petitions for relief had been turned down because the male members of the family were on strike.

Provincial regulations do not allow communities to supply relief to striking workers.

Pair Try Suicide In Prison Cell

HAMILTON, Ont., March 30 (CP) —Remanded on vagrancy charges a few minutes previously, two prisoners were found in the police cells this afternoon with their left wrists slashed and streaming with blood. Police applied tourniquets and stopped the bleeding after which the pair were removed to hospital.

They were David Watson, 20, Winnipeg, and William McKay, 38, no address. Picked up on vagrancy charges they were taken before Magistrate H. A. Burbidge and remanded for examination by the city physician. The magistrate was informed they had been seen in the company of suspected shoplifters and drug addicts.

The men had not been back in the cells long before a constable discovered their apparent attempt at suicide. Search however, failed to reveal the weapon they used.

Reasonable Requests

It is to be hoped that citizens generally will readily comply with the request that has gone out from the city hall for co-operation in facilitating and improving the collection of garbage. There is nothing drastic in the regulations that have been set up. Insistence upon proper receptacles is a provision over which no one can reasonably quarrel and it is gratifying to note that citizens have been warned against using containers that are too big and heavy. There is need for co-operation in that regard for in the past the collectors have been called upon to handle receptacles of ashes so large and ponderous that they could scarcely be lifted.

With the regulation that henceforth the collectors will not remove such things as building materials, stones, iron or other metal or wornout furniture no fault can be found. Such stuff is certainly not garbage in the commonly accepted meaning of the term and while it is true that good-natured collectors have sometimes carted it away on their regular rounds it is not fair that they should be asked to do so.

The notices sent out also stress the desirability of taking in the containers as soon as they are emptied and right there is an important point. There is nothing very attractive about a street lined with garbage cans, especially when they are left out for hours after the collector has been around.

Will Accomplish Nothing

Another investigation of a sort is on the way, having its origin in the Ontario Legislature. It will delve into the Beauharnois business yet once more; Quebec power contracts will be put through the fanning mill, and we are informed the Madawaska and Abitibi deals of other days will also be hung upon the Legislative clothes line and beaten.

The committee to do the probing is to be composed of twelve members of the Legislature, eight of whom will be Liberals and four Conservatives. On the face of it we do not anticipate that any great thing will be accomplished. Due to the political color of the committee the Liberals can raise eight hands against the four of the Conservatives in framing a report

The investigation will be political all through; it will deal with what this political party and that political party has done in the name of Hydro, and it will but serve to further emphasize the manner in which political management has sought for years to dominate and bedevil the Hydro Electric enterprise. Hydro must in itself have a constitution like iron to have been able to live and grow under such auspices. The manner in which politicians have laid both hands on it to serve their own purposes is glaring evidence of the inherent weakness of our scheme of public ownership. There are too many people who want to get their hands on it to further their own aims and it has been that way for years.

What Hydro needs is a plain business management. That is all. We have competent engineers and business administrators in this province. We have learned how to develop and transmit electrical energy and that is all we want to do. The trouble comes when the people try to serve notice to all and sundry to keep their hands off this great enterprise. Our politicians, Liberals and Conservatives alike, have shown too great a fondness for parading Hydro as an election issue and making political appointments to its management.

It Was Done Here

W. J. Stewart, four times mayor of Toronto has been considering the increasing vote registered by Communist candidates in elections in that city. He claims the candidate for the Communist cause secures the showing by having his supporters plump for him and ignore the other candidates.

There is no good reason why that cannot be changed. In the municipal elections in Peterborough it is necessary when voting for two-year candidates for the city council to vote for four of the candidates. That was provided for in the City of Peterborough bill, passed by the Ontario Legislature on March 26, 1918, when a change was being made to the general vote for the election of aldermen. The section dealing with the matter is worded this way:

"Each elector voting at the annual municipal election for aldermen shall vote for at least four candidates on his ballot, otherwise such ballot shall be declared spoiled and be null and void and election officials shall not count the same for any candidate."

If the Legislature approved of the principle of making people vote for a certain number of candidates in the case of Peterborough, then it would probably grant similar powers to Toronto or any other city asking for them.

The Sweepstakes Issue

F. G. McBrien, member of the Ontario Legislature, sponsored a measure to legalize sweepstakes in Ontario. Such authority, if favored by a majority in the Ontario Legislature, would have to be forwarded to Ottawa for approval. Premier Hepburn announced at the outset that there would be no government policy on the question, and members of the Liberal party would be free to vote as they pleased on the question. Mr. Hepburn also took occasion to say he would support the resolution, the same attitude being taken by Leopold Macaulay, house leader of the Conservatives. Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, will oppose it. That, in brief is the background of the situation.

When the question became public property there were a number of protests sent to Premier Hepburn. Ministers of various churches, as individuals and combined as Ministerial Associations, continued to forward these to Toronto. Many of them took occasion to refer to the matter from the pulpit. When Mr. Hepburn spoke in the Legislature he said:

"I am not going to be led around by the nose by any minister, and I want to say I do not think there are any greater hyprocrites than these gentlemen."

In giving reasons for the use of the word "hypocrites" Mr. Hepburn said he had been hounded ever since assuming office to buy tickets on draws by church organizations. Possibly he could see no difference between a draw and a sweepstake as the element of chance entered equally into each.

The matter naturally falls into two sections, (1) is it right that we should recognize sweepstakes in this province for the sake of securing funds for hospitals and charities, and (2) are our churches, having regard to methods used for financing them, in a position to collectively criticize the Premier for his position.

At the outset it is easy to conclude that when Mr. Hepburn referred to the ministers as hypocrites he was saying something which falls readily into the class of things which had much better never have been said. The Premier has been in public life long enough to have learned the advantage of keeping his tongue in his cheek at times. It would look much better were he to withdraw that word.

This paper fears there are a number of our churches which have forfeited their right to be critics of a government in the method of raising money by the proposed sweepstakes move. Ministers may speak with a clear conscience for themselves, but they cannot place a similar cloak over their church membership because there are people sitting in the pews who have often enough moved to take a chance on this, that and something else which has been brought to their attention.

Our churches would be in a stronger position if it were impossible for Premier Hepburn or any other individual to point a finger at the method of financing. The one way more desirable than all others is supporting a church by free-will offerings. Under that system people give because they want to, and they are likely to give all they can or should and with them giving is part of their worship. It is not necessary to try and get anything more from them by other methods. These people are those who realize they are participants in a great work; they actually feel they have a share in it.

There are churches where that feeling does not exist to sufficient degree to raise the amount of money necessary. Then it is that the other and—we say it in all kindness—less worthy methods are employed. People must then be entertained one way or another so they may swell the proceeds. That form of financing is not actually giving because people are then paying for what they have received in the form of entertainment. Premier Hepburn has undoubtedly overstated the extent to which churches are thus financed, but it would be time profitably spent for churches to seriously consider the entire matter rather than spending their energy in denial and repudiation of the Hepburn statement.

Turning to the sweepstakes proposal. This paper does not like the idea of gambling. That can be taken for granted, but it does not do away with the stubborn fact that people do gamble one way or another. People who play bridge and draw for prizes do not like to be told they are gambling, but they are. People who buy and sell tickets for door prizes are doing the same thing.

The Ontario government itself is gambling, and in the last 16 years has collected $24,520,000 by taking a cut of five per cent. from all the money which passed through the pari-mutuel machines at the race tracks. We consider that a fair enough place for the government to raise revenue. People who have money to spend on betting on horse races are the very ones who should turn over a portion of it to the government. And people who buy sweepstake tickets are in the same position. It is simply a case of recognizing what we cannot eradicate. When a logical plan comes for wiping out gambling entirely this paper will gladly support it.

Call It What You Will

Stewart Cameron Brooks of 409 Bethune Street, Peterborough, is 25 months old; or if you prefer it, two years and one month; as the children might put it, he is two going on three. And he is alive and well.

Instead of using those two front names he is known as "Sonny," and that in itself is a pleasant name. Sonny is just old enough to want to follow people. That is how he happened to cross the railroad track in front of his home when his father had gone across the road. Stepping over a rail was apparently too much for him; he stumbled and fell and an engine was coming. It may be he was not able to get up again in time; just how he happened to stay there between the rails while the major portion of the engine passed over him is something which will never be known. But that is exactly what took place.

What the mother must have lived through as she witnessed the scene can be left to imagination. She saw Sonny go down and she saw the engine pass over him and come to a grinding stop. After which she witnessed something which has been the privilege of few folk in similar circumstances—the train crew bringing Sonny out alive and well and with no marks on him. The joy and relief of the crew must have been of the same variety as that of the mother and father for train crews are just as human as other folk.

Call it a miracle, the hand of Providence—call it what you will—but the undisputed fact is that Sonny Brooks, two going on three, was between the rails when a locomotive passed over him, and he was not injured.

Speaks The Truth

Henry Ford, back to work in Detroit after spending two months on his plantation, announces he is ready to go to work. He believes a cheap tractor will find a greater market and he is preparing to make many of them. That will provide employment.

Mr. Ford is not disturbed by events in the world. He looks for better times and says so plainly.

He said also he had not changed his mind about war. He puts it this way:

"Nobody wins a war but the financial interests that promote it and make preparations for it."

And that is true. The Allies admittedly won the last war, but they have been paying ever since for the privilege of having won it.

There is something basically true in what Henry Ford says which in these days can stand a lot of repeating—"nobody wins a war but the financial interests that promote it."

NOTE AND COMMENT

Ottawa does not treat sweepstake winnings as income and that seems reasonable. People do not cash in often enough to call their profits income.

Ontario's premier takes some dangerous chances. He challenged Mr. Roebuck the other day to make another nine-hour speech if he wanted to.

We hope the professional hockey players are getting at least time-and-one-half for all the overtime they have been putting in during recent games.

Windham township officials have laid down the rule of "no work, no relief." Now it remains to make the rule work when the relief applicants won't.

Mr. Hepburn says the provincial government is in the business of gambling now. And he might have added that it is also doing a lively trade in the bartending end of the administration.

"No relief for married couples if living apart," reads a headline. Or if they live together, for that matter, our bachelor friend adds.

Calgary man says he didn't break jail in the United States—he just walked out. Of course if they want to run their jails like that there is nothing much that can be done about it.

Police squads are bobbing up at all kinds of social gatherings in Peterborough these nights and the usual result is a flock of invitations to attend as paying guests at a police court "at home."

MUSIC

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My niece Joan just loves to sing, in ways that make the rafters ring, she has an alto voice; she can't reach up so very high, no matter how she'd blow and try, so low notes are her choice.

¶ Joan sings in the village choir, with inspiration she's afire, 'tis then she turns out loud; she's better when the seats are filled, for then her voice is part way stilled, and muffled by the crowd.

¶ On days when rain keeps singers home, my niece sings alto all alone, 'tis then she's at her best; if she's the only alto there, the organist don't need to care, they never miss the rest.

¶ And when there's some soft noted part, that almost breaks my niece's heart, she can't sing soft and low; for when Joan starts making tones, she uses all the strength she owns, and really lets it go.

¶ The windows rattle now and then, when Joan sings right straight at them, so I've heard people say; they fear the notes that's in her book, with rounded heads and little hook, will all get blowed away.

¶ Joan's young man come late to kirk, he has to finish up his work, he stands out in the air; he waits until they sing a hymn, and when he hears that voice within—he knows Joan is there.

Millions Needed To Seed the West

(From Official Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. HAYHURST: I do not know whether I got the answer correctly or whether the minister misunderstood me. Suppose a farmer can get seed for 300 acres under this guarantee and he has 400 acres that he wants to seed. He has enough of his own seed for 100 acres. Can he still get seed for 300 acres?

Mr. GARDINER: As I read the Alberta act and as it has been outlined to me in this memorandum, which is really a summary of it, if a man has seed in his bin for say 100 acres he could get enough to seed an additional acreage up to 300 acres.

Mr. BENNETT: But he could only get seed for another 200 acres?

Mr. GARDINER: Yes, for another 200 acres. The total amount of seed, both what he has in his bin and what he gets under this guarantee, would be only sufficient to seed 300 acres.

Mr. DOUGLAS: Then under this scheme any seed the farmer had would be deducted from anything he would be allowed?

Mr. GARDINER: There is no provision for that in the Saskatchewan act. That is purely a matter of administration, and I should not like to say what would happen. I have a fair idea of what I would say if I were administering it, but it is being administered in Regina.

In regard to the other question, as to whether sufficient has been supplied, which I think was raised by the hon. member for Weyburn, I do not think I can go further than to say this: Last year we had a great deal of discussion with regard to that same question, as to whether a guarantee of $6,600,000 was sufficient to cover the needs of the province of Saskatchewan, and as to whether $1,600,000 was sufficient to cover the needs of Alberta. After considering it from every point of view, and with all the information we were able to place before the house, I think hon. members finally were satisfied that this was as near as we could come to a sufficient figure. We have followed exactly the same procedure this year in trying to arrive at a proper figure, and I think we can say that there is sufficient provided under the guarantee to make it possible for farmers to seed their land this year, to the extent that governments can be expected to assist in providing seed. I heard very little complaint last year after the seeding was all over, and I may say that in Saskatchewan hardly all the guarantee was used, while in Alberta considerably less than the guarantee was used. So with that experience behind us I think this year it will be found that we will have pretty much the same experience.

Mr. DOUGLAS: But they did not restrict it to 250 acres last year. The farmers on the large tractor farms on the Regina plains, and down through my constituency, seeded more than 250 acres.

Mr. GARDINER: Speaking from memory I think it was the same last year; there was a restriction, and I think it was 250 acres. The schedule is slightly different this year, but not greatly.

Mr. DOUGLAS: Was any attempt made to have some standardization as between the Alberta and Saskatchewan regulations?

Mr. GARDINER: No, nothing more than that the two legislatures put through their legislation at about the same time, and naturally they compared notes and tried to make legislation conform as nearly as possible.

Mr. BENNETT: Did not the federal government give them any suggestions about it?

Mr. GARDINER: In discussing the matter we suggested from time to time that we preferred to have the regulations and legislation as nearly alike as possible. Different conditions of course, require different treatment.

Mr. BENNETT: Did the federal government make any suggestion as to that?

Mr. GARDINER: Nothing more than in the discussions we had. The one matter called attention to the other.

Mr. QUELCH: Are these regulations which are imposed by the provincial governments imposed in order to comply with certain federal limitations?

Mr. GARDINER: There is nothing in any of these regulations or in any of these agreements that will prevent a province from going as far as they wish in providing assistance to farmers. The representatives of the provinces came to Ottawa and made their requests. The requirements were discussed and we tried to arrive at an agreement as to the proper action to take. As has been stated already, so far as Alberta is concerned the amount guaranteed is the amount asked for in the letter to the government suggesting that assistance was required.

AUTOMOBILE USES.

(Christian Science Monitor)

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., demonstrates a new use for automobiles, as well as a welding of the automotive and aeronautic facilities, when 18 army fliers, caught in a storm, are aided in a forced landing by hundreds of automobile owners summoned by state police to train their lights on a landing field and thus guide the airmen to earth. And while we're on the subject, it is interesting to note that radio activity has also joined hands with the automotive world, for a new radio invention described at Gary, Indiana, is prepared to flash a red light on the dash board of automobiles and cause the radio loudspeaker to blare a warning if trains are near. The device includes a small radio transmitter at grade-crossings, actuated by approaching trains. The two incidents are pleasant to contemplate at this time. They indicate one human aspect that remains stable. Men go right on helping one another.

MINISTER AND PREMIER

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I wonder if Premier Hepburn in saying he will not be led around by the nose by the clerics of the province in regard to sweepstakes has not caught these same clerics in a place where they may have trouble enough in trying to furnish an answer for the stand they wish to take. I have never bought a ticket on a sweepstakes race and do not believe I ever will, but I have seen the way in which many of our churches finance the work of the Lord.

For the most part they have discarded the old injunction about laying aside on the first day of the week the Lord's share. There are a few people who do that, but they are not many. I know that on Sunday I often inwardly groan when I hear of the number of affairs which are announced from the pulpit in my own church. There are teas and dinners and at times outside banquets served in the building, and in this banqueting business our people are competing with those downtown who make a living out of this business and who have to pay taxes while we pay none.

If we are going to be honest I know also that our people prey upon the poor when they are holding what they call rummage sales. They gather from the closets and attics of our church membership all the goods the members do not want, and then they seek to sell them to people who have very little money and in the end they offer what they make to the Lord. The business of raising and making money to keep the church going has been developed to the last degree instead of the church members getting rid of all this entanglement with the business world and keeping itself free and clean in the eyes of the Lord.

That is why I doubt whether our ministers as a unit are free to say very much to Premier Hepburn on the ground of sweepstakes tickets being allowed by law in this province. When I look at the size of the evening congregation I also wonder if the ministers are actually speaking for many people when they denounce the premier.

SWEEP TICKETS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A member of the Peterborough Ministerial Association in referring to the Christian Church recently in an address in our city said this: "The Church is not an organization but an organism." He stated that an organization was an elected body with a superintendant, president, secretary treasurer, etc., but that Christ, is the head of the Church and was never elected. He is the organism that inspires and leads members of the church who believe in prayer and are humble enough to ask for Divine guidance.

This minister has the real idea and if more of our ministers would think more about God and Christ being the head of the church their church membership would not be gulled and befuddled into voting on Sweepstakes, etc. If they think it necessary to refer to it at all, let them refer the people to our Saviour's guidance through prayer on all subjects where the moral standards of our convictions are at stake.

Are there not in many of our churches means of raising money as questionable as the sweepstake?

Do we not see two or three times a year benevolent organizations on our own city streets with agents selling tickets on a car, brand new, of a leading make, 2 or 3 tickets for 25c and on a certain date the stubs of these tickets are put in a churn and revolved and some one asked comes forward and draws a ticket and the lucky one in the audience who can produce the number called comes forth and pays $1, making a grand total of $1.25, buys a brand new sedan. That is not a sweepstake. The crookedness in the legal requirement of paying $1 makes it a Christian bargain and if our ministers are not brave enough to condemn these things on our own streets, and I do not. It is a charitable work, sponsored by a reliable organization and if I have 25c in my pocket and enough of the organism of Christ in my heart to be charitable in a worthy cause I'll never ask any church dictatorship as to how I spend my charity funds.

Should I ever win a lucky car or sweep ticket which would enable me to be more charitable I'd thank God and try the better to serve him just as I hope our preachers would all do if so blessed themselves.

Thanking you for this space.

ONE EXCEPTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Will you kindly spare me a few paragraphs in your paper? This letter is in regard to the excellent article in last night's Examiner, titled The Cause Of Social Disorders, by A. S. Thompson, M.D. I would have it understood that as to the causes as quoted by Mr. Thompson I am in hearty accord and I wish to congratulate him in the main for the clear, concise picture he afforded me, for in that subject I am deeply interested, and it was a distinct treat to read such an article as it did not become too technical.

I say in the main however, for it was with a good deal of shock that I discovered the C. C. F. as one of the parties that he had listed as one of the many "cure all" parties which had arisen. I will agree that Communism and Fascism are not only vicious in many respects but they are also wholly unsuited and unwanted for and in this country. As to the Social Credit party let it be understood that though what it wishes to achieve is admirable—it is a highly impractical scheme to foster in one province alone without at least national support.

But if Mr. Thompson terms the C. C. F. as either vicious or useless in the scheme of things, then I am forced to say that he is wanting in knowledge as to the aims and constitution of that party, and I defy any intelligent person to disprove the fact that the C. C. F. is the only party today with a progressive and constructive program to offer the Canadian people. As far as I know, it is about the only party utterly free from political graft and Mr. Thompson must surely be aware of what a commendable boast that is of any party. I would therefore, urge Mr. Thompson to delve more deeply into the C. C. F. program, aims and constitution and I am confident that he will discover it to be a party "right up his alley;" otherwise one must confess with regret that even good writers are guilty of paradoxical blunders, and it reflects ill to one otherwise well informed.

It is my opinion that God will assuredly help one, granted that one makes some effort to help himself, and in this world where economics and politics bears directly with every phase of life surely it is obvious to all that a cleansed political party will be the shortest way into the goodness of the Almighty.

Yours very truly,
ALEX SJOBERG.

WHAT IS AN ACCIDENT?

(Guelph Mercury)

TWO CARS collided recently at the intersection of two streets in Hamilton, and two women were seriously injured. Neither driver was to blame, a report said, "it was purely an accident." This is a misleading statement. Either one car or the other was where it should not have been; if both had been in their proper places they could not have come into collision. Moreover, in such a place either one car or the other was going too fast; perhaps both were.

It is useless and mischievous to gloss over such accidents; as long as the public do so, they will continue to occur. Every such accident should be made the subject of searching inquiry and a thorough exposure of the blame-worthy person, with a view to educating the whole community on the subject of motor car rules and right of way.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

AT THAT TIME Berodach-baladan, the son of Baladan king of Babylon, sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah: for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick. And Hezekiah hearkened unto them, and shewed them all the house of his precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and all the house of his armour, and all that was found in his treasures: there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah shewed them not. Then came Isaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him, What said these men? and from whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah said, They are come from a far country, even from Babylon. And he said, What have they seen in thine house? And Hezekiah answered, All the things that are in mine house have they seen: there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shewed them. And Isaiah said unto Hezekiah, hear the word of the Lord. Behold, the days come, that all that is in thine house, and that which thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried into Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the Lord.—II Kings xx, 12-17.

List Of Belleville Grievances To Be Sent Queen' Park

Mayor Bone To Demand Steps Taken To Care City's Ills

BELLEVILLE, Ont., March 30 (CP)—Commenting on the refusal of the private bills committee of the Ontario legislature to permit Belleville to utilize part of her surplus sinking fund to lower taxes, Mayor Jamieson Bone and Ald. T. Y. Wills addressed a meeting of city council.

Mayor Bone said that a state of shameful neglect and apathy to the demands of citizens and taxpayers was apparent in the actions of the government. He announced that a statement of grievances, insofar as Belleville was concerned, would be prepared and forwarded to the provincial authorities with a demand that steps be taken to cure the city's ills.

"Canada today resounds from coast to coast with the cry of the oppressed taxpayer," Mayor Bone said. "Chambers of commerce, property owners' associations, real estate and builders' association, all tell the same story of disaster facing the municipalities, and yet their despairing cries fall on the deaf ears of impotent governments, largely composed of chatting, smoking, political partisans.

"These are there principally for their own selfish ends, for the spoils of office, for jobs for their henchmen and for the furthering of their particular party by whatever means they find available.

"It is abundantly apparent that this state of shameful neglect and apathy to the citizens and taxpayers must be stopped, and it is also very apparent that resolutions, requests, speeches and other usual means are of no avail.

"It is therefore my intention to bring in as soon as possible a statement of grievance, demanding certain reforms so far as this city is concerned. I also intend to forward copies of our demands to other mayors and councils, inviting and urging them to join us in condemning the apathy of our present government."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. PROVISION MADE FOR $111,000 LOSS IN NEW AIR LINES

OTTAWA, March 30 (CP)—One of the reasons why, in spite of a heavy increase in revenues, Finance Minister Dunning would find it difficult to balance the budget this year was disclosed late last night with the tabling of further supplementary estimates for the fiscal year ending tomorrow.

In addition to the money voted last session for the current fiscal year supplementary estimates were tabled calling for an additional $36,717,608, the bulk of which was needed for drought and agricultural relief, mainly in Saskatchewan.

With the revenues for the current fiscal year $27,000,000 ahead of expenditures up to the end of February there remains the possibility that after the accounts for the full year are known a balanced budget may be possible. This will not be known definitely until the budget is brought down after the Easter holidays.

Additional money already spent by governor general's warrants accounted for $29,371,500 of the total in the estimates tabled last night. Of this amount $22,390,000 was required for drought relief and expenses in connection with feeding and marketing cattle in the drought areas.

$70,000 For One Probe.

Another large item in this group was the additional sum of $6,890,000 to make up the Canadian National Railways deficit, while $70,000 additional was necessary for the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations, and $15,000 for assistance to flood sufferers in Western Ontario floods.

Last year the Government made provision for temporary grants to Saskatchewan and Manitoba to enable them to carry on the functions of government during the crop failures. Saskatchewan got $1,500,000 and Manitoba $750,000. Last night's supplementaries provides an additional $2,000,000 for Saskatchewan.

First provision was made for the deficit of Trans-Canada Air Lines to the extent of $111,000. A further sum of $275,000 was needed for coal subventions and a sum of $10,000 under the Old Age Pensions Act for the examination of blind pensioners drawn in by an amendment to the Act passed last year.

An additional $40,000 was required to provide for the difference between the expenditures for operation and maintenance of the Hudson Bay Railway and the revenues during the year.

OSHAWA MAN IS GIVEN FREEDOM

WHITBY, Ont., March 30.—(CP).—James Thompson, Oshawa, was dismissed on a charge of receiving stolen tires when he appeared before Judge Smoke, of Peterborough, in County Judge's Criminal Court Tuesday.

The preliminary hearing was held in Oshawa some weeks ago when Magistrate F. S. Ebbs ruled a prima facie case had been made out and sent accused on for trial. He was charged with receiving eight tires stolen by Wilbert Ripley, Oshawa, from the General Motors plant here on the occasion of the strike last April. Ripley, in giving evidence Tuesday morning, declared he had at no time intimated to Thompson the tires were stolen. Thompson had assisted him in finding a sale for them and had helped him transport the tires to the shop of W. H. Rodd, Oshawa.

After the transaction was completed, he had given Thompson $20, but there had been no agreement to that effect before the sale he asserted.

Detective Sergt. Herbert Flintoff, Oshawa, stated he had questioned Thompson before his arrest, and at that time Thompson had declared he "asked no questions" as to where the tires had come from.

The case was dismissed upon motion by J. P. Magnan, K.C., defence counsel, that a prima facie case had not been made out.

CAMPBELLFORD

REV. HAROLD NEAL CONCLUDES TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30.—Rev. Harold B. Neal gave the last in his series of talks, "The Church Faces a New World," at the weekly meeting of the St. John's Young People's Union on Monday evening, when Miss Doris Mason presided in the absence of the president, Miss Ruth Palliser. Mr. Neal told the young people that it was not the object of the missionaries, in such foreign fields as Africa or China, to even attempt to Christianize all of the people in these countries but instead it was their desire to sew the seeds of Christianity which would grow and spread throughout the world. Miss Margaret Bateson presided at the piano for the opening hymn, and Miss Mae Stotts led in prayer. The Scripture reading, from Psalm 42, was given by Miss Vera Clarke. "Hope" was the title of a reading given by Miss Doris Mason, and this formed the theme of the service during the meeting.

Miss Mazzo Blake was in charge of the program, which opened with a vocal solo by George Lucy, who sang "Great Heart." Mr. Lucy played his own accompaniment. Earl Bell gave the topic of the evening in a very interesting manner, and Miss Evelyn Todd supplied as a piano solo "The Radio March." Misses Betty Blake and Margaret McComb blended their voices in a vocal number, "Into a Tent Where a Gypsy Boy Lay."

The meeting was concluded with a hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

Successful Sale.

The cooking sale and tea held on Saturday afternoon when members of the Young People's Society cooperated with the Parish Guild was reported to have been entirely satisfactory, according to a statement given to A.Y.P.A. members at their meeting held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening. The president presided and the devotional period was conducted by Rev. T. H. Floyd. Following the business session a brief period of games was enjoyed and the balance of the evening was spent in preparing the play which it is planned to present after the Lenten season.

Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from most of "baby's" ills. Teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds all disappear when Baby's Own Tablets are given. If they are not effective, your druggist will refund your money. 25 cents.

Divining Rod Finds $2,000 In Garbage

Cincinnati, March 30 (UP) A CUBE of radium worth more than $2,000 dropped off the cheek of a woman patient during course of treatment at the General Hospital today, and thus was instituted a frantic search by hospital attaches.

Their search revealed nothing. No one had a clue. But one physician had a friend.

The friend was Dr. Ysay Balinkin of the University of Cincinnati Physics Department. He was summoned, and brought with him what he called an "electroscope"—a kind of "divining rod."

This radium-finding gadget was poked into every nook and cranny of the hospital, and finally revealed the radium—in the kitchen garbage-can.

MINER'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

COPPERCLIFF, Ont., March 30.—(CP).—Verdict of accidental death was returned late yesterday by a coroner's inquest inquiring into the death of Peter Pidhirny, 34-year-old smelter laborer, fatally injured on March 16 while at work in the converter building of the International Nickel Company.

A rider attached to the verdict by Coroner Dr. P. E. Laflamme recommended that the baleman, who signals the hoistman from the floor by hand, have some other way of signalling than the present method.

The jury found Pidhirny was killed when the chain from an auxiliary hoist became entangled in the matte chain, broke the safety cable and fell to the floor, striking the worker on the head.

Evidence disclosed the chain which struck Pidhirny weighed about 250 pounds, and fell 38 feet.

Oil Threatens To Drown Mexico With No Markets In Sight

Tanks Almost Filled To Capacity—Peso Drops—Fear U.S. May Boost Tariff

MEXICO CITY, March 30 (AP).—Lack of foreign markets pressed urgent problems to-day upon the government's newly-acquired oil industry.

There have been 11 days of no sales abroad since the government took over 17 British and United States oil companies on March 18, and the country's oil tanks are filled to near capacity.

Production has been curtailed 65 to 75 per cent, but even so it appears there soon will be no place to house the "black gold."

Suspension of purchases of Mexican silver by the United States Treasury started the peso on a rapid decline. Mexicans believe the suspension was in retaliation for expropriation of the $400,000,000 foreign-owned oil industry.

Some fear the United States is considering also an upward adjustment of tariffs on Mexican goods—this fear based on Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau's statement Sunday that the United States intended to review commercial and financial relationships with Mexico.

Business Sales Slump

Declining business sales were noted here. One leading department store said sales were off 50 per cent. One of the largest tire houses reported "not a single sale" last week or yesterday.

The peso went as low as 4.70 to 4.90 to the dollar in late street trading after the close of banks yesterday, a drop of 60 to 80 points since Saturday. Regular foreign exchange dealings were suspended by Central Bank of Mexico with expropriation of the oil industry, so trading was with native banks.

There seemed no prospect the new Government Petroleum Council soon would find the needed foreign oil markets to ease the situation, and this brought from one petroleum expert the prediction Mexico would be "drowned in oil" 'she could not sell.

FALCONBRIDGE ELIMINATES CHATHAM WITH 6-1 ROUND VICTORY

Chief Gimblett Is President Of City 5-Pin Bowling Loop

Mayor Presents Prizes To Winning Teams To Conclude Successful Bowling Season

George (Chief) Gimblett was re-elected president of the City 5-Pin Bowling League last night at the annual banquet and election of officers held at the Hotel Champlain. Other officers named were: Vice-President, Roy Lewis; secretary-treasurer, Walter Firth; assistant, Leo Martyn. There was a big turnout on hand for an enjoyable banquet.

George Gimblett, as chairman, introduced Mayor James Hamilton, who presented the prizes to the league winners and the runners-up. The Mayor felt it was a first-rate sport for a fine buch of fellows. "The city needs games like bowling," he said, "and I only wished I played this sport with you fellows." He then presented the prizes to the winners, C.G.E. No. 1 team and the runners-up, the Bowlrites.

Members of the C.G.E. champions were: Capt. Fred Martin, Tom Miller, Bud Weese, F. Woods, Fred Jones and Jack Playford; the Bowlrites included: Vince Anthony, M. Anthony, Len Anthony, B. Anthony, Angelo Cremasco and Roy Lewis. Gerry Duffus presented the Duffus Cup to the C.G.E. He stated that he hoped the City 5-Pin League would be enlarged next year to take in all the good bowlers in the city and extended an invitation for the league to play its games at the Duffus' Alleys. The teams in this year were: C.G.E. No. 1 and C.G.E. No. 2, Bowlrites, Westclox Lucky 7, Barbers, Grant's, Grafton's and Dean's.

Main Winner

In response to the presentation of the winners' prize, Captain Fred Martin—who was the outstanding individual winner of bowling honors in this league during the season—thanked the donors and remarked that the C.G.E. crowd would be back again battling for the title. Martin took three individual prizes as well as team honors.

The presentation of the various other prizes followed. The Lucky 7 crew of Westclox took down second place in the first section. Their members included: N. Routley, Leo Martyn, H. Delahaye, Tom Cupoli, and Ab Delahaye. C.G.E. won first in the first section and came second in the second and third parts. Bowlrites were first in the second and third sections but lost out to C.G.E. in cup playoffs.

The prizes for high three scores in each of the section went to Bud Weese, Fred Martin and Len Anthony. High average prizes were taken by Len Anthony with 266, Fred Martin with 257 and George Gimblett with 244. The high singles were Len Anthony, F. Earle and Angelo Cremasco. Fred Martin took the high average for the season with a fine mark of 248.

After the banquet with presentation and speeches, the election of officers for the coming year were held, with H. A. Cranfield acting as chairman. When the incoming officers were named, there was some general discussion on plans for next years, and it was decided to run a post-season schedule now of four weeks, starting next week. The gathering then adjourned.

NEW YORK, March 30 (A.P.).—Sammy Snead had to fly from Greensboro to Augusta to keep a golf date with Bobby Jones yesterday....Everybody was all set, but Sam forgot, and tried to argue the match was for to-day....When frantic telephone calls came pouring in from Augusta. Sam dug up a rich guy at Greensboro who owned a plane and who agreed to get him down there in an hour and a half ....The trip was made and everything came out all right....If Jack Sharkey isn't planning another comeback, why is he in light training again?....The dope we have from Beantown is that Jack is going to renew his old feud with Jim Maloney.

Ray (Bear) Wolf, Carolina coach, predicts Sammy Baugh will do one more year's tour with Washington Redskins, then to Chapel Hill as assistant to Wolf.

Battleship, the first American-bred steeplechaser to win the Grand National, was trained down at Pinehurst, N.C., where a lot of trotters are now quartered....Why were Judge Landis and Judge Bramham trying to hide that "Cardinal purge?"....Neither would say a word until an enterprising newspaperman went to Florida, talked to them, put two and two together, and wrote the yarn....Then the story broke.

Young Calvin Griffith, foster son of Clark (Old Fox) Griffith, owner of Washington Senators, is making good with a bang as president of the Charlotte Club of the Piedmont League....Seems a bit strange to see our old pal Max Baer up there in second place among the heavyweight challengers, but you can't deny that the fellow earned the spot.

LONG ROUTE SET FOR H. ARMSTRONG

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP) — Henry Armstrong, the dark bit of dynamite who rules the featherweights, takes on Lew Feldman at the Hippodrome tonight in a match that is a prelude to one of the stiffest spring and summer campaigns any fighter ever faced.

After nearly three hours of debate yesterday the New York State Athletic Commission issued the following schedule for Henry's summer title appearances. All of them in New York.

(1) The Negro will meet Barney Ross for the welterweight championship May 26.

(2) If Ross beats Armstrong he will defend his title against Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers July 26 and Armstrong will meet Ambers for the 135-pound title Sept. 14.

(3) Should Armstrong beat Ross on May 26 he will get a shot for his third title against Ambers July 26.

This boils down to the fact that Henry has a great opportunity. If he wins all three titles he eclipses the deeds of such stalwarts among the little fellows as Joe Gans and Terrible Terry McGovern.

Only Bob Fitzsimmons, the Cornish heavyweight, has held three titles, middleweight, light-heavyweight, and Fitz didn't rule all three divisions at one time.

CAMBRIDGE, England, March 30 (AP)—A cheque for £250 ($1,250) from Pope Pius was presented today to the 73-year-old German Protestant widow of Dr. Heinrich Hertz, an early experimenter in wireless.

The presentation was made through Arthur Cardinal Hinsley.

Frau Hertz and her two daughters have been in England for 18 months. Frau Hertz said she believed the gift was in appreciation for a donation of one of her husbands manuscripts to the Science Academy which the Pope recently founded.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

DROPPED IN at the City 5-Pin Bowling League banquet last eve and had a fine time. Quite a gang of trundlers on hand and they didn't take the headpins when the grub came up. Mayor James Hamilton—a right guy with the gang—presented prizes to the winners and runners-up, C.G.E. and the Bowlrites. Fred Martin cleaned up on most of the dough with some swelegant rolling. Officers elected for the coming year were: President, Chief George Gimblett; vice-prexy, Roy Lewis; secretary-treasurer, Walter Firth; and assisting him, Leo Martyn. They had eight teams in and some fine bowling but hope to maybe double it for next year, as there are some ace bowlers around here not included in the City League setup. In the meantime, the fellows decided to run a post-season series for four weeks, starting next week.

THERE IS a chance that the Trenton Fliers will enter the Central Ontario Baseball League this summer. Nothing at all definite but they are considering it. And the Fliers, a colorful outfit in hockey and rugby, would fit in fine in the C.O.B.L., what? With big Lalonde hurling, and Gibson, McNeeley and some of those other scrappy puckists coming up to bat against the Petes, wouldn't local fans have themselves a hotcha time? Bill Kay was in the vicinity of the Air Camp a few days ago and dropped in to chat with officials. They told him their sports' fund would permit of two softball teams and a baseball team this summer, but they were undecided on the latter whether to enter intermediate or senior company.

THEY TOLD Bill they were considering the C.O.B.L. and might join if they thought they were strong enough, but not unless they were sure. But with another couple of hundred young fellows coming there shortly, along with the big gang of husky youths they have, there is little doubt but that they could field a strong senior ball squad. It seems that Fred Collins, ex-Petes' pilot, now in Trenton, has been visiting them regularly and talking up ball and Fred is quite popular with the gang. Some talk of him as manager of the team, in fact. Bill relayed his info to Max Swanston, prexy of the C.O.B.L. who in turn advised Bob Elliott, life member of the O.B.A.A., from this district. And Bob wrote the Air Force, offering to give them any information and help he could toward fielding a team in this circuit. As Max Swanston said: "The Fliers would be most welcome in this league now."

* * * * * *

THE AIRMEN haven't any regular enclosed diamond with grandstand at all. But what they did in rugby was mark out a field, inside their fences, and post guards to keep out any but paying customers. And you can't argue with a bunch of armed guards! Or they could transfer home ball games to Belleville, same as they did all winter in hockey. You've got all the Belleville fans, those from the town of Trenton and the Air Force crew. And a good ball diamond, no opposition sports, and daylight saving. The team would make money just as it did in puck contests. And those Fliers would be a fine drawing card all around the circuit. With a bunchof big husky battlers from Ottawa, Kingston, Quebec and here and there. Look how local and Kingston fans went for them through the winter.

* * * * * *

WE SORT of like this angle, brought up by Baz O'Meara after Canadiens were surprisingly ousted in Stanley Cup playdowns: "You expected Cecil Hart would be bitter. He was railing at bad luck, but not at referees or the Hawks. None of the Canadiens had shaken hands with Hawks. Hart is no handshaker or back slapper. A very tough loser as a rule. So the old formality was forgotten as these clubs have become bitter feudists. After all, perhaps this business of being a good loser is overdone. It may not be exactly cricket to say it but experience over years inclines to the belief that the easy losers lose too easily, while the tough losers are the ones that often figure on the long end of the score. 'We have had bad luck ever since poor Howie died,' said Cecil gloomily."

* * * * * *

TORONTO LEAFS proved deserving N.H.L. champs by knocking off the Bruising Bruins of Boston in three straight. This looks like the Leafs' year and they deserve to come through after being so close so often without quite making the grade. Messrs. Jackson and Lytle of the Toronto Star were both delegated to Boston for last night's game, either their paper feeling one man could not properly cover this epic or mayhap the boys had a hunch 'twould be a Leafian win and wanted to be in at the finish. Lot of radio fans down around here will exult at the Toronto win. An odd thing but early in the season, puck fans would have said Boston, Toronto, Red Wings, Rangers and Canadiens would all be in there around the end of the series —but that Amerks or Hawks wouldn't go anywhere. And now we find the Americans and Chi-Hawks battling it out in Stanley Cup semi-finals, winner to meet Toronto. While Detroit, Rangers, Canadiens and Boston are all through.

* * * * * *

BELLEVILLE HI-SPEEDS took a 5-2 nod over Kingston kids on a spongy Quinte ice surface the other night to cop their juvenile puck series by a 9-6 edge. As usual, the Belleville ex-umpire, who writes the sports column there, guesses wrong and says his charges are now Eastern Ontario—why not Dominion titleholders like those soap-box demons?—champs, but we see where Oshawa defeated Toronto last e'en by a 4-1 count in the first of their O.J.H.A. series struggles. There seem to be juvenile hockey teams in playdowns all over Ontario yet and thicker than fliers 'round a stable in May.

* * * * * *

WITHIN THE next couple of weeks, the Peterborough Girls' Softball League will be holding its annual re-organization meeting. We wouldn't be too surprised to see Keene, Westclox, C.G.E. and Lindsay make up the circuit this semester. Lindsay replacing Cobourg. The Scugog sports are interested and could field a classy squad of femmes on the runty diamond, but they are without benefit of daylight saving up thataway—and this difference in times for twilight tilts may prove the insect in the saucer of cocoa, or d'ya prefer coffee? Incidentally, the loop is likely to again affiliate with the P.W.S.A., following the success of Westclox in Provincial playdowns last season. Prexy Nora Seddon of the Union is retiring, claiming the press of business, but 'tis rumored that the press of matrimony might be more accurate a description.

* * * * * *

DESE, DEM and dose: Those Amazing Amerks seem to be putting the Hawks on the skids, as they did the Rangers—and may wind up yet by licking the Leafs! . . . . Falconbridge ousted Chatham, 5-0, last night, no doubt having a few shekels down on this one . . . Baseball Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

Clearwater, Fla.—It may or may not be the result of Larry MacPhail's bonus system, but Brooklyn Dodgers are doing some smart fielding along the inner defence line this season. They pulled off three double plays against Detroit yesterday and that used to be "par" for a long road trip.

St. Petersburg, Fla. — Manager Frankie Frisch of St. Louis Cardinals seems to like the work of Don Gutteridge at shortstop, although he had Jimmy Brown in there yesterday. "Gutteridge has been erratic," Frisch said, "but he'll continue there."

Baton Rouge, La. — Bill Terry's answer to recent criticisms of National League baseball was two hours of "skull" practice for his New York Giants. "That's my answer," he said, adding, further, "A man who can bust up a ball game with a hit is a great asset, but he is worth twice as much if he also can save a game by being a fine defensive player."

Clearwater, Fla. — New York Yankees are expecting a lot from Ivy Paul Andrews, if he continues his good flinging during the exhibition games they play between here and New York. Joe McCarthy says he looks for him to do a lot of first-class relief work.

Bradenton, Fla.—Johnny Niggelling, 32-year-old rookie hurler of Boston Bees, is threatening to achieve the same fame won by last year's young oldsters, Lou Fette and Jim Turner. Johnny, up from Newark, hurled six shutout innings against Louisville yesterday.

Biloxi, Miss.—Johnny Humphries, Cleveland Indians' rookie pitcher, has made quite an impression on at least one rival manager. Connie Mack of the Athletics, who watched him hurl against the Phillies yesterday, said he is "a sensation on form alone."

Australians paid $40,819 for American fishing tackle last year.

McGEE RATED HIGH BY CARDS

Picking out the key men of the Gas House Gang is a full day's work. The Cardinals' camp, at St. Petersburg, is so full of important players that Uncle Frankie Frisch has a hard time finding someone in uniform who is not a key man.

The Cardinals' success this year depends upon so many contingencies that you wonder how Uncle Frank can keep track of everything.

Help From Columbus

Bill McGee is probably the most important of the newcomers. Close behind him in top rating comes Enos (Country) Slaughter. McGee and Slaughter were teammates at Columbus last year, where Bill won 17 games as a pitcher, an enterprise in which he was assisted in a small way by Enos, who hit a robust .382 and knocked in 122 runs.

McGee is certain to stay as a pitcher, and No. 1 guitartis with the Missouri Mudcats. Slaughter has first call on the right field job. Uncle Frank was taken aback by Slaughter's skill in other departments than hitting. Enos has a mighty arm, and is a ball hawk along with it.

These two can do much to make or break the Gas House Gang this year. But Uncle Frank has an infield problem and a catching puzzle to solve before he can sit back and take a deep breath. Mickey Owen was a disappointment as a catcher last year, so Don Padgett, Herb Bremer and Mike Ryba are being inspected behind the bat. Padgett appears the more likely of the three. Ryba is a combination catcher, and in a pinch can take tickets at the gate.

Too Many Infielders

The infield matter is not acute. The Cards have two very good first basemen, Johnny Mize and Dick Seibert. The latter, from Columbus, is one of the most improved players in the whole Card farm system, according to Frisch. He may stick around as a reserve. It is the job of selection which causes the dilemma. Stuart Martin is the No. 1 second baseman, but Jimmy Brown can't be overlooked. Don Gutteridge has been working at short, but Brown, Jimmy Bucher and Jimmy Webb must be considered for the post, too. At third are Joe Stripp, Art Garibaldi (from Sacramento), and the aforementioned Bucher and Gutteridge. Uncle Frank has been conjuring this way and that, hoping to find the best combination before the season opens. Whatever choice he makes the Cards will have an adequate if not gorgeous infield.

"Me n' Paul," of course, are question marks. Both look fine in training camp. Dizzy seems ready to go, and the younger Dean is full of ambition, a quality he seems to have lost when his arm weakened, two seasons ago. Lon Warneke looks very good.

Macon Looks Ready

The Cards may get some unexpected pitching help this year from Southpaw Max Macon, a six-foot-three string bean from New Albany, Ind. Macon has good speed, but his chief asset is "stuff", a cute curve. Winning 21 games for Columbus last year, he may give the Cards the southpaw strength needed for several years.

The Cardinals contain elements that may result in surprising success or great disappointment. If the team gets "hot", it will be hard to stop short of a pennant.

Hank Leiber And Lohrman Figure In Giants' Plans

If Lohrman Can Come Through Like Melton Did Things Look Rosy

Two or three men are the keys to the Giants' success this year. If the ball club hopes to repeat its pennant march, Hank Leiber must come through as a hitter, and Boss Bill Terry must find hurlers to help his aces, Carl Hubbell and Cliff Melton.

It is likely Clyde Castleman's absence from the pitching corps will be permanent, as a result of the spinal injury he suffered last summer. That puts it up to Hal Schumacher and Harry Gumbert to help the star southpaws. Both must improve on their 1937 form, when they won 23 games between them, in order for the Giants to win a pennant on known prospects.

Ace From Baltimore.

Bill Lohrman, a 20-game winner with Baltimore last year, is the man who can change the complexion of the whole affair. A native of Flatbush, he came into notice pitching for Alexander Hamilton High, and has been up and down in pro baseball since 1933. Last year he sizzled for the Orioles, turning back Newark twice, among other achievements.

Bill Yarewick, graduate of the Terry Baseball school in the class of 1936, is another pitching possibility. A sore arm limited his activities at Richmond last summer, but he's said to be almost ready now. Dick Coffman probably will take the chief relief role. There is a chance for Walter Brown, baseball's behemoth, to make the staff.

In the infield, Boss Terry must assume that Burgess Whitehead, second baseman, shows no bad after effects of his appendicitis operation, which was undergone during the spring training period. In this department, an unexpected punch may develop in the person of Johnny McCarthy, first baseman, whose defensive work left nothing to be asked for last year, but who foozled with the flail. McCarthy has been assaulting the apple at a brutal clip in the south, and may have found his eye.

Reserves are Okay.

The Giants have good reserves with Lou Chiozza ready to take over an infield assignment, and Wally Berger in the outfield background. Blondie Ryan also is available for infield work, as is Sam Leslie, first baseman. The plan is to keep Ott at third, and let Joe Moore, Hank Leiber and Jim Ripple chase the flies. It is important that Leiber hit some balls for the Giants, as the club needs right-handed punch, most of the run-driving-in force coming from the wrong end of the plate.

The catching is as good as any club in the league wil have, with Harry Danning getting the ball over Gus Mancuso, according to Terry, but Mancuso still rating one of the circuit's most capable receivers.

If Pitcher Bill Lohrman comes through for Marse Will Terry, and Leiber sustains the drive he has shown in the delta territory, the Giants will be a tough team again, perhaps too tough.

Trail Smoke Eaters Gain Hockey Finals

SASKATOON, March 30 (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters added Flin Flon Bombers to their list of hockey victims today as they turned toward Edmonton where they meet Port Arthur Bearcats Saturday in the first game of the three-of-five western Canada senior finals.

The British Columbia champions whipped Flin Flon 5-0 here last night to take the odd game in three from the Saskatchewan titlists. Trail won the first game at Calgary 6-0 but their scoring rush was stopped temporarily here Saturday when the Bombers of northern Manitoba squared the series with a 4-2 victory.

In 10 playoff games, only one of which they lost, Smoke Eaters scored 53 goals and allowed 10 to their opponents. Along the wayside they left Nelson Maple Leafs, Kimberley Dynamiters, Calgary Rangers and the highly-rated Bombers.

Port Arthur defeated Red Lake Thunderers 2-1 last night at Edmonton to win a best-of-three series in two straight games and qualify to meet Trail.

BELGIUM IMPORTS BICYCLES

Belgium imported nearly three times as many American bicycles last year as it did in 1936.

SPEEDY FALCONS SWAMP MAROONS IN SECOND GAME

TORONTO, March 30.—Falconbridge Falcons moved further along the Allan Cup trail last night by handing Chatham Maroons a 5 to 0 defeat at Maple Leaf Gardens in the second game of their goals to count two-game series. The teams battled to a 1 to 1 tie on Monday night.

The Falcons had solved the Maroon style last night and were full value for their wide margin. They outplayed their rivals by a wide margin in every period but the second, when the Maroons showed to better advantage.

While the Chatham club continued their lecherous checking in last night's game, it did not trouble the Falcons to such an extent as in the first game. The Northerners really opened up last night and skated at top speed throughout and time and again either outdistanced or overtook the Maroons.

Veteran Goaler Hero

Only the brilliant net-minding of Peardon in the Maroon net saved Chatham from a far worse licking, Peardon, who is 38 years old, kicked, threw and bodied dozens of shots to the side. Those shots which did beat him were impossible for him to stop. At times the Maroon defense seemed to crumble, so freely did the Falcon attackers swoop in on Peardon. But the veteran netminder rose to great heights to beat the Falcons.

LEAFS DEFEAT BRUINS FOR THIRD TIME TO SWEEP N.H.L. TITLE SERIES

Gord Drillon Is Scoring Hero Of Torrid Overtime Struggle In Which Bruins Lose Out 3-2

Toronto's Ace Marksman Gets Two Goals—Cowley Scores Both Boston Counts

TORONTO, March 30 (CP)—Reconstruction doesn't often pay dividends so quickly as it has for Toronto Maple Leafs, who held the National Hockey League championship today at the culmination of a two-year new deal.

It's the quality of the material that has made Leafs what they are, though, and whatever the other managers may try they'll have a hard time finding so lush a crop of youngsters as Conny Smythe has gathered. The outlook is altogether gloomy for anyone anxious to stop the Smythe forces in the next couple of seasons.

The best of the second-year men, Gordon Drillon, fired the winning goal last night as Toronto stamped to the N.H.L. title with a third straight victory, 3-2, over the mighty Bruins of and at Boston in overtime. The same Drillon decided the second game of the best-of-five series Saturday with a third-period goal that brought a 2-1 win at Toronto.

And George Parsons, just up from the minors, rattled in the only score when Leafs won the series opener at home. Syl Apps, voted most valuable rookie in the league last winter, helped Drillon get an early goal last night and aided him again on the winner. Another second-year player, Turk Broda, was a miracle man in Leafs' goal all through the series.

Americans Win 3-1

New York Americans have come to within a step of Stanley Cup finals with Toronto through a rebuilding program of their own and—more immediately — through a 3-1 triumph over Chicago Black Hawks last night in the first game of cup semi-finals. Americans can qualify to meet the dashing Leafs by winning the second match of the best-of-three round at Chicago tomorrow.

But the Gotham club's plan of strengthening has been different. Manager Red Dutton has made Americans a contender by grabbing up veterans who had passed their peaks and making them into a heady unit. It's a case of now or never with Dutton, for some of his stars are bound to slip away back next season. For instance Johnny Sorrell, who shot the winning counter in the first playoff game with Rangers and the winner again last night, was discarded by Detroit in mid-season after years of service.

Sign Young Blood

Toronto began to make over last winter with the retirement of Goalie George Hainsworth and King Clancy. Jack Shill, now with Chicago, and Happy Day, were shipped to Americans to make way for newcomers last fall. But as the young blood poured in few foresaw quick development of a championship combination.

The sweep of the Boston series was as brisk and startling as the team itself. Highly favored beforehand because of five wins over Leafs in six schedule starts, Bruins lashed all their power at the young machine and each time yielded to an inspired rally in the third period or overtime. Harvey Jackson, Leaf star, was out of the third battle with a sprained arm.

Again last night Eddie Shore, game warhorse of the defence, led charge after charge on Broda's citadel. Three minutes from the finish he set up the play for the tying goal—Bill Cowley's second of the night.. and he was still driving the Bruins when Bingo Kampman started a play that Apps and Drillon carried through to completion after 10 minutes of overtime.

Drillon whipped home Apps' pass early in the second to put Toronto ahead 1-0 and ,after Cowley clicked for Bruins as the third began, Pep Kelly put the visitors up again with Parsons' aid. Then Shore gathered steam.

Time after time he sparked four-man and five-man drives and finally, when those failed, he took a face-off near the Leaf goal, won it and passed to Cowley. Bill smashed at the puck and it caught an upper corner behind Broda to send the game into extra time.

Goalie Tiny Thompson didn't see Drillon's play-off marker. Apps picked up the puck as Kampman dropped it at the Bruin blueline and whipped it to Drillon flying along the right boards. The Moncton meteor's shot sped through a group of players before the net.

Long Jawn Sorrell has been second only to Drillon among playoff heroes, yet early in the season Detroit had him playing with its Pittsburgh farm club—and Detroit never got out of last place in the big league. Another Red Wing castoff, Red Beattie, helped unobstrusive Johnny to the deciding goal last night. Sorrell's fourth score of the playoffs.

Americans, just out of their terrific subway series with Rangers, had to come from behind to beat Hawks, who finished off Montreal Canadiens Saturday. That's the way the star-spangled oldsters like to do it, though.

Carl Voss converted Roger Jenkins' pass to give Chicago a first-period lead and big Nels Stewart levelled the score in the second by punching in a forward pass from Lorne Carr.

Sorrell's money drive came four minutes from the end, when Beattie darted behind the goal and emerged with the puck. Less than a minute from the finish Sweeney Schriner added Americans' third goal, to make their win so impressive the fans decided Hawks wouldn't be back for a third game Sunday.

RED HERON PACES SYRACUSE STARS TO 3-2 VICTORY

SYRACUSE, March 30 (C.P.). — Conny Smythe had more to be happy about to-day than just the way his Toronto Maple Leafs eliminated Boston Bruins from the Stanley Cup playoffs. The Little Corporal can tage a bow for signing up Rookie Red Heron only a few days ago for Syracuse Stars.

For it looks as if canny Conny made a strike when he got hold of the redhead, who starred all season with the amateur Toronto Goodyears until their elimination from the Allan Cup playdowns. Heron paced the defending champion Stars to a 3-2 overtime victory last night against iPttsburgh Hornets in an International-American Hockey League playoff game.

The victory might have been called a bit of a surprise because Hornets finished in second place in the Western Division to Stars' third place in the same section. But there was nothing unexpected about a 2-0 licking the Philadelphia Ramblers handed New Haven Eagles in a similar playoff in the Western Division.

Heron, completely recovered from a head injury suffered only a short while ago against Port Colborne Sailors in an Ontario Hockey Association playoff game, scored a goal and set up the play for the winning tally by Norm Locking in overtime. Thompson scored the other Syracuse marker, while Happy Emms and Dede Klein were the Pittsburgh scorers.

Ramblers, who finished in second place far in front of the third-spot Eagles, scored a goal less than two minutes after the start of the game and then held enough command of the play from then on to add another in the last period while holding Eagles scoreless. Bill Carse got the first and Murray Patrick the second tally.

Will They Be Like This In July?

Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, looks happy about the whole thing here as he greets his new first baseman, Joe Kuhel, obtained from the Washington Senators in a trade for his holdout headache, slugging Zeke Bonura. But critics are wondering if it wasn't another case of "Old Fox" Clark Griffith, Senator owner, putting over one of his famous deals. While Kuhel has a slight fielding edge on Bonura, the difference is not great, and with that extra "umphhhh" the latter possesses at the plate, it seems as if Griffith, Harris and Co., got the better of the deal.

HAVELOCK CLUB BEATS MARMORA

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Mar. 30.—By sweeping the men's doubles matches the Havelock Badminton Club last evening defeated the Marmora badminton players 11 matches to 6. The Havelock men proved superior to their opponents, on the night's play, while the Marmora ladies lost only one match out of four to the local ladies. In the mixed doubes the Havelock players held a slight edge winning five out of eight.

Results of last night's play were:

Ladies' Doubles.

Mrs. Hickey and Mrs. Bonter, Marmora, won from Mrs. Holdcroft and Miss M. Jones, 15-3; Mrs. Hickey and Miss Shannon, Marmora, lost to Miss L. Wing and Mrs. P. Greenley, 17-15; Miss Bonter and Miss Shannon, Marmora, won from Miss Smith and Mrs. Mathison, 15-5; Mrs. Hickey and Miss Shannon, Marmora, won from Miss Mathison and Miss McNeeley, 15-3.

Men's Doubles.

S. Blake and W. Fraser, Marmora, lost to B. Quinn and B. Jones, 15-9; R. Smith and H. Auger, Marmora, lost to W. Snoddy and P. Greenley, 15-6; R. Scott and S. Blake, Marmora, lost to B. Quinn and A. Poste, 15-9; H. Auger and W. Fraser, Marmora, lost to G. Kemp and J. Covert, 15-1; R. Scott and H. Auger, Marmora, lost to A. Poste and B. Haryett, 15-9.

Mixed Doubles.

Miss Shannon and H. Auger, Marmora, lost to Miss Mathison and G. Kemp, 15-10; Miss Bonter and R. Scott, Marmora, lost to Mrs. Mathison and J. Covert, 15-1; Mrs. Hickey and R. Auger, Marmora, lost to Miss Smith and W .Snoddy, 15-11; Mrs. Hickey and W. Fraser, Marmora, won from Miss Wing and B. Quinn, 15-3; Miss Shannon and S. Blake, Marmora, lost to Mr. and Mrs. P. Greenley, 15-10; Miss Bonter and R. Smith, Marmora, won from Mrs. Holdcroft and B. Haryett, 15-10.

At the conclusion of play, the hostess club served refreshments in the council chamber.

A WELL-MARKED MAN

GALT, Ont., March 30—(CP). — Police won't have any trouble spotting this suspected holdup artist. The man who stopped Frank Swain and demanded his money at the point of what appeared to be a revolver, wore a cowboy hat and a bushy beard. Swain scuffled with the bold bandit and he fled.

IT DIDN'T MATTER

MANCHESTER, England—(CP). —Halifax Rugby Union club came here without equipment, but a dash to Salford Rugby League club's headquarters solved the problem. Decked in the pros' jerseys, the Halifax amateurs were beaten 21-6 by Manchester.

Allan Survivors

(By the Canadian Press.)

Red Lake Tbunderers, Flin Flon Bombers and Chatham Maroons were knocked from Allan Cup contention last night and Maxville Millionaires were declared "out" by President Cecil Duncan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. This left five teams still in the running for the trophy, as follows:

East.

Quebec—Quebec; Ontario—Falconbridge, Cornwall.

West.

Ontario—Port Arthur; British Columbia—Trail.

EARNS HIS SPURS AS TROT TEACHER

NEW YORK, March 30.—(CP)—A six-goal polo handicap, a good steeple - chasing record, and a sprightly disregard for traditional methods were all Dunbar W. Bostwick took into the harness horse tutoring game a year ago. The veterans of the trotting tracks shook their sage heads sadly.

Today, Bostwick has come into his own as an acknowledged star trainer of trotters. Last year Hollyrood Audrey came in fourth in the Goshen Derby after a switch of pilots when Bostwick was disqualified for an infraction of the starting rules. Later in the season Bostwick developed one of the fastest aged horses in Boyne, which registered 2.02 1-4 on the Grand Circuit.

Bostwick is again practising his methods of training at almost the speeds at which the colts normally would be travelling at that particular season. He goes strictly by the calendar in rating his charges, never uses a whip, and still has a knack of getting something out of his horses other drivers can't tap.

HARRIS DEPENDS ON ZEKE BONURA WIN BALL GAMES

ORLANDO, Fla., March 30 (AP) —Let Stanley (Bucky) Harris tell about the approaching American League baseball race. Stanley is the still young and handsome manager of Washington Senators.

"Here," said Bucky, "I have a much better ball club than I had last year, when we finished sixth. That's a cinch, because we now have Zeke Bonura on first base. He drove in 100 runs for the White Sox last year, while Joe Kuhel was knocking in 61 for us.

"Do I think we can climb out of sixth place, being as we now have Bonura. All I can answer is: Will you kindly look over those five teams that finished ahead of us last year and try to pick out the one we're going to displace.

"This American League right now is the toughest I've seen in my experience. The Yankees naturally are favorites. Then, there are Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland and Boston Red Sox, all of whom finished ahead of us. The least thing could make a difference of three or four places in any of these clubs.

"It's so close, in my opinion, that an injury to anyone of the Yankee regulars, like Gehrig, Dickey and DiMaggio, could throw them out of first place. And this Detroit bunch is hot."

SLICING HAIRS FOR BOAT RACE

PUTNEY, England, March 30. — (CP)—While the young "blues" of Oxford and Cambridge ply the Thames developing technique for the big annual boat race April 2 the papers are free with advice and opinion.

Most of the London dailies display by-lines of former members of boat crews for the occasion and these writers analyze the most minute technicality. Conrad Skinner in The News Chronicle probably has gone as far as most writers. He declares:

"The (Cambridge) crew have yet to acquire that finesse and despatch which sends the boat spinning those extra inches per second between the stroke which often mark the margin between victory and defeat.

"For it is scarcely realized generally how fine is the difference between winning and losing, how slight the ground of superiority between two good crews, and how much thought and work have to be put in to distil that precious quintessential attar.

"To illustrate: There are 375 lengths (of about 60 feet each) in the course. The race is on the average, won by two to two-and-a-half lengths—i e. by a superiority of considerably less than one per cent.

"Again there are more than 600 strokes to be rowed: just one inch extra run between the stroke means a gain of 50 feet on the course—or stress the importance of that inch though it seems of slight importance in the 40-foot stride of each stroke at racing pitch."

F. W. Thomas, who conducts "This Cock-Eyed World" in The Star, humorizes thus about Oxford's boat: "There are still two or three holes in the bottom that need patching and one of the rowlocks squeaks a little; but these minor defects can be easily remedied.

"The christening ceremony has been fixed. This will be performed, as usual, by the First Lord of the Admiralty who will break a jar of marmalade on the boat's prow. At Cambridge a susage is generally used."

NO MORE BILIOUSNESS!
Experience of Ontario Woman

Wouldn't you like to be entirely free of headaches, biliousness, constipation, constant lassitude? "Since I was 15 years old," says Mrs. W. S., Guelph, Ont., "I was subject to bilious attacks lasting for days—so severe I would have to go to bed. I got little relief until I started Fruit-a-tives. Then I gained health. Biliousness was entirely checked. I suffered with Eczema and this disappeared too." Poor liver action causes biliousness, and other ills. Fruit-a-tives bring quick relief and lasting liver health. Try them. 25c. and 50c. At druggists.

CHAPTER 48

It was simple. What I told you about the lark was true. That was Dr. Thurston's idea—for a joke like. 'E never 'ad no intention but a joke, if you get my meaning. 'E took that bulb out to 'elp the poke, not wanting anyone to see she was still alive and spoil it, and he snipped the telephone wire in case anyone should ring up the p'lice and 'im get into trouble for giving us unnecessary trouble.

"Then it all 'appened just as I said it did. Only when Williams was searching the room 'e notices out of the corner of 'is eye that Mrs. Thurston's no more dead than 's is. Or p'raps he 'ears 'er chuckling. And 'is brain's quick. 'E thinks, "'Ullo, 'ere's a chance to do 'er in.' 'E gets rid of you all out of the way like. Dr. Thurston 'as to act as though 'e's cut up, for the sake of the joke, see? So the dotcor stays downstairs. Then this 'ere Williams who'd said 'e was going to 'ave another try at telephoning, slips up and cuts 'er froat while you're going out to search the grounds. He throws the knife out of the window, like I said. It couldn't of been there many seconds when you found it, Mr. Townsend. No wonder the blood was still wet."

"THIS 'ERE Williams was the cleverest kind of a murderer," Sergeant Beef continued, "the one 'oo knows 'ow to take advantage of an opportunity. That's 'arf the game. I'm of the opinion that anyone could be murdered, and no one found out, if every murderer did it just at the right moment. That's wot this Williams was thinking when 'e was pretending to search the room. 'E knew that Dr. Thurston was in the game with 'er, but he knew very well that when the doctor found 'she was really dead, 'e'd never dare let on to that, because 'e'd of been 'anged himself—for certain. All 'e 'ad to be sure of was that the doctor went upstairs alone, and made the discovery on 'is own, too.

"I don't suppose that was difficult. 'E knew the doctor was downstairs alone in the lounge. All 'e 'ad to do was to suggest to 'im something that would send 'im upstairs again. P'raps 'e pretended to 'ear a sound from the room. P'raps 'e didn't 'ave to suggest nothink, because the doctor would want to go and 'ave a smile with 'is wife over the joke, when you was all out of the way. We shan't never know. But at all events, Williams comes back into the lounge, says it's no good, 'e can't get an answer on the telephone, as though 'e'd never left the receiver.

"Then Dr. Thurston goes up to 'is wife. But when 'e gets into the room, 'e finds she really 'as been murdered. 'E's just going to shout out, when 'e sees that it's going to look bad for 'im. He's innocent, but after all 'e suggested that dam' silly game. He made 'er pretend. And when anyone sees 'ow it was done 'e'll be suspected. Especially with 'im up 'ere alone now. So 'e says nothink, and comes downstairs, just as Williams 'opes 'e will.

"At the bottom of the stairs 'e meets Mr. Townsendl, Mr. Strickland and Mr. Norris, coming in from their search of the grounds. 'E knows someone's done it, since you all left the room upstairs and 'e doesn't know 'oo to suspect. So 'e asks you chaps where you've been. Then 'e sees that it 'ud look funny for 'im to be asking questions now, so 'e drops it. From that moment, though, 'e's 'oping that the murderer'll be discovered. 'E doesn't like keeping the secret, but 'e 'as the sense to see 'e might 'ang if 'e was to tell the 'ole story of the joke."

The sergeant paused to drink again. "There's not much more to tell, except that I didn't ought never to've let them go in the other room together. See, Dr. Thurston was just going to come out with it that 'e 'ad planned that lark with 'is wife, but never 'ad nothink to do with the murder, when Williams, as you know, stopped 'im. Dr. Thurston didn't know 'oo to suspect, but 'e'd never suspected Williams. 'E was led off like a lamb to the other room. Tell you the truth, I wouldn't never 'ave let him, only I was hoping that we might get a bit more evidence if Williams was to tell 'im not to say anything, and 'e got suspicious of Williams. But that's wot comes of trying to make your case too cast iron. As soon as 'e got 'im out there Williams shot 'im, stuck the revolver in 'is 'and and opened the door, with a story ready of 'ow 'e'd just turned 'is back and Dr. Thurston shot himself. If that 'ad of come orf 'e'd 'ave been clear, see?

"Williams must 'ave thought I really suspected Dr. Thurston. But I didn't. I knew it was Williams."

"How?" I asked. "After all, it was Thurston who had arranged the so-called joke. It was Thurston who had said she was dead. How did you know it was Williams who went back in that room and killed Mrs. Thurston?"

"Simple, sir. I've told you I 'aven't got no theories. I'm no good at anythink like that. I'm just an ordinary policeman, as you might say. I found out 'ow the murder was done by them bloodstains and inkstains. And I found out 'oo done the murder by bloodstains and inkstains, too. See, I 'ave to use these regulation methods. Never do for me to get up to any fanciful tricks like 'arf-mast flags, and spiders wiv' flies, and Sidney Sewells, and that. You gentlemen understand all that. I jist 'ave to follow instructions for procedure in a case of crime. So when I'd found them stains, I 'ad a look at the clothes you'd all been wearing that night. And on the left breast of Williams' shirt, off of the 'ard part and quite near the armpit, I found a very faint pink mark. And I knew it was red ink. See when 'e'd picked up the first pillow slip wot the red ink 'ad been on, 'e stuffed it inside of 'is waistcoat to take away and burn later. And although it 'ad been almost dry then, it 'ad just made that faint smudge. Then again on the outside underneath part of 'is cuff what should I find but another little stain. This 'un was red, too, on'y it wasn't ink, it was blood. Very likely there'd been some more on 'is jacket, but 'e'd seen that an' washed it orf. Only no one couldn't 'ardly 'ave seen this. It was only small, right on the edge of the cuff. That's 'ow I knew it was 'im.

"But we'll 'ave plenty more evidence. 'E never left a fingerprint anywhere, 'aving plenty of time. But when 'e came to shooting Dr. Thurrston I should think it's more than likely 'e left 'em on the revolver, gambling on being able to get back later and wipe 'em. So we'll 'ave 'im there. Besides, when it comes to the inquest on Dr. Thurston, ten to one you'll find that the shot wot killed 'im couldn't of been self-inflicted. They can pretty well always tell nowadays, and you see if 'e wasn't shot from three or four feet away instead of close to the head.

"But there's one more important bit of evidence against 'im. In the grate of 'is room I found a bit of charred linen, wot I sent up to the Yard to be examined. It turns out to be the same stuff as wot the rest of the pillow cases was made of. Well, that might not of been conclusive, if I 'adn't found out from the girl about the fires. You remember 'ow 'e shut me up when I started to arst 'er about that? And, not wishing to rub it in, you gentlemen joined in wiv 'im? Well, I 'ad to see 'er later. She said Mr. Williams never liked a fire in 'is room. It was laid, same as fires 'ad to be laid everywhere, in case anyone wanted to light one. But Williams 'ad never lit 'is before. And when she come to do the grate it must 'ave been nine o'clock, because I'd examined it soon after I got 'ere that morning, and found the bit of charred linen. I thought then the coals was still 'ot and she says when she come to do 'em she could feel 'em warm still. There was only a very small scuttle of coal there, and it wasn't all burnt. So 'e couldn't 'ave lighted 'is fire till the small hours, to burn that pillow case. So no one else couldn't of gone into 'is room to burn it there."

"But what was the motive?" I asked. I wasn't skeptical now, but curious.

"Motive? 'E 'ad more motive than anyone. First thing I did was to go froo Mrs. Thurston's papers. 'E'd 'ad all 'er money. All 'er own money that is, to invest. 'Adn't you thought it a bit odd as a lady with £2,000 or £3,000 a year. 'oo'd never lived extravagant, should be overdrawn so far she couldn't overdraw no farther, even if she was being blackmailed? Well, that's the reason. All she 'adn't spent of 'er income she'd been 'anding over to this 'ere Williams for years to invest for 'er. And 'e'd been living on it—handsome. And now she was being pressed by Stall, and begged from by Strickland, she wanted a bit. And of course it wasn't there. Only when 'e came down this week-end 'e never thought 'e'd get as good a chance as that to do 'er in without being copped!"

Etiquette Wins You Exciting New Friends

Be Sure of Your Poise

Laureis to the girl whose charming manners capture two beaus in one evening.

"Such a grand evening! I hate to see it end," she says lightly as she bids them both good-night. No effusive thank-you's. And if she likes one better than the other, she doesn't show it.

She's unfailingly gracious. At a party she never turns down a dance with one man, only to sail off five minutes later with another. When men rise to greet her as she enters a room, she seats herself quickly so she won't force them to remain standing.

She's smooth. She never embarrasses her escort by leaving it up to him to say when it's time to go home. She knows it's the girl's place to suggest leaving a party, to make the first move toward getting up from a restaurant table, to terminate a telephone conversation.

Men like to date the girl whose social poise puts them at ease. Our 32-page booklet gives etiquette for formal and informal parties, restaurants, movies. Introductions, invitations.

EPIDEMIC IN CONTROL

WINDSOR, Ont., March 30—(CP)—Windsor's measles epidemic is under control and progressing satisfactorily, according to Dr. Fred Adams, Medical Officer of Health. Dr. Adams said the present weather conditions were aiding in fighting the disease. The disease is mostly of a mild nature, said Dr. Adams.

DOROTHY DIX

Both Husband and Wife Have to Put Their Heads as Well as Their Hearts Into Marriage if They Want to Make a Go of It.

A CORRESPONDENT asks: When a marriage is a failure, which one is to blame for it—the husband or the wife? Sometimes it is the husband. Sometimes it is the wife. Generally it is the fault of both.

No woman can make a success of a marriage even though she is as amiable as Patient Griselda, as thrifty as Hetty Green and as domestic as the cookbook, if her husband is a drunkard, a philanderer, a tightwad or a grouch. No man can make a success of a marriage even if he is as chivalrous as Sir Galahad, as homestaying as the cat and brings home as much bacon as Mr. Armour, if he is married to a shrew and a virago, a nagger or a lazy, slovenly housekeeper.

Whether there are more bad husbands or bad wives, no one knows. Statistics show that about three times as many women ask for divorces as men, but that proves nothing because, for one thing, men stand an unhappy marriage with more fortitude and philosophy than women do; and, for another thing, most husbands gallantly let their wives save their faces by laying the blame for the failure of their marriages on them.

Nor does our observation of the marital difficulties of our friends and acquaintances throw any light on the subject. We are just as often sorry for poor old Joe, whose wife henpecks him so that he says "our" pants and jumps when she speaks to him, as we are for poor dear Sally, whose husband makes a doormat out of her and never even says a civil word to her. Just as often we wonder how Tom can stand that extravagant wife who works him to death and keeps him harassed with debts by her senseless spending as we do how Mary puts up with her good-for-nothing loafing husband whom she has to take in boarders to support.

Nor when a marriage goes on the rocks is the individual testimony of the man and woman to be believed, because each one passes the buck and throws all the responsibility on the other. As the man tells it, it is always the wife who drove him to drink by her fault-finding and complaining, or who was so cold and unsympathetic that she sent him to the Other Woman for comfort and understanding. As the wife deposes, it is always the husband taking her for granted and never paying her any attention; or being more absorbed in his business than he was in her; or stepping out at night without her; or being glum; or reading the paper after dinner that is responsible for the wife's nerves and temper, and her slack housekeeping and being hard to get along with. And when it comes to a husband-and-wife quarrel, the bitterest and most vituperative part of it always is about which one started it.

Now the truth is, of course, that when a marriage is a failure it is virtually always the fault of both. Marriage is a two-handed job and it takes the combined efforts of both a husband and a wife to make a go of it. Neither one can do it alone. Neither one can do all the loving, or all the work, or make all the sacrifices without things going blooey. In marriage you can't go on a sit-down strike and let George or Georgina do it. You've got to do your part yourself.

The success of every marriage, for instance, depends upon a husband and wife keeping in love with each other. As long as they are that-a-way about each other nothing else matters. But if they are to prevent the fire going out on the altar they both have to stoke it. No woman can get any thrill out of being married to a man if he treats her as if she were just a piece of useful household furniture. No man can keep in love with a wife who looks upon him merely as a good provider. They must both stay lovers and make an effort to be interesting and entertaining to each other.

The people who make successes of marriage are those who deliberately and determinedly set out to make a success of it. They put their heads as well as their hearts into it. They try to make marriage worth while to each other. They try to keep attractive to each other. And they use diplomacy in dealing with each other. They know that they have intrusted all that they are to each other and they try to give a good account of their stewardship.

No marriage was ever a failure in which BOTH the husband and wife tried to make it a success.

TWO LEADS ESSENTIAL

WITH SEVERAL finessing combinations, two leads toward them are essential. One lead will not develop their full possibilities. It pays to recognize these early in the play, so that you can stretch any possible points to make the valuable leads available.

Four hearts constituted the final contract at all tables in a recent duplicate on this deal. The South players opened the bidding with 2-Hearts, to which the response by North was 2-No Trump, then 3-Hearts by South and four by North.

The opening lead at all tables was the club K, followed by the A. This was ruffed by South and the result of the score depended upon which card was used for ruffing by South.

Where the 7 was used, the diamond A furnished the only entry to dummy to try the spade finesse, and consequently three tricks were won by the opponents. Where the 10 was played for ruffing the second trick, two entries were provided in the dummy and as a result only one spade trick had to be given up.

Looking Back On This Date

Forty years ago today (March 30, 1898) the Senate, as it has so often done, proved its value as a safety valve and a brake upon a government which was steering into a false policy. The great rush into the Yukon had made the question of transportation into the territory, as yet an unknown quantity as to resources, of importance. Some Canadians urged that it was the Dominion's duty to create its own access into the new north and end the dependence on the route via Skagway. They urged Sir Wilfred Laurier that the only way to meet the problem was for Canada to build its own railway into the Yukon. Mackenzie and Mann, then in their early prosperity as railway builders offered to build the railway to the Yukon and to accept in return the grant of 25,000 acres of Yukon territory per mile for a railway from the Stikine river to Teslin Lake. Nobody knew whether that land was of any value; it might be worth millions, it might be worth nothing but they agreed to build the railway and accept the land grant.

The proposition was fought in the Commons by the then small Conservative opposition, who pointed out how insane it was to start building a railway into a country of which little was known and that it was a justifiable case of "wait and see." But Sir Wilfred yielded to pressure and the Liberal majority in the Commons passed the bill. Luckily we had a Senate. That House gave the preposterous project the reception it deserved and declined to pass the bill. Of course, a howl went up from interested parties as to the 'dominance of the Senate" and the need for Senate reform, but a majority of the people agreed that the Senate had done the right thing. The Yukon railway was killed and was never revived. If this were the only instance of senatorial wisdom the Senate justified its existence in 1898 and saved Laurier from a deep folly.

Two notable Canadians died on this date—Sir John C. Eaton, the merchant of Toronto, in 1922, and Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, at Vancouver. Both were striking examples of the power of parental heredity. Each worked his way to the front in his own line and gained eminence in spite of the fact that each was his father's son. "Young Tupper," as we knew him 40 odd years ago, would have won front rank in any assembly and deserved all the honors he won in parliament and in law.

THE STARS SAY . . .

For Thursday, March 31

ACCORDING TO the lunar transits for this day, employment, work, fidelity and long service may culminte in particular rewards from superiors, employers and elders. The latter may figure in the affairs, possibly offering important propositions as tokens of preferment or confidence. It would be well to accept these, although it may mean a complete turning over or reorganization of the life and its interests.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of great significance in molding the future. Rewards for faithful service in employment may be expected, although they may call for a complete reorientation or reorganization of the life and its affairs or environs. Such indications of faith, preferment and esteem from olders and superiors may be accepted with confidence.

A child born on this day may have a very serious, deep, studious and self-centered nature. Its talents may make it conspicuous to employers, superiors or elders, all of whom figure significantly in its successful career.

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S GOLF CLUBS

"Wiggy, my dear," said Mrs. Longears to her rabbit gentleman husband one afternoon, "are you going adventuring?"

"Well, I would like to," he answered looking in the glass to see that his whiskers were neatly combed. "Would you like to come?"

"Oh, my goodness, thank you, no!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears.

"No, indeed," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was putting on her hat that had red roses on one side and blue ones on the other.

"Oh, then you are both going out, but you don't want to come adventuring with me, is that it?" asked Uncle Wiggily, for he saw his wife was also putting on her hat which had a lettuce leaf on top and a cabbage leaf on the bottom.

"We want to go together to call on Aunt Lettie, the dear little old goat lady," said Mrs. Longears. "But we can't both go, Wiggy, my dear, for one of us must stay home to open the door and be here when the rabbit children come home from school."

Stays Home

"Oh, if that is you only worry," laughed Uncle Wiggily with a jolly pinkle of his twinkle nose, "hop along. I'll stay in the bungalow for once and let the children in. After that I may go out."

"Yes, once they are in they can look after themselves," said Mrs. Longears. So she and Nurse Jane hopped over the fields and through the woods to call on Aunt Lettie and Uncle Wiggily remained alone at home in the bungalow.

"Hum! I wonder what I can do?" he asked himself after a while. "Staying at home is duller than I thought. There is realy nothing to do. I think I'll look up in the attic and see how my golf clubs stood the Winter."

Up in the attic Uncle Wiggily found his golf clubs having a game of knocking the dust off each other and the Niblick had just made a fine drive off the Putter when the Mashie whispered:

"Quiet, please!"

"What for?" asked the Putter.

"The Boss is coming!" said the Mashie.

"Eh? What's this?" asked Uncle Wiggily in surprise. "I didn't know you golf clubs could talk. Why, this is wonderful! What stories you can tell. Go on, please!"

But, either because the golf clubs were bashful or because they could only talk when alone in the attic with Uncle Wiggily away, the rabbit gentleman didn't find out. But he looked at the clubs and they never said a word so Mr. Longears remarked:

Practice

"I must have been mistaken! Those clubs weren't talking."

"Oh, yes we were," thought the Mashie but without really saying it. "And if we wanted to, we could tell funny stories about how you once drove your ball off the third tee into a hole in a hollow tree."

But as the clubs wouldn't talk, Uncle Wiggily picked them up all together in the bag and said:

"I'll go down and try a few practice shots with a soft rubber ball in the dining room until the children come home. Staying in isn't so bad after all when I can go up in the attic and get my golf clubs."

Uncle Wiggily was just going down stairs when, all of a sudden the Bob Cat came sneaking into the bungalow having seen no one down stairs.

"Ha!" mewed the Bob Cat. "Uncle Wiggily is up in his attic. I'll climb up there and get him!" But as the Bob Cat sneaked up stairs the rabbit gentleman took his golf driver and whammed the Bad Chap so hard on the head that he tumbled all the way to the bottom and ran away. So he didn't get the bunny.

And if the teapot will give the cheese cake a cup of coffee to keep it from taking cold, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's bells.

The famous smithy, which is just across the Scottish border, has had much competition of recent years, many other "smithys" springing up in the vicinity where runaways could exchange vows before a witness and thus, according to the old Scottish law, were legally wed. The new law will make it obligatory for couples intending marriage to have 21 days residence in Scotland.

Portion Of $15,000,000 ArtCollection To Be Sold

A major portion of the $15,000,000 art collection owned by William Randolph Hearst will soon be offered for sale, it was announced in New York recently. Another portion of the collection will be donated to museums and the balance will be given to members of the publisher's family. Two beautiful paintings LEFT and RIGHT, by Jean Baptiste Greuze (1725-1805) are included in the collection. This piece of rare Spanish Gothic sculpture of the early 15th century, CENTRE, representing one of the queens of Spain as St. Barbara, is also included in Hearst's collection.

GIRL IS KIDNAPPED, 11 SLAIN FIGHTING ACROSS PALESTINE

JERUSALEM, March 30 (CP-Havas).—Police and troop reinforcements were sent to the Acre-Safed highway zone today after a violent outburst of terrorism during the past 24 hours had taken a toll of 11 lives and resulted in the kidnapping of an 18-year-old Jewish girl.

The girl and four men were passengers in a taxicab attacked by Arabs on the highway yesterday. The four men and three members of the Arab band were killed during the attack and the taxi chauffeur and the girl were taken prisoners. The body of the chauffeur was found.

The attack on the taxicab followed the killing of two German students near the British cemetery on the outskirts of Jerusalem early Monday. They were last seen alive en route to the Czechoslovak Monastery on the Mount of Olives.

Arabs also attacked the Jewish-owned Wilhelma colony, near Ramleh. An Arab guard was killed when he refused to join or give money to the raiders.

Champion Iceman Of Canada

Personality, which includes a happy smile, is what wins in salesmanship, and Alvin Gaeler, of Kitchener, has plenty of it. At the annual convention of the Canadian Association of Ice Industries held in London, he was declared the champion ice service man of Canada. Mr. Gaeler is shown ABOVE receiving the cash award from J. A. Neilson, of Toronto. Each ice company of the Dominion was allowed to enter one candidate for the title.

MILLBROOK

DRAMATIC FESTIVAL DATE ANNOUNCED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 30.—The Christian fellowship convenor, Della Mae Sisco, had charge of the program for the Young People's Union, on Monday, with over forty members and visitors in attendance.

The president, B. B. Dawson, took the chair for the business period, announcing a Presbytery executive meeting at Peterborough last Friday evening, when tentative dates for forthcoming events were arranged. Dramatic festivals for the Presbytery include the presentation of comedies by Springville and Millbrook at the latter place on April 18; and on May 2 Mark Street and Fairview at Peterborough. For the religious dramas, George Street and St. James', on April 25 and on April 29, Lakefield and Millbrook, probably to be presented in the local church.

The final in the Presbytery debating series, with Millbrook and Knox church, Peterborough competing, will be at Millbrook on April 27, and the Spring convention for the young people's societies is to be in St. James' church beginning April 22.

Assisting with the program, which was introduced with soft music, Esther Might presiding at the piano, were a quartette, Marjorie and Bea McDowell, Henry Gray and Earl Edworthy, who sang "Alone"; William Ridge and Edward David, who read the lesson illustrating the theme, "Father, forgive them"; Mary Dawson, who read the poem, and Kathleen Smith, who offered prayer.

The theme was further developed by the leader, who gave, in synoptic form, Van Dyke's fascinating story of "The Other Wise Man," and the meeting was dismissed with a hymn and the benediction in unison.

Bea McDowell conducted the recreation period, with which the evening had been opened.

She's The Skipper

First woman in the province of Quebec ever to receive a master's papers, Miss Francoise Lemay, 23-year-old French - Canadian, is shown a the wheel of her tanker, the Adelphia, in the St. Lawrence river at Montreal. The tanker is owned by Miss Lemay's father, who will retire this spring and transfer ownership and supreme command to his daughter.

BAILIEBORO

SNEAK THIEVES CLEAN OUT TRAPS

BAILIEBORO, March 30.—Great indignation is being manifest by muskrat trappers of this district at the disappearance of many of their traps from the streams and marshes.

On Sunday sneak thieves looted a number of the marshes and practically cleaned the traps out of those which they visited.

Farmers are now on the look-out for the petty thieves and declare they will make it plenty interesting for the prowlers if they again molest private property.

The thieves ignored keep out signs and some of the traps stolen were marked and owners claim they can easily identify their own traps.

Travel Made Him Constipated

Salesman Says Kruschen Keeps Him "On His Toes"

"I am a commercial traveller," writes a correspondent, "and due to endless travelling by train and automobile I find that I become constipated if I do not keep myself internally clean. Kruschen Salts is the only thing that will do this effectively and not interfere with my work. I take a large dose of Kruschen every Saturday night and on Sunday, when I have no work to do, the Salts act on me. On weekdays I take a small dose on rising. It is necessary that I be 'on my toes' all through the day, and this is the only way that it possibly can be done."—V.L.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system. —Advt.

sulted various members of the staff and leaders of farm organizations. They conferred for hours before making the changes.

From A. H. Acres (Con., Carleton) came a proposal for conversion of all outstanding government loans in Canada at a lower interest rate. If Premier Hepburn introduced a resolution asking the Dominion to establish such a policy, he would support him.

Acres on Inflation.

"The Dominion Parliament should control inflation of currencies," said Mr. Acres. "I favor calling in all loans, and giving the province the same right. Any one who will not take a new loan at lower interest, let the Government pay them in inflated currency."

Frank Spence (Con., Fort William) displayed a large sample of a valuable type of iron ore known as hermatite. He claimed it was discovered 100 miles north of Fort William and the discovery might make the city an iron shipping centre like Duluth. Mr. Spence presented the specimen to Premier Hepburn.

Seven deep holes had been drilled in the ore bed near Steep Rock Lake. The range was believed a continuation of Minnesota's mesabe range. Mr. Spence said the specimen contained 667 per cent. iron and did not require "beneficiation"—a costly form of smelting.

W. B. Reynolds (Con. Leeds) outlined benefits of public ownership in Brockville. The town had been able to reduce its Hydro rate from 10 cents an hour to 1.8 cents. Water rates also dropped. He urged extension of rural Hydro to keep farmers "happy and content on the farm."

Sees Harbor Project a Bribe.

T. L. Kennedy (Con. Peel) charged the Dominion Government with "a direct attempt to try and corrupt the electors of this province" during last fall's Provincial election. The Ottawa administration "spent $5,000 in the last election in my riding simply to corrupt the riding." Expenditure was on a harbor project at Port Credit and work stopped four days after the voting.

Mr. Dewan declared he had never hesitated to condemn the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act. "I do not know of any piece of legislation that has done more harm to agriculture credit than that."

"At no period in the history of the Department, in an equal length of time, has there been as much consultation within the service as in the last two months. We will continue that."

He expressed disappointment with commissions of investigation. Several years ago a commission to probe agriculture cost $6,102. He had seen it at work while he was on the staff of the Kemptville Agricultural School, and was disappointed with its work.

Even before the present Government took office, the Conservatives had cut expenditure on agriculture. The sum dropped from $2,645,000 in 1928-29 to $$1,712,000 in 1932-33.

CAVAN

The basket social in Cavan, on Friday evening, under the auspices of the C. G. I. T. was a very successful event. Seventeen dollars was realized. The baskets found sale at a good price.

Mr. Lloyd Sutton was auctioneer.

The Rev. J. R. Trumpour was chairman for an interesting program. Rex and Frazer Carr sang with accompaniment played by Rex on the guitar. Dorothy Armstrong, Berenice Smith and Joyce and Jean Trumpour in suitable costumes sang and acted "The Milkmaids." Rita Simpson, Bernice Richards, Mary Richards and Norma Gillis sang "Where the River Shannon Flows." Jean Trumpour read a play, while the C. G. I. T. girls and two of the Tuxis Boys acted it. Jean Gillis, Elaine Argue and Lawrence Fallis, sang "Juanita." Jean Gillis contributed a recitation. Sonny Boyles sang and played a mouth organ solo.

DO YOU EVER HAVE THAT "ALL-GONE" FEELING?

You needn't—not if you follow the lead of the millions who know the health value of Eno's "Fruit Salt". Just about nine times out of ten, physical disturbances are caused by some form of constipation. Incomplete elimination causes headaches, dizziness, nausea, sour stomach and many other minor and major ills. Strong purgatives—harsh mineral salts, of which Eno has no trace, are likely to do more harm than good. A dash of Eno's "Fruit Salt" in a glass of water morning and night soon gets at the source of the trouble. Eno safely rids the intestines of those toxic poisons which slow a man up and make him miserable. Doctors prescribe Eno and take it themselves. It is both effective and safe—for young and old. Eno is pleasant-tasting, acts mildly—a simple, natural way to good health. Life today calls for Eno's "Fruit Salt". Order a bottle from your druggist now. Handy size, 50c; Household size, 85c.

sought by municipal leaders in other townships. In politics he was a Liberal and had taken a very prominent part in Liberal organization in Eastern Ontario. On several occasions his name was mentioned as candidate for the convention. When the first Havelock High School Board came into being in 1937, Mr. Breckenridge was seelcted as chairman, a position which he very capably filled.

Among the members of the present and past councils of the county who were noticed were: Warden E. N. McDonald, John McIntosh, P. McNulty of Asphodel, a member in 1907, and like Mr. McIntosh, one of the veterans of the county's service. W. A. Anderson, Wallace Shearer, Allan B. Mann, John McColl, John Leahy, M. H. Johnston, Chris. Steenburgh, also Miss Jennie Batten, county clerk and treasurer, E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, and F. D. Kerr, K.C.

The large company of friends of Frank Breckenridge was a fine tribute to the deep impression his personality had made upon all those who knew him. His nearest neighbors in Belmont township regarded him with the same esteem as the host of friends he had won in the city and elsewhere throughout the county. And that respect was shared by members of the staff of the Peterborough Examiner who had regarded Frank Breckenridge as one of the outstanding members of the county council over a long period of years.

EXPORTS EASING

provide employment in Canada than to secure a favorable balance of trade, replied Revenue Minister Ilsley.

He did not believe a favorable balance of trade in the sense of always exporting more than was imported was any guarantee of prosperity. In the long run exports and imports would equal each other and any temporary excess of imports over exports would be corrected by exchange fluctuations.

Mr. Ilsley also set out to answer criticism levelled by Mr. Bennett at the administration of the Bank of Canada in an earlier part of his speech.

This criticism concerned changes made in the form of the bank's weekly statements whereby Dominion and Provincial short term securities formerly separate were lumped together and a similar change in reporting the bank's holdings of sterling and United States currency.

Ilsley Explains

Mr. Ilsley said the former change had been made because at times only one province would be dealing with the bank and to report holdings of Provincial short term securities separately would unnecessarily disclose that province's transactions.

The change in reporting currency holdings was made to prevent speculators obtaining the bank's opinion on trends in exchange rates. Under the former system students of the statement speculating in exchange could note when the bank was getting out of either British or American currency. It was not the purpose of the bank to provide a guide to speculators.

The Minister denied Mr. Bennett's suggestion the change in the short term securities item was made to conceal a loan of $3,000,000 to a Provincial government which had not been repaid.

There was no secret about the loan which was made to Saskatchewan. All details had been revealed. Two advances, one of $2,000,000 and one of $1,000,000, had been made to Saskatchewan in 1936 when the Loan Council plan was being put forward.

The advances were for six months. They were made in the expectation the Loan Council plan would go through and Saskatchewan's debt would be refunded, enabling repayment.

When the Loan Council plan was not adopted and Saskatchewan was unable to pay the bank took Provincial Treasury bills which had been renewed periodically since then and were listed in the bank's holdings as short term securities.

OBITUARY

MISS EDITH GARDNER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, March 30. — The people of Norwood and vicinity were greatly shocked on Monday morning when learning of the sudden death of Edith Mae Gardner in Calgary. She was the elder daughter of Mrs. Joseph Gardner and the late Joseph Gardner of Norwood.

PETERBORO MERCHANTS LAUNCH SPRING FASHION FESTIVAL

New Fashion Goal Being Set By Well Dressed Women In 1938 Spring Style

Color Is Everywhere For Spring Has Come To Peterborough

(By Leonie Fenton)

SPRING, glorious forerunner of Summer is here, quite definitely! The robin in the back garden says so, the sun climbing a little higher every day says so, and now the stores proclaim it setting forth the gay fascinating array of what is smart in apparel for spring and summer of 1938.

A new fashion goal is set this year for local smart women. Never before have New York's leading styles been so faithfully brought to Peterborough, from tailored suits to gay swirling evening gowns, newest hats, newest shoes, and every smart new accessory to give spring shoppers the most complete style picture ever before presented, and to assure the wearers of that gay confidence that goes with costumes "exactly right" and up-to-the-minute in every detail.

But the emphasis must be placed not only on the new apparel for women and misses, for of great importance also are the smart showings of new things for children, and for men and boys, the men's shops have some fine displays.

Plenty of Color

And color is everywhere! Spring has come to Peterborough's stores with a glorious burst of color, and all have joined in a welcome movement to present the loveliest of Dame Fashion's latest decree. Don't ever be afraid to wear color again, for it has arrived in everything this spring, and is found in every smart costume. It is here in flowers, in hats and gloves and bags and shoes, all lovely, lively accessories to brighten the wardrobe. Bright prints and patterns show in bags and scarves, and colors glow from new heavily massive or dainty costume jewelry.

Suits and coats have a "classic simplicity" this year. Women will swing along in smart swaggers with new "pencil line" backs, in simply flaring and fitted styles and in trim tailored suits, that can be so gaily enlivened with bright blouses and new lovely little sweaters that are an important fashion note. Finely knitted and with short sleeves they come in such entrancing colors as blossom pink, turquoise or deep violet.

Every wardrobe will have one or two bolero frocks, this charming important fashion than can be worn by all ages and all types of women. They are being shown in all the stores, these gay little jackets that set off to perfection the new frocks with high bodices and wide sashes. There are plain boleros on printed dresses and printed boleros on plain dresses, there are embroidered boleros and boleros with very kind of tricky trim and finish.

Smartest in Gowns

Cotton takes a prominent place in frocks, especially for evening, and among the also important, new evening gowns of net and chiffon with their graceful swirling skirts, the local stores are showing the smartest evening gowns in cotton with prints in glorious colors and unusual designs.

Housecoats will be more to the fore than ever, and as popular in the summer wardrobe as in that of the past winter. Made on feminine fitted lines with short puffed sleeves and ankle length, they are being featured in floral prints and dainty pastel shades, and will no doubt be worn from morn till eve by many a happy vacationist.

Comb up your curls and pose your hat high with its fluttering veil and gay posy. Perhaps its brim is rolled deeply back off your forehead, or perhaps its is a little sailor tied with wide streamers with demure elegance under your chin, whatever trend it follows it is charming and different from hats of previous years.

And the grown-ups may look to their fashion laurels as the children step out in their new spring costumes! They will be attired in bright colored little boxy suits and coats, smart little frocks and sailor hats giving every indication of the older types reproduced in the juvenile styles. For very little people there are gay little swirly frocks, for the boys cute little suits with matching peaked caps, poke bonnets for the girls and for both, trim little reefers with bright brass buttons.

Cardinal Chats

Celebrating his 14th anniversary as cardinal in New York, His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes granted one of his infrequent interviews and is caught here with a radiant smile on his face as he chats with reporters. Although the trend of the times leaves him somewhat "bewildered," he expressed no fears that communism would ever take hold in United States, and he was praying for the forces of General Franco in Spain, because "the government is in the hands of radicals and Communists."

ARCHIE MENZIES JOINS BENEDICTS

Around Police Court this morning City Traffic Officer Archie Menzies was being warmly congratulated by City and Provincial Police colleagues as the news spread round that the well-known motor cycle officer has just joined the ranks of the Benedicts.

At St. John's Church on Sunday evening last at 9 o'clock, Officer Menzies and Miss Helen Ormerod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ormerod of Toronto, were united in marriage by Rev. R. T. F. Brain. The assistants were Miss Marjorie Menzies, sister of the groom, and Adrian Moore of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Menzies will, of course, live in Peterborough.

The wedding was such a quiet affair that news of it did not get around to other members of the Police Department for several days, but they have made up for it today in the handshaking, backthumping and congratulations that have been general around the station since it was learned that the popular officer had deserted the ranks of the bachelors.

KEN. MACKENZIE SUCCEEDS FATHER AS HEADMASTER

Appointment of Kenneth A. Mackenzie as headmaster of Lakefield Preparatory School in succession to his father, the late Rev. Dr. A. W. Mackenzie, was announced from Toronto to-day by directors of the school.

Mr. Mackenzie was born at the school, of which his father was headmaster for 47 years, was himself one of the school boys, grew up in the atmosphere of The Grove and is thoroughly imbued with the ideals imparted to it by his father. During the war he enlisted in the Canadian navy as a midshipman and was seriously injured in the great explosion in Halifax harbor. Operations in London, England, to save the sight of his right eye were unavailing, and that injury became a permanent disability from the war. On his return to Canada, Mr. Mackenzie was appointed to the staff of Ridley College where he was a master for two years. He was then appointed as a master at the Lakefield school under his father, with increasing responsibilities during the last few years.

The engagement of Mr. Mackenzie as "Head" of The Grove will be a great satisfaction to his host of friends in the district and elsewhere throughout the country including the many Old Boys who have graduated during the years of his active association with the staff of the school. Continuance of Mackenzie tradition at The Grove will be regarded everywhere as an assurance of its success in the future. Its enrollment has remained steadily at virtually capacity of its accommodation with a staff of seven masters, dietitian, matron and secretary, even during the trying years of the depression.

Mr. Mackenzie's friends of the Canadian Legion will be especially pleased by his appointement.

FLOODS SUBSIDING IN HALIBURTON

LINDSAY, March 30.—The flood waters of Burnt river, which have causad considerable concern during the past few days, have subsided somewhat and the danger is believed over unless a heavy rain follows. Traffic was held up again on Monday on the I.B. & O. railway from Kinmount owing to the uncertain condition of the roadbed, due to high water. The remains of a Gooderham woman, who died in the Ross Hospital, Lindsay, during the week-end, were taken from Kinmount to Gooderham on a lorry on Monlay. The roads in the north country are said to be in a bad condition.

It is unofficially announced that a local firm had received instructions from Ottawa to proceed with work on the boilers in another department of the Dominion Arsenal in order to make ready for the installation of machinery.

Swans on the Upper Scugog are an unusual sight, but trappers report that eight of these graceful birds have been seen swimming about the lake.

Hockey in Haliburton.

They are still pulling off hockey matches in Haliburton rink, and reports state the ice is in excellent condition. The McEachern Cup games were finished this week, and plans are now being made to finish the Hughes Trophy competition in the northern village—if the ice holds out.

OBITUARY

MISS MARGARET O'CALLAGHAN

Miss Margaret O'Callaghan, resident of Peterborough for the past thirty years, died at St. Joseph's Hospital early Tuesday evening after a week's illness. She was 66 years of age.

Born in Otonabee, where she lived for nearly four decades, Miss O'Callaghan was a daughter of the late John O'Callaghan and Elizabeth Allen. In Peterborough she lived at 470 Elm street. She was a member of St. Peter's Cathedral and of the Altar Society.

She is survived by three brothers, John and Eugene O'Callaghan of Otonabee, and Daniel O'Callaghan of Vancouver; and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Twomey, Wolseley street, and Miss Bridget O'Callaghan of Otonabee. Mrs. Joseph Goselin, another sister, died in Peterborough less than two months ago.

The funeral will be held on Thursday, March 31, at 8.45 a.m. from the home of her nephew, John Smith, 470 Elm street, to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass. Interment will be made at St. Peter's cemetery.

BURGLAR SLIPS UP

MONTREAL, March 30—(CP).—Detectives chuckled as they went about a routine search today for a burglar who left his loot behind.

Mrs. Ernest Forget reported $300 worth of jewellery stolen from her home. She told detectives the burglar had taken her husband's new spring topcoat and had left his tattered winter coat in exchange.

Hillbilly Courtship

Canadian Charge Saves Amiens In War's Last Cavalry Action

Moreuil Wood Slaughter May Make History As Finale For Mounted Troops In Battle

By CAPT. W. W. MURRAY, M.C.
(Written for Canadian Press.)

In an age when mounted soldiers have become an anachronism, with horses replaced by gasoline engines, it is not inappropriate to recall the last large-scale cavalry of the Great War on the western front. Of interest is this to Canadains, since it was Canadian cavalrymen who fought that battle.

On March 30 the Canadian Cavalry Brigade, comprising the Royal Canadian Dragoons, the Lord Strathcona Horse and the Fort Garry Horse, commanded by Brig.-Gen. J. E. B. Seely (now Lord Mottistone) removed the German threat to Amiens in the Battle of Moreuil Wood. Reviewing the terrific battles of March, 1918, some historians do not hesitate to laud this engagement as the turning point of that great German offensive which had opened on March 21. Its purpose was to breach the British and French armies. And the place where this could most effectively be done was Amiens.

"We ought to have shouted into the ear of every single man: 'Press on to Amiens. Put in your last ounce. Perhaps Amiens means decisive victory'." Thus wrote Marshal Paul Von Hindenburg, supreme commander of the German armies, in his later "memoirs."

"Press on to Amiens!" That is exactly what the enemy was striving to do, and with imminent success. Intelligence of this fact roused the Canadian cavalry brigade from their bivouac west of the Noye river, 10 miles south of the city, early in the morning of March 30.

Delay the Enemy!

"The Germans have captured Mezieres, and are rapidly advancing on Amiens. The Brigade is to cross the Noye and Avre Rivers as quickly as possible, and engage and delay the enemy." Thus read the orders. The Canadians moved off northward, continuing to the fringe of bush known as Moreuil Wood. Heavy firing disclosed large enemy forces, well entrenched and having numerous machine guns. The Brigade decided to attack.

Two squadrons of Dragoons were sent to the north-east face of the wood, while a third rode at the southern edge. Raked by heavy fire, the R.C.D.'s charged into strong concentrations, and stiff fighting ensued. A squadron of the Strathcona rode to support the Dragoons and, after heavy losses, the enemy were ejected from cover. The engagement became general. Round the northern flank rode the other two squadrons of Strathconas, struggling up a steep bank before they crashed into a double line of firmly-entrenched Germans. Despite blasts of fire, the Canadians charged, cutting down the enemy and crumpling their line. Here it was that Lieut. G. M. Flowerdew achieved the Victoria Cross. A bitter struggle followed, with one squadron losing 70 per cent. of its personnel. But the enemy were routed.

The German advance was checked. Amiens was saved. Four months later Canadian infantry completed what their comrades of the cavalry had done in that triumphant onslaught of August 8.

ALBERTA SESSION MAY END FRIDAY

EDMONTON, March 30 (C.P.).—The Alberta Legislature is stepping along the road toward prorogation. While it is hardly likely the House will conclude this week, prorogation by Friday night is possible.

The members voted 44-11 yesterday to submit a brief to the Dominion Government on Dominion-Provincial relations, voted 45 to 9 to ask Prime Minister King for immediate release of G. F. Powell from jail and debated a proposal for 50 per cent. reduction in private debts.

Decision to submit a brief to the Dominion Government with copies to other provincial administrations was made on an amendment by Hon. Solon Low, Provincial Treasurer, to a motion by D. M. Duggan, Conservative Leader, that a brief be submitted to the Rowell Commission now sitting here.

The Legislature stayed by its stand of last October that no brief be submitted to the Commission. The brief is nearing completion and, so Alberta's case will be before the Dominion Government when the Rowell Commission report is made, it will be sent direct to Ottawa. Copies will be made available to the public.

Motion asking for the immediate release of Mr. Powell, British advisor to the Alberta Social Credit Board, was moved by J. H. Unwin (S.C.-Edson), who with Mr. Powell was sentenced to jail for publishing defamatory libel. Mr. Powell and Mr. Unwin, sentenced to six and three months respectively, started serving their terms on February 10 and Mr. Unwin was released on March 22.

Debate on the motion of J. H. Hartley (S.C.-Macleod) to reduce the principal of private debts incurred prior to July 1, 1933, by 50 per cent. was adjourned pending consideration of amendments to the Debt Adjustment Act. The motion was supported from the viewpoint debts are unpayable under the present financial system, while a straight cut was criticized as unfair and inequitable.

Trail Rangers Give Work Demonstration

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30. — Members of Campbellford's Trail Rangers gave an interesting program when on Friday evening about twenty members as well as parents and friends gathered in the Sunday School rooms of St. John's United Church for a demonstration of the work done by the group. A feature of the program was a demonstration of resuscitation given by two teams under the direction of aptain George Fee, who is also instructing the boys in the work of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade. Douglas Luoy presided during the evening and later called on Jack Thompson and Charles Jeffs, who outlined the work connected with the different badges awarded to the boys and also told of the various parts of their work done during the week. After a period of games lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Campbellford Y.P.S. Plans Bible Drama

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 30.—The St. Andrew's Young People's Society will finish their years schedule by combining a Bible Drama and Oratorical Contest in a single program which will be held on April 8 according to a report of their meeting held on Monday of this week. Mrs. Bruce Grills, the president, presided during the evening which was occupied chiefly with business discussion. Following the opening hymn Mrs. Clarence Massey gave the Scripture reading and Mrs. Charles Fraser took the chair for the brief program which followed.

"Missionary Work in British Guiana" was the very interesting topic given by Miss Winnifred Hay and Mrs. Raymond Wragg gave a vocal solo, with Miss Jean Scott supplying the piano accompaniment. Following a reading by Aylmer Haig, Mrs. M. McFarlane offered a piano solo and the meeting concluded wit ha hymn and Mizpah Benediction. Miss Dorothy Reynolds was appointed to take charge of the program next week.

SOME ALLEN PAINTINGS

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—(AP).—Gracie Allen, radio's "rattlebrain," announced to-day the first exhibition of her surrealistic paintings.

Eight of her paintings will be shown Saturday at the American Artists' Congress Ball. Later, they will be sent to New York.

Included is:

'George Burns' impression of Gracie Allen if George Burns were Gracie Allen and not George Burns."

TRAFFIC PENALTIES TO BE INCREASED MAGISTRATE SAYS

"After this week," warned Magistrate O. A. Langley in Traffic Court this morning, "there will be no more $2 fines for such offences as not stopping at stop signs and ignoring traffic lights. There is too much of that kind of thing going on, cars not even slowing up at stop signs, and whizzing around corners, and it has got to stop."

There was a long list of offenders against the city traffic by-law and the Ontario Traffic Act, most of those charged pleading guilty.

An exception was furnished by two insurance men charged with parking on Chambers Street, a street on which parking is prohibited by the city by-law. They entered pleas of not guilty, alleging that the street was not provided with the necessary "No Parking" signs as required by the by-law, and their cases went over until next week.

For driving without a license, Joseph Stewart, Lindsay, Mrs. Elinor Heffernan, M. Purdy, Joseph Hogan, and R. Metcalfe were fined $10.00 and $3.00 costs, while failure to produce a license when called upon to do so, cost Bryan Rogers of Lindsay, Mrs. Edith Button, and R. Childerhose $5.00 and $3.00 costs.

Fred Brant pleaded guilty to driving a truck with defective brakes, and was assessed $10, and $2.50 costs. The Court was informed that the truck was registered in the name of Mrs. Hobbins, Brown Street.

Ross Cain's driving permit was cancelled for ten days, and he was fined $10, and $3.00 costs, on his plea of guilty in a charge of reckless driving. Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure stated that there has been no accident as a result of the accused's driving.

A dozen or so motorists were fined $2.00, and 75 cents costs, each for infringements of the city traffic regulations, angle parking, parking in bus stops, and failure to stop at stop signs. It was during the hearing of these cases that Magistrate Langley gave notice that future penalties in such charges will be stepped up.

NOMINATION DATE SET AT HASTINGS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 30. — Special sessions of the Municipal Council and Hydro-Electric Commission of Hastings were held Monday, to decide on a nomination date for one man for the Hydro Commission for 1938-39 to fill the vacancy left by the late Herbert A. Stephenson, whose death occurred over a week ago. Mr. Stephenson had been elected for the two-year term of office by a substantial majority, at the last municipal election. Nomination date was set for Monday, April 4, between the hours of 12 o'clock noon and 1 p.m.

The general feeling in municipal circles would seem to indicate that an acclamation is expected.

SHORTER SKIRTS AND MID-VICTORIAN BONNET SALUTE SPRING

Manner of Wearing Veil Has Changed

The very first thing to which a young woman's fancy turneth in the spring at this time of year or even earlier—is a new hat.

A new and different "lid" is wonderfully refreshing to the woman who is tired of winter's clothes and yearns to shed them and get something lighter and fresher.

Recent glimpses of the new spring millinery has but whetted the appetite for warmer weather.

Dual-Stripes In Tweeds Brighten Suits

CASUAL yet dressy suits are the daytime uniform for Spring, according to Fashion leaders. Color gives the key to chic, in a mode for pastel suits, with dark furs and accessories.

New two-tone tweeds, iridescent twills, soft mesh and lacy woollens are moulded into trim little jackets and slim or pleated skirts. For variety, giant plaids or subtly blended checks are used in the waistcoat or collarless coat worn. Fitted reefer coat or loose swagger topcoat may match or contrast.

Wardrobe of Suits New Theme.

With emphasis on a more correct daytime mode, the smart woman plans her suit wardrobe to include a sportsy costume for business or country wear, a neatly tailored or softly draped suit for general daytime, and a dress, fur-trimmed or feminized suit for afternoon occasions. Capes flutter airily through every daytime hour, popular in trim military capes atop tailored suits, or in full flaring capes often trimmed in flattering fox for dressy wear.

Striped suits, especially in neat mannish woollens, are a new vogue. These are worn for town in feminized versions of the manhish tailleur. Stripe skirts are worn with plain jackets, in the feminized "morning suit" also. And rustic tweeds in wide woven stripes are more unusual in sportsy jackets for country wear.

Pockets Parade on New Jackets.

Marching in rows up and down jacket fronts, the new pockets are amusingly placed high or low, and often as not are merely a pretense. Useful pockets often hide beneath gay little flaps; but quite contrarily, no pocket at all may be found.

Costume Suits for Easter Parade.

A late Easter gives Milady of Fashion a chance to dress up in her loveliest costume suit. This year's models are soft and flattering, with boxy jackets or swinging capes trimmed with bands of pastel fox. Wool dresses in blending pastels are favored in simple styles under these dressy capes or coats. Many of these have lace yolks or intricate faggoting to enhance their femininity.

NEGLIGEE VARIETY

In negligees, colorful silk prints, both crepe and satin are outstanding. The housecoat in softer versions continues to be popular, sometimes with soft draped fulness at the front of the waistline. Floral patterns in vivid color combinations are registering. Border prints with the pattern worked around the hem or down the center back are interesting. Solid color silk sheer negligees are often trimmed by fine pleating with contrasting coats or jackets of the same fabric. Others are made in coat styles with elastic yarns shirring the bodice in flower patterns. For these the entire blue range from baby to deep powder tones is expected to be important. In high style models there is some mention of hyacinth or French Lilac but tea rose, peach and white still remain the popular selection.

Style Whimsies

Lingerie blouses are in high favor this spring to wear with suits. Many have little ruffles that stand up around the back of the neck a la Queen Elizabeth.

Huge hook and eye fastenings on young looking collarless suits make them effective and sportsy.

Eyelet embroidered batiste is essentially feminine for blouses and the lingerie type of dresses.

All fashion-wise women will be wearing veils—on saucy sailors, bold bretons and coy bonnets.

Big Sister Fashions Being Copied In Smart Tots – Suits For All Ages

BECAUSE it's definitely a "suit Spring," smart little people are wearing suits—miniature suits for tots of four to six, decidedly smart suits for girls copying their big sisters. Bolero suits and trim little fitted suits in Eton effect, are preferred by very small people, while classic tailored suits with reefer topcoats are the popular choice of bigger little girls.

Boxy jigger coats are the perfect topcoat for Spring, little fashionables declare, and they wear these in every lovely pastel color in this rainbow mode. Brother and sister coats in classic tailored styling are preferred by mothers, and sister coats in trim fitted styles are also a popular fashion.

Swirl skirts and the gay swing pleats of this year's frocks are shown in bright prints and lively pastels. Dainty shirrings and crisp white trims give these an especially pretty effect. Much handwork is used on all frocks, especially in the new peasant styles richly smocked in color, worn by little tots.

Little men march into Spring in neatly tailored suits of mannish tweeds. Sailor suits are smart again, as are sailor coats.

Tailored sport hats have a menagerie of pasted feathers around the crown, matched by similar ornaments for the suit lapel.

Coats Favor Collarless Neckline

DRAMATIC in fabric, color and style is the best description of the 1938 Spring coats for all-occasion wear, and "Rough to the eye, but smooth to the touch" fittingly describes the wool fabric Spring story.

Fabric for coats is more important than usual this Spring, because the untrimmed coat has been predicted as much more popular than the furred type; wool fabrics particularly, are so beautiful and complete in themselves that they need no further embellishment.

Spring Version.

Among the more conspicuous wools to be highlighted are suede cloths, fleeces, sponges, tweeds, twills and novelty worsteds. Tweeds and fleeces are particularly noteworthy in the smart coat lines. The tweeds, which include shetland, boucle, and dressy tweeds, are more interesting than ever and appear in both monotones and multi-colors, being ensembled in striking effect, with a variety of checks, plaids, stripes, herringbones and diagonals, in most wearable types of garments. The tweed fabrics themselves, for the better type garments, show a trend toward smoothness and some are of the softer variety. Tweeds with stripes and checks are important, and interesting versions of tweed come in giant plaids of horse blanket size.

Among the fashionable lines in wool coats are the boxy swaggers, a decidedly popular type, while narrow boxies, tapered and straightline variations are also available for more conservative purchasers. While some town coats are along fitted lines, or of the wrapped silhouette type, the box coat popularity is far in the ascendancy. Dressmaker details, tuxedo revers and a number of feminine touches show up here and there to remind one of women's desire to look feminine. Among these are such details as velvet collars, grosgrain ribbon bindings, leather applique, and all sorts of trick pockets. Town wear coats call largely on nubby crepes and smooth twills with good draping qualities, such as gabardine and diagonal cords.

BLOUSES AND SKIRTS FAVORED FOR SPRING

Tweed Interest

In skirts for girls the pressed pleats in modified gored skirts are popular, and are worn with sweaters or flannel jackets. Plaids in interesting light weight wools are as ever, a favorite. Tweed skirts are worn with knitted sweaters, in interesting effect.

SOLE INTEREST FOUND

The newest idea in men's sport footwear, and one which should particularly appeal to the man who feels cheated in height, is the thick soled shoe. Often as much as a full inch in thickness, and made of leather, crepe rubber or red rubber, these soles will be seen on buck shoes, Cordovan shoes, and other leathers.

SPORT IMPORTANCE

The many new sport shirt styles there are to select from include bold hand-blocked prints of Egyptian inspiration; beltless interpretations of the Bush Shirt, with two breast and two hip pockets; the satin striped sport shirt for spectator wear, the boldly checked shirt with a definite blouse silhouette; and crew neck pull-overs in solid color, ribbed, or in horizontal stripes, always with short sleeves.

In assembling a shirt wardrobe a man can easily keep in mind the fact that white shirts are always correct.

SPRING IN PRINT

Floral bayaderes appear new worked on the vertical. Spaced Chinese motifs are seen on silk shantung in several colors. Small all-over designs in silk prints are generally favored. A few dots are seen in unusual arrangements. Monotones are considered smart with a touch of bright color. Stylized floral silk prints are used for many new frocks. A great deal of interest is also shown in Indian, Cashmere or Paisley type silk prints.

Softly Feminine

TRIM AND SMART but softly feminine—that is the last word in feminine spring apparel.

This little suit designed by Bettina Casabona, American designer is in navy sheer with embroidery edging the bolero which is worn over a lingerie blouse whose dainty collar is worn over the bolero. A red suede belt gives a dash of daring color.

FLOWER LADEN BONNETS AND DROP VEILS IS NEW MODE

Hat Not So Plain

The model at LOWER LEFT, inset, shows its Paris influence. Here is a perfectly straight navy shantung baku which is worn well down over the face. A dove of sun-beige feathers and veiling to match the bird, constitute the different ways of wearing the veil.

It will be interesting to see how women on this side of the water will take to the flower trimmings that Paris milliners are using so freely. Time was when a summer hat was not a hat without posies, just as winter hats were adorned with plumes. But they are rather perishable, and whether the modern woman who likes to go out in all sorts of weather, preferably without an umbrella, will want to risk soaking her new hat and spoiling the trimming, remains to be seen. We are used to plain hats that can stand showers.

Colors Blend, Give Coordinated Appearance For Spring Wear

Shirts, Ties, Other Furnishings In Light Fabrics Lend To Casual Appearance

WHEREVER you go this spring, you will recognize—and be recognized by—men who have paid strict attention to correct color combinations in selecting their wardrobes for spring. The bright colors of men's furnishings this season are not independently created . . . are not just something to attract buyer's attention. Surveys of leading custom tailors and style designers prove that the introduction of pastel and crayon shades into the fashion picture is necessitated by the new colors and lines of suits and topcoats. These colors are smarter, more flattering and lend themselves more easily to the desired ensemble effect.

Patterned Shirts Featured

The soft pastel shades found in the new spring shirts are designed to blend with the casual air created by the universally popular drape and lounge styles of spring suits. These pastels are in patterns of solid colors and form backgrounds to stripes, checks and plaids.

Collar styles feature a starched fabric which will not wilt on the hottest day, and which is as comfortable as any soft collar style. This collar gives dignified appearance with no sacrifice of comfort. Blunt-point collars are gaining in favor everywhere, while regular-point collars are still the reigning favorites.

Fabrics for spring shirting have been selected with an eye to the popular demand for cool comfort. The fad of the early twenties — pure silk shirts—is returning, and the men who loved their comfort can join in the parade of the young men who are now wearing them. Cotton mixtures will also be a big hit this season, as this fabric shows off to advantage the new spring colors.

Underwear for Comfort.

Tailoring on shorts and shirts follows suit patterns that actually refuse to bunch, bind or climb . . . regardless of what rigors they may be put to. This merchandise also features bright spring colors.

Neckwear in Light Fabrics.

Men always look forward with interest to the new lines in spring neckwear. This season they will see pastels in all ties. Foulards that are longer and wider are always welcome and appear in pure silks. Tartans are featured in multi-colored plaids in colors of red, crimson, blue and even purple. Light summer fabrics are stressed for their resistance to wrinkling and soiling, and were most popular in this winter's Southern resorts. These fabrics have color prints of green, maroon, blue, beige, tan and other shaded colors. Ties all have light-weight, crisp smartness and are seen mostly in wide alternating stripes.

Pajamas in Bright Colors

Every man craves color in his clothing, but custom and pride keep him away from the "robe of many colors"—that is, for public display purposes. But, consciously or unconsciously, he satisfies this urge when secluded in his own home. This spring clothiers are going hand-in-hand with the man who wants color.

Pajamas and robes, sox and handkerchiefs all have wide swatchy patterns in every brilliant hue. While bright and satisfying, they are not unattractive or blatant. Here, too, pastels hold the upper hand, but are mixed more conglomerately in exaggerated patterns. Silx mixtures and light cotton, in knee and elbow lengths, are on the increase this season and for the coming summer.

Smart Coat

Smart indeed for hours of ease is this hand-loomed crash house coat in robin's egg blue worn by Frances Gifford, screen player.

Huge brown wooden buttons fasten it in front, the sleeves are long and puffed at the shoulders, and the skirt section nicely flared.

Looser Coats Are Assuring Roominess

NEW SPRING SUITS pay strict heed to the demands of well-dressed men the country over.... they're a direct response to the call for more comfort and more style. Thus the popular drape style has been extended and emphasized to give increased roominess and freedom of action. The popularity of the drap is proved, and it is now as necessary to fashion style as the custom of dressing itself. Waistlines have been lowered, lapels are almost shoulder wide in both single and double-breasted models, tailoring emphasizes wider shoulders tapering in soft lines to a narrower waist. The whole effect excludes severe lines and gives the impression of unaffected, untailored casualness.

Drapes More Flattering

Special soft construction flatters every figure, developing good points and minimizing bad. The easy lines give all models a chesty appearance, and the added length of the jacket allows freer action with no binding across the shoulders or under the arm. The trousers are worn high on the waist and drape to an inch below shoe-tops.

Fabrics In Light Weight

This spring fabrics are lighter than ever, which aids in the desired drape styling. All fabrics feature patterned design with new colors and combinations. A light worsted tweed has been featured at this winter's Southern resorts and is very popular for its adaptability to the new drape.

Spring flannels are featured in assorted patterns and colors for suit and odd-trouser sets. This fabric is successfully tailored in drape and lounge styles. Gabardines in all colors and patterns are worn from spring into summer. They combine beauty with unsurpassed duty, and are now acceptable for business and formal wear. Shetlands, cashmeres and homespuns are gaining in popularity because of new lightweights and selection of colors and patterns.

Patterns Feature Color

With the stamp of approved from custom tailors both here and abroad,, stripes for spring prove a real tonic from the drab winter. In wide, pin-point and alternating patterns, stripes are laid on backgrounds of dusty shades of blue, grey, tan and popular mixtures.

Always essential to the complete wardrobe are plaids. All plaids are subdued in design and color. There is a soft blending of pattern and color that gives a rich, luxurious tone to the drape styles.

It's Casual...All The Way

Light Fabrcs, rich colors . . . all sum up to the one big style hit of the season: Casual Drape! Its universal appeal makes it the unanimous choice of all men who are keyed to selections of style and quality. It's casual... all the way!

Rev. E. W. Rowland Addresses St. Andrew's Y.P.

The Young People of St. Andrew's United Church listened with absorbed attention to a stimulating address by the Rev E. W. Rowland, pastor of Mark Street United Church, at the Devotional meeting Tuesday evening.

Mr. Rowland's subject was 'Christian Experience.' "The soul of all reform is the reform of the soul," he said, and went on to show how most great movements of social uplift have come from a spiritual experience in the soul of a man. The speaker dwelt especially on the conversion of John Wesley, who on May 24, 1738, at a little meeting in Aldersgate Street, London, felt his heart strangely warmed and knew that his sins had been pardoned. Out of this experience came the Methodist revival of the 18th century, which, according to Lecky, the historian, helped to save England from a bloody revolution such as took place across the channel in France. The bi-centenary of Wesley will be suitably observed in the United Church this year, the speaker said.

Miss Frances Clarke, vice-president of the Y.P.U., presided at the meeting. Walter Morrow was at the piano, the Scripture lesson was read by Jack McKone, immediate past president, and a poem was contributed by Miss Leona Slight. The business period was directed by the secretary, Harry Vass.

At the close of the meeting, a bowling game was enjoyed, led by James Harvey.

Couple Are Honored On Silver Wedding.

A pleasant surprise, and one that was quite complete in its unexpectedness, was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. George Ellsworth, of Millbrook, when they were invited to the home of relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Stenton, 126 Park street, Peterborough, for the observance of their silver wedding anniversary, which fell on Saturday, March 26.

Approximately fifty guests were present, and during the evening, Mr. Walter Wells, on behalf of a wide circle of friends and relatives, read a brief address and presented to the bride and groom of a quarter of a century the collection of individual gifts, which were artistically arranged and grouped together in readiness for the presentation.

Mr. Ellsworth made suitable reply, on behalf of his wife and himself, emphasizing especially their deep appreciation of the value of friends, old and new, and of the tangible expression which had been given to friendship, as illustrated in the array of lovely gifts of which they had been the recipients that evening.

Among the gifts received were a handsome case containing a fifty-two piece set of Tudor plate, in the Skyline pattern, from the son and daughter of the guests of honor, George and Helen Ellsworth; a silver casserole from the host and hostess, Miss Kathleen Stenton and Mr. Walter Wells; a silver sugar and cream, with matching tray, from Mr. and Mrs. Albert Graham, and Mrs. V. Trevor; silver bon-bon dish from Miss Gertrude Belzard, R.N.; pickle dish from Mr. and Mrs. Ardwold Wells; silver bread tray from Miss Alma Stenton and Murray Hallihan; silver butter cooler from Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hocking; silver flower vase from Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wells; silver card tray, from Miss G. Wells; silver cake plate and condiment dish, from Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Johnson.

For the supper hour, the table was arranged in a color scheme of pink and white, carried out in the large white wedding-bell overhead, from which pink fluted streamers were carried to the four corners; the pink candles in silver holders, and the pink runners on the lace cloth. The table was centred with a handsome three-story wedding-cake, the gift of the groom's sister, Mrs. Stenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth, who came to Millbrook to make their home seven years ago in June of this year, had previously resided at Kinmount. Their marriage took place at Bethany twenty-five years ago, on March 26, 1913, the bride's maiden name having been Kathryn Davis of Bethany.

Cards of congratulation, in connection with the silver wedding anniversary, were received from Mr. and Mrs. George Ellsworth, of Lindsay, Miss Gertrude Blezard, of Simcoe, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Hutchinson, of Port Hope.

Glen Mawr 'Old Girls' Reminiscence Luncheon.

Among the guests who attended the successful and delightful "Reminiscence Luncheon" of the Glen Mawr Old Girls' Association held at the Granite Club in Toronto yesterday, and at which Mrs. Albert Matthews was guest of honor, was Mrs. Haultain of Port Hope, formerly Miss Etta Dennistoun of Peterborough.

Mrs. Haultain was one of those who spoke after luncheon, and began with a story on herself. "I was one of several speakers on an I.O.D.E. day at our Port Hope School," she said, "and when little Johnnie went home his mother said to him, 'Well, Johnnie, how did you all get on?' 'Oh fine mother.' 'What speaker did you like best?' his mother inquired. 'Oh we all liked Mrs. Haultain.' 'What did she say?' his mother asked. Johnnie replied, 'I don't know, but she didn't say much.'" Mrs. Haultain told of Miss Veals's (founder of Glen Mawr) coming to Canada to Rideau Hall as a governess to Lord Dufferin's family; her formation of the original school about 1880 in Peterborough, which comprised the children of the Dennistoun, Alex. Smith and Bertram families; the successful growing of the school, and her final move to Toronto about 1888 or 1889 when she bought Mrs. Nickson's School, and established Miss Veals's School on Peter Street.

Other 'old girls' as special speakers at the luncheon recalled interesting and amusing anecdotes of the school and its founder.

Murray St. Choir Holds Hostess Tea.

Over one hundred guests were present last evening when the choir of Murray Street Baptist Church entertained their friends at a most delightful "Hostess Tea" and musical evening.

The guests were welcomed at the entrance to the Sunday School Hall by the choir leader and organist, Arthur Collison, L.R.S.M., A.D.C.M., with the president, Walter Cocks, and the vice-president, Mrs. Harold Scott.

Conducted by Grant Palmer, community singing was entered into with enthusiasm, interspersed with the enjoyable program by guest artists, and arranged by Mr. Collison. The program included two solos by Adam Hawley, "Where'er You Walk" and "Friend of Mine"; solos by Mrs. Mendell Braund, "In a Dreamland City" and "The Song of the Robin"; two piano selections by Mrs. P. S. Dallin, "Arabesque" (Debussy) and "Valse Chromatique" (Godard); recitations by Aileen Sellon, "Levinsky's Wedding," with encore; guitar trio, Velma Scott, Gladys Blewett and Jean McElwain, who played Hawaiian numbers and other selections.

Supper was attractively served at seven large tables, prettily arranged with lace cloths and centerpieces of daffodils in silver bowls or baskets and silver services. Ladies presiding at the tables included Mrs. A. Ray, Mrs. J. G. Dallin, Mrs. J. Rome, Mrs. S. Cottingham, Mrs. F. M. Somerville, Mrs. C. A. Salmonsen, Mrs. P. W. Johnson and Mrs. W. H. Webber. The general convenor for the refreshments was Mrs. Sven Valentin, who was assisted by Mrs. W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. G. Palmer, Mrs. W. Cocks, Mrs. H. Wells, Mrs. H. Scott, Miss L. Ellis and Miss Phyllis Rome.

Ladylike Fashions Triumph In Coats And Ensembles

Military Capes Step Into Fashion—Coat Silhouette Straightens

WITH Fashions for 1938 becoming increasingly feminine and flattering, a gay Spring Season opens with a muted rainbow of colors blending in costume ensembles. The bizarre, the sophisticated, the crudely showy or boyishly sportsy are gone. Smart women turn to a mode so youthfully gay and yet so lady-like that the new styles seem more flattering and wearable than ever.

Coat Silhouette Straightens Up.

There is an "air" about new coats and ensembles. They demand a more erect posture, in the lady-like manner, for they are boxy and slim, or fitted and flaring. Boxy lines in "little" coats, slim straight lines in new swaggers, and fitted collarless lines in dressy casual coats all accentuate the straight slim silhouette.

But while the simplicity of line and detail give youthful naivete to this season's coats, the new fabrics more than make up for the lack of trimmings. Their lovely textures and colorings concentrate attention on the new mesh and lacy open-weave woollens, the new twills and ribbed coatings, and the smoother softer fabrics with a delightful suede texture.

Create New Ensemble.

The spirit of the 1900's persists in the lady-like combination of coats and dresses to create a whole new ensemble mode. Perfect blending of colors, the discreet accent of color on dark ensembles, the moulded look of the new silhouette give a feeling of elegance to Spring costume ensembles. High-bosomed detail and new pocket treatments on many coats, as well as the intricate use of stitchings and similar trimmings also emphasize this refinement.

Military Capes Step into Fashion.

Swinging along gracefully in the spring breezes, the new slim-lined capes have their own special claim to fashion attention. Bright braidings and buttons enhance their military look, while adding the touch of youthful chic. Some of these are softened by the use of shirred shoulder lines, and many have gay print linings or front facings to give them a dressy look.

Long capes, buttoning straight down the front, look very new and will be worn by the more daring women of fashion. However, shorter capes which may be matched with several dresses will be a popular fashion.

Most popular with the younger crowd are this year's pastel jigger coats and the gay little "swing swaggers with their casual lines. Called "tops-on coats," they match or mix brightly with print frocks or the lovely pastel wool dresses. Trimmed with stitching in tailored fashion, they are collarless and slim or full and swinging. Pockets and buttons give amusing variation to their simple lines.

Style Whimsies

Smart women have definitely taken up the longer jacket.

Another new spring shade—"Gray Mustard."

Summer furs are very much in the picture. The popular pelts for warm weather are white astrakhan, white lamb, summer and dyed ermine, black broadtail and silver fox.

Remember to buy good accessories because they really last and look smart and give you that groomed, finished look that is the wish of every woman. Accessories are the glamour note, the exclamation point for your wardrobe.

Femininity Leads In Bridal Gowns

THERE IS no more romantic personality than the spring bride, and in her honor have been designed the most exquisitely lovely gowns and veils, this year. There is an outstanding preference shown to sheer crepes and laces although traditional satin and crisp taffeta also lend themselves well to the little molded bodices and swirling, swinging skirts which characterize the favored silhouette.

One of the most practical wedding gowns seen is actually a formal evening gown with deep decolletage.

Spring Hats In New Colors

LAST spring the new hats featured a wider brim and lower crown. This spring new hats have extended to selections of popular colors and lighter weights. Blending style, grace, dash and snap, the new hats have the required nonchalance of rakish ease and casual air. All hats are fitted to the wearer...with tweeds, flannels, cashmeres...for sports, travel and business activity.

Snap Brim Most Popular.

For all-around wear the snap brim comes first in actual choice. Originally fashioned for the younger man, they are THE hat for the man who refuses to grow old. They're worn snapped down in front and up in the back. The new welt edge on the brim gives the snap brim added grace.

The light weight of all new hats relegate the Homburg to a popular style for spring. Novel effects and neutral shades of colors make this hat a popular choice for spring and summer wear. "Trick" hats—Tyrolean, triangular-creases, telescopes, etc.—are in abundance, and will attract youthful wearers and men who like a hat for every occasion.

All colors are lighter, more seasonal and more flattering than ever before. They revert to nature and show forest greens, pearl and lighter greys, light tans and intermediate tones of brown.

FLORAL SHEERS

In line with the interest in covered shoulders for evening gowns, many of the new night gowns have little puffed sleeves or capelets and soft draped necklines. However this does not mean that the more "naked" effect will be neglected. For simple gowns, colorful silk prints are suggested in floral designs often in novelty treatment. Printed silk sheers are praticularly favored.

Left, Mary Carlisle models unlined coat of chartreuse yellow tweed over rabbit's hair frock in gray-blue; right, green crepe dress with beige tweed coat.

Will you buy a short jacket suit or a dress and coat which may be worn with many different dresses? The three-piece and four-piece suits will answer the question satisfactorily, as they provide a topcoat which may be mated with separate dresses or with the suit's blouse and skirt.

The sort of coat that is very useful for casual wear is worn LEFT by Mary Carlisle. It is an unlined model in chartreuse yellow tweed, with rounded pockets and a collarless, rounded neckline.

The frock worn under it is blue-gray, and the hat and scarf combination is russet-clay suede.

The amusing hat worn with this costume is gold felt with stripes of gray and beige.

Not only are scarfs and sweaters in gay colored knits for spring, but street and formal dresses in the same medium have been chosen by Paris dressmakers for smart wear. Customers are advised to choose this type of wear and "be gay, young and confident."

One of the new spring models is a bolero dress of navy thin woolen, with the bolero faced with white pique and the waistline girdled in navy taffeta.

Nubby faced linens for summer town and sports suits will be popular.

Greenish blue in worsted twill is particularly attractive for spring riding habits.

Sportswear Is Knitted

KNITWEAR, an always practical and becoming type of apparel, again boasts new features for spring wear. Sweaters, and one and two piece garments in dressmaker and tailored lines, show details of interest to the woman who wishes to replenish her wardrobe.

Lines are slim and fitted, shoulders moderate in emphasis. The knitted fabrics are light, and a new fashion perfection is shown in the unusual stitches and patterns; the yarns employed in knitting them provide the beautiful surface effects.

Color Charm

Color is highly important, and the color range available is very representative, with many shades of blue becoming increasingly important. Colors being favored are muted pastels, gold, rosy red, navy, beige, green and amber, and the two-piece jacket costume is very important. Some costumes use such color blends as purple and wine in combination.

Suit Sweaters

Being a big suit season the wool sweater is as popular as ever, and necklines are most important. Coat sweaters, cardigans with and without sleeves, classic and modified classic slipons and sweater blouses each have their own place and appropriate wear, and most women will want a collection including many types—to properly dress for sports or daytime activity, or for wear in the business office. Cashmere, Shetland, zephyr and angora are among the interesting wool yarns used, which include also camel hair and alpaca. The sports sweater includes the peasant type, with its brightness of embroidery for decoration, having unusual appeal.

Suggestions for the Easter Parade

For the Well-Dressed Woman

COATS . . .

Divided between straight boxed and fitted types. Pleats, tucks, ribbons and braid trims, many edge-to-edge shirring, collarless necklines, shoulders slightly padded, sleeves fitted or straight and wide. Lovely smart wools and tweeds. Lots of navy, black, nu beige and lovely pastel blues.

SUITS . . .

Strictly tailored, braid bound or bluffed edge. One link fastening or double-breasted. Three-piece with collarless neckline, and topcoat in shorter length sponsored by New York and Paris designers. Navy leads, black and mannish worsteds, in stripes and checks.

DRESSES . . .

For every occasion...brimming over with all the latest suggestions. Bolero frocks, tailored frocks, swirling pleats and attractively flared. Dressy high and low necklines. Classic prints, that are as versatile as monotones, dots, checks, stripes and lovely floral designs. Summer, evening chiffon laces, marquisette, nets, all equally attractive for dance, bridesmaid, or any formal function.

Give us the pleasure of showing you a truly lovely selection...all so moderately priced.

Girl Chooses Brim And Brimless Hats

THERE is a choice of adorable hat types for the young girl, which parents and children will approve of with equal enthusiasm. This year, it's smart for the daughter in the household to look as young as her years.

First preference is shown the bonnet, often trimmed with grosgrain ribbon and tiny flowers, for a thoroughly feminine effects. For wear with juvenile suits, the hat of daintified Homburg silhouette is a big favorite, usually adding a rather large flower for that young look.

The girl who looks well in dramatic brims may have a choice of the very broad brimmed, mushroom sihouette hat with cut-out felt or some other gay trimming; she may prefer the ever-lovely large leghorn hat with long, multicolor streamers, or she may like the excitingly new bolero hat with deeply rolled brim, chin strap and accent of fringe or scarf.

Handbags Prove Key To Color

IF YOU are planning a basic navy or black costume for spring, why don't you try accessories in the new shade of coppertone, which is being promoted by smart shops. This color has a great deal of life and light and is very interesting.

Don't over-do your accessories. If you have a very simple tailored navy or black wool dress for spring—and it might be a bolero dress this spring—wear a wide belt of this copper colored leather, a boutonniere for the lapel of the dress, and a handbag with a smart top handle. With it wear navy or black shoes, hat and gloves. You get enough variety in your costumes if you just choose two colors.

Pleats are being used in the better coats.

DESIGNS MORE CONSERVATIVE AND FABRICS ARE LIGHTER

Sports Suits Will Go Places During Spring And Summer

Designs Are More Conservative And All Fabrics Are Lighter

ORIGINALLY DESIGNED for the man whose custom it was to follow the hounds or flush a grouse or two, sport suits have finally received a degree of acceptance which is surprising in view of their former social status. For today they are found on the sports field, in offices, at informal parties and for general city wear. In other words, it is a "to the city" movement, and new easy drape and loose fit find universal acceptance wherever they might go...and they're going everywhere during this spring and the coming summer.

Design More Conservative

Surveys conducted both here and and abroad show that sport-back suits are at last settling down to definite pattern-designs. Thrown out are the exaggerated pleats, gussets and trick-backs. Retained are the sporty lines and fresh out-of-doors flavor. Sport backs reflect restraint with no sacrifice of sportiness or untailored, casual appearance.

New Spring Colors

Stripes, checks, plaids, herringbones and combination patterns all show new and lighter fabrics in a wide choice of new colors. Gabardines, flannels, shetlands, cashmeres, homespuns and tweeds all have mixtures of dull, dust greens and greys; powder blues; taupe shades and off-shades of grey. These in addition to the regular neutral shades of brown, blue, grey, and tan. These are new colors and are more flattering and adaptable to new drape and lounge models for spring.

All Fabrics Lighter

The longer jackets and looser lines combine with lightweight fabrics to assure real comfort. All fabrics from tweeds to flannel are lighter in texture and in actual weight. In almost every case the lines of the draped suits allow for the elimination of built-up padding and heavy supporting linings...and the total effect is real comfort. Soft construction, soft fabrics and soft lines equal an easy style that is in keeping with the desire for "casualness."

Silk Prints Are In Lingerie

NEW spring silk lingerie presents a frilly, feminine picture. Soft, lacy treatments will be important. Skirts of gowns and slips are expected to remain full, especially in silk sheers, which lend themselves particularly well to graceful fulness. In the silk satins and silk crepes there is some interest in slimmer skirts.

Dressy Gloves Are Revived, More Flowers

LOVELY LEATHERS and fabrics in a wide range of colors bring into Spring the most colorful accessory story of a decade. Blues range from light purple or Petunia shades to rich dark navy; rosy tones from wild cherry to Arbutus pink enliven Spring bags, gloves and neckwear. A whole range of new sun colors, ranging from pale yellow to rich Indian Clay, and a series of lovely neutral beige and gray tones give infinite color variety to the Spring accessory picture.

Flower Pastels For Dark Costumes

Toning up with colorful accents, the dark navy and black costumes, the new flower pastels give feminine beauty to the costume ensemble. In the same way, against an ensemble of pigeon gray or biscuit beige, the new pastel accents have a lively and youthful effect.

Reptile leathers, in crocodile, alligator and snake-skin are shown in grey and beige, as well as in brilliant tans, rust and coppery colors with matching bags and shoes. Especially smart for sportswear or tailored costumes, these harmonize with the new tweeds and soft woollens in frocks and suits.

Bags Are Better If Bigger

For a real change, the smart woman wears a huge handbag with her suit. For travel, business and many occasions, these new bags are roomy and practical, and when worn with over-the-shoulder straps they have a jaunty air.

Novelties for Spring include new bandana bags in prints or colorful leather. Vanity bags are important, fully equipped with beauty essentials, and have an especial appeal to the younger crowd. Novelty bags in straw, wooden beads, and printed materials give colorful variety to the costume.

Gloves Go Feminine In Trimmings

Stitchings and pipings and quiltings are among the many innovations in Spring glove trims, in line with the more feminine mode. Both the shorter short and the longer glove (12 button) are favorites, depending upon whether worn with the suit costume or the new short-sleeve frock.

Half-and-half gloves, with smartly contrasting colors are a Spring fashion already accepted. Color is especially liked in these novel new combination gloves, with the chamois and white gloves in doeskins remaining the staples in the wardrobe.

Flowers Dress Up All Costumes

Real-like flowers decorate lapels and dress necklines of Spring costumes. Bright in color, they tone in perfectly with the new flower pastels in suit woollens, an dthe gay flower prints which are the smart thing to wear this Spring.

LITTLE JACKETS

Little jackets, separate coats or negligees in silk sheers or soft silk crepes make gowns suitable for boudoir lounging as well as sleeping.

Tailored lounging pajamas, slacks and robes or shirting and broadcloth type silks combine several colors or else are seen in all white.

Where Nazis Look for Another Anschluss

Will Liechtenstein be next in line for another Anschluss? Liechtenstein is the small state lying between Austria and Switzerland, comprising merely 65 square miles and with a population of 10,000. The question of the principality's relations with Germany has become acute since Hitler's absorption of Austria. Leichtenstein, ruled over by Francis I, 85-year-old prince, was virtually a dependency of Austria from 1866 to the close of the world war, when it proclaimed its independence.

Topcoats Have Light Weight Casual Drape

IN spring a man wants the comfort of a good warm topcoat without the necessary effort of actually wearing one. This season more than ever before style designers the country over have recognized this fact. Through use of newly processed fabrics and drape styling, fabrics and tailorings are combined to give the wearer an actual knowledge of smart style and an unconscious realization of increased warmth. Newest drapes have soft construction throughout, with special attention paid the shoulders. The designs give a smooth flow from the shoulders to the flaring skirt of the topcoat. This casual air does not destroy tailored appearance, but lends itself readily to the desired ensemble effect for spring. Surveys from the smart winter resorts, both here and abroad, have proved the desire for the lighter weight fabrics, with the same amount of warmth.

Camel's Hair Popular

Ever-popular, camel's hair is introduced this season in styles that are lighter than the finest woollens, and warmer, too. This fabric by its very texture is easily adapted to the latest drape styles. The biggest hit of the season is covert, a soft, smooth, supple fabric which also drapes perfectly.

Tweeds and cheviots are light worsted fabrics that are serviceable and popular because of their all-around wearability and resistance to rainy weather. Now reversible coats are easily converted for the warmest and coolest days through the simple operation of a zip-fastener.

Black and navy is the word for sheers — in costumes that involve short sleeve dresses with white pique and linen touches, often topped by a small jacket or capelet.

LACE TONALITY

"High fashion" continues to endorse colored laces with blue especially singled out for mention. Fine Alencon types continue to be leaders with some point d'esprit seen for trimming. The use of fine lace beading and run-through ribbons as trimming on youthful feminine gowns is still important.

Black is the favorite color of the younger set for the Sunday afternoon "jam date". And pink is the popular color chosen to be worn with black.

Costume Belt Embroidered

THE new costume belt with peasant embroidery is attaining fashion interest with its hearts, flowers, stitching, rick-rac and gay colors. We saw one with bright red hearts of felt applied to loosely-woven hopsacking and strung on the cording to be worn a simple shirtmaker classic woollen spring frock.

Not enough women realize what fashion interest there is in a belt wardrobe. And this spring there are so many to choose from—patent leathers, gabardines, soft suedes, knitted things, etc. These can be worn usually with the complementary accessory of handbag or shoes.

This year, too, the little nations of Europe are making exquisitely embroidered belts like the ones we have mentioned in the first paragraph. The traditional patterns of the peasants are used in styling them. Linen belts in natural or color have bright woollen flowers embroidered on them. Many edges are finished with loose, twisted embroidered stitches in gay yarns. Many of them are completed with amusing buckles shaped into flowers — some of these being hand-painted.

Hats Sweep Upward To Show New Curls In The Coiffures

Spanish And Mexican Hats Give Dash In Spring Millinery Mode

WITH a dashing tilt to her new Spring hat, milady piles her curls high and ties her veil in a crisp bow under her chin. Bandanas fly gaily out behind the new Mexican roller hats, and wide Spanish sailors. Scarf turbans in gay colors perch forward to display the new coiffures. For it is a millinery mode of dash and color and youth!

Veils are more flattering than ever. Flowers bloom in profusion atop new crowns, and peep brightly from beneath tilted brims, or flaring bonnets. Fine straws in shining dark colors and rustic straws in a whole range of new sunny yellows, give variety to the most colorful hat mode in many years.

Youthful Movement In Hats Gains

There's a definite Youth Movement abroad this Spring, and its gayest expression is in the millinery mode. Many new shapes and colors adorn the smartest heads. Forward pitching bowl bretons are anchored with snood veils at the back, and show clustering curls plied high. Fluttering scarfs are wound around softly padded pill-boxes, and then draped in enchanting lines around the neck.

Sombreros with peaked crowns are tied on with firm chin straps and wide brims crowd the fashion picture. Stiff-brimmed new sailors and high profile brims are flattering to frame the face. Bonnets tie naively beneath the chin, and high padded berets bend gracefully back from the youthful forehead.

Costume Jewelry Is Extended

Now that the suit season is here, the vogue for large and glittering pieces of costume jewelry has been extended to lapels. Simulated tones in giddy color combinations are set in amusing shapes. A fat pelican appears with a turquoise beak, rose turmaline wings and an amethyst body. In another combination of stones he has a red tail and wing, a turquoise body and a yellow bill. Big spiders, butterflies and sprays of flowers are set with combinations of brilliant stones.

Small prong clips made of gold and rhinestones that can be stuck into the lapel take form in snails, beetles, flowers, swordfish, turtles, and frogs.

RUN PROOF

Silk knit panties are seen in a new tight warp knit that ensures greater elasticity, longer wear, and smoother fit. These are guaranteed run proof.

Rich Merchant Tortured

Charles Millgrim, wealthy Manhattan merchant, was tortured by thieves who burnt his feet with cigarettes in order to force him to tell the hiding place of a $50,000 diamond ring. Mr. Millgrim, his wife, children and servants were bound by the thieves and thrown into a closet. Mrs. Millgrim, frightened by the cries of her husband, revealed the hiding place of the diamond. The robbery netted the bandits over $95,000. Mr. and Mrs. Millgrim are shown ABOVE as they left the police station at Mineola, L.I. after being questioned about the robbery.

BRITAIN TAKES THE LEAD IN DESIGNING MEN'S CLOTHING

British Blade Suit Cuts Wide and Deep

SHEFFIELD steel has long been famous for its keenness and dependability. Likewise are the British dependable for style ideas in men's clothes. The keenness of their ideas adapted to American needs and produced in dependable American fabrics of quality and distinction, make a combination hard to beat. The whole world recognizes America as the ablest producer of men's ready-made clothes. The so-called British Blade idea in men's suits exemplifies all these things to such an extent that it has cut a pathway wide and deep across the country.

Style Illusion

No town is too small to resist the comfort and easy smartness of this model. Its broad comfortable shoulders put width where it belongs—not across the hips. This spring the waistline and buttons have been lowered to give the flattering illusion of greater height. Longer coats add to this impression and give a casual look of ease besides.

The three-button single-breasted suit will mark you as the owner of a 1938 model. Nevertheless, many men may not be informed and so will buy double-breasteds for another season.

Next in importance to the British Blade is the lounge type. This carries more natural shoulders, less chest and an all-soft construction. This idea is British also, but the execution is unbeatably American.

Smart Business

Favored fabrics for business wear are sharkskins and worsted cheviots. For evenings when you don't go formal, a dark blue cheviot or flannel is the thing. When you do go formal, it's in midnight blue. High style calls for the single-breasted tuxedo with satin lapels—but only for stag affairs or dinner parties at home. Tails take to town. And don't overlook the bet this summer—white tropical worsted dinner jacket with black tropical worsted trousers. This fabric is porous—hold it up to the light—it has elegance because it's a fine fabric, and its lack of weight will amaze you.

Double Wear

If you don't yet own a gabardine or a lightweight flannel, you've got some fun ahead of you. Get yourself one of the new patterned gabardines in the new greenish shades and this is what you'll get out of either it or a spring flannel. It is right for the office—without sport back—and yet in the country you will look as if you "belonged" whereas the guy who wades around in an ordinary business suit will indeed look like a fish out of water.

For straight sportswear get you a sport back jacket and either harmonizing or contrasting slacks. A greater latitude in colors for slacks will be seen everywhere this year. Don't be alarmed—you'll have plenty of comfort. You'll have the widest choice of fabrics on record this year—not only the always correct flannel, but also gabardine, next to weightless tropical worsted, bedford cord, and even cavalry twill. And don't forget green and greenish shades this spring—they are going big.

Gloves Shown In High Color

YELLOW gloves, red gloves, purple or blue gloves—in fact, almost anything but gloves in staid blacks or browns. For the hands are blossoming into colors this year as gaily as the heads and heels. The glove designers seem to have gone quite mad and the glove-shop windows have the appearance of lush tropical gardens.

And the suedes have it. Suede has turned out to be more important as a costume material this year, anyway, what with hats, jackets, tiny boleros, shoes, bags, and even skirts (or trousers) made from this long-suffering skin. So, despite the fact that there is always a large part of the population to whom kid gloves are the be all and end all, even they will find the soft, pliable brightly-colored suedes a tremendous addition to their spring wardrobes. They are not more expensive, either, some are even less, than the kid, and many of them are washable.

In the fabrics there are lots of innovations. A woven silk is much favored, its interest centred on color rather than any intricate ornamentation except for an occasional chain of the silk made in loops finishing off a cuff, or a contrasting stitching. The latter is the main attraction on ordinary, heavy cotton fabrics—navy with red binding, black with white, beige or yellow—and these are sometimes laced with bright kid.

INCREASE BOUNTIES

DUBLIN—(CP).—Ireland has set aside $198,400 for bounties on sugar made from home-grown beets and has increased estimates for bounties on eggs, poultry and dairy product exports.

Consulate Offices Besieged

Foreign consulate offices in Vienna were besieged after Hitler's entry into Austria as refugees sought visas that would enable them to flee to safety before the borders were closed. Many did get away, but the majority of applicants were forced to stay. The ABOVE photograph was made at the Polish consulate as a crowd milled around the door, waiting vainly for their visas.

Spring Jackets Strike Note Of Variations In Suits

Fabric And Pattern Trends Appear Newly Interesting

ANOTHER Spring season is here, in which suits will play an important part in the smart wardrobe.

Woolens and worsteds, the ever-popular fabrics, disport themselves in one of the most interesting varieties ever presented. Add to this the fact that these fabrics are fashioned into a wide range of styles with varying type jackets, coats and lengths, and you have a fabric and fashion picture to suit the most discriminating purchaser whose budget will permit of only one suit that must be fashioned right—or the woman who adores suits, whose wardrobe will permit many versions of the two-piece costume and who can choose a number of them without fear of repeating a fabric, a line or a style. The fabric, color and styling of a suit is most important because the furless suit this year is more important than that trimmed with fur. While mannish suits are, as always, important they are a bit more softly tailored this season.

Fabric in Color

The more favored Spring suitings are wool tweeds, twills, cheviots and mannish suitings. For town and semi-dressy wear gabardines, coverts, worsteds, nubby wool crepes and flannels are also most important. The fabrics that continue to hold popularity are monotone shetlands. These appear in herringbone, nubbed, regulation diagonal, hand embroidered effects, multi-colored flecks, novelty patterns and broken diamonds. The wide range of colors in wool suitings is most intriguing; blue spruce, grayed blues, light and dark coral, reef shades, light and dark sea sprays, hyacinth tints, platinum, peach, nude, natural, beige, plum, purplish blues, yellowish greens, chamois and banana yellows, bright and burnished golds, berry tones, pinkish rusts—tans from the palest tone to a deep, rich chocolate, the always correct navy blues, oxford grays and blacks. In many suit versions several of these shades are used in companionate ensembles, while others stick to a one color effect.

Contrasts

Among the more interesting suits are two and three-piece ensembles. In the latter, a skirt and coat of matching color may be contrasted with a skirt of a different color or fabric; plaids and plains are used with good effect—middletone costumes too are seen, shading from light to dark tones of a given color. Some three-piece ensembles are sold as complete outfits, or with the suit and coat sold separately.

Vent backs and four flap pockets, and seven gored flared skirts are interesting details of some Spring suits. A boxy finger-tip coat with notched collar and two-slash pockets is worn over a two-piece suit. The wrapover-front jacekt is of a contrasting plain tweed. Still another suit version shows a ¾ pencil tuxedo with slot seam at back. The facing is of solid contrasting color, to match the accompanying Shetland skirt.

Distinction

A beautiful hand woven effect is given to the needlepoint tweeds, which are next in importance. These patterns are most distinctly loomed and have a simple elegance that bespeaks quality.

New Child Study Seen In Clothes

Allowing the children to have more voice in the selection of their own clothes is said to be one of the scientific developments in child-raising this year. Surprising amount of good taste and practical judgment shown by these youngsters has encouraged teachers and parents to give them greater leeway.

One of the points stressed by children in choosing their clothes is the practicality of garments. In trying on garments, children take many liberties with the new merchandise, in testing its strength and comfort. Their special pleasure is in the choice of gay colors, yet extreme good taste is shown by many and a definite feeling for matching colors indicates that school children are color-wise and sensitive to hues at an early age.

Color is said to influence girls more than boys in selecting clothes, but even small boys show an amazing ability to choose the gayest colors in ties. Red is a favorite with both boys and girls; blue is very popular. Brown is liked more by boys than girls, perhaps from habit. Greens and yellows are liked by older girls, possibly due to their subtler hues. All the primary colors are popular.

"BLACK OUT" EDINBURGH

Three miles of Edinburgh's sea front on Scotland's Firth of Forth will be "blacked out" for an air raid rehearsal.

YOUTH 19, SUICIDES

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 30 (CP).—Coroner Dr. W. R. Sackhouse said he would issue a certificate of death due to suicide in connection with the death last night of Kenneth Zimmermann, 19, of Bowen Road, six miles west of Fort Erie.

Frank Zimmermann, the youth's father, found his son lying in the field about 100 yards from his home with a gunshot wound in his chest. At an investigation today Mr. and Mrs. Zimmermann said their son had been morose for weeks.

IN MEMORIAM

DAWSON. — In loving memory of Gerald Lucas Dawson, beloved Husband and Father, who passed away March 30, 1937.

Time speeds on; one year has passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright.
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will;
His vacant place there is none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his Wife and Children.

McGOWAN.—In loving memory of Lemick McGowan, a dear Husband and Father, who passed away March 30, 1937.

He is gone, but not forgotten;
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinkihg,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come over us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Every remembered by his loving Wife and Family.

DAVIS.—To the sweet memory of R. I. Frank, our Son and Brother, who passed away five years ago to-day.

We little thought when last we met,
Thy sun on earth was nearly set,
We said what we can ne'er forget,
"Dear boy, we'll meet again."
—Ever remembered by his Mother, Father, Sisters, and Brothers.

PACIFIC COAST SCANS DEFENCE IN WAR ALARMS

VANCOUVER, March 30 (CP). — British Columbia is a barrier—not an open door—to an attack upon Canada or the United States from the Pacific.

A cross-section of opinion today showed that military men in this coast province considered there is little danger of British Columbia becoming a "second Belgium" in the event of an attack from the west upon the North American continent.

"There is no possible danger of a hostile power attacking the United States through British Columbia," one veteran officer said. "I don't think it would be strategically possible," said another.

Meanwhile there was no apparent apprehension on the part of the people of the province that the coast might become a battleground in a war embroiling the Empire or the United States.

Recruiting in connection with the new coast defence works is going ahead in Vancouver and Victoria but it is understood there is no extraordinary rush of applicants. The Canadian Officers Training Corps at the University of British Columbia is slightly larger than last year but it was pointed out that the number enrolled varies from year to year.

From men in close touch with military training here it was learned that the youth of British Columbia—other than those actively engaged in militia training—are not thinking in terms of gas masks and bayonets.

B. C.'s Position

Suggestion that "British Columbia would become a second Belgium" if conflict spread to America's west coast was made by General H. D. B. Ketchen in Winnipeg last January.

Qualified agreement with this hypothesis was expressed by Major-General D. M. Hogarth of Toronto who said, however, that the province would "not lend herself to any invading force as Belgium did during the war."

This opinion was reflected largely by military men here. One of these commented that any attack on British Columbia would confine the hostile troops to the coast belt even if they were successful in obtaining a foothold. "There is only one road south and even that leads to another mountain barrier," this war-time officer said.

"Such barriers would make attack impossible without a vast expenditure of time and money away beyond reason." He also gave it as his opinion that the most important factor in naval power is distance from the home base and any European or Asiatic power invading this coast necessarily would be operating thousands of miles from its headquarters.

One Great War officer who also is a member of the provincial legislature said he believed intelligence officers of a foreign power were operating on the coast of British Columbia "not altogether for fishing purposes."

Basing his opinion on history, he said he did not think an Asiatic power would hesitate to attack Canada's coast if it thought it would be of any advantage. However, he doubted whether anything could be gained from such an attack.

Hitler Hailed As Conquering Hero

LONDON WOMAN TERRIBLY BURNED

In a semi-conscious condition, Mrs. Wilkinson was carried from the smoke-filled cellar by Frank North, a neighbor, who crawled into the basement to reach her.

With her clothes in flames, Mrs. Wilkinson had fought to reach safety through a window. She had broken a pane of glass but was too weak to crawl out. Instead she collapsed on the cellar floor.

By the time Mrs. Wilkinson was taken from the cellar nearly all the clothes were burned from her body.

Officials were puzzled over cause of the fire. A mattress in the basement was burned besides a few wooden articles on the floor nearby.

Two men rushed into the house but were driven back from the cellar by clouds of smoke. Mr. North, who lives across the street, managed to crawl down the cellar steps and eventually locate and rescue the woman.

Says Religion Easiest Thing To Sell

Ottawa, March 30 (CP)

WILLIAM Perkins Bull, Toronto lawyer and author of religious works, said in an interview that if every Church were "properly run" they would be full all the time.

"Religion is the easiest thing 'to sell.'" he said. "People want it—but not the way it is dished out today. You never saw a man who did not wish his children to attend Church or Sunday school. But they don't want to go and listen to the uninviting 'tripe' which is coming from many pulpits."

Bull said he was not laying the blame particularly on the ministers, many of whom were poorly paid and were "intellectually starved." The fault was with the Church as an organization.

YOUNG'S POINT

The Annual Spring Meetings of the Cheese Factory Patrons of Young's Point and Selwyn, Cheese factories, will be held, in the cheese factories at Young's Point on Thursday, March 31, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and at Selwyn on Friday, April 1, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. All those who are interested in the Cheese Factories are requested to attend these meetings.

Mrs. Alex. Calder of Warsaw, is visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duggan.

Owing to the death of Miss Lynch's uncle in Otonabee the junior room of the Public school was closed on Monday.

Messrs Andrew Wilson and Rex Wilson attended the meeting held in Peterborough, on Saturday to appoint a man to help in the testing of the milk in the cheese factories. J. Breathour was appointed.

5,500 Italians Are Shipped To Franco In March

Loyalists Hint Victory For Rebels Will See France Attack Him With Million Men

MADRID, March 30. — (AP). — The Spanish government, with "we must hold out" as its watchword, published to-day a lengthy report of German and Italian armaments and men being sent to the insurgent army.

The National Ministry of Defence prepared the report, covering the last few days of February and the first half of March.

It was issued after a "hold out" appeal yesterday by Premier Juan Negrin, who urged upon a conference of Popular Front delegates the need for speeded production of war materials to meet the insurgent drive into Catalonia.

The report detailed movements of hundreds of planes, tanks, trucks, artillerly pieces, loads of ammunition, motor boats and other equipment and of aviators, technicians and experts whom the defence ministry reported had been sent to eGneral Franco by Germany and Italy.

The report declared German officers are arriving in Spain with their families and fortifications are being constructed in Northern Spain near the frontier.

(In Rome the authoritative Fascist journalist, Virginio Gayda, asserted France and Russia were holding up withdrawal of foreigners fighting in Spain, saying Italy was ready to withdraw forces when these countries did so.

(He warned that open French intervention in Spain would have "grave consequences" of a general European character).

Hint France to Jump In.

Negrin, who received the pledge of delegates for increased volunteers for the government army and increased production of necessary materials, declared that if Franco won, an unnamed country—obviously France—"would have 1,000,000 men ready to attack them from the rear," and "thousands of Spanish youths would have to be sacrificed in foreign countries to defend Germans and Italians."

The report on German and Italian intervention said in part:

"On February 27, 28 German aviators left Totow near Stralsund (Germany) for Spain in two Junker planes and a further group of 86 left direct for Burgos.

"On February 28, about 80 German pilots from the Magsburg School of Aviation made a direct flight to Portugal, passing over rebel (insurgent) territory.

"On March 16 the merchant ship Franca Fassio (Italian registry) docked at Seville with 250 aviators, troops and materials.

"On March 10 four Spanish merchant ships escorted by two Spanish destroyers and various airplanes docked at Cadiz, and the next day an Italian hospital ship arrived there. The four ships carried 4,500 infantry troops, 500 Blackshirts, 90 of whom were aviators, 200 artillerymen, and some chauffeurs, all of whom were Italians.

"They shipped ashore 15 pursuit planes, three bombers, five big tanks and 10 small ones, four ambulances, three oil trucks, eight big trucks, 300 heavy aviation bombers and boxes of light artillery, machine guns and ammunition."

RAID BIG 4 FUND

WINNIPEG, March 30—(CP). — Police raided the Big-4 Relief Fund headquarters here yesterday, seized more than 24,000 ticket stubs representing an alleged investment of approximately $12,000 and arrested Andrew McMorland and Alexander Martin on charges of conducting a lottery. Police said the Big-4 is one of the largest lotteries operated in Canada.

4th Blackmail Tip Sent Janitor

STRATFORD, Ont., March 30 (C. P.). — A fourth threatening letter, signed "Mr. X" and demanding $500 was found yesterday by Norman Berlett under a back window of the Monkton Public School where Berlett is janitor. Monkton is 20 miles from Stratford.

The plain white envelope used for the note had the words "Yes or No" inscribed on the outside. A blank cheque on the Dominion Bank, Kitchener, was inside the envelope with the note.

NO DEATH PENALTY FOR SCHUSCHNIGG IF PUT ON TRIAL

By Louis P. Lochner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

VIENNA, March 30 (AP).—Kurt Von Schuschnigg, the last chancellor of independent Austria, faces a possible trial for violation of his own constitution.

Under no circumstances, however, will the question of the death penalty be involved.

Authoritative quarters denied today there was the slightest intention of acting vindictively against the former chancellor, foe of German annexation, who still is keeping to his Belvedere Palace.

Both Chancellor Hitler and Field Marshal Herman Goering, his right hand man, official spokesman say, have gone on record to say there would be no death penalty.

The chances of Von Schuschnigg coming up personally for trial are rated 50-50 by those sources. If he is tried and found guilty of fraudulent action in connection with his proposed plebiscite the penalty at most could be only two years.

The charge being considered is that Schuschnigg violated his own constitution by ordering a plebiscite without obtaining approval of his full cabinet. The trial, if held, would be decidedly novel in that an official of a non-existent regime would be tried under its dead laws by a different regime.

Britishers Worrying Washington By Ignoring "Escalation"

Washington, March 30 (AP). BRITISH officials are causing the state department great pain and anguish by their refusal to use the word "escalation," which the department thought up.

Escalation means the building of bigger battleships when other nations do so.

The British did use the word once—in their note to Japan in February asking for Japan's naval building intentions. That was because the United States had done so.

But now the two powers are drafting notices expressing their decision to invoke the "escalator clause" of the the London Navy Treaty.

This time Britain is not using the word "escalation." Foreign office aides found out it isn't in the dictionary.

Why didn't somebody TELL me?

WITHIN the next twelve months thousands of motorists are going to buy cars at or about the price of a LaSalle—and still not get a LaSalle.

Many of these, we are convinced, will do this because they do not appreciate how little a LaSalle costs. They assume that LaSalle's price is high—because its quality and reputation are so high. But this isn't true!

As a matter of fact, you can pay more for certain models of eleven other cars than it costs to get a new LaSalle V-8.

If you expect to pay more than $1,500 for your next motor car—go on up and get a LaSalle. You ought to do this because there is really no substitute for Cadillac quality, Cadillac safety and Cadillac prestige.

Drugged And Taken To Homewood Says Montrealer

"Need You, That's What I'm For, to Keep Rooms Full," Witness Claims Doctor Told Him—Hints Wife in Plot

TORONTO, March 31—(CP)—Angus McIntosh, Montreal groceries importer, charged today at an inquiry into affairs of the Homewood Sanitarium at Guelph, Ont., that he was taken to the institution after being given a drug by a Montreal physician.

The inquiry, conducted under an order-in-council of the Ontario government by F. H. Barlow, K.C., master of the Ontario Supreme Court, had McIntosh as first witness.

McIntosh said Dr. Colin Russell of Montreal visited him in March, 1934, and asked if he would have a blood test. He consented and "I woke up in the sanitarium."

McIntosh related he was visited by a Dr. Baugh and Dr. Harvey Clare, superintendent of the institution. He said:

"I was locked up in my bedroom and I remember him (Dr. Baugh) pointing his finger at me and saying: 'We got you by the drug route.' When I got strength I challenged Dr. Baugh and asked him what he meant by saying they had got me by the drug route. He said 'We want fellows like you. That's what I'm here for, to fill up these rooms. If I don't do it somebody else will.'"

Hints He Was Railroaded.

He quoted Dr. Clare as asking: "Do you know who railroaded you into Homewood?"

At the start of the hearing Mr. Barlow said the inquiry would cover the financial management of the sanitarium, one of the best-known of its kind in Canada. Complaints as to its conduct would be heard.

Counsel are C. L. Snyder, K.C., for the investigator; J. H. Woodhouse, for the province; Thomas Vien, K.C., Wishart Spence and Albert Mark for Angus McIntosh, and R. S. Robertson, K.C., and J. W. Pickup, K.C., for the Homewood

Snyder described McIntosh as the "chief complainant" in calling him to give evidence. McIntosh was examined by one of his counsel, Vien.

McIntosh said he was visited in his room in the sanitarium by a Dr. Liggett who said, "My boy, I'm afraid you are going to be a star Homewood order." A few minutes later a man who introduced himself as Dr. Burroughs "had the same thing to tell me."

The witness said he had lost his temper and challenged the doctor to meet him "outside."

There For Keeps.

Dr. Baugh had told him that Mrs. McIntosh had discussed "all his weak spots," and as a result he was "there for keeps."

McIntosh said he had told Dr. Clare the Homewood was "a racket" after the superintendent had suggested he take it easy for a while.

Two days after he found himself in Homewood in 1934 McIntosh said he was visited by his wife.

"Dr. Baugh and Mrs. McIntosh came to my room and said they were going to have me committed," he said. "I didn't know what it was 'to be committed' because I had never been in an institution before.

"My sisters came to see me, but Dr. Baugh told them they couldn't see me because I was mentally sick.

"Mrs. McIntosh told me she had arranged with Dr. Baugh—she was a pet of Dr. Baugh—to put me away for life.

"In the room I had the window was open about seven inches at all times. Dr. Baugh would drop in every day and made a practice of saying something sarcastic.

Plenty of Noise.

"There was a couch. They had a night attendant who slept on the couch, and it made lots of noise. The floors wer squeaky, the walls were thin. Anyone shouting in the next room could be heard. I had very little rest.

"The dormitory in which I slept a few times—Dr. Baugh put me there—had all types of cases.

McIntosh said there were 10 beds in the dormitory.

On one occasion he said he saw

COLD WAVE TRAILS PRAIRIES' WORST BLOW IN 35 YEARS

CALGARY, March 31—(CP).—Cold winds, lessened in intensity, swept snow-blanketed Southern Alberta to-day as a drop in temperatures heralded a cold wave following what old-timers termed the province's worst blizzard in 35 years.

Although Alberta storms abated, blizzards howled in Saskatchewan with snow piled in deep drifts and roads blocked. Manitoba was not touched by the storm and The Pas in the north was the only point in the province reporting snow. Temperatures across the Prairies were above zero, but colder weather was forecast with more snow expected in Saskatchewan.

Highways Blocked

Snow fell steadily in Northern Saskatchewan yesterday, and most highways out of Saskatoon were blocked, trains were running behind schedule. Snow and rain touched most parts of the southern drought area to brighten crop prospects.

Precipitation was reported all the way from Estevan in southeastern Saskatchewan, to East End in the southwest. Snow piled in drifts a foot deep, fields were covered by an inch of snow and impassable roads were frozen.

The frozen body of 70-year-old A. Skjelbred, farmer, was found a mile east of East End, where he was last reported Saturday when he visited the town for supplies. He was believed to have become exhausted, and died of a stroke.

FINED IN COURT FOR TAPPING TREES

Stories about running sap and the magic of the maple syrup industry are very much to the fore at this season of the year but this morning's police court, a case of tapping maples that had a new angle when George Pearson of Lakefield pleaded guilty to wilfully damaging a number of maple trees, the property of J. J. Northey of Deer Bay.

When the charge was read Pearson pleaded guilty. Then he explained to the magistrate that his son, a lad of 12 had tapped a number of Northey's trees to get a drink of sap. "He's always done that," said Pearson. "If he were home in Lakefield he would have half the trees in the village tapped."

"What damage does it do to the trees?" asked Magistrate Langley.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that he was informed that the tapping of maple trees rendered the wood unfit to be used for flooring. He told the court that Pearson had been camping in a tent on Northey's property and was engaged in trapping and that he was a nuisance to the owner of the property. Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $5 and costs to the extent of $10.95 which prompts that a lot of prime maple syrup can be bought for $15.95.

Fires First Gun

First gun in the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.'s financial campaign was fired Thursday morning when Mayor James Hamilton (LEFT) handed a cheque for $100 to James G. Wharry, general chairman of the drive. The campaign opens officially on Friday evening when a monster banquet, to be addressed by Controller Fred Conboy, will be tendered canvassers. Mayor Hamilton has been a director of the Y.M.C.A. for the past 15 years, has contributed $100 each year during that time and longer. He believes the Y.M.C.A. to be one of the greatest forces for good in Peterborough.

NEW BRITISH PLAN ON SPANISH PEACE IS GIVEN EUROPE

LONDON, March 31 (AP)—Great Britain today laid before representatives of Europe's major powers new proposals for obtaining early withdrawal of foreign troops from the Spanish civil war.

The British plan to end foreign intervention in Spain, where Insurgent armies—with Italian and German aid—are sweeping toward the Mediterranean and apparently toward final victory, was submitted to the chairman's subcommittee of the non-intervention committee in its first meeting in nearly two months.

Informed persons said Great Britain proposed first, a "new formula" for deciding when belligerent rights should be granted the warring factions; second, restoration of control on Spain's frontiers.

Faced with an opposition motion of censure on its Spanish policy, to come before the House of Commons Monday, the government was believed eager to obtain quick action.

The Earl of Plymouth, British chairman of the committee, explained Britain's position.

Legislature Plans To Close April 8

House Advances $4,000,000 Niagara Bridge Bill And Cancer Probe Plan With $2,500 Fine Feature

TORONTO, March 31—(CP)—Stimulated by prospects of proroguing the session April 8, Ontario legislature members today prepared to wind up the budget debate and reach a decision on a resolution asking the provinces be given authority to legalize sweepstakes for hospital purposes. The House also is scheduled to discuss the bill validating new contracts with Quebec power companies.

No one would hazard a guess whether the sweepstakes motion, sponsored by F. G. McBrien (Con., Toronto Parkdale) would obtain endorsation. Both Premier Hepburn and Conservative Leader Leopold Macaulay have declared they would support it. Several cabinet ministers and members on both sides of the House, however, are opposed Members have been flooded with protests.

Decision to end the session next week was reached late yesterday. Assured by Mr. Macaulay that he would co-operate, the premier dropped plans made yesterday for a series of night sessions and a Saturday afternoon meeting.

The House disposed of a mass of legislation at yesterday's session and heard from Highways Minister McQuesten an outline of the proposed $4,000,000 bridge to be built at Niagara Falls. Constructed by an "autority" named by Ontario and New York state, it will replace the collapsed Fall's View bridge.

Bridge 600 Feet Lower Down.

Mr. McQuesten disclosed the bridge would be built 600 feet down river from the one that collapsed in the January ice jam. Actual cost of the bridge will be $1,500,000 and at least another $2,000,000 would be required for purchasing land to provide extensive entrances.

The bridge will not enter Canada on River Road, but will be above the road and have an entrance on land to be bought near the Canadian National Electric Railways station. The Minister said about five acres would be bought to provide a large area for customs examination of cars.

After hearing his explanation, the House gave his bridge control bill second reading. It prohibits without government consent construction of a bridge over any stream whose bed is invested in the province. Consent is required where a

27 DEAD, 250 HURT AS TWISTER RIDES WESTERN STATES

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 31 (A.P.). — Five tornado-strafed Mid-Western States counted 27 persons killed and nearly 250 injured to-day. Unofficial estimates of the damage passed the $1,000,000 mark. Hundred were homeless.

The twisting storms, laden with hail and torrential rain, struck hardest in Central Illinois, where at least 10 were known dead. Next hardest hit was South-western Kansas, where seven, including three children, were killed. Five were known dead in Missouri storms.

About sundown what apparently was a separate storm twisted across Illinois from the South-west, dipping to earth in the Pekin area. Rushville and Astoria also were hard hit.

Another twister lashed at Heber Springs, Ark., killing four persons. Then it swung up through South-eastern Missouri, accounting for three of Missouri's dead at Poplar Bluff. An earlier Kansas blow had killed a woman at Conway.

Doctors and nurses were rushed to Pekin, where more than 250 houses were destroyed. The Pekin fire station and the Chicago and North-Western Railroad depot and roundhouse were demolished. About 150 passengers and freight cars were strewn in fragments alongside the tracks.

Quick work by teachers saved 100 pupils at Highland Grade School in Columbus. The building was wrecked. Near Chetopa, Kas., Miss Virginia Sappington led 20 pupils out of her rural school and ordered them to lie in a ditch. The building was heavily damaged.

DIES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 31.—(AP). — Albert W. Goodrich, 69, Chicago city fire commissioner from 1927 to 1931, died last night.

Goodrich once was owner of the Goodrich Transit Company, largest of the Great Lakes shipping lines, which he inherited from his father, the late A. E. Goodrich. He sold the company in 1921 for more than $1,000,000.

Grants Husband, Who Wed German Girl To Save Deportation, An Annulment

MONTREAL, March 31.—(CP).—The Halifax waterfront wedding of Joseph Himmelsback who married Bertha Hedwig John to save her from deportation to Germany in 1928 was described yesterday by Mr. Justice Alfred Forest as 'more like a comedy than a serious sacrament.' He granted the annulment and suggested all parties should be punished.

Describing details of the case, which he found "very strange," the Judge reviewed circumstances of the wedding, performed by Rev. I. I. Thompson, United church minister and chaplain at the Halifax immigration shed.

The bride, an immigrant from Germany, was about to be deported unless married to a Canadian citizen. The minister was summoned and arrived post haste in a taxicab. Provided, were two witnesses, strangers to the main parties concerned.

As far as the record shows, said the Judge, no license was obtained, no banns published. Testimony was taken from the witnesses in Halifax, but neither recalled taking part in the ceremony.

No Qualities, Nor Wish To Be Dictator Roosevelt Writes To Friend

Warm Springs, Ga., Mar. 31.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt, charging organized opponents of the United States government reorganization program had "planted bogies under every bed," asserted in a letter made public today he had "no inclination to be a dictator."

The letter, addressed to an unnamed friend under date of March 29, urged approval of the measure "in its present form" and replied to charges that the legislation would make him a dictator by asserting:

"As you well know, I am much opposed to an American dictatorship as you are, for three simple reasons:

"1. I have no inclination to be a dictator.

"2. I have none of the qualification which would make me a successful dictator.

"3. I have too much historical background and too much knowledge of existing dictatorships to make me desire any form of dictatorship for a democracy like the United States of America."

The name of the president's correspondent regarding reorganization was withheld because, it was said in a prefatory statement, "He did not write for publicity purposes."

Turgeon Also Favors Collective Bargaining Idea

Suggests Publicity on Costs' Deception, Stock Watering; Emphasizes Employers' Responsibility to Community

OTTAWA, March 31—(CP)—Responsibility to the community of employers in tariff-protected industries was emphasized in 180,000-word report of Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon, on the textile industry tabled today in the House of Commons by Finance Minister Dunning. Report contained the findings resulting from an enquiry into Canada's textile industry that lasted from March, 1936, until March, 1937.

Judge Turgeon devoted much of his report to labor relations and recommended shorter hours of work, uniformity in piece-work payments and, in view of the fact that industrials have become grouped in trade associations ,recognition of the workers' right to do the same thing. The commissioner urged development of "the processes of collective bargaining."

Effective publicity as a means to counter efforts at deception regarding costs, profits, stockwatering, secret reserves and other elements disclosed during the investigation was recommended. By this means the commissioner would curb also activities of industrialists who promote propaganda with a view to restricting competition.

Shut Down Unwarranted.

Mr. Justice Turgeon found closing of the Sherboroke, Que., plant of the Dominion Textile Company on January, 1436, was not justified. It was this incident which precipitated the investigation. The action was "hasty" and taken "without due consideration of the real situation." It had caused distress and alarm and was "calculated to impress the government with the necessity of acceding at once to the request put before it by the delegation."

(This was the delegation which in January, 1936, saw a sub-committee of the Cabinet and pleaded for government action on the ground Japanese competition in textiles was resulting in cancellation of orders).

Seventh Woman Dies — Inventor Called To Scene—All Ensol Seized

ORLANDO, Fla., March 31.—(AP).—Physicians said to-day they feared deaths among persons who had been treated with a cancer serum might mount to 10.

Mrs. F. E. Moonetr, 63, of Winter Park, Fla., died to-day. Six other women died yesterday.

Two men and a woman—E. S. Bolte, C. S. Pore and Mrs. Lydia Morrison, all of Orlanda—were reported near death from a tetanus infection (lockjaw) in hospitals here to-day. Another patient, Mrs. Ola Hall, of Orlando, was under treatment after developing symptoms of tetanus.

Dr. T. A. Neal said the seven persons who have died and the four now in hospitals had received the cancer treatment serum injections made in Kingston, Ont., at his clinic. He added that other per-

917 Cars Of Food Sent To West

Toronto, March 31.

A TOTAL of 917 carloads of fruit and vegetables were sent to the drouth area of Western Canada last year through the work of the Joint Committee of the Churches for Western Relief, stated Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, in a report presented yesterday before the United Church of Canada. The National Committee on Western Relief, organized by the United Church of Canada, sent 4,906 bales or boxes of clothing to Western Canada to aid stricken families. More than 900 was raised by the Joint Committee of the Churches for Western Relief as a result of the Christmas appeal made over the Canadian Radio Corporation network, it was reported.

W. J. Dunlop Is Honored As Masonic Grand Master

Foundation Stones Of Democracy Are To Be Found In Home, Church And School

TORONTO, March 31. — High-ranking Masons from twenty-five lodges in District "D" gathered together at the first spring assembly in Eaton's Round Room last night to honor their new Grand Master, W. J. Dunlop, and Past Masters who received honors at the last communication of the Grand Lodge.

The others who were honored were: I. B. Musselman, Bishop W. C. White, F. Sillivant, Sage Snider, A. E. Bryson, A. A. Kinghorn, John Back and R. W. Hines

Replying to the toast of the Grand Lodge of Canada, Bishop William C. White said he had found the secret of the strength in the British Empire. It was to be found in the home sentiment which, despite evidence of weakening elsewhere, was still strong throughout the Old Land. He was glad to find Masonry so firmly established and every meeting of the Grand Lodge he had attended had been an inspiration.

"The jurisdiction was one of the strongest in the word, with 100,000 members," said the speaker. "In fact it was the mother of the other Grand Lodges of Canada. We must

FRENCH PLEDGE TO HELP CZECHS NOT JUST BLUFF

Urges Hitler Normalize Dealings to Ease Strain

PARIS, March 31.—(CP-Havas).—France to-day advised Germany French pledges to defend Czechoslovakia meant exactly what they said and exhorted the Reich to 'normalize' its relations with that country in order to relieve international strain.

Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour received German Ambassador Johannes Von Welczeck to make this statement to him in the name of the French government. He said he hoped the Reich, animated by a desire for peace equal to that of the French cabinet, would bring about normalization of German-Czechosolvakia relations.

The German envoy expressed interest in the French communication and said he would send it on with a special note drawing his government's attention to it. He also expressed the hope France would use the authority deriving from its alliance with Praha to facilitate a peaceful arrangement.

FRIENDS DO HONOR TO SEN. G. GRAHAM ON 79TH BIRTHDAY

OTTAWA, March 31 (C.P.). — Rt. Hon. George P. Graham, Brockville Liberal Senator, was 79 years old to-day and last night an historic gathering did honor to the veteran Parliamentarian and his wife at a dinner.

The function was attended by Senator Graham's colleagues in Prime Minister Mackenzie King's first ministry of 1921-25.

Those who attended and the portfolios they held in that Government were: Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Senator J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, and Mrs. King; Senator Raoul Dandurand, Minister without portfolio; Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, and Madam Lapointe; Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Senator John E. Sinclair, Minister without portfolio; Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Interior, and Mrs. Stewart; Senator James Murdock, Minister of Labor, and Mrs. Murdock; Hon. W. R. Motherwell; Senator A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, and Mrs. Copp; Madame Beland, widow of Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Pensions and National Health; and Miss Hazel Sherritt, who was Mr. Graham's private secretary while he was a member of the Government.

Only Two Absent.

Two members of the first King ministry could not be present, Hon. E. J. McMurray of Winnipeg, Solicitor General, and Hon. E. M. Macdonald, who for a time was Nova Scotia's member in the Cabinet as Minister of National Defence.

Mr. Mackenzie King was also a colleague of Mr. Graham in the Laurier government which terminated in 1911, as was Sir Allen Aylesworth, now in the Senate. Mr. Mackenzie King was Minister of Labor and Sir Allen Minister of Justice. Mr. Graham was Minister of Railways with Laurier, Minister of National Defence and afterwards Minister of Railways in the Mackenzie King Cabinet.

Fond reminiscences were exchanged at the dinner. Life-long friends joined in congratulating the popular Senator and his wife, both of whom appeared in good health. Mrs. Graham seemed to have lost none of the graciousness and charm which has won so much affection and Senator Graham had the same sparkling humor which does not fade as the years pass.

Toronto, March 31 (CP)

CRATES and boxes of supplies for school children in the drought areas were piled up at Regina, due to "red tape," President A. C. Lewis of the Canadian Teachers' Federation said here today.

"I wrote to Sir Edward Beatty, Canadian Pacific Railway president, and S. J. Hungerford, president of Canadian National Railways, and it looks as if things were getting under way for better distribution," Lewis added.

Supplies for drought-district children were forwarded by scores of Ontario schools. Shipments included clothing, footwear, books, pencils and chalk. Lewis said the difficulty was to arrange fast distribution from Regina.

Second Plane Lost With 5 Aboard In U.S. Navy Games

Bulk of American Fleet Halts War Manoeuvres To Comb Ocean off Honolulu for Flying Boat

HONOLULU, March 31—(AP)—Its gigantic war games already made deadly realistic with loss of at least five lives, the bulk of the United States fleet turned from naval manoeuvres to search today for a second flying boat missing with its crew of five men.

Meantime, rescue craft began recovering the bodies of five airmen who plunged into the sea with the first plane yesterday.

Two men in the first crew of seven escaped with their lives from a bomber which crashed off Oahu Island. The bodies of two others were recovered by salvage craft.

One was identified as the body of Lieut. L. O. Crane of Nashville, Tenn. The other was not identified.

As the hours passed hope faded for the missing plane and its crew which vanished during rough weather yesterday.

Naval officers kept secret the details of rescue efforts and the disappearance of the flying boat, most recent of a series of aerial mishaps that have dogged the naval manoeuvres. The missing craft was one of the older type flying boats.

SUDETEN SENATORS SNUB RED SPEAKER

The Sudeten senators, followed by the Hungarians and Slovaks, marched demonstratively out of the Czechoslovak senate yesterday when a Communist senator rose to speak.

The departure of the Slovaks elicited sardonic jeers from the majority Czech senators: 'You are following your Hungarian brothers?"

Tuesday the Hungarian deputy Szullo astounded the Chamber of Deputies by speaking of "our Slovak brothers"—a reference that the newspapers played up today, recalling the persecution of the Slovaks by the Hungarians before the Great War.

The attitude of the Slovak minority was the subject of considerable anxious discussion in the press and in political circles, however. In one respect they differ from the Germans in having as their essential interest the maintenance of Czechoslovakia as a state, some observers said.

Others, however, believed they had decided to throw in their lot with the Germans. The Socialist paper Prevolidu said their attitude "comes dangerously close to high treason."

Churches Be Filled If 'Properly Run'

OTTAWA, March 31. — William Perkins Bull, Toronto lawyer and author of religious works, said in an interview at Ottawa that if every church was "properly run" they would be full all the time.

"Religion is the easiest thing 'to sell'," he said. "People want it — but not the way it is dished out to-day. You never saw a man who did not wish his children to attend church or Sunday School. But they don't want to go and listen to the uninviting stuff, which is coming from many pulpits."

Bull said he was not laying the blame particularly on the ministers, many of whom were poorly paid and were "intellectually starved." The fault was with the church as an organization.

LERIDA GARRISON APPEARS DOOMED

HENDAYE, France, March 31 — General Franco to-day aimed twin thrusts toward the Mediterranean and deadly severance of Government Spain.

His central army worked its way through the suburbs of Lerida, ancient city and fortress, 80 miles from Barcelona and but 45 miles from the coastal city of Tarragona.

The right wing, 42 miles to the south, menaced Gandesa, an outpost also on the road to Tarragona. This force already had crossed the Algas River, five miles west of Gandesa, and was slightly closer to the coast than the army investing Lerida.

Insurgents were attempting to surround and isolate the Government garrison in Lerida, the castle that defends the Sagre River Valley which has been described as the "gateway" to Barcelona. The city was virtually deserted by civilians. The defenders had blown up electric plants inside its walls.

The Government blew up a huge dam and opened floodgates in the Cinca River Valley, temporarily flooding insurgent bridges thrown up in the advance. Two international brigades, including North American volunteers, were reported brought from Madrid and other sectors to stem the advance upon the historic city.

MARMORA

DOUBLE DEBATE FEATURES SOCIAL

MARMORA, March 30. — The Young People's Union of St. Andrew's United church held an enjoyable social evening in St. Andrew's Hall on Monday evening. Other organizations of its kind in the district had been invited, but owing to weather conditions and other social activities, the attendance was not as large as had been expected.

Harry Haacke performed the duties of chairman and after a musical prelude a debate was held, "Resolved, that co-operation is better than competition in the business world." The affirmative was taken by Stewart Bonter and Ewart Haacke and the negative by Hubert Hollingsworth and Donald Prentice. The negative won by a slight margin.

After another musical prelude, a debate, "Resolved, that it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all." The affirmative was taken by Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth and Edith Henry of Marmora and the negative by two Havelock Union members. The latter were declared winners.

More musical selections followed. Stewart Bonter took over the programa at this point for the social section. A visiting member from Havelock won a movie contest, with Mrs. Howard Linton being a close second. Games and a delicious lunch wound up the evening's program.

Law Has Tender Heart, Long Memory Revealed In Case In Police Court

Proceedings in one case in today's police court revealed the fact that the law sometimes has a tender heart and also that it often has also a very long memory.

Henry Woods, a seventeen-year-old Actinolite youth pleaded guilty to the theft of a quantity of scrap iron from Louis Florence and at the suggestion of the Crown was allowed to go on suspended sentence as a first offender, on the condition that he leave Peterborough and did not return here during the next two years.

That phase of the case was happily ended when Provincial Constable David Silvester entered the court in connection with another matter and his eyes happened to stray in the direction of Ellis Woods, an older brother of the accused who had come to town to assist his younger brother. The officer recognized the elder Woods as a youth who had been granted an adjournment in a liquor charge heard in the Belmont town hall in 1933 and who had failed to return to be tried. Woods was promptly arrested and on the five-year-old charge will likely be allowed to return home on bail while the matter will be referred to the Attorney-General's Department to see if the authorities want to proceed in the case.

McIntosh started to tell what he had heard and was asked by his counsel and Mr. Barlow to confine his remarks to what he saw.

"All the advertisements about the Homewood say it's quiet—it's no such thing," the witness asserted.

McIntosh said his room was so dirty he had to get down on his knees and scrub it himself.

"I had lots of company — cockroaches by the hundreds, and mice," he said.

"I refused to eat their food and lived on bread and butter and Spanish onions."

Claims He Is Sane.

Snyder asked the witness: "According to the courts and doctors, you are a sane person in the Province of Ontario?" The reply was "Yes."

"And in Quebec?"

"Yes."

Questioned by Robertson, counsel for the Homewood, McIntosh said he was married 14 years prior to 1934, and had "made the best" of his married life.

"Were you ill prior to 1934?" Robertson asked.

"Yes, I was tired out in the fall of 1933."

McIntosh said in 1933 he was persuaded to spend a few days in hospital in Montreal. He denied he was attended by a Dr. Burgess, who was a friend. Through Dr. Burgess he met Dr. Russell.

"Dr. Russell said my good wife was worried about me and wanted me to have a blood test," McIntosh said.

Painted Homewood a Palace.

His business, in which he "started with a shoestring and built up an enormous business," had tired him out.

"My wife and Dr. Russell kept harping about what a palace Homewood santarium was," he continued. "I had been having a snooze when Dr. Russell spoke about the bolod test. The next think I knew I was in Homewood. I don't remember how I got there. I don't remember signing anything.

"No one can remember what they have done while being kept under the influence of drugs."

From Homewood he was taken to the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital on an order from the court. He remained there 40 days, then was allowed out on probation for a time. Other physicians examined him. Finally he was released.

Paid for His Keep.

"What if anything happened to your estate in Quebec while you were in Homewood?" asked Snyder.

Robertson objected to the question.

"This is an inquiry into Homewood sanitarium," he remarked.

Vien said payments were made out of the estate to keep McIntosh in the institution. Robertson insisted Homewood had nothing to do with what happened in Quebec.

"Does Mr. Robertson know that Dr. Baugh and Dr. Clare went down to Montreal and gave evidence in the interdiction proceedings?" asked Vien.

Snyder said the question was: "Does there exist an institution in Ontario to which a person may be wrongly sent?" also, while he was there, could somebody rob his estate in Quebec?

"Are we going to investigate proceedings in Quebec to see if the courts there know their business?" inquired Robertson.

Mr. Barlow said some questions might be relevant.

McIntosh said he was not on good terms with his wife, adding she was a "nuisance" when she visited him at the Guelph institution.

Robertson objected again when the witness was asked what his company paid for his keep. McIntosh was permitted to answer.

Stay Cost Him $9,554.

Reading from the account he said the amount paid was $9,554.41, or $349.55 a month for 26 months.

"Who was responsible for putting you in the sanitarium?" asked Snyder.

"My wife was the ringleader. Then there was Dr. Colin Russell."

"You believe your wife married him?"

"I was told that."

McIntosh said he was confined in the Homewood as a mental patient but received no mental attendance. He had to go out "and walk the country roads with the chain gang." Relatives could not see him until he obtained a court order.

He said "certain patients" received whiskey daily.

sons may have received injections from the same bottle of serum but he had not been able to determine definitely.

A coroner's jury met to-day and requested Dr. H. C. Connell of Kingston, inventor of the serum called ensol, to come here to aid in investigations being conducted by county, state and federal authorities.

The jury then recessed its hearing until physicians report on an autopsy performed on Mrs. Moonert. Doctors said the report might not be ready for several days.

Dr. Neal and Dr. Connell both said they felt sure the bottle of serum from which the victims had been given injections somehow had become contaminated.

The bottle was given to the Federal Food and Drug Administration for investigation to the contents and Dr. J. J. Durrett, chief of the drug division, said all ensol in the country would be seized pending a final report from investigators.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, spokesman for the American Medical Association, said in Chicago he did not expect many deaths from use of the product since it was restricted to physicians and not sold over drug store counters.

Fishbein said the association had declined to approve use of the serum and had warned against its use.

Novel Senate Election In Eire Proves Valera Victory

Electoral College Picks Choices From 132 Candidates on Ballot Nearly Yard Square

DUBLIN, March 31 (CP Cable).—As vote counting for 49 elected members of the new senate of Eire was concluded early today, party officials estimated Prime Minister De Valera's party took 25 places to 24 for all other groups.

As the prime minister will fill 11 seats on his own nomination, he will have an opportunity of providing his Fianna Fail party with a substantial majority, even though it is difficult to define the politics of many of the senators elected today.

Total strength of the body, which replaces the senate eliminated by Mr. De Valera in 1936 as "obstructionist," is 60 members.

Those hopeful that a new sort of non-political senate would emerge from the novel method of election were disappointed. Only 24 of the 49 elected had not been former members either of the Dail (lower House of Parliament) or the old senate. Some others were termed straight politicians.

Many candidates regarded as highly desirable additions to the senate were lost in the unprecedented lobbying scramble, not even getting first preference votes.

A Few Examples

For instance, the poll in the culture and education section of the ballot was headed by a well-known horse breeder and dealer, while the noted Irish scholar, Seamus Haughey, scraped the bottom of the panel.

The six university representatives were elected separately. For the first time a Roman Catholic candidate, John Fitzgerald, contested Trinity College but he was at the bottom of the poll.

In the National University, regarded as a De Valera stronghold, the government elected only Mrs. Helena Concannon while the fine Gael party headed by W. T. Cosgrave elected Professor Michael Tierney and Henry Barniville, a surgeon.

The most picturesque figure in the new senate is McGillicuddy-of-the-Reeks who owns the famous Kerry Mountain as long as snow appears on its highest peak on June 1 annually. He was a fine Gael candidate of the agricultural panel.

Others elected include J. J. Parkinson, well-known race horse owner; Professor Michael Hayes, speaker of the Dail during the Cosgrave government; and General Richard Mulcahy, a Cosgrave supporter.

Method May Be Shelved

Allegations of abuses during the election already are current it is believed doubtful the present cumbersome method of election will be retained. The constitution provides for election of a new senate whenever a new Dail is elected.

The senate balloting, cast by mail, was most complicated.

That was what the 354 members of the electoral college had to wrestle with. They had to make up their minds among the claims of 132 candidates for 43 seats. Trinity and National University each elected three members, to complete the 49 elected.

The electoral college was composed of all members of the Dail and 217 representatives of county councils. The election was conducted on proportional representation.

With the exception of the Labor party, all political groups were disciplined into voting their own particular ticket.

Labor boycotted the election on the ground it did not get "a square deal."

be on our guard against subversive elements for we are coming to days when Masonry will be tested.

Proud of Honor.

W. J. Stewart, C.B.E., in proposing the toast to the Grand Master, said he was proud of the honor conferred upon him. The Grand Master was a man who worked in his church, labored in the craft, and was charged with heavy academic responsibility.

In response to the eulogy tendered him, Dr. W. J. Dunlop said he had found Mr. Stewart always eager to help any good work. He was delighted to see such a splendid gathering from the district in which he had come up in the craft.

The Grand Master said the foundation stones of democracy to-day, as at no other time, were to be found in the home, the church and the school. "We have somes being broken up because some men and some women forget what they are here for," he declared. We want Masons to support the church. Extremists may vaunt their pet theories, but Masonry and the church have so much in common they should never be divided.

"It's a wonderful bond that binds us together," he continued. "I'd like to suggest that we allaw Masonry to work on our characters. Men with personality and without education, can do wonderful things, but men with education and no personality, are helpless. I want to let you all know how proud I am to have been associated with you and to have come up from among you."

Responds to Toast.

Responding to the toast to the guests of honor, I. B. Musselman said he was pleased to see such a splendid representation from the rural lodges. He didn't know a higher honor than to be an officer in this district.

Mayor Ralph Day, who was present as a guest, said he was called to many duty gatherings, but this was one which he was geuinely thankful to be able to attend. He hoped something could be done to help the younger generation to more thoroughly understand the sacrifices made by the older generations in opening up the Dominion of Canada and making it habitable.

The party visited the Legislative Buildings, and was said by veteran guides to be the largest group ever conducted through the buildings.

Chief Newhall Not Surprised At Report Of Welsh Tactics

Parties Heading For Peterborough Intercepted During Strike

Muscular tactics employed in a Woodstock textile strike directed by Alex. Welsh, who devoted his talents to Peterborough last summer, did not greatly surprise Chief Constable Newhall. The Canadian Press story to The Examiner yesterday told particularly of the recruiting of twenty men in Kitchener for a strong arm job in Woodstock, specifically to beat up "scabs."

Mr. Welsh's solicitous orders to his shock troops, according to a witness in the police court trial, was "he told us to toss the scab around but don't kill him."

Chief Newhall recalled this morning that a truck load of 'visitors' was intercepted down town here by Police Constable Menzies and shooed down No. 7 highway to the Brockville front, where a window-smashing job was "pulled" that night. On several other occasions other parties heading for Peterborough, according to police information, were intercepted in Toronto during the time of Mr. Welsh's temporarily importance as a strike leader.

JUDGE SUGGESTS

Mr. Justice Forest declared the presiding minister should have verified identity of the marriage parties; should have demanded a license or proof that banns had been published. Failing in this, the minister had committed an illegal act, said the Judge.

Even then, said the Judge, the minister had not the right to celebrate the marriage, for the husband, who brought the annulment action, was a Roman Catholic and his newly-met bride a Lutheran.

"Marriage," concluded the Judge, "is not only a contract but also a sacrament for which the Catholic church lays down regulations applying to all of its members no matter n what part of the world they may be located."

East Durham Orange Lodge Elect L. T. Offland Master

Worshipful Master Of Ontario East Addresses Annual Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 31.—The largest attendance in its history, together with interest and enthusiasm of an outstanding character, were highlights of the annual meeting of the East Durham L.O.L., held in the Orange Hall, Millbrook, on Monday at 8 p.m., with the District County Master, Brother L. T. Offland, of Garden Hill, occupying the chair.

The County Master, Brother Sam Archer, who has completed his three-year term of service, was absent because of serious illness, and is at present a patient in the Port Hope hospital. In the course of the evening's business, the secretary was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to Brother Archer from the East Durham Lodge.

Lodges Well Represented

The fourteen Lodges of Manvers, Hope, and Cavan were well represented at the meeting, the guest of honor being the Grand Master of Ontario East, Brother E. N. Mitchell of Lindsay who gave a most instructive and comprehensive address. Other speakers of the evening were Brother F. W. Bowen, ex-M.P. for Durham, and a number of the visiting brethren from Port Hope and other points.

The election of officers resulted in the following slate for 1938: Worshipful County Master, Brother L. T. Offland, of Garden Hill; Deputy County Master, Brother Crawford English, Janetville; Chaplain, Brother F. L. Griffith, Port Hope; recording secretary, Brother Nathaniel Belch, Millbrook, who has held this office for twenty-five consecutive years, and whose request that he be allowed to retire this year and be replaced by some other candidate for the position, was refused; treasurer, Brother Stewart Fallis, Millbrook; Marshall, Brother James H. Paul, Past County Master; Lecturers, Brothers W. K. Gilmour, Campbellcroft and Percy Zealand, Port Hope.

Celebrate Twelfth

Considerable time was given to the discussion of the annual Orange parade on July Twelfth, two places, Peterborough and Orono, intending to hold celebrations; finally it was decided to leave it to the individual Lodges to decide at which point they would "walk." The matter of delegates to attend the Grand Lodge for Ontario East, which will meet at Port Hope in April, and at which a very large attendance is anticipated, was given detailed attention, with assurance that East Durham L.O.L. will be well represented.

At the conclusion of the business session, a substantial lunch was served, the Lodges of Cavan district providing the refreshments and attending to their service.

No Radio Delivery Minus License

Ottawa, March 31 (CP)

EFFECTIVE Friday, purchasers of radio sets will be required to produce or buy a license before dealers may deliver their purchases, according to an order of the Transport Department proclaimed today in an extra issue of the Canada Gazette.

The order makes it an offense for a person to instal or operate more than one set in his home without obtaining extra licenses. It makes it unlawful to operate a set that emits radiations interfering with reception of other set owners.

Dealers and service men are prohibited from servicing or repairing sets unless the owners can produce licenses entitling them to operate the sets.

MEXICANS DRAFT REVOLUTION PARTY

MEXICO CITY, March 31 (AP)—A new "party of the revolution" came into being today to carry on the Mexico for Mexicans' program, looking toward a society without classes in a Socialist state.

The new party of laborers, farmers and soldiers is an intensified government party, taking over the organization of President Lazaro Cardenas' former national revolutionary party. Barba Gonzalez, head of the old party, was named president.

Its proposed platform, presented in convention last night, carries a call for "progressive nationalization of big industry" (such as expropriation of the $400,000,000 foreign-owned oil industry).

The taking over of the oil industry from 17 British, United States and Netherlands owners brought vigorous United States representations asking how Mexico would pay indemnity, and today there were indications of a possible split in Cardenas' hitherto solid congregational support. A special session of congress will take up the oil question April 11.

FLY ORCHIDS TO COLOGNE

Three orchids, originally from Switzerland and valued at $255, were flown from London to Cologne, Germany.

Citizens Inspect Wreckage Of Large Apartment House

Barcelona, Spain, after Gen. Francisco Franco's insurgent bombers had blasted the Loyalist metropolis and capital for 41 hours in a series of raids. Nearly one thousand persons perished and thousands were injured. The bombing probably was the most destructive from the air that a large city ever suffered. Tall buildings were shattered completely to their foundations. Tram cars and automobiles were destroyed as they moved. Electrical and water services were disrupted. No place seemed safe.

DOWNEYVILLE

A very successful auction sale was held here Friday at the farm of the late Neil Murray. Mr. Ted Jackson of Port Perry was the auctioneer and everything brought fair prices. The machinery sold well, also some furniture, and geese sold for $2.50 each, hens 85 cents each, young pigs $4.60 each, one old pig for $46.00, cows from $38.00 to $68.00, young cattle $27.00 and $28.00, a young calf brought $8.50 and horses from $87.00 to $95.00.

Mr. Patrick Fitzgerald started plowing Tuesday, March 22, which is the earliest around here in over 60 years for anyone to be on the land.

Miss Marie O'Neill, of Toronto, spent the week-end the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neill.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guiry spent Sunday the guests of friends in Peterborough.

DROP IN TAXABLE CITY PROPERTIES IS HELD CALAMITY

EDMONTON, March 31—(CP). — Steady decline of the number of taxable city properties at a time of expanding needs was termed "calamitous" by the cities of Alberta in a brief to be submitted to-day before the Rowell Commission.

Of almost equal importance was the general shrinkage in value of real estate resulting from excessive taxation imposed in recent years to finance relief and other social services, the cities asserted.

"It is hardly necessary to say that a transfer of these extraneous burdens to those authorities logically responsible for them would at once result in substantial relief to the present overburdened city taxpayer and a rapid recovery in real estate values," the cities said.

They recommended that the Federal Government assume responsibility for social services, with the cities remaining responsible for 20 per cent. of the total cost of the services "during a period of transition."

They advocated equal division of the education burden between province and cities, with the provincial contribution building gradually to that point, and suggested the Dominion should "credit" the cities with all moneys spent on relief either by capitalization of debt or in cash.

They advocated that real property taxes should be limited to the cost of services benefitting the property and other services should be paid for by personal taxes.

Tax Government Property

They suggested taxation of all government property, or grants in lieu of taxes.

The municipalities followed the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce which yesterday concluded its presentation, expected to be the most comprehensive of the score to be heard here by the commission.

John M. Imrie, managing director of the Edmonton Journal and chairman of the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, suggested the Dominion should take over control of services related closely to the lives of the people as a means of developing an increased sense of national unity.

"The Dominion as such must be made to mean more in the intimate lives of the Canadian people if the handicap of our far-flung population, our three great natural barriers and the economic disabilities these in themselves impose, are to be overcome and there is to be a strong and vibrant national spirit throughout Canada," Mr. Imrie said.

He submitted "the attainment of a better state of public health, of a larger measure of social security, of higher standards of living, are subjects that give scope for emotional co-operation irrespective of provincial boundaries."

He voiced the chamber's dissatisfaction with the progress made by the railways along the lines of co-operation laid down in the Duff report and suggested a parliamentary inquiry.

TRAFFIC OFFICERS CHANGED.

LONDON. — Traffic Officer Peter J. Grant of Blenheim on Saturday will replace Traffic Officer Gilbert Robertson of Lambeth who leaves then for Brantford. Inspector T. G. P. Lucas, who announced the change to-day, said that Traffic Officer D. W. Wilson of Brantford, who originally was to have exchanged with Robertson, will go to Colborne in Eastern Ontario.

IMPORTS MOSTLY FOREIGN

OTTAWA, March 31 (CP)—Of the $46,951,619 worth of goods imported by Canada during February, $11,856,310 worth came from British Empire countries and $35,095,309 from foreign countries, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

During the same month a year ago imports amounted to $48,680,842, with $12,859,966 worth coming from Empire countries and the rest from foreign markets.

CHINESE SWORDS CROSS BAYONETS IN FLAMING TOWN

SHANGHAI, March 31—(AP). — Fierce hand-to-hand fighting without quarter raged in the streets of Taierchwang to-day as the 17-day battle between Japanese and Chinese along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway continued without decisive result.

Taierchwang, located on a narrow-gauge branch railway east of the main line, was in flames Japanese, who had fought into the city from the north, engaged in frequent bayonet charges, while Chinese defended themselves with broadswords. They raked each other's lines with machine-gun fire at 50 yards.

Meanwhile, a new Japanese threat at the vital East-West Lunghai Railway corridor was directed from the south in hitherto unscathed North Kiangsu province.

Foreign military observers said a strong Japanese column had advanced unobtrusively more than 80 miles from Nantungchow, on the Yangtse River north of Shanghai, since March 17, and was moving against Lichwang, 100 miles south of the Lunghai line.

QUEBEC SEIGNEUR TITLES MAY PASS

QUEBEC, March 31 (CP).—Within a few months of a Provincial Government commission will start examination of Seigneurial titles in the large number of Quebec lands whose tenants annually pay dues under a system dating back more than 200 years.

The Quebec Legislative Assembly yesterday passed a measure for appointment of the commission which will be charged with the extensive tasks.

While the bill was under discussion, Premier Duplessis told the House the Union Nationale Government intended first of all to establish the true value of the titles, in some cases complicated in mortgages and deeds of ownership transfer.

And when that is done and the Government is "in the position and has the means, it will seek to do away with the system while making sure that all concerned receive justice," he explained.

MILLBROOK

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hill, and family, motored from Toronto on Sunday and visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, the latter returning with them, and intending this week to take in the International Flower Show while in Toronto.

Mrs. Percy Stinson and Miss M. E. Needham went to Toronto on Saturday, remaining over the week-end and attending the Flower Show returning home the early part of this week. Miss Ruth Thorndyke also went to Toronto on Saturday, returning the same evening.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong entertained the five hundred club at her home, Centre street, on Monday evening.

Local boys who played with the Port Hope junior hockey team last winter, and who, with other members of the team, were presented with windbreakers and ties at the Capitol Theatre in the lakeside town on Friday evening, were Reg Edmunds and Orval Wainman. The latter's many friends are glad to know that he has recovered from his operation for appendicitis at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

Mr. Charles Thorndyke was the twenty-fifth cash customer in Ford's meat market on Saturday, receiving a large smoked ham.

Miss Emma Hunter, who has spent the winter with Mr. and Mrs. William Wilkinson, re-opened her own home for the current season on Monday.

The comedy, "In May with June," which the local Young People's Union intends entering in the Presbytery competition will be presented on Friday evening, in the basement of St. Andrew's church, when they are holding an April Fool party, with games and other features on the program.

The mild epidemic of whooping-cough which has been prevailing recently in the village, is apparently waning, with practically all of the children who had the disease well on the road to recovery.

Libby's Tomato Products

YES, INDEED! MOTHERS EVERYWHERE ARE DISCOVERING THAT LIBBY'S EXCLUSIVE "GENTLE PRESS" METHOD MAKES A "MAGIC" DIFFERENCE! The young lady welcomes her steaming bowl of Libby's "Gentle Press" Tomato Soup*—Dad joins her—and insists on Libby's "Gentle Press" Tomato Catchup with his meat, while the whole family goes for Libby's "Gentle Press" Tomato Juice—Canada's most popular and frequently bought Tomato Juice. There is a reason for this well deserved popularity. Libby's Tomato Products are made the exclusive "Gentle Press" way. "Gentle Press" is a patented method, which Libby alone can use, of gently extracting only the pure juice from certified tomatoes on which Libby has lavished 25 years of seed selection. The natural tomato flavour is captured and held in all its August freshness. To discover the magic of Libby's Tomato Products—try them. See for yourself how their very presence on the table brightens the appetite of every member of the family.

It Is Unthinkable

When the method of distributing seed grain in the province of Saskatchewan was being discussed in the House of Commons, the claim was advanced that there should be some definite rule made so that some farmers would not get enough seed while others might receive too much. This point was raised by T. C. Douglas, M.P., of Weyburn, Sask. Mr. Douglas is a member of the C.C.F., also a Baptist minister; has a thorough enough knowledge of how things are done in the West politically and otherwise. Mr. Douglas in his address stated:

"We might as well be realistic; within the next three months we are going to face a provincial election in Saskatchewan. We are now giving to such a cabinet (of the Saskatchewan legislature) the dispensing of $14,500,000 worth of seed with a federal guarantee behind it. I for one have no wish to see the distribution of that seed become a political football in Saskatchewan. . . . You give to a small group of men the distribution of $14,500,000 worth of seed without sufficient safeguard that such distribution shall not be influenced by partisan considerations."

Mr. Douglas as a rule is a reasonable man in debate, and he is not given to making reckless statements. If there is even a suspicion that the situation he suggests might come into actual operation then it is something for which the politicians themselves should be called upon to furnish explanation.

The Dominion government is guaranteeing an expenditure of $14,500,000, but the Dominion government does not possess one dollar apart from what it takes from the people of the Dominion. That means that people from Atlantic to Pacific, many of them needy enough, themselves, will be called upon to become responsible for this large expenditure in order that farmers in dried-out Saskatchewan will have opportunity to try once more for a crop in the year 1938. It is unthinkable that any red-blooded man would desire to inject political advantage to the extent of even one bushel of that grain. If there is any degree whatsoever of substantial fact in what Mr. Douglas has indicated then politics in Saskatchewan has dropped into a deep pit from which it does not deserve to be rescued.

Why Funds Are Needed

One collector for the Y.M.C.A. annual financial campaign was making his rounds ahead of time. The date for the campaign is April 1 to 8, but this gentleman said when he got his list he wanted to get the thing completed because he had a good many things to attend to with spring coming on. He is a merchant.

Not the least doubt others who go out looking for money for the Y. have the same problem. There are 60 men doing the work and they all have their own businesses to attend to, but they are glad enough to put in the time because they believe in what they are doing.

There will be another campaign like this next year and the year after. The Y.M.C.A. cannot be self-sustaining, and the reason is not difficult to understand. The Y makes its services available to many boys, little fellows and larger ones; to many young men and to older ones. It is not possible to collect enough from the boys to pay their way. A boy can have the membership at from $2 to $5 for a year, while the cost of providing all the services and attending to maintenance etc., is actually $17 for the year. That is why the Y has to secure additional funds. To restrict membership to those who could pay for what they receive would shut out the very people the Y wants to reach. That is why these 60 men are seeking for money and we have no hesitation in commending what they are doing.

How Debt Grows

The Native Sons of British Columbia, an organization of recent vintage, is certain that government contracts in that province have contained not only the cost of the work but a great deal more. The "great deal more" has gone to political favorites who secured these contracts.

The Native Sons submit the following as evidence, and they secured the information from public records of previous provincial administrations:

"A bid was accepted for painting a bridge. It was for $4,807. The Government paid $23,580 for the work.

"Contract price for 1.89 miles of road was $36,940. The cost to the Treasury was $62,890.

"The estimate of paving 3.27 miles of road was $88,000, but the Government paid out $153,213.

"The estimated cost of a major highway construction undertaken was $1,601,000. The ultimate cost was in excess of $3 millions.

The sum of $176,415 was spent on a bridge in a sparsely settled district. A suitable span across the same stream, providing equally adequate service, could have been built for $45,000.

A little addition and then substraction shows that the total amount which should have been spent for the projects listed above is $1,775,747. The actual amount spent was $3,416,098, so the outlay was $1,640,351 greater than needed. In other words, just that much of the people's money handed over to political favorites. Those dishonest dollars are no doubt securely tucked away in the provincial debt of British Columbia today and people are paying interest on the amount.

Keeping The People On Edge

Reserves of the Italian anti-aircraft force were called out by an order from Rome. They were assigned to all batteries in what are called strategic positions, and in all this constituted the hurried movement of a fairly large number of troopers. The explanation given is that it was intended as a demonstration of Italy's annoyance and concern because of the night flight over Italian territory of a French military plane. The French plane crashed and four officers were killed. The explanation of French officials is that the plane had probably lost its way in the fog when seeking to return to its base in North Africa.

This particular French plane did not drop any bombs; it was not the forerunner of a raid on Italian territory. The men who were operating it could not have seen anything which was going on in Italy because they were flying at night and in a fog. Had they been able to see they would not have crashed.

A reasonable interpretation of the presence of this lone plane would be that it did not amount to anything at all. And yet it was sufficient to call for something resembling a demonstration in Italy with the manning of anti-aircraft equipment and the rushing up of reserves to all strategic points. It serves well enough to illustrate the tension at which public and national feeling is kept in mid-European countries. It is close to the snapping point all the time, and the dictators see that it is kept there. Calm reason and ordinary wholesome toleration and mutual understanding have little opportunity to operate in such atmosphere.

It indicates too how dictators manage to keep alive the element of fear of attack from the outside. They claim they need large armies to give a sense of security, but the truth is they do not wish that sense of security to become widespread or general among their people. One lone plane flying in a foggy night over forbidden territory—and flying as it did toward a fatal crash—is sufficient to be used to keep the people on edge lest a raid be coming.

The Doctor Of The Future

Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former Lieutenant-Governor of the province, is reported to have had a rough time after making an address which is credited with having defeated the Osteopaths' Bill. The purpose of the bill was to grant to osteopaths, chiropractors and drugless practitioners in general the right to use the designation of "Doctor." This right already exists in several of our provinces, but not in Ontario.

The arguments presented by Dr. Bruce attacked the ability of the drugless practitioner to diagnose properly, and he was of the opinion that the school of materia medica was right and others were wrong As we understand it the committee hearing the argument was not constituted so that it could pass upon the relative merits of various systems. In fact the committee did not have the technical competence to do so. The question was whether or not the word "Doctor" could be employed by the manipulative and drugless practitioners.

Quoting from notes made some time ago, we give the opinion of an Ontario surgeon, now retired, on "The Doctor of the Future." This surgeon said:

"The doctor of the future is going to have a greater opportunity than those who are working today. There is going to be more knowledge and equipment from which he can make his selection, and if he is wise he will make it from a rather broad field. He will take all that is known to be practically sound from his own schooling and he will discard that which has in it a serious element of doubt. He will invade the field of the manipulative practitioner and if he finds therein anything of known value he will adopt it. He will do the same with electrical devices. He will move without prejudice to gather around him all the material and skill and knowledge he can assemble, and that will be his basis of operation. I envy the man who is going to be able to do that for he should be well equipped."

Learning About A Planet

A gentleman in this city who can go out on a clear evening and call a number of the stars by their first names, informed the Examiner that Mercury, smallest of the planets in the solar system, could now be seen without the use of a telescope. It appears just above the brighter Venus which for the moment is the evening star of note. It is yellowish in color as contrasted to the clear light of Venus.

Listening to our informant we found that Mercury is the smallest of the planets, being but 3000 miles in diameter. But even if it is small it has the reputation of being the hottest with a temperature of 750 degrees on the sunward side, while the dark side is many degrees below zero. Likewise we learned that Mercury has no atmosphere and no clouds. Going a little deeper we found this planet has just passed "superior conjunction with the sun." We admit that must be rather an important event in the life and adventures of Mercury. Now that this planet has worked toward the position where we can take a look at it without the aid of a telescope it might be interesting to do so. It will annoy no person on Mercury because there are no inhabitants.

The Friendly Border

Charles A. Cummings is a native of Maryborough township, near Listowel. He left for United States 18 years ago, but never took out citizenship papers. He has lived in various places in the republic; he married there and now has a family of three children.

Last year he entered Canada on a six months' permit to visit with his own folk. That permit expired and it was necessary to go back to United States. The family started but when they reached the border Mr. Cummings was not allowed to cross, but the rest of the family got through as they were American-born.

The result is Cummings is on the Canadian side and cannot cross over; his wife and three children are on the other side and cannot come back. So another family is broken. If the husband and father is not allowed to go and support his wife and family then the state will have to provide for them, so the state in enforcing its border laws is actually creating for itself a problem which otherwise would not exist. Cummings himself made a mistake, but it looks as though the state itself were making a greater one.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Hydro probe is going to dig into the question of the money paid John Aird. It may do no harm to have that affair Aird again.

Details in regard to Canada's fighting planes are being kept secret at Ottawa. News as to the Canadian navy is not, however, so easily concealed.

Toronto alderman wants grants to conventions cut off. Evidently he is of the opinion the honorable delegates should buy their own lemonade.

Fifteen Chinese gaming joints in Vancouver have closed. Surely they are not afraid Japanese bombing planes will stray that far.

There is more moisture in the west than for years and judging from police court reports things are not so dry in the east either.

Absent-minded Italian accidentally swallowed an electric bulb. Probably he had a hazy notion about being put on a light diet.

Mr. Hepburn says he has bought enough tickets on draws to paper a house. His statement would seem more interesting however if he had told how many times he had won.

Over 13,000 musicians have entered the annual Music Festival at Winnipeg. It is evident that for some time at least in Manitoba "the night shall be filled with music."

Premier King charges that the delay in instituting unemployment insurance has been caused by the provinces and so far as we can see the latter might just as well plead guilty.

A German flyer has broken the non-stop record set up by an Italian aviator last January. If that kind of thing keeps on the Rome-Berlin axis may be severely tested.

Col. W. P. Mulock is mentioned as a possible successor to Hon. J. C. Elliott should the latter be compelled because of illness to retire. There would be nothing new in having a postmaster-general named Mulock.

Port Credit is said to have landed a $2,000,000 factory. If we watch our step in Peterborough and do not set up the impression that we are hostile to industries we may get a plum like that, too.

THISTLEVILLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My friend from Thistleville declares, the people there are free from cares, removed they are from strife; the world outside may strip its gears, and spend its days and nights in fears, see little joy in life.

¶ But Thistleville goes on its way, lives much the same from day to day, its folk are not disturbed; from things outside they live apart, nor do they jump in fearsome start, by each much-heated word.

¶ Stock markets do not bother them, nor shiver up their business men, when prices fall or soar; there's just one business man to scare, for 30 years he has been there, and runs the corner store.

¶ The price of pork may rise or fall, it does not bother them at all, with eggs and milk the same; they killed a pig some time ago, most all they need to eat they grow, scant meals they never came.

¶ The folk in Thistleville I hear, live quiet and simple year on year, nor are they filled with grief; if some one's out of luck in there, the neighbors make it their affair, so no one seeks relief.

¶ Of Thistleville and all its ways, I like to hear on stormy days, when things don't go too well; when I get tired in limb and mind I think I'll go out there and find—a place where I may dwell.

Politics Mixed With Seed Grain

(From Official Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. GOLDING: Have these farmers sold wheat without keeping any seed?

Mr. DOUGLAS: I am referring to the farming community as a whole and not to individuals. Wheat will be coming back, not necessarily to the same farmer that sold it, though the wheat that is now being brought back to farmers in the district is wheat that was sold by other farmers there.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Was it the Creelman farmers who shipped wheat in June last year?

Mr. DOUGLAS: They did not ship in June last. The wheat was ordered to be held at the elevator.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): It must have been bought from the farmers there.

Mr. DOUGLAS: Yes, two years ago. Most of that wheat was bought there in 1935-36.

Mr. EVANS: Did those farmers get seed in 1937 when they grew a crop in 1936?

Mr. DOUGLAS: Quite a bit of that wheat was sold in 1935 and some of it was rusted.

With reference to distribution there are still some unsatisfactory aspects that should be looked into. The Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Gardiner), describing the method of distribution, made this statement on Friday last as reported at page 1851 of Hansard:

. . . (a) the committee of the cabinet and the inspector for the district determine the amount of seed grain and supplies that a municipality may advance; that is, the cabinet in Regina decides the amount that each municipality can advance within the municipality.

Mr. GARDINER: That is the total.

Mr. DOUGLAS: Yes, the total amount that will be distributed; but what each farmer will get will depend upon the total. That seems to me a lot of power to put into the hands of an inspector and the committee of the cabinet. We might as well be realistic; within the next three months we are going to face a provincial election in Saskatchewan. We are now giving to such a cabinet the dispensing of $14,500,000 worth of seed with a federal guarantee behind it. I for one have no wish to see the distribution of that seed become a political football in Saskatchewan.

Mr. GARDINER: Is the hon. member suggesting that the Liberal party, which happens to form the government of Saskatchewan at the present time, would give too little seed, or too much seed? Which is he suggesting?

Mr. BENNETT: Too little to some; too much to others.

Mr. DOUGLAS: I am suggesting that in view of an election being near at hand the distribution ought to be on a uniform and equal basis.

Mr. DUNNING: But the distribution is done by the councils.

Mr. DOUGLAS: It is also done to municipalities by the cabinet.

Mr. DUNNING: No, you said the total. Don't switch it.

Mr. DOUGLAS: I am not switching, if the minister will wait a moment. He has been in the cabinet so long that he keeps looking for things that are not there. The cabinet and the inspector will have the power to decide what the lump sum shall be to each municipality. There are bound to be municipalities which are persona grata to a government and others that are not. There are districts which are favourably inclined politically and districts which are unfavourably inclined politically. I am not suggesting—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. DOUGLAS: —knowing the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. GARDINER) as I do, that they are going to refuse to a certain municipality enough seed or give another too much. But I point out that we as a federal parliament, divorced as of course we are from these party considerations—

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Which party? I wonder if the same thing would be true about some municipal councils?

Mr. DOUGLAS: I leave it to the hon. member to figure out the municipal councils. As a federal parliament, guaranteeing a large sum of money, there ought to be reasonable assurance that in the distribution of this seed and of feed and supplies there will be no discrimination. And giving the distribution to a committee in company with an inspector, with no clearly defined statement of how much money is to be spent in any one place, provides no such assurance. We have the statement of the minister himself (Mr. Gardiner) on Friday last, as reported on page 1851 of Hansard:

On farms of 320 acres or less of cultivated land not more than sixty per cent.

On farms over 320 acres of cultivated land, fifty per cent thereof may be sown up to a maximum of 250 acres.

There is no statement of how much per acre, no statement of how much repairs on the basis of acreage, no statement of the amount of fuel on the basis of acreage, or of feed. You give to a small group of men the distribution of $14,500,000 worth of seed without sufficient safeguard that such distribution shall not be influenced by partisan considerations.

Mr. DUNNING: What safeguard does my hon. friend suggest? Let us have something practical.

Mr. DOUGLAS: I gave it. A short time ago I outlined a sliding scale of percentages of a man's cultivated land.

THEY DON'T LIKE JAIL.

(Toronto Telegram)

ALD. PERCY QUINN has discovered that the inmates of the Jail Farm at Langstaff have a grievance. They don't like the food, they don't like the accommodation; in fact, if one is to believe their story as narrated by the worthy alderman, the Jail Farm is a most undesirable place.

We are rather surprised, however, that Ald. Quinn should be so easily carried away by the exparte statements of a prejudiced witness. It would be most extraordinary to find any inmate of an institution of this kind giving it a glowing testimonial. It would almost convince one that he was in the wrong place.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics.

Why Not?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I have been reading with interest some of the things which have been said about Premier Hepburn calling the ministers hypocrites, and I have also read principally in outside papers some of the heated replies which a few ministers have been making.

We often hear people talking about the League of Nations, and wondering why that great organization which cost the nations of the world hundreds of millions cannot function with success. I think in a small way we have an example before us now. Our premier received a number of protests about making lotteries legal in this province and he at once found refuge in the word hypocrites. Then the ministers replied in terms which though more moderate still showed they wanted to toss the harpoon into Mr. Hepburn.

I have a notion that is why the League of Nations will not work. The League is made up of men just as is our legislature and our ministry. If we cannot discuss an ordinary question without getting so much heat into it then how do we expect nations to do any better when they have so much more at stake?

I often notice that members of the legislature, particularly the leaders, are referred to as replying to some charge "white with anger," or "with fist clenched," and so on. People in business do not settle matters in that mood. If they did they would not be long in business. So why cannot we have a fair share of common sense in our legislature and elsewhere?

W. P. B.

Peterborough, March 30.

Explanation.

Editor Examiner:

Sir: May I have a moment of your time for a word of explanation. I should like to point out that your reporter who called me this morning re Mr. Hepburn's speech on the sweepstakes has so quoted my remarks as to leave an implication I had no intention of making. At the time of the interview I had not yet read the morning paper in which the house debate was reported. Your reporter therefore read me a few extracts and briefly explained the situation. I received the impression that not only the clergy but also those members of congregations who voted against government controlled sweepstakes were called "hypocrites." Supporting this idea was the reporter's question as to whether any of my congregation, which supported the motion, held sweepstake tickets. I told him I knew of none in the congregation who held them. But, the reporter persisted, there may have been some who held them without my knowing it. I said that was possible but I could not see that made hypocrites of anyone for there were 34 who either abstained from voting or who opposed the resolution. That does not mean, as your publication seems to imply, that I suspect any individuals who voted against the resolution of holding sweepstake tickets. That is not true.

May I further point out that it is my conviction that there may well be people who held such tickets but who believe the principle wrong, and therefore not a good thing for Ontario. They would not be hypocrites if they did support such a resolution. All the reported debate in the house that reveals the mind of the speakers shows that all, including Messrs. McBrien, Macaulay and Hepburn, regard sweepstakes and the government's present participation in them as wrong. They simply want to make them a public and open wrong rather than individual and secret. The wrong that they admit is what the Church cannot endorse.

Yours,
REV. V. E. R. ZUFELT.

The Flower Show

Editor Examiner:

Sir: This letter was sent to me and gives some idea of a notable event.

They have a wonderful flower show in Toronto this week. I saw it yesterday. The convention of American and Canadian Florists is being held there this year and the Flower Show is connected with it. They claim that the show is worth a million and a half in dollars. Quite a few American entries but mostly Canadian. Prizes up to $6,000 for one display. It certainly was gorgeous. I wish you could have seen it. I do not suppose that I will ever see the equal.

There were several displays of Chrysanthemums forty feet by sixty feet, all colors; rock gardens; formal gardens, etc. Hundreds of the most wonderful Cinneraries and Calceolaries in every shade of beauty. Thousands of tulips, narcisse, crocus, daffodils in a galaxy of color by the Dutch bulb producers. Some narcisse as large around as your wrist.

One show-case with a hundred Gardenias (worth $300). There were two displays of Acacia trees (6 ft. to 10 ft. tall). One kind covered with little round yellow balls, flowers about the size of a large pea. They had Wistaria, pruned into small trees; Lilacs in full bloom. Rhododendrons, Azaleas, Magnolias massed like corners of Fairyland. Azaleas massed in four foot clumps of solid bloom mauve, white and pink. I spent eight hours there: M. came in and spent five hours with me although she had spent five hours the Saturday before. There were fifty amaryllis in one bed all as large as tea plates. That would take your eye.

They had baskets (10 feet tall) each containing fifty roses of the most wonderful variety and quality ever raised by the grace of God and the hand of man. Also gardens of roses of every kind and color. Dozens of laburnam trees; orchids, rare and beautiful. There was also an Orchid Girl as rare and beautiful as the flowers; her dress orchid in color, orchid decorated, with orchids in her hair and in her hand. I came back to see this display five times.

Another item which would interest you was a Black Iris; finely veined in black on a silvery background. Also a spoon cactus, with leaves like basting spoons; bowls of ivory and handles green with pointed edges. Giant mignonette there was, with a length of 18 inches, three inches through. One rock garden was so true in proportion that if you could have moved it bodily, it would fit in a forest glade. The illuminated display of carnations dazzled the imagination.

Anemones there were that were equal to their pictures in the seed catalogues; and Ranuncualae, like tight lipped roses, that were superior to their pictures. One end had a bank of flowers fifty feet wide by ten feet high of a thousand varieties. Also there was a "Crown of Thorn" plant from which they made the Crown of Christ. There was the Westminster Abbey in confectioner's sugar which came from Chicago by express and worried the express men al lthe way; so beautiful and so fragile: a work of tremendous patience and high art. And you could view the panorama from the Mezzanine floor and see all this bauty blended in one picture.

POSITION OF CZECHS.

(New York Herald Tribune)

SIMILARLY, Hitler now has too many opportunities to cultivate prospects on down the Danube, in Hungary and Rumania, or to bring further internal pressure to bear on Czechoslovakia, to be in any haste about a frontal assault upon that "bastion of Europe."

Though a rich and strategically desirable prize for a Nazi Germany on the march, Czechoslovakia, with a highly trained army, elaborate defensive works and the resources of her great armaments industry, is by no means so militarily impotent as the maps suggest.

And the Czechs have said — and they are practically the only people in Europe to have said it with complete conviction — that they will fight. That establishes one fixed point around which the unstable combinations may for some years yet revolve.

AND IT'S SO EASY.

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—The Liberal member for Rosthern, Mr. W. A. Tucker, has the correct plan when he makes the proposal that the Government should issue $560,000,000 in new currency through the Bank of Canada. This money would be free of interest and therefore could be used to undertake a huge system of public works which can only be undertaken under that basis is if you have to borrow money for these capital expenditures it creates a greater burden of taxation on the people. Unemployement would be completely banished from our land which abounds with wealth. The dictators in Europe have adopted the above method and we must adopt the same system if we want to survive.

We could build up strong coastal defences at all the vulnerable points on our coast lines and also build up an aerial fleet of at least 100 planes. All these necessary improvements can be put through if we adopt Mr. Tucker's plan.

LENT.

(New York Sun)

LENT IS everybody's penitential season that wants it. All are privileged to find their own ways of taming the flesh. The abstinence may be from cocktails or caramels, from cream or sugar, from cabs or comedies—yea, even from laziness! If little is seen of the self-imposed deprivations of Lent, that is because the really devout do not run around exhibiting their virtue.

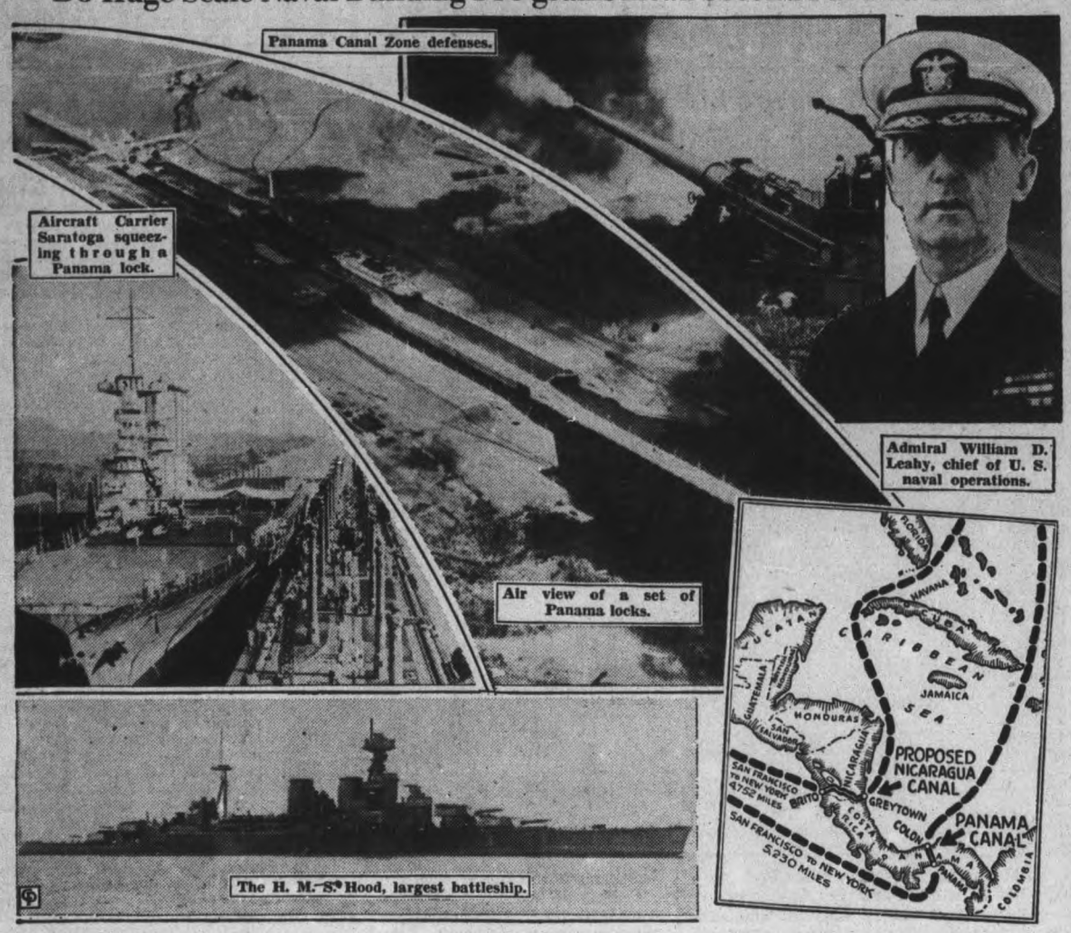
Do Huge-Scale Naval Building Pro grams mean Second Panama Canal?



Public attention once more is centred on the apparent inherent weaknesses of the Panama canal, lifeline of the United States' national defence. Once more, the subject of a Nicaraguan canal project is revived. Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of U. S. naval operations, was one who admitted the vulnerability of the Panama canal before the U.S. house naval affairs committee hearing on the $800,000,000 naval program. Chief difficulty with the 25-year-old canal is its size and its vulnerability to long-range battleship bombardment and attacks from the air. Floating gibraltars of the future, which will be larger than the Britsh battle cruser Hood, now the world's largest fighting ship, will have difficulty negotiating the canal. The Hood did a few years back. Similar trouble was experienced by the U. S. aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga, which like the Hood, have 105½-foot beams. Observers point out that two canals are safer than one and also much in need because of the expanding volume of cross-isthmian traffic. The proposed Nicaraguan canal would cut 428 miles from the New York-San Francisco route and 675 miles from New Orleans-San Francisco run.

DEFICIT EXPECTED UNDER 35 MILLION

OTTAWA, March 31 (C.P.). — Canada ended the fiscal year 1937-38 to-day and faces a new year in which the main estimates indicate $418,968,000 will be spent on Government services, exclusive of railway deficits and relief costs.

Total estimates for the fiscal year ending to-day were $553,000,000, but all this amount will not be spent.

In the 11 months ending February 28, a surplus of $27,000,000 in revenues over expenditures was accomplished. Revenues jumped $68,000,000 to $471,000,000, while expenditures increased $9,000,000 to $444,000,000.

Finance Minister Dunning had said that there would have been a strong possibility of a balanced budget if the drought in the West had not proved such a tremendous drain on the Federal Treasury.

Smaller Deficit.

Expenditures in March will likely show increases over revenue, but when Mr. Dunning brings down his budget, probably sometime in May, it is predicted in some circles that the deficit will be much less than the $35,000,000 forecast as maximum in last year's budget speech.

Observers believe trade figures for the fiscal year will show large increases when they are completely compiled. Latest trade statistics for the nine months ending December, 1937, show total aggregate trade of Canada to be valued at $1,513,836,609, compared with $1,326,100,058 for the same period in 1936. Aggregate trade for the 12 month period might conceivably touch $1,800,000,000.

For the nine month period ending last December, excess of exports over imports was estimated at $239,150,937, compared with $326,455,904 for the same period in the previous year.

Leadership School At Centreville

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, March 31.—The first meeting of the Leadership Training School under the auspices of the Cavan and South Monaghan Religious Education Council, was held in the Sunday School hall on Tuesday night with a good attendance.

The various schools were well represented. Stewart McGill, superintendent of Centreville Sunday School, dean of the school, extended a hearty welcome to all interested in Sunday School work.

Following the devotional exercises conducted by Rev. D. A. McKenzie, Miss Estella Hetherington of Millbrook gave a comprehensive outline of the course of studies. The school was divided into three sections. The leader of the young ladies' group is Miss Hetherington and the subject for study is "Standard for Sunday Church School." Rev. J. R. Trumpour, of Cavan, takes the young men's class, their special study is "Youth at Worship."

Rev. E. M. Cook, Fraserville, is leader of the adult group, their theme is "The Program of Christianity." Between the two periods of study Fred Barnard led all the classes in Biblical questions and answers.

First Class Air Service Expected Across Canada This Year

Hungerford Talks Of 200 MPH Planes And Staff Equal To Best

OTTAWA, March 31 — (CP). — "There is every reason to expect that the objective of a first-class air transport service across Canada, forging another link between the Atlantic and the Pacific, will be achieved in the year 1938," said S. J. Hungerford, president of the board of directors in the first annual report of the Trans-Canada Air Lines. It will be tabled in the House of Commons to-day.

The report will be considered by the House Committee on Railways in the same manner as the Canadian National Railways report is considered. Operating organization has been carried on vigorously, the report said, and the training of personnel is well advanced.

The report, for the period ending December 31, 1937, recalled that since the Trans-Canada Air Lines Act received assent on April 10 last, most of the activities have necessarily been preliminary to operation. Shortly after his appointment as vice-president, Philip G. Johnson made a survey by air and on the ground of the entire proposed route between Vancouver and Montreal and a survey was later made of the section east of Montreal.

Subject to the required approval of the Governor-in-Council, the route proposed for the initial stages is from Moncton to Vancouver via Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, North Bay, Kapuskasing, Wagaming, Winnipeg, Regina and Lethbridge, with an extension from Lethbridge through Calgary to Edmonton and a branch from Vancouver to Seattle. The latter has been in operation since last September.

International Routes

The matter of other international mail routes is receiving consideration. The international routes involve an agreement between Canada and the United States and conversations have already taken place.

Provision of emergency landing fields, radio beam equipment and certain other facilities is the responsibility of the Dominion Department of Transport.

"There has been, and continues to be, complete collaboration between the officers of the corporation and of the department in these matters," the report stated.

Satisfactory arrangements have been made by the corporation for use of the municipal airports and other facilities at Winnipeg, Regina, Lethbridge, Cranbrook and Seattle. Negotiations are in hand looking to a term agreement at Vancouver, where a temporary arrangement is in effect and there have been preliminary discussions with the municipal authorities at Calgary and Edmonton, and arrangements for the use of airports east of Winnipeg are under consideration.

Although it is the policy of the Trans-Canada Air Lines to make use wherever possible of the existing facilities available at airports, not all of them have hangar space suitable for large transport planes and the corporation is building its own hangars at Winnipeg and Lethbridge.

The first commercial operation of the Trans-Canada was the Vancouver-Seattle service, which was taken over from Canadian Airways Limited on September 1, 1937.

10 Planes On Order

Equipment included two Lockheed electra monoplanes. Before the end of the year, three more of these electras, of 10a's, were acquired. They are twin-engined planes with passenger accommodation for 10 and a crew of two, cargo capacity of 800 pounds and a cruising speed with full load at 10,000 feet above sea level of 175 miles an hour. On order are 10 larger Lockheeds (model 14H) with accommodation for 11 and a crew of three, cargo capacity of 2,700 pounds and a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour. The equipment on hand or ordered will be sufficient for all of the operations now in contemplation.

Referring to the personnel which numbered 71 at the end of the year, the report said: "A very high standard and a considerable background of experience are required of all operating staff engaged.

An intensive program of training and instruction is proceeding with respect to all operating positions. The co-ordinated effort of a highly trained personnel is the objective, with safety of opertions the all-important consideration. The quality of the personnel is high and there is already a splendid esprit de corps."

Thorough Tests First.

Passenger services will not be operated until all airport and airway facilities have been thoroughly tested and tried under actual operating conditions, the report said, after mentioning the scheduled training flights on which mails are carried between Winnipeg and Vancouver.

In the initial stages, all routes will be flown with mails during daylight. As soon as facilities are available and in operation, night flying will be instituted to give the greatest expedition to the movement of mails. Negotiations are now in progress with the Post Office Department regarding the mail contract provided for in the Act.

The report referred to the co-ordination which exists between the Corporation and the Canadian National Railways. The railway company, it pointed out, furnishes services at present in the following departments: Accounting, advertising, legal, medical, purchasing, secretarial and treasury. This arrangement makes for convenience and economy.

DAHLSTROM OF CHICAGO HAWKS SELECTED AS BEST N.H.L. ROOKIE

SECOND PLAYER TO GET FRANK CALDER TROPHY

TORONTO, March 31 (CP) — A Swedish - American born on the banks of the Mississippi, Carl (Cully) Dahlstrom of Chicago Black Hawks has been selected the best rookie in the National Hockey League, The Canadian Press announced today.

He becomes the second holder of the Calder Trophy, awarded annually by President Frank Calder of the N.H.L. to the outstanding first-year player. It was won for the first time in 1937 by Syl Apps of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Dahlstrom, a promising two-way centre with a fighting heart, was selected in a poll of 30 hockey writers in N.H.L. cities who named their first, second and third choices for the honor. Thirteen of them gave the Chicago player their first votes and almost every writer had him somewhere on their ballots.

American-Born

Playing with Hawks, a club that fought to keep out of the American division cellar much of the season, the 25-year-old Minneapolis-born player won recognition over such good youngsters as Murphy Chamberlain, Toronto Maple Leaf centre, Des Smith, Montreal Maroons' defenceman, Bingo Kampman of the Leafs' defence and Carl Liscombe, Detroit left winger.

In compiling the vote three points were given for a first choice, two for second and one for third, making a possible 90 points for any player. Following are the players in the running and their points:

Dahlstrom (Chicago)	56
Chamberlain (Toronto)	37
Smith (Maroons)	18
Kampman (Toronto)	15
Liscombe (Detroit)	13

In addition Clint Smith and Bobby Kirk of New York Rangers and Eddie Wares of Detroit Red Wings were considered by some writers. But they were ineligible because all three saw some service with New York Rangers. Only those players who broke into the major league this season are considered rookies. Clint Smith got 16 points, Kirk 10 and Wares three.

Dahlstrom is the fourth centre player to win The Canadian Press award in the six years hockey writers have been making the selection. He is the third American-born star to get it and the second from Minnesota. Mike Karakas, Chicago's netminder and a native of Aurora, Minn., won in 1936 and Carl Voss, born in Chelsea, Mass., was chosen in 1933.

Voss, Apps and Russ Blinco of Montreal Maroons who won in 1934 are pivot men and Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans, selected in 1935 ,is a left winger.

Played In A.A.

The tall, athletic-looking Dahlstrom learned his hockey around Minneapolis, playing in amateur leagues and haunting the Minneapolis rink when American Association teams were playing or practicing.

He started his pro career with Minneapolis during the season of 1932 and played with the club until 1935, then going to St. Paul, in the same league, for three years. In 1936 he scored 20 goals and 23 assists; in 1937, 23 goals and 19 assists. This season with Hawks he collected 10 goals and nine assists.

Dahlstrom earned the attention of experts early in the season with his consistently good backchecking. He improved steadily offensively and displayed exceptional courage when he played three games with a fractured jaw without reporting the injury.

Even when the "sore jaw" was found to be fractured he refused to quit the ice and stayed in the lineup with a special device protecting his jaw.

Sports DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

ANNUAL CONVENTION of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association—the word "amateur" may be dropped this year—will be held in Niagara Falls on Saturday, April 2nd. With an executive session the night before. Max Swanston will go from here, as an O.B.A.A. executive member. R. A. Elliott, life member of the association will go from Deloro. Bill Kay, former executive member, may make the trip, too. While Newt Thompson of Belleville and Art Casterton of Kingston will be C.O.B.L. delegates. And Ernie Gibbard of Napanee, vice-prexy of the Ontario body, is another from this section. So the C.O.B.L. will have, you might say, approximately half a dozen votes. Maybe more, if some of the district loops pay their entry fees in time. A good block of votes from one section is a potent weapon to wield up and down the corridors during the heavy pre-convention lobbying.

* * * * * * *

MUCH AS we'd like to take in this gab session of the ball moguls of the Province, we must pass it up. A two-day absence on our part now might induce a crisis for this paper, and who are we to go around inducing crises for the sake of a jaunt to the Big Roar town? But we have generally managed to get to these O.B.A.A. meetings each year, mixing with diamond delegates at Toronto, Kitchener, Oshawa and in Peterborough. We had a convention here seven years ago. 'Twas in the Motor City in '37. We would like to again view the falls, renew puck arguments with the Falls' scribes, and again argue baseball up and down the hotel hallways till an ungodly hour Saturday morn. Ye olde springtime urge. Alas.

* * * * * * *

MOST CONTENTIOUS of the proposed amendments to the baseball constitution will be that of affiliating with the new Sports Federation. The cage game broke away from the amateur union to accept the modern idea which permits pros in other sports to play basketball, letting players get pay for time lost from work and permitmitting amateur and pro teams to tangle. Lacrosse did likewise, and now baseball, hockey and rugby are planning to open things even wider. If the ball officials accept the Sports Federation—or even if they don't—it looks like pro hockeyists will be performing in the so-called amateur loops, pro ballsters will be re-instated after a year's absence, and money squads may play amateur teams. To name but a few departures from the old days.

* * * * * * *

SO IT would seem that the days of shamateurism and holier-than-thou badgerdom are numbered. The handwriting is on the wall—and on the checks! It was bound to come and certainly the sports scribes—to whom nothing is sacred, not even venerable officials with lovely badges and a penchant for taking trips with expenses paid—did their part to blast the outworn traditions of amateurism. It used to be that a chap who was extra good in some sport and accepted an offer to turn professional was regarded as an outcast, one bearing the mark of Cain, or something. But nowadays, pro athletes are considered every bit as good socially, and better when it comes to their game, as the amateur. The latter, in fact, even yet has to be party to a lot of petty chiselling behind closed doors—and he isn't fooling anyone. They all know he gets a few dimes or dollars.

* * * * * * *

STAID SPORTS followers here who believe in making haste slowly need not get the jitters. The opening-up trend in athletics isn't getting out of hand. It has been pretty open for years now in the States while in England amateurs and pros have always mixed—despite a snobbish note that calls for the simon-pures to be termed Mr. Smith-Hedges whereas his teammate, who gets the shekels, is simply Smith-Hedges. Give us the dough and you can drop the handle off our moniker, too.

* * * * * * *

GIRLS' BASKETBALL playoffs commence here tomorrow (Friday) evening in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium. Three games, one a senior scrap. St. John's Teenites and Westclox tangle at 8.30 in the first of a best-in-three series. These smart squads ended their schedule in a top place tie and the playoffs ought to be heated. Quaker Debs open it with the "Y" Gym at 7.45 in a junior joust, and Quaker Maids wind it up with St. John's Stars at 9.15 in another junior tilt. Public is invited to see these Ladies' Cage Loop finals, and the customers can bank on some exciting hoop competition. If the St. Paul's men's squad aren't playing in intermediate O.C.B.A. finals this weekend, then the City Cage League final serial between St. Paul's and C.G.E. will be played Saturday p.m. in the Y.M.C.A. Haven't heard yet.

* * * * * * *

ANNUAL CHURCH Hockey League banquet will be held on April 11th in St. Paul's Church hall, the Women's Association of that church doing the catering. Members of the winning teams — All Saints' seniors and bantams, and Mark St. juveniles—will be guests of the circuit. Shields go to the victors. The program has not yet been arranged but, as in the past, it will be short, snappy and a nifty layout.

* * * * * * *

IT WOULD seem that the junior playoff series between Sudbury and Oshawa Generals isn't quite over yet. Not with the Generals copping a 7-1 smirk over the highly-touted Northerners last p.m. in Toronto to even up the sawoff and make a third tussle necessary. The Rowden crew must have been hotter than a step-dancer's insoles at an amateur hour contest to waft home the little black biscuit seven times 'gainst the bewildered Wolves. Maybe the latter were too busy reading press clippings about their prowness to see that desperate do-or-die glint in the orbs of the Oshawa outfit. Leaving the Maple Leaf Gardens after the joust, Clarence DeGuerre, a 43-year-old Oshawa fan, collapsed and died from a heart attack. There is some dispute over Sutherland, Sudbury player, and if he is found ineligible, the first game—which Sudbury won 3-2—will have to be replayed.

* * * * * * *

GRAB-BAG: Cornwall Fliers and Falconbridge clash tonight in the first of their Allen Cup playdowns . . . . Kingston blanked Barrie 4-0 last e'en in the first of the five-game junior "B" finals; next one is Friday . . . . Mike Rodden, unbiased Toronto columnist, claims Eddie Shore is a marked man and every time he collides with a player is given a panning . . . . Local ball club has applied to the O.B.A.A. for the re-instatement to amateur ranks of Eddie Murphy and the transfer of Leo Deadey . . . . There'll be a couple of more applications later on . . . . We hear Eddie Starr is doubtful about playing ball for the Petes this summer . . . . Are P.C.I. seniors continuing in the hunt for a Provincial hoop title . . . . Some of the senior pucksters here had a sociable gathering last evening, as the society editor would put it . . . . Lot of athletes are training hard now for the annual "Y" circus toward the end of next month . . . . Volleyball playoffs are on Sat'day aft at the "Y"; dope is in elsewhere tonight . . . . Only about five more months till our vacation rolls around again, if the "recession" doesn't bump into us first!

Knox players returned to St. Andrew's court on Monday night for the second half of their home-and-home series. Again the southerners were triumphant, but this time by the much closer tally of 3-2. In their previous tangle, the count was 5-0. The ladies were the potent threats on the losers' front, capturing the singles and doubles matches in their section. Miss Helen Turner's graceful style stood her in good stead, enabling her to win fairly comfortably from the diminutive Gladys Gerrard, 15-10, 15-3. Miss V. Martin and Mrs. Hamilton were the other St. Andrew's ladies to come out on top. They defeated Miss M. Ferguson and Miss N. Pammett, 15-9, 15-1. In the men's singles, Alex. Wedlock turned in a strong effort to subdue Jack Richardson, 15-7, 15-13. Richardson made a strong bid for it in the closing canto, but Wedlock replied with the right shots and walked off with the verdict. Mixed winners were Miss Vi. Britnell and Reuben McDonald of Knox over Miss Helen Turner and Herb Hawley. 15-11 and 15-9 were the scores. The last act of the evening's performance was the men's doubles. Not only was it the key match, but it was also the closest. Horace Fisher and Reuben McDonald of Knox turned aside Jack Gray and Grant Gillespie in three heats, 15-12, 16-18, 15-7. Play was a bit raggy and very close in the first two, but the Knox laddies put on pressure to finish it off smartly.

Nothing is known yet about final club championship matches at the Peterborough Club for the seniors. The junior crowd are, however, going ahead with theirs and making good progress. Boys' singles have reached the final stage; Jack Bannister and Horace Steer being scheduled to meet there. Bannister previously eliminated Jim Hardill, while Steer was ousting Fred Hooper. Mary Hall and Horace Steer have gained the finals in the mixed, having put out Miss J. Ketcheson and R. Ingram in the semi-finals. They are now awaiting the outcome of the clash between Mary Strickland and Jack Bannister and Beatrice Scott and Reg. Yelland. Girls' singles draw contains a large entry which is moving rather slowly. So far, Mary Strickland is leading the field, having gained the third round.

A great turnout was on hand at the Armouries last night (Wednesday), and quite a number of tournament games were being run off. Mixed doubles is a 64-entry card which will take considerable time. That two weeks' time limit should be long enough, but at that it will certainly keep the contestants on the move to cover it. Particularly is this true when you consider all the consolation fixtures which have to be played.

Conacher Sure Bet To Return In '38

BOSTON, March 31.—Charlie Conacher is aching to play hockey again. So don't be too surprised if he's back on right wing for Toronto Maple Leafs next N.H.L. season.

Tip-off on the big right-winger's hopes came while he and King Clancy, who accompanied Leafs here for the National League championship series against Boston Bruins, were discussing Jack Portland, Boston's mammoth defenceman.

"Wouldn't I like a chance to rub elbows with that guy," said Conacher shortly before Leafs finished the series with a 3-2 victory on Tuesday night. "And I'll have it next season."

Poor health caused Conacher to retire on the advice of Dr. J. W. Rush, club physician. Now, after a month under the Florida sun, Conacher is feeling better. His return to the game probably will depend on what Dr. Rush and Conny Smythe have to say.

Four Boxers And Ex-Champ 'Barred'

In the old days being a boxer and owning a bar went hand in glove; now being an ex-boxer and owning a bar has replaced the former barbarous practice. Restaurateur is the word they use in place of barkeeper and here is restaurateur James J. Braddock, former world's heavyweight boxing champion (after a fashion), entertaining some leading lights of the game standing on the bar in his recently opened "Inn Braddock's Corner." LEFT to RIGHT, Henry Armstrong, featherweight champ; Sixto Escobar, bantam champ; Lou Ambers, lightweight champ; James J. and Fred Apostoli, middleweight contender. Some guests!

Perth Wings Set For Ontario Title

OTTAWA, March 31 (CP). — Elimination of the Maritime and Quebec title-holders completed, Perth Blue Wings today looked forward to a playoff with the survivors of the Sudbury-Oshawa series for the Eastern Canada junior hockey championship and a berth in the final for the Memorial Cup and the Dominion title.

The Ottawa and district champions defeated Verdun Maple Leafs 5-3 here last night much in the same manner they overwhelmed Halifax Canadians, Maritime title-holders, last week. The teams began the third period with one goal each, but before the final bell the Wings had counted four times against two goals by Verdun.

Predict Early End For Harry Thomas

CHICAGO, March 31 (AP) — Champion Joe Louis gave three sparmates a terrific "bombing" Wednesday, as he wound up heavy work in preparation for his heavyweight title bout Friday night with Harry Thomas, the burly Minnesotan.

Before 400 spectators, Louis went six rounds in a manner which had onlookers predicting an early finish to the fifteen-round engagement, regarded as a "tune-up" for Joe's scheduled bout next summer with Max Schmeling.

R.C.M.P. DOG TEAM WINS ARCTIC DERBY IN RECORD TIME

In record time, and minus one dog of the powderful, red police team, Fraser finished first in the annual Arctic dog derby here a few days ago to take the Eldorado silvered oil drum, emblematic of dog-team championship from Mackenzie River to the Coppermine.

With the front of his parka caked with ice from his breath, Fraser completed the 15-mile grind from Eldorado to Port Radium and return less than 2 minutes ahead of Martin Thomas, veteran barrenlands trapper, who also lost one dog on the route, and less than six minutes in front of Dr. P. J. Losier, wiry mine physician, who drove the home entry.

Indian Teams Out.

Plight of the foodless Indians and Eskimos of the Territories was reflected in the non-participation of five Indian teams which mushed in from nearby points for the race. The drivers had planned to enter the race, but the half-starved condition of their dogs resulted in Mine Manager Emil Wallf declining to accept their entries. Instead, the drivers and dogs were given a good feed and told to remain as spectators.

The police team, heavy favorites before the race, were given a hot chase by Thomas, who is a veteran trail driver. Sweepstakes had been established all over the district, and miners, trappers and traders were kept posted on progress of the race by the wireless station of the Royal Canadian Crops of Signals. Dr. Losier, who comes originally from Canada's maritime provinces, but has won recognition as a fine dog-musher, claimed that he suffered defeat because he failed to take a short-cut across rocky Labine Point, used by the winner to advantage.

Stop-Watches Used.

Drivers in all seven entries this year carried stop-watches, evidence of the keen rivalry that has developed over the event. They timed their progress over each mile. But the pace set by Fraser was too hot and everything went by the boards as the others accepted the speed he set and chased him. One of his dogs collapsed from fatigue, and was unharnessed at Port Radium. Thomas also lost a dog at this point. The full loads of two hundred pounds of radium ore had to be carried to the finish, however.

OSHAWA EVENS SERIES WITH 7-1 WIN OVER SUDBURY WOLVES

Weakened Northerners Fare Badly At Hands Of Generals

Winners Score Five Goals In Final Period Of Second Game

TORONTO, March 31 (CP)—Capable of as many surprises as a first-rate magician, Oshawa Generals found themselves today one of the "top billed" teams on the Memorial Cup circuit after their crushing 7-1 victory over Sudbury's famed Cub Wolves. The confident Generals figure they can finish up with a victory Saturday to gain a spot in the eastern Canada final against Perth Blue Wings.

So far the best-of-three series between Generals and the Northern Ontario champions is deadlocked at a game apiece. But complications have arisen on the question of eligibility of Glen Sutherland, Sudbury centreman, and that means the first game which Wolves won may be thrown out.

Registrar W. A. Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association said last night Sutherland had not been granted a transfer to Sudbury by the Manitoba branch of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The O.H.A. official said he had given Sutherland permission to play in the first two games of the series but that the player's case must be decided on a telegraphic vote of C.A.H.A. officials. No matter which way the ruling goes last night's victory for Generals will stand so they only need one more victory while Wolves may be forced to gain two to take the series.

Henry Armstrong Makes Poor Show

NEW YORK, March 31.—Henry Armstrong, brown-skinner featherweight champion, knocked out Lew Feldman, Brooklyn veteran, last night in the fifth round, but made an unexpectedly poor showing while doing it.

Nearly 5,000 fans in the Hippodrome watched in amazement while the great Armstrong battered Feldman about the ring during the fourth round and 1:51 of the fifth before he was able to knock out his helpless, retreating opponent.

In last night's charity show, Armstrong's last ring appearance before he tackles Welterweight Champion Barney Ross on May 26, Armstrong indicated that he would have great difficulties with the smart welter king.

HAWKS FAVORED TO BEAT AMERKS

CHICAGO, March 31 (CP).—Because they are playing on home ice, Chicago Black Hawks ranked today as 7 to 5 favorites to turn back Mervyn (Red) Dutton's New York Americans tonight in the second game of their semi-final Stanley Cup series and thus prolong the two-out-of-three-game duel to a deciding match in New York Sunday.

Bill Stewart's men have been eminently successful at home during the league season. Of their 14 league triumphs, 10 were scored here and their best bid of the season against the Americans—a 3-3 tie—was gained on the Chicago Stadium ice.

Offsetting the Hawks' home-ice set-up, however, was the psychological edge Americans gained in defeating the Chihawks 3-1 in New York Tuesday and the Dutton Dusters appeared firm in the belief they would win the series in two straight games to oppose Toronto in the cup final.

Nevertheless, Dutton refrained from a definite pre-game prediction his men would win the second game and Coach Stewart stayed with the statement he made after Tuesday's game, that he believed his Hawks would give a better account of themselves here than they did in New York.

CHECKER PLAYERS ABANDON FINALS WHEN EXHAUSTED

BELLEVILLE, March 31.—Deadlocked after more than 22 hours' play, finalists in the annual Eastern Ontario checker tournament folded their boards and silently stole away in the still of the early morning today. Unprecedented in the history of the tourney, sponsored by the Picton Checker Club, three players were still in the running for the H. S. Colliver Trophy, when the playoffs were called off on account of fatigue.

Starting early Monday afternoon, the move-and-meditate exponents battled nearly ten hours before calling a halt that night. Returning to the scene of action again yesterday, game after game was reeled off, while scores of spectators watched. And if the grind proved tough for the players, the spectators, too, suffered untold mental agony at least in watching mistakes made and games lost—powerless to interject a saving bit of advice for their favorite player because of the strict anti-kibitizing rule.

Finally, with the preliminary round-robin series completed, results were tabulated at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and four finalists were named. These, Jack Traves of Kingston, defending champion; A. W. Flindall, Trenton, champion in 1935, and 1936; J. Livingstone, Picton, president of the club, and F. J. Cox of Cornwall started anew on the final series.

Mr. Flindall and Mr. Travers, with point totals of 25 each, were paired, while Mr. Livingstone, with 19, and Mr. Cox, with 16, faced off. Mr. Livingstone defeated Mr. Cox in regulation time, but at 1 a.m. Wednesday, nine hours after starting, Mr. Flindall and Mr. Traves were still deadlocked. Each agreed to call it a draw and leave the trophy in the hands of the club for the year.

The famous composer, Franz Liszt, twice said to be dying during childhood, lived to be 75.

Toronto Swimmer Sets New Record

TORONTO, March 31.—Cliff Foderingham, Ontario junior free-style swimming champion, set a new Canadian record of 2:21 1-5 for 220 yards, free-style, in a special time trial last night. The former record of 2:34 was held by Archie Dyers, Vancouver.

The 16-year-old Harbord Collegiate swimmer set the record in the Central Y.M.C.A. pool. Officials said Foderingham also unofficially broke the Canadian 200-yard record of 2:11 1-5, but his time of 2:06 1-5 for that distance was not clocked by all officials in attendance. They said the youth would make an attempt to break the 200-yard record tonight.

NATIONAL LEAGUE IS MORE POPULAR DURING SCHEDULE

Note: Is the American League actually stronger than the National? This question, currently being debated by baseball men, is discussed in a series of stores, of which this is the first.

NEW YORK, March 31 (AP) — The literary guns that have been pounding home this spring the popular notion of American Baseball League superiority over the National, as a prelude to the 1938 pennant battles, seem to have misfired on a number of salient points.

It is true harassed Nationals have found no adequate escape from the demolishing No. 1 argument of their tormentors, who point to seven victories in the last 10 world series and four conquests in five mid-summer all-star games.

These are the payoff events, so far as inter-league debate is concerned, but they emphasize chiefly that the pennant clubs, rather than the American League as a whole, have been the dominating influence.

Popular During Schedule

Club for club in the two big leagues, it is still a wide open argument as to which is stronger. For years, there has been a wider gap between the first and last-place outfits in the American than in the older circuit. This balance, while strengthening the National's in any all-inclusive argument over rival ability, does not alter the fact of A.L. dominance at the top.

Bill Terry, boss of New York Giants, concedes "a team like the Yankees can beat the ears off anybody," but adds:

"A man who can bust up a ball game with a hit is a great asset, but he is worth twice as much as if he also can save a game by being a fine defensive player. In our league we stress defence.

Terry's remarks, occasioned by Waite Hoyt's magazine thesis that the A.L. exploits power and liberalism, as opposed to N.L. defensive tactics and conservatism, cover only part of the general rebuttal. The fact is that the powerhouse idea is vastly over-rated.

Notwithstanding all talk of league differences, including the out-moded notion that the National League is a curve-ball circuit and the American a fast-ball league, the fact is that no essential difference in style of play actually exist. The two most successful managers of the Yankees, Miller Huggins and Joe McCarthy, came from the "old fashioned" National League. Presumbaly, the baseball they learned there, and the methods they employed were not rated a handicap.

NEW YORK, March 31 (A.P.).—Henry Armstrong openly predicts he'll be wearing three ring crowns within a year....There's nobody in sight to take his featherweight title; he thinks he'll beat Barney Ross in May and he'll bet some of his money he will take the lightweight crown away from Lou Ambers if they meet this summer.... But we still say, if Barney Ross is in shape on May 26 he will jab the little negro silly.

Burgess Whitehead is not mending from his appendicitis operation as fast as expected and may not appear with New York Giants until the opener....Southern scribes are getting a bit annoyed with the bizarre openers they put on in the Southern Baseball Association.... They passed it up when Colonel Joe Engel of Chattanooga, Tenn., announced he would stage an elephant hunt on opening day with a herd of real pachyderms and a tribe of East Tennessee hill billies disguised as Africans because, after all, you have come to expect such things when Mr. Engel is in charge....But when staid Nashville announced it would seek to have Sally Rand do a fan dance in the batter's box just before the opener, the scribes decided it was time to go to work.

We don't believe all those yarns about Casey Stengel getting dignified....A headline says "Dodgers Are Full of Surprises"....Who expected anything else?...New reports are bobbing up that Don Budge may change his mind pretty soon.

JOE KRAKUASKAS FAILS THE GRADE WITH HARRIS TEAM

(By The Associated Press)

ORLANDO, Fla. — Emil (Dutch) Leonard is in line for a starting assignment on Washington Senators, largely because Rookie Pitchers Krakauskas and Ken Chase haven't come up to expectations. Leonard's knuckler is the most impressive pitcher in the Senators' camp, too good, perhaps, to save only for relief roles.

TAMPA, Fla.—With Gene Schott the only hurler considered in shape, Manager Bill McKechnie of Cincinnati Reds is worried over his staff. Paul Derringer has worked only three innings and McKechnie has conferred with General Manager Warren C. Giles over sending Lefty Lee Grissom to an x-ray specialist for "pictures" of Lee's sore arm.

BILOXI, Miss. — Eddie Morgan, the outfielder obtained from Brooklyn in the Camilli deal, is attracting the attention of Manager Jimmy Wilson, of Philadelphia Phillies. Morgan collected two doubles against Cleveland, yesterday, and exhibited an accurate throwing arm.

TAMPA, Fla.—Cletus Elwood Poffenberger, Detroit Tigers' pop-off guy, is cutting himself down to two bottles of beer daily after the game and says, "If I could win 10 games without half trying last year, I ought to win at least 15 by bearing down."

SENATE APPOINTS TWENTY TO PROBE RAILWAY TROUBLE

OTTAWA, March 31.—(CP).—An inquiry into the railway problem of Canada by a special committee of 20 Senators is scheduled during the present session of Parliament. Yesterday the Upper House named the score of investigators immediately after it had approved a motion of Senator F. B. Black (Con. Westmoreland) designed to create this committee.

A full dress debate preceded the Senate's decision, with Government Leader Dandurand and Conservative Leader Meighen participating twice. Yesterday the two House leaders occupied most of the sitting, each approving the proposal to set up the committee, but widely differing in their general attitude on the big problem with which the committee will grapple.

Amalgamation, either under public or private control, or joint management of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railway systems, with one other course—that of continuing the present arrangements, economic co-operation to some degree, but with active competition—are the questions to which the Senators will direct their attention.

The British Example

The Government Leader cited the unification of the British railways, where 120 companies were reduced to four, as a case in point. Only 20,000 miles of line were involved, whereas in Canada 40,000 miles were controlled by two companies. Thus Canada had moved farther in the direction of consolidation than England.

There was the added difference that no monopoly was involved in England, while in this country the result would be creation of a vast monopoly. The savings which advocates of consolidation in England had envisaged, totalling in some instances a prediction of $225,000,000 a year, had not been made.

Similarly, when an effort was made to break down Sir Edward's figures by an examination of the facts, it was seen that the figure of $75,000,000 was much too high.

Analysis of economies already effected by the joint co-operation committee had shown that the saving on 676 miles of line had been only $580,000, or about $860 a mile. Sir Edward had contemplated a saving of $3,000 a mile per annum.

Defends National System.

Senator Dandurand yesterday took up the cudgels on behalf of the National system, and devoted much of a lengthy address to a criticism of opinions voiced by Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R., in connection with economies which unified management would bring about. Sir Edward had placed the figure at $75,000,000, to be saved chiefly through re-routing traffic over the unified lines.

When the results of this joint operation were manifest, there might be abandonment of redundant lines totalling 5,000 miles, Sir Edward had said, while labor displacement would be effected in accordance with the situation which then developed.

Taking Sir Edward's points one by one, Senator Dandurand challenged the basis of the C.P.R. president's conclusions. He could not have founded them on facts derived from the whole railway situation because he had not had access to the operating details of the C.N.R. Invariably it had turned out that optimistic predictions of vast economies advanced in theory had not been realized in practice.

Case Likely to Fade.

Should the rest of Sir Edward's generalized estimate of economies shrink in the same proportion, the Senator said, the case for unification on the basis of large scale economies would disappear.

Throughout his speech the Senator quoted from a document prepared for him by the Economics Bureau of the C.N.R. Senator Meighen took exception to this, roundly criticizing officials of the road for advocating perpetuation of a condition from which they derived their livelihood.

So far as England's falling short of expected economies was concerned, if Canada could achieve as much as England in that direction he would consider this country's railway problem solved. English business men were agreed their railway difficulties were composed, but such was far from being the case in Canada.

Full co-operation had not resulted from the 1933 legislation, and officials of both roads were to blame.

Candid Camera Shots

Candid camera shots clicked at random in Peterborough the other afternoon are shown here. The unsuspecting victims were intent on other things when the Examiner photographer "shot" them. If persons whose pictures appear here come into Examiner office and identify themselves they will each be given an enlargement of their photograph. And to other Peterborough residents; who knows, you may be the next victim.

Rat Traps Stripped In Petty Thieving

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 31. — There has been much evidence of petty thieving in their traps lines west of the village, trappers report. Constable W. Wellman, who also is a trapper, stated his traps are being stripped nightly and issued a strong warning that trouble will be raised if he finds out who is responsible. He has two men under suspicion but has been unable to catch them "red-handed."

OBITUARY

R.P. STILLMAN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31. — A former resident of Seymour Township, R. P. Stillman passed away at his home in Albion, N.Y., on Tuesday afternoon according to word reaching his brother, W. I. Stillman of Campbellford Wednesday. The late Mr. Stillman who was born in Seymour Township 72 years ago left to live in New York State at the age of thirty. The funeral was held in Albion on Thursday afternoon.

Surviving are his wife and one son and one daughter and two brothers, William of Campbellford and Albert of Rochester and three sister, Mrs. Lottie Howell of Islington, Miss Daisy Stillman of Buffalo, N.Y. and Mrs. W. J. McPhee of Dauphin, Manitoba.

A STARVING ZOO

LOS ANGELES, March 31 (A.P.). A desperate economic situation today faced Anna May, the elephant, and nearly 2,000 smaller denizens of Zoo Park. Rent bills are overdue. Feed bins are empty. Caretakers are unpaid. And the treasury of the California Zoological Society is empty. Dr. C. C. Varn, the city Humane Department's manager, asked public aid to save Anna May and 28 lions, 18 tigers, 19 leopards, and 300 monkeys from starvation.

CENTRAL ONTARIO DRAMAS PRAISED OF HIGH STANDARD

TORONTO, March 31 (CP) — Central Ontario's regional drama festival went into its final half today with the assurance of Malcolm Morley, English dramatist and critic, that performances to date have been of high standard.

Among the seven plays viewed in the first three nights of the festival have been two original productions, one of them a domestic comedy by Rica McLean Farquharson, given last night by the Playwrights' Studio Group. The Toronto woman was called to the stage at the night's end.

Monday night another Toronto writer, Herman Voaden was praised for his "Maria Chapdelaine." Mr. Voaden is a native of St. Thomas, Ont., and a high school teacher here. He used music and color as well as pantomime to tell the story of backwoods love.

Rica Farquharson's short play, however, is straight comedy in the Noel Coward manner. Adjudicator Morley said it was bright and jolly, praised its dialogue, but was not impressed with its stereotyped plot of lovers, now married, meeting again after a lapse of years and wondering "whatever did I see in him?"

Lieutenant Governor Albert Matthews has donated a silver medal for the best play in the festival written by a Canadian. Special awards are also made in the Dominion finals, being staged in Winnipeg during the week of May 16, for Canadian-written plays.

"They meet again" was presented "zestfully" by its cast of four, Mr. Morley said in summing up his impressions of last night's three pays. He was more critical of the offering of the Dickens Fellowship Players with its 18 characters in "The Great Lady Dedlock." Had 20 minutes been clipped from the script, limiting it to a single theme with few actors it might be improved.

Fine Period Play

The Dickens' piece the adjudicator said, however, was the most correct period play he had seen in his judging tour through Canada. He stressed the importance of having everything "just right" in costume drama and praised several players, including Jane Mallett, Charles Sivell and Josephine Barrington. The setting he found splendid, but the lighting poor.

Most impressive item of the program was the Beaches Library Drama League's staging of the immortal Irish story "The Shadow of the Glen." A popular festival entry, the John M. Synge play is hauntingly beautiful, conjuring up a picture of Ireland's green pasture lands, fog-hung glens and poetic people.

Douglas Cooper, Jan Chamberlain, Donald Walker and Forrest Telfer were praised for their interpretation of this tale of County Wicklow. It concerns the still-young wife of an old Irish farmer who feigns death to prove her infidelity.

Mr. Morley said he had seen the play many times and one of the best performances of the role of Nora Burke, the farmer's wife, was that given by Jan Chamberlain. He liked the setting and while the actors' speech may not have been altogether Irish, it was "near enough." Their naturalness he found particularly praiseworthy.

Corporal T. J. Woods Returns To Lindsay

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 31. — Captain Gray, of Sturgeon Point is the authority for the statement that the ice on Sturgeon Lake is twenty-eight inches thick, and shows no signs of breaking up. The ice went out of the lake on April 27 last year. Cameron and Balsam Lakes are still ice-locked, but Lake Simcoe is clear.

Corp. T. J. Wods, R.C.M.P., who was formerly stationed here, but who has been in Ottawa for ten weeks, is returning to Lindsay, where he will be stationed temporarily for some time.

Constables Yule, Reid and Goudie, of Beaverton district, succeeded in capturing an escaped inmate of the Orillia Mental Hospital on Wednesday. The man was wandering aimlessly near the village of Beaverton when the officers took him in charge.

The three youths who stole a truck belonging to the Purity Bakers, and drove to Peterborough where they were nabbed by the city police, appeared before Magistrate Gee Wednesday. Two of them were dismissed after a severe lecture, while the other was placed on suspended sentence.

Berlin now has one motor vehicle to every 20 people.

Worth The Sacrifice.

Summary of the commissioner's recommendations:

It is incumbent upon a tariff-protected industry to demonstrate that it is worth to the community the sacrifice it asks of the community.

Clear enunciation of principle that a tariff-protected industry, in view of the privileges granted to it, has special obligations to the community respecting employment, maintenance of just prices.

There should be a provision of the statute law to "make it clear to shareholders that in such questions as that of giving or withdrawing employment (as in that of fixing the selling price of the company's products, already provided for), the management must be mindful of the interests of the community as well as of those of the shareholders; that the shareholders' interests may have to give way, on occasions, to those of the community; and that arbitrary action by the management detrimental to the community will result in withdrawal from the company of the advantage which it enjoys by law in common with other Canadian companies selling in the home market."

Parliament, therefore, should give consideration to the advisability of extending the precedent which it set in 1931 in enacting Subsection (2) of Section 17 of the Customs tariff in which manufacturing firms enjoying a beneficial position under the Customs tariff at the expense of the public subject themselves "to the possibility of seeing their privileges withdrawn, not only if they act unfairly in the fixing of their selling prices, but if they fail in any other material respect to the discharge of their duties.

Employers' Responsibility

The extent of an employer's responsibility, however, should be left to be determined in each case by the exercise of the discretion conferred by parliament upon the Governor-in-Council, as it is not possible to fix in advance a general measure of responsibility which would be applicable to all employers at all times.

The question of the efficient, comprehensive supervision of company incorporation is well worth the attention, and possibly the co-operation, of both Dominion and Provincial authorities. This should be done to prevent the organization and flotation of undertakings which are dangerous from the point of view of the investor and which would furnish as times goes on, plausible but basically false claims for maintenance or adoption of unnecessarily high tariffs.

Textiles Fared Well

"On the whole the record shows that the textile industry in Canada has fared well. This industry came through the depression period in a manner which many other industries might envy," the report said.

Regarding profits made by the textile companies the commissioner said:

"Some evidence was offered, and some argument took place, as to the reliability of the statements made by certain companies in respect to their annual profits. It was asserted that by means in some cases of secret inventory reserves and in other cases of improper charges to operations for depreciation, betterments, etc., the true profits were hidden away and not accounted for, for instance, to the income tax authorities.

"After hearing what was said on this subject I concluded that the evidence necessitated further action and I referred the matters in question to the income tax office. I cannot say any more on this subject at present because I know that that office is taking all proper steps to insure the payments to it of all monies justly due, and I have no comment to make while proceedings are pending.

Facts Must Be Available

"In my opinion parliament which provides the tariff has the right, I may venture, I think, to say the duty, to see to it that true facts are made known as often as necessary and practicable, concerning, among other things, the profits made by those who operate under the protection of the tariff.

"It should be made sure that governments, when approached for tariff changes, will always have reliable figures presented to them, that consumers, who pay all the manufacturers' taxes in any case because they are all passed on to them in the price of the manufactured goods, should know what is going on, and that shareholders should be furnished with annual statements sufficiently clear and detained to enable them to form a fair opinion of the value of their shares."

Costs a Mystery.

The commission attempted to explore the question of costs of production in the textile industry, but found considerable difficulty in obtaining satisfactory data. Continuous collection of statistics regarding protected industry, particularly regarding costs, profits, invested capital and secret reserves was recommended.

Suggestion was made that questionnaires prepared by the commission's auditors and sent to firms in the textile industry should serve as a model for compiling adequate annual returns from all classes of companies.

The commissioner said: That "this information be required in such form and with such particulars that the element of secrecy, and of consequent deception, in so far as it may exist (and the evidence does not show that it is all-pervading) will be done away with.

"As an instance of the secrecy to which I refer, I may mention what came to be known during the inquiry as 'secret reserves,' that is profits undisclosed because (1) hidden away in the undervaluation of inventories (or in deductions from their valuation) or (2) used for capital expenditure, thereby constituting a reinvestment of profits under the guise of proper charges for current expenses made before arriving at profits. In all these things it is the secrecy that is objectionable (not necessarily the reserve) because it deceives all those who are entitled to know the truth about the actual annual profits of a company and its real financial standing: the government, the community and the shareholders."

Effective use of publicity was urged regarding information obtained in order to abolish the element of secrecy and of consequent deception in regard to costs, profits, good-will, stock-watering and secret reserves.

Publicity to the activities and propaganda of employers' trade associations which sought to restrict competition was also recommended by the commissioner.

Urges Careful Supervision.

The Commissioner commented pointedly on the labor situation in the textile industry. In that connection his report said:

"1. The textile industry is a leading employer of female workers and young persons and consequently conditions of labor in the factories should be carefully supervised.

"2. Textile operations do not generally require great muscular effort but do necessitate close attention which involves considerable nervous strain and constant standing or moving about the machines.

"3. In cotton mills and some other branches of the textile industry dust is present in the workrooms. The mitigation of this condition should be guided by administrative action by Department of Health or Labor. The condition of humidity and heat in the work rooms should also be closely supervised and safeguards established against the danger of gases in the artificial silk industry.

"4. Improvements should be made in the provision of adequate changing rooms and wash rooms, in textile factories.

"5. Hours of work in textile factories are generally in excess of 48 hours. In view of the trend toward a shorter working day and a shorter working week in other industries and in western countries generally, efforts should be made to shorten these hours. If the living standards of the worker are not to suffer this change should take place without reducing weekly wages.

"6. Careful attention should be given to systems of piece work payments. Regulations should be adopted which will ensure that al workers are fully informed of the basis of their earnings.

A Low-Wage Industry.

"7. The textile industry as a whole is a low-wage industry in comparison with other industries, particularly with respect to wages of male workers. Every effort should be made to bring mills with low wages at least up to the average for the various divisions of the textile industry.

"8. In general, wages increases have taken place since the time this commission began its sittings in March, 1936. Also manufacturers' profits have been larger.

"9. The continued growth of large scale business undertakings in the textile industry has greatly weakened the bargaining position of the individual worker. The time has come, therefore, when the natural right of employees to form themselves into associations should be recognized by all concerned. Their employers have done this in their own interests, and their associations pursue activities in many more directions than is to be found, for instance, in the case of British textile manufacturers. The denial of equal rights to the textile workers is indefensible.

"10. These workers' associations should be allowed to pursue the attainment of all lawful objects by lawful means. Among the principal of these objects will be the adoption and the development, in the textile industry, of the process of collective bargaining. Since the commission cnocluded its sitting, two of the larger companies, the Dominion Textile Company and Courtauld's (Canada) Limited., previously opposed to collective agreements, have concluded such agreements with their employees.

"11. Some companies have adopted pension schemes for the benefit of their retired employees."

Canada Lags Far Behind

The commissioner emphasized that Canada was behind other nations in regulation of the weekly hours of labor. He said, "The fact that the Canadian textile industry as a whole has not yet adopted the 48-hour week places this country among the least advanced group of countries, according to the report of the International Labor Office." As the situation now stands, Canada ranked with China, India and Japan as countries in which the normal hours of work in the textile industry exceed 48 hours a week.

May Resign?

Reports are current in Ottawa that Hon. J. C. Elliott, postmaster-general, will be forced to give up his cabinet post because of illness. He has been ill for many weeks and it is feared that he will not be able to assume his cabinet duties.

TROOPS FLEE TO FRANCE

TARBES, France, March 31 (A. P.). — One thousand Spanish militiamen, cut off from their base by a new insurgent advance east of Jaca, escaped across the Pyrenees today into the tiny French mountain hamlet of Hospice de France. They surrendered their rifles and arms without resistance, and said 1,000 others were on their way to France from the whole Pyrenees sector west of Jaca.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

COAST MINDFUL OF WAR FRIGHT IN OTHER DAYS

VANCOUVER, March 31.—(CP).—War jitters don't come easily to the people of Canada's Pacific coast.

There have been several local war scares since the days when British men-of-war and Indians clashed along the British Columbia shores. Now, when conflict surges on Oriental areas across the Pacific, this coast province takes it calmly.

Eight million dollars worth of defences set up to protect the western shores may give an added feeling of confidence. But times were when British Columbia faced the possibility of armed conflict with less preparation and few qualms.

In 1917 when lookouts on Vancouver harbor reported a mysterious submarine nearing the city, Detective John Fletcher was sent down to the waterfront with a revolver and orders to meet the invading craft. "Fire a few shots if necessary," he was told by his superior.

The mystery submarine—apparently imaginary—failed to show up and Fletcher didn't have to shoot. Three years earlier, however, there was tenseness in the coast province.

H.M.S. Rainbow was in Esquimalt harbor on Vancouver Island when the Great War opened but it was unmanned and the ammunition dumps virtually were empty. H.M.S. Shearwater was 1,000 miles away on a training cruise down the Pacific Coast and the province was practically without defence.

The German warships Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Nurnberg and Leipzic meanwhile were reported in the Pacific within a few hundred miles from the coast—headed this way.

As appeals were broadcast for ex-naval men and others to join up, two submarines appeared off Esquimalt. They had been purchased from a Seattle manufacturer who had built them for tht Chilean government. The underwater craft were manned and put into service. British Columbia felt more secure with submarines flying the British flag partolling the coast.

The previous war scare came 55 years earlier when an American settler of San Juan Island, Lyman A. Cutler, shot a British-owned hog, which had trespassed on his garden. This caused an international crisis on the island whose ownership was in dispute.

Troops Were Landed

Captain G. E. Picket with 60 United States soldiers landed on the island off the coast. Colonel R. C. Moody embarked a detachment of Royal Engineers and Marines in the H.M.S. Plumper for the scene. Then more American forces were landed until there were 461 on the island. More British ships were called until five men-of-war with 167 guns and 1,965 men were lying off the San Juan shores.

Trouble was averted when the United States authorities in Washington decided to withdraw their forces. Finally, after arbitration, the Island became the property of the United States.

ANCIENT ROMAN EMPIRE—IT INCLUDED SPAIN

IL DUCE'S ITALIAN EMPIRE OF TODAY

Is Il Duce looking toward Spain to add to his new "Roman" empire? Such a thought has been expressed by observers who go so far as to say that Mussolini already is planning to annex Spain, when and if the insurgents win. The same observers also state that Il Duce may send a million of his population into Spain when the civil war ends to take the place of Spanish killed in the war, only to have them remain to build a new Roman empire. As if to deny such thoughts latest news from British embassy officials in Rome indicated an Italo-British pact was imminent and among the chief items is the withdrawal of Italian fighters in Spain through the international "hands-off-Spain" committee. The ancient Roman empire and Il Duce's empire today are shown on the ABOVE maps.

DEMANDS CANADA BE KEPT BRITISH

LONDON, Ont., March 31 (CP)—"With Canada surrounded by movements smacking of subservience and with political and religious dictatorships gaining power in Europe, it is the duty of every red-blooded Protestant to see that this country remains preponderantly British," L. H. Saunders, secretary of the legislation committee for the Loyal Orange Association of Canada told Orangemen of the London district last night.

"As 1938 is the 400th anniversary of the reformation in England, we are looking forward to a revival of Protestantism and the things it stands for," the speaker said. "We should be 100 per cent for the things we believe absolutely definite in our public school allegiance and other issues that play such an important part in the life of every Protestant.

"In what was one of the most beautiful countries in the world we now find Roman Catholic mercenary troops used to massacre other Roman Catholics who disagree with their principles. We find the map of Europe changing and civil war existing on that continent all as a result of political and religious intrigue.

"We have in Canada, at our doorstep, an organization known as "Catholic Action" highly organized, and highly instrumental in putting the padlock on the "papal" province of Quebec. I want to stress it is not the individual Catholic I am criticizing, but the system under which he is working."

SEES FRANCO FAILING

WINDSOR, Ont., March 31 (CP).—Latest drive of the Spanish insurgent leader, General Franco, "will spell his doom and the push to the sea will never be accomplished," Lieut. Robert Taylor, who fought for the Government cause as commander of No. 1 Company, Abraham Lincoln Battalion, told local committee of the Friends of the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion here last night. Taylor now is in charge of the Detroit branch of the Lincoln Battalion.

Staffs of London hospitals are to have anti-gas training.

HERSHEY BEARS WIN

HERSHEY, Pa., March 31 (AP)—A five-goal whirlwind finish in the third period gave Hershey Bears a 5-2 victory over Detroit-Holzbaugh-Fords here last night in the second of the best-of-five-game series billed for the amateur hockey championship of the United States.

MILLBROOK

BUSINESS MEN DISCUSS MARKET

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 31.—The Business Men's Association met in the Town Hall on Tuesday at 8 p.m., with the president, R. A. Ford, in the chair, and a fair number of members present.

The committee appointed in February to look into the matter of a swimming-pool for the local young people was not ready to report in detail, but after general discussion, it was felt that sufficient information would be secured to make definite statements as to expense, site, etc., by the next meeting.

The matter of a local market, which had been left in the president's hands, was also left in abeyance until more extended information had been gained, and business heads of certain firms had been contacted.

The next meeting will be on April 19, when it is hoped a full attendance will be registered.

Personals

Mrs. G. F. Harrington and Miss Josie Sutton went to Toronto on Wednesday, to attend the International Flower Show, as members of the local Horticultural Society. Miss Sutton will also attend the banquet of The Men of the Trees at the Royal York on Thursday evening, and both delegates will return home at the week-end.

Mrs. Maxwell Cameron, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. L. S. Clarry at the homestead, Park Roadway, returned to her home at Ottawa on Wednesday. Miss Blanche Clarry, R.N., of New York, is home for the summer months with her mother.

Miss May Attwooll leaves on Saturday for Toronto, where she expects to make an extended stay.

READY TO TACKLE ANYTHING

The Purpose of the Y.M.C.A. is just that—to equip boys and young men to tackle anything—any of life's problems and do it with confidence. Did Not Include All Clergy Premier Hepburn Writes

Nearly Mobbed

Police were forced to go to the aid of former Lieutenant-Governor Dr. Herbert A. Bruce of Ontario, when he narrowly escaped being mobbed at the hands of infuriated supporters of the Osteopaths' bill, which he helped to defeat before the Private Bills Committee of Ontario legislature. The defeated bill was designed to give drugless practitioners the right to the use of the prefix "Dr."

Only To Do With Those Who Sent In Strongly-Worded Protests

HAMILTON, March 31.— "As yet I have not endeavored to correct The Globe and Mail report of alleged statements in the Legislature. My reference re hyprocritical attitude of ministers had to do only with those ministers who had sent strongly worded protests to me, with hope of intimidation, and was never intended to include all the clergy."

The above was the reply of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, received Wednesday afternoon by Rev. H. F. Veals, Secretary of the Local Council of Churches, and came in answer to a resolution forwarded the Prime Minister Tuesday after the Council had met to consider the reported utterances of the Premier.

In the motion, which was wired to the Prime Minister immediately after the special session, members of the Council, which is composed of representatives of all Protestant churches, said they viewed with concern the serious charges allegedly made by the Prime Minister against the ministers of religion of the Province, reported by The Globe and Mail, as follows:

"'I am not going to be led round by the nose by any minister, and I want to say that I don't think that there are any greater hypocrites than these gentlemen';

"Respectfully requests the Premier to tell us whether he was correctly reported by these words. And if so, does he seriously contend that all ministers of religion, who oppose his policies in the matter of sweepstakes are hypocrites? And at this time we would associate ourselves with the protests presented by the non-Roman communions against the legalizing of gambling."

Rev. Mr. Veels said he would refer the letter to Rev. E. Crossley Hunter, President of the Council, when he returned to the city today. If the matter was thought of sufficient importance, a special meeting will be arranged, otherwise the communication would be filed until the next regular session, he added.

SUSPICIOUS CALL

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 31.—(CP). — Assistant traffic superintendents in the telephone company here must have practical training, so a man was operating the long-distance board. Calling Woodstock the other day, the Woodstock operator refused the call, until a woman operator at Brantford assured her all was well.

BRISBANE, Queensland—(CP).—Qantas Empire Airways, which operated the last lap of the England-Australia air route, recently celebrated its third birthday with a record of 2,105,020 miles to its credit without a single forced landing and without injury to any passenger or employee.

Savage Air Raids Shatter Barcelona

Over 1,000 persons were killed and hundreds wounded as General Franco's aeroplanes rained bombs on Barcelona in an effort to beat the loyalist stronghold into submission. Neutral countries were horrified at the ferociousness of the air raids which took place every two hours for more than 41 hours. This pile of debris, ABOVE, is the funeral mound of scores of civilians who were trapped by the rebel bombs.

These stretcher bearers were kept busy as the rebel aeroplanes launched a series of air raids on Barcelona in an effort to force the loyalist government to yield. Civilians bore the brunt of these attacks which took a toll of more than 1,000 lives. Large portions of the old city were completely wrecked by the accuracy of Franco's bombers. Unable to escape to the open country many of the civilians were felled in the streets or trapped in shattered buildings.

A. H. McKeel Makes Gift For Veterans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31. — Once again Christie Street Hospital is to be enriched by a gift from the workshop of A. H. McKeel, who has already been made an honorary member of the Canadian Legion, Branch 103. Only last year Mr. McKeel made the hospital a gift of a number of cribbage boards, and this time his workmanship surpasses any of his previous efforts.

With the background of many years' experience in both construction, boat-building and fine cabinet work, Mr. McKeel has spent many hours during the past months in completing a book truck, four feet high and nearly five feet long, mounted on four heavy artillery type ball bearing wheels with rubber tires. The truck has two shelves which should accommodate between four and five hundred books, and is made of fir, stained and polished a rich mahogany color. At the ends are compartments for stationery divided to hold both paper and envelopes. The truck has been placed on display in a store window on Front Street, together with four bouquets of artificial flowers made and donated by Mrs. Ed. Stanbury. Mr. McKeel has expressed the hope that some local organization would make a donation of books to complement his gift to the veterans at Christie Street.

It is expected that a delegation of prominent citizens will accompany the gift when it is sent to Toronto.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LOOKS UNTO HILLS FOR HER DEFENCES

VANCOUVER, March 31.—(CP)—Canada's basic Pacific coastal defences are as old as the hills—exactly.

"God supplied principal defences for Canada's west coast," was the way one responsible military man put it referring to the mountainous battlements that protect British Columbia's shoreline for a distance of more than 500 miles. "Anything we do would be supplementary."

But there are vulnerable spots in the coast's rock armor and it is to protect these that the Federal government is spending approximately $8,000,000 on fortifications, guns and other armament.

Two vital spots, the urban centres of Victoria and Vancouver, can be approached by naval craft only by a semi-circular waterway leading from the Pacific Ocean. By protecting the entrances of this waterway—formed by the Straits of Juan de Fuca and Georgia—access by sea to the two main nerve centres of the province is blocked.

Early this year the Federal government made provision for protection of British Columbia's third vulnerable point. An air base will be constructed at Prince Rupert to guard that northern city which forms the north coast terminus of the Canadian National Railways.

In between Prince Rupert and the southern cities of Victoria and Vancouver, 500 miles of rugged mountains form a barrier against naval invasion of the mainland.

Guns are being placed to guard the entrance of the Strait of Juan de Fuca and on Yorke Island to guard the Strait of Georgia to the north against menacing naval craft. Assuming attacking vessels could get past these guns, placed strategically at narrow points on the waterway, guns at Ferguson Point could fight an attack upon Vancouver harbor while planes from Jerico base could attack from the air.

Gun emplacements could give similar protection to naval attack on Victoria while anti-aircraft emplacements could protect the capital to some extent from planes.

Part of Coast Defence

Some informed military sources here explain that the coast defence is not planned to meet the full force of a strong attack but to guard against naval craft in the event of war involving other parts of the Empire.

During the world war German naval craft menaced various parts of the Empire in an attempt to break down morale but without attempting invasion. It is understood the Pacific Coast defences are to offset operations of just such roving vessels.

This theory was supported by a remark by Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie when he told the House of Commons that sporadic raids, designed to cripple communications or destroy supply bases, were the threats against which Canada's forces were being strengthened.

"The entire conception of Canadian naval, military and air defence, is based on the action of sporadic raiders or upon aircraft carriers," he said at that time.

Four destroyers—two already in service and two contracted for—also would be employed to stop any hostile craft from approaching the province's urban centres.

FOOD FIGHT WIDENS

WINDSOR, Ont., March 31. — (CP).—Following the lead of women in Toronto, Hamilton, London and Oshawa, Windsor women formed the Windsor Housewives League at a meeting here last night. Principal aim of the league will be to combat the high cost of living, it was said.

Mrs. Alice Emery, elected president, told the meeting of advances made by women in similar organizations in other cities.

Quebec May Ease Movie Laws

QUEBEC, March 31 (CP). — The Quebec Government intends to effect changes next year in Provincial laws regarding the admission of children to moving picture theatres, Premier Duplessis told the Legislature's Private Bills Committee tonight.

During study of the Montreal bill, Ald. Dave Rochon questioned the Premier about the Government's views on amendments to a law refusing admittance of children under 15 to movie houses.

The Premier replied his Government had intended to change the law this year because moving pictures undoubtedly were "a fine education medium," but the size of the problem had caused postponement of action.

TORIES EXPEDITE CONVENTION PLANS EXPECT ELECTION

OTTAWA, March 31.—The notion, if not exactly the fear, that a general election may be brought on this fall, is causing the Conservative party to expedite the arrangements for their national convention. The party caucus has been discussing the prospect, and the result is that the convention committee has been summoned to meet here a week from Saturday. Then the date of the convention is expected to be fixed.

It may be as early as June.

The intention expressed at the party conference here some weeks ago was that the gathering should be held as soon as possible after the close of the session. Now it may possibly be before the end of it. The convention would take three days, and in place of being on a Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, as at Winnipeg, it might be on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Should Lose no Time

Interference with the sessional work would be confined pretty much to one day. Senators and members would not need to make a special trip to Ottawa for the gathering.

Party strategists believe that no time should be lost in choosing a leader and in adopting a platform.

The Prime Minister stated some months ago that unless something unforeseen arose no election would occur this year, and as far as the Government is concerned, that still holds. It has not been modified.

Nevertheless, large events are impending. A Government mission is now in Washington attending to the preliminaries of the new trade agreement negotiation, while if there is a pact between Great Britain and the United States it will in all probability affect the Ottawa agreements.

To Resist Extension

Speeches in the House of late, notably yesterday by the Conservative leader, indicate that the party will resist any extension of the present trade pact with the U. S. and, perhaps even more strongly, any modification of the Imperial conference arrangements. The combination of the two presents a picture different from that of 1911 when reciprocity was the issue.

The idea is that, if fundamental changes are made in either agreement, the Government may consider that the importance of the subject warrants an electoral mandate, especially if what is proposed is contested in Parliament. The latter is a certain prospect. Moreover, economic or political conditions, it is thought, may also contribute to an election prospect.

First day of the convention would be for appointment of committees to deal with the platform. The second day they would discuss the proposals. The third would select the leader, with several mentioned—one of them in the British House. It is doubtful if, after his successor is chosen, Mr. Bennett will continue to sit in the House for the remainder of the term.

PORT HOPE COUPLE 50 YEARS WED

When Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Stratton, Ridout Street, Port Hope, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday, a great many friends and neighbors called during the afternoon and evening to wish them well.

In marked contrast to the gloom outdoors, the house was gay with [illegible] and beautiful spring flowers, the gifts of many admiring friends whom Mr. and Mrs. Shatton graciously received in their charming drawing-room.

Mrs. John Mulvey opened the door and conducted the guests into the dining-room, where Mrs. E. B. Lingard and Mrs. A. W. George presided over an attractively decorated tea table, centred with a huge bouquet of daffodils, flanked by tall yellow tapers. The wedding cake, made by Mrs. Stratton, graced the sideboard, and tasted as delicious as it looked. Mrs. J. H. Stephens, Mrs. C. Lawson, Mrs. A. Lloyd, and Mrs. F. Jamieson efficiently attended to the guests, who were generously supplied with sandwiches, cake and tea.

A covered silver relish and silver bread dish were the gifts of the friends and neighbors.

C.N. Cuts Its '37 Running Costs For 17 Million Profit

Drop In Jobless Relief Gets Much Credit—Deficit Down To $42,345,867

OTTAWA, March 31 (CP)—Notwithstanding increases in wage rates and prices of materials, the Canadian National Railways in 1937 handled its traffic at a lower operating ratio than in 1936, said S. J. Hungerford, chairman and president, in the annual report of the railway system scheduled to be tabled in the House of Commons yesterday. Operating revenues were $198,396,606; operating expenses $160,788,858.

An official summary of the report was made public in connection with the tabling. It said: "After payment of all operating expenses, the net operating revenue of the railway for the year 1937 was $17,607,750, an increase of $2,474,951 over the previous year. After payment of taxes, rentals, discount and all other charges of every description, excepting only capital losses from line abandonments charged to proprietor's equity, the net income available for interest was $8,287,228, an increase of $1,878,317 over the previous year. After applying such net income against the interest of funded debt due to the public, and interest on government loans, there was a deficiency of $42,345,867 as compared with $43,303,393 in 1936."

In 1937 the Government adopted the policy of collecting from the railway in cash interest on loans for capital purposes, and the report said that had that change in policy not taken place the deficiency for 1937 would have been $40,661,114 instead of $42,345,867.

Over 6 Million Taxes.

Taxes paid by the railway in 1937 amounted to $6,697,242, exclusive of sales tax of approximately $4,200,000 added to the cost of materials.

"The increase of all operating expenses over those of the preceding year was $9,311,168," said the report. "Increased rates of pay accounted for $2,800,000 and increases in prices of materials for $3,500,000. The program of maintaining and modernizing rolling stock was augmented during the year, resulting in additional charges of maintenance of equipment expenses of $2,500,000, the benefit of which will be reflected in subsequent years. Equipment retirement charges to operating expenses increased over the preceding year by $730,000. There was a reduction in expenses due to the elimination of the unemployment relief, maintenance of way program of $1,015,000, and flood damage and snow removal costs were $528,000 less than in 1936.

Freight Income Up.

The increase in the gross operating revenues of the Canadian National amounted to $11,786,119 in 1936. Freight revenues increased $8,308,097 or 5.7 per cent., passenger revenues $1,923,021 or 11.3 per cent.; commercial telegraph revenue $475,682 or 10.8 per cent.; express revenue $438,181 or 4.9 per cent.; mail revenue, $149,043, or 4.4 per cent.; operating income from hotels $40,070.

The report said the growth of the system's gross revenues from the low-point reached in 1933 continued. In 1937, it continued, all of the expected improvement in revenue did not materialize, due largely to Western crop conditions and to the sharp business recession in United States territory in the latter part of the year. The increase of 6.32 per cent compared favorably with the showing of United States Class 1 railroads.

"The gross revenues of the Canadian National from the transportation of grain grown in Western Canada in the years 1925-34 inclusive averaged $22,000,000 per annum, the tons of grain carried averaging 5,000,000 during that 10-year period," Mr. Hungerford said. "The comparable figures for the past three years have been as follows:

Year.	Tons carried.	Revenue.
1935	3,720,944	$15,409,810
1936	3,915,606	$15,777,702
1937	2,356,656	$ 9,643,572

The Highway Competition.

"One of the pressing problems in the transport situation is the placing of highway and inland water competition on a fair and equitable basis in relation to the railways. The directors are gratified to observe that the Parliament and Legislatures of Canada are giving consideration to this serious problem.

"During the year the directors reviewed the field of co-operation with the Canadian Pacific Railway and enlarged the scope of their studies. The co-operative activities related to matters previously studied but largely to the study of the abandonment of functionally duplicate lines of railway and the preparation of detailed agreements in regard to those lines where an abandonment had been recommended by the joint co-operative committee and approved by the joint executive committee."

The average number of employees in service, exclusive of hotel and subsidiary company employees, was 79,471 in 1937. The total payroll was $117,804,769.

NEEDLE IN HAY KILLS COW

BELLEVILLE, Ont., March 31, (C. P.). — All hail to Sol Robbins' cow. She found a needle in a haystack, but the discovery killed her. Puzzled over the sudden death of the valuable animal which suffered no apparent sickness, Robbins had an autopsy performed. It revealed that a large darning needle, evidently swallowed with some hay, had penetrated the stomach and pierced the heart.

Leaders In The Move For Ontario Sweepstakes

Clergymen of Ontario, who oppose the sale of sweepstake tickets in Ontario, were branded as "hypocrites" by Premier Hepburn, LEFT, in the House recently as the government leader declared that he was prepared to take his political life in his hands in support of the resolution to legalize sweepstakes in Ontario. Mr. Hepburn attacked the clergy for their opposition to the resolution when they allow church organizations to sell tickets on various draws. Hon. Leopold Macaulay, opposition House leader, RIGHT, supported the motion, which was introduced by Fred G. McBrien (Cons.,) centre.

BLUM'S FINANCING MAY BE DOWNFALL

PARIS, March 31 (AP). —Premier Leon Blum is preparing a new program for reconstruction of French finances which may test the strength of his government in parliament before the week is out.

Details of the new bills were kept secret, but there were indications they would be submitted to parliament Friday after the Bourse has closed for the week-end.

Premier Blum is expected to request urgent debate and a decision before Monday when the Bourse would reopen. Otherwise he plans temporary closing of the Bourse to prevent excessive speculation during continued debate, it was understood.

Among a welter of rumors was one that the premier again would ask powers to handle government finances by decree.

Should the Conservative senate refuse to accept the program, it likely would mean overthrow of the popular front government.

Joseph Caillaux, chairman of the senate finance committee, apparently holds Blum's fate in his hands, for his attitude is expected to determine the senate decision.

Caillaux, 75 today, once premier, six times finance minister, led the fight against Blum's request for decree powers to handle finances a year ago and forced him out of office.

Japan's Oil Scheme

Current reports state that the Japanese have offere dto contract for half a million barrels of oil annually from Mexico in return for technical aid in building a pipeline across the Isthmus of Tehunatepec (as shown in the ABOVE map) from Minatitlan to Salina Cruz. Mexican spokesmen said they preferred to deal with democratic countries, but did not close the door to sales to Japan, which were reliably stated to be

A TWIN ROBBERY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 31 (A. P.). — The same short negro at the same hour and the same place last night held up the same street car operator for the same amount of money with which he escaped two weeks ago. The loot both times was $7.00.

20-FOOT DRIFTS STALL TEN CARS IN COLORADO PASS

DURANGO, Colo., March 31—(A. P.). — Twenty-five motorists, rescued by a rotary snow plow from 20-foot snow drifts which trapped them for 36 hours on Wolf Creek Pass, rested safely here to-day, but a man who started on foot across the pass had not been heard from.

The missing man, George Willis of Buckeye, Ariz., started eastward over the pass yesterday while a two-day blizzard continued in full force.

The motorists in 10 automobiles follwed the snow plow down the pass highway to Pagosa Springs, from where they travelled over open paved highway to Durango, 66 miles west.

Nourished by food carried to them on skis by state highway patrolmen, and warmed by campfires and automobile heaters, the motorists suffered only from weariness.

Two white women, a negro woman, and two boys about 12 were reported to have been in the marooned party, stalled on Monday on the western side of the pass summit. Also in the group was a barn-storming negro basketball team from New York, the Harlem Hotshots.

During the height of the storm, general throughout south-west Colorado's San Juan country, 49 inches of snow fell within 12 hours on Wolf Creek Pass.

One of the heaviest snowstorms of the winter swept Eastern Montana, Colorado and Wyoming.

MRS. A. THOMPSON STILL HALE AT 86 HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, March 31. — Mrs. A. Thompson celebrated very happily her 86th birthday on Wednesday at her home in Madoc Village. Mrs. Thompson is still hale and hearty, and with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Ashley, welcomed heartily the relatives and friends of the family, who gathered to offer congratulations and wish her many happy returns of the day.

Open house was kept all day long and none left without enjoying genial hospitality. The rooms were gorgeous with spring flowers, tulips, daffodils, iris, and roses. The dining table was gay with candles, flowers, and silver, china and glass, and loaded with sandwiches, cakes, and candy. Helping Mrs. Ashley to serve were Mesdames Burnside, (Dr.) Nickle, Tosh, E. Burnside, and others, while guests coming and going helped to accentuate the good humor of the crowd.

Besides Mrs. Ashley who was the only daughter able to be present, were the eldest son Charles Thompson, with his wife and son Allan of Madoc Township. Letters and telegrams of congratulation were received from her other children, John and Stanley of Forth Worth, Texas, Percy of Edmonton, and another daughter Tillie, Mrs. (Rev.) Stanley E. Morton of Brockville. Two other daughters, Dora, Mrs. S. McNeil, died in 1919, and Jennie in 1898. Mr. Thompson, her husband, died in December, 1919, and his loss is still felt and his name lovingly remembered at these family re-unions.

Among guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson and son Alan of Queensboro, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Muffitt (the only sister living) were expected, but owing to bad roads were unable to get to Madoc from Coe Hill; Dr. and Mrs. F. Nickle of Eldorado. From Madoc were: Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Burnside, Mrs. E. Burnside, Mrs. M. Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Jack, Mrs. Mouncey, Mrs. Harris, Mrs. McGhee, Mrs. Tosh, Mrs. Choat, Mrs. Fair, Rev. and Mrs. I. E. Kennedy, Mrs. T. Nicol, Mrs. Allan Smith, Mrs. Moon, Sr., Mrs. D. Brown, Mrs. G. C. Moon, Mrs. Carl McCoy and daughter Betty, Misses Ethel and Sylvia Richmond, Miss Aylworth, Miss Wood, Mrs. Charles Johnston, Mrs. George White, Mrs. Charles Whytock, Mrs. T. L. Nickle, William McMechan, and R. P. Wellman of Peterborough.

Looking Back
On This Date

MARCH 31
By FRED WILLIAMS

Fred Williams

When the Dominion of Canada was formed in 1867, one of the pressing questions which had to be dealt with was that of the new militia. There had been defence forces, of a sort, in Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick; but it was necessary to bring them together as an all-Canadian force. Accordingly, on March 31, 1868 (70 years ago today), Sir George E. Cartier, minister of militia, introduced a militia bill for the new dominion. Perhaps it would be more fitting to describe the measure as a defence bill. In this action Cartier was supplementing the attitude he took in the Confederation debates, during which he said:

"When we are united, the enemy will know that if he attacks any province, either Prince Edward Island or Canada, he will have to deal with the combined forces of the empire... When we have organized a system of defence suitable for our mutual protection, England will not fail us in case of need, either in soldiers or in money."

The Defence Bill of 1868 proposed both a land and a naval militia. It contained 141 clauses and provided for an effective force of 40,000 men at an estimated annual expenditure of $900,000. The new dominion was divided into nine military districts (which were added to as the new provinces came in). In short, this Cartier bill was the basis of our militia system as it has since evolved.

Cartier did not confine himself to a land force. He planned a naval militia; indeed, he laid much stress on that proposal: "It is an important fact that there are at least 70,000 mariners, of whom 40,000 or 50,000 are in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. If the maritime power of England is superior to that of France, it is due to the fact that the maritime population is more numerous among the English than among the French. Napoleon one day said that it was easy enough to construct warships, but the difficulty was to man them. If the entire British navy perished today, the sailors employed in the mercantile marine would be sufficient to man a new war fleet."

But that was as far as the naval militia got then. "I do not pretend by this bill to organize a naval militia. That is a matter left to the governor-in-council. But the bill contains provisions suitable to encourage the creation of naval contingents." But, unfortunately, for some unexplained reason, the naval side of the militia was never developed until Sir Wilfrid Laurier introduced the naval service bill in 1910.

MR. JUSTICE KRUSCHEN IN THE HYGIENE COURT OF JUSTICE

Rheumatic Pains Gone
Welcome Reformation
JUDGE CONGRATULATES EX-PRISONER

"I remember your case very distinctly and I congratulate you on your recovery. I hope you now realize how serious your crime—rheumatic pains—was and how easily it can be avoided."

The judge then added that if the few remaining foolish people would only realize that a little daily dose of Kruschen Salts is as necessary to cleanliness as soap and water there would be fewer aches and ailments. There would be less suffering from the pains of rheumatism, neuritis, gout, sciatica or lumbago. Constipation would be on the wane and there would be fewer cases of getting run-down, and far less likelihood of catching colds.

KRUSCHEN SALTS
relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day; hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

Just Wasting Time

An Ottawa story says the Ontario Legislature is just wasting time debating provincial endorsation of sweepstakes because there is little hope of the Dominion Parliament legalizing that form of gambling.

Rev. Father Verrault, president of the Canadian Hospital Council, stated at Ottawa yesterday that the Council was opposed to hospitals accepting benefits derived from sweepstakes.

bridge costs more than $2,000. The builders must be resident in Ontario or a company incorporated in this country.

A bill to grant a charter for building the bridge to a party acting for the province has yet to pass the House of Commons at Ottawa. New York State Legislature approved a bill there but the Senate killed it. The bill will come up again at the fall session.

Cancer Penalties Up To $2,500.

The House also gave second reading to Health Minister Kirby's bill establishing a commission to investigate cancer treatments. This body, yet to be named, is given power to require all persons claiming possession of a treatment to submit it for examination. Penalties ranging up to a fine of $2,500 and jail term not exceeding six months are provided for violation of the Act.

Mr. Kirby said the Government still hoped the Dominion would make a cancer investigation with the $400,000 obtained through the King George V. Silver Jubilee Cancer Fund. If Ottawa did not carry out the inquiry, Ontario felt it was the Province's responsibility.

Bills originating with Toronto members failed to obtain endorsation. John Glass (Lib., Toronto St. Andrew) withdrew two measures. One would have permitted licensing private schools, city regulation of dealers in coal and other fuel and would have given the Municipal Board power to hear appeals against refusal or revocation of various licenses by a police commission.

A second bill would have cut assessment on wholesale business to that figured for retail concerns. Objecting to the bill, Premier Hepburn declared it would cut Toronto's assessment $5,000,000. Mr. McQuesten said it would cost Hamilton $14,000.

Henry Bill Rejected.

Disapproval also met the bill by George S. Henry, former Conservative Premier, to end "plumping" in municipal elections. If six councillors, for instance, were on a ballot, his bill would require that all be voted upon or the ballot would be rejected.

Attorney-General Conant described the bill as "a 'retrograde step in the development of the franchise." Aurelien Belanger (Lib., Russell) said it would prevent minority representation on council. William Duckworth (Con., Toronto Dovercourt) argued people in Toronto knew its purpose. It was aimed "at certain elements not in the best interest of the city."

Mr. McQuesten estimated revenue from the Fall's View Bridge last year was $500,000, although the International Railway Company, owner of the bridge, told the Private Bills Committee at Ottawa annual revenue over the last five years was $275,000. The Highways Minister based his estimate on 5,000,000 persons and 1,000,000 automobiles crossing the bridge last year.

Bonds could be retired in 12 years, he estimated. It all depended on business conditions. Bonds would be a charge on the bridge revenue rather than the structure itself. This would prevent seizure of the bridge.

MALE VOICE CHOIR SCORES TRIUMPH IN ANNUAL CONCERT

Well Balanced Organization Carefully Trained Is Guided By Charles Renaud

Program Of Seventeen Numbers Presented In Collegiate Auditorium

In a varied program that ran the whole gamut of musical expression from the poignant sadness of Tosti's "Good-bye" to the rollicking humor of "Little Tommy" and from the beauty of Brahms' "Lullaby" and the patriotic appeal of "Dear Land of Home" to the sea-saltiness of "Rolling Down to Rio" and the martial atmosphere of Maunders' "Border Ballad," the Peterborough Male Voice Choir under the musicianly leadership of its new conductor Charles Renaud, scored a real triumph in its annual concert in the Collegiate Auditorium last night.

Crisp in its attack, clear in its enunciation, splendidly balanced, this vocal orchestra of thirty-five voices was handled by Mr. Renaud in a manner that got the last bit of effort out of the singers themselves and out of the numbers that made up the striking program.

Three Main Factors

Results such as were achieved last night do not just happen. They are the combination of good voices to start with, a willingness on the part of the owners of those voices to work hard in rehearsal and a conductor who knows what effects to strive for and the methods by which those effects can be attained. That all these factors are present in the Male Voice Choir was unmistakably demonstrated by the uniformly fine work of the organization in a program of seventeen numbers that was an exacting test of the ability of the choir to interpret many varied moods.

Four groups of songs made up the choral end of the program. The opening group included "Dedication," Speaks' "Morning," the always impressive "Pilgrim's Chorus" by Wagner, the only invasion of the grand opera field by the choir, and "Rolling Down to Rio," a widely differing quartette of choral numbers that got the program away to a most auspicious start. Possibly the last number of the four most won the favor of the audience.

The second group began with a most impressive rendition of Beethoven's Creation Hymn, followed by the singing of "Deep River," in a manner that revealed fresh beauty and appeal in the old negro melody that has always had the power of touching the heartstrings. "Alexander" by Brewer, a delicious piece of choral nonsense was an amusing interlude that the choir seemed to enjoy as thoroughly as the audience and then came the haunting melancholy of Tosti's "Good-bye," hackneyed perhaps because it has been heard so often, and yet rarely heard sung so delightfully as it was presented by Mr. Renaud and his singers last night.

A fitting start to the second part of the program was the choir's spirited rendition of "Comrade's in Arms." Followed one of the gems of the evening, the Volga Boat Song, in which choir and conductor caught up the mood of that tone-picture of old Russia and made it live in the imagination of the audience. The dainty charm, the lavender-and-old-lace atmosphere of Purcell's English song, "Passing By," was admirably expressed in the third number of the group and next moment the singers were in spirit joyously dashing through the snow as they sang Kountz's lively Sleigh Song.

Effective Opening Number

The martial swing in march tempo of Maunders' Border Ballad made an effective opening for the last group. Came next "Dear Land of Home," the haunting strains of that melody which Sibelius set forth in his immortal tone-poem "Finlandia" a melody that has attained almost the status of a national anthem in Finland. The choir was at its best in its handling of this very fine number. "Little Tommy," a joke expressed in music was a laughing success and the quiet beauty of Brahams' Lullaby and a most effective rendition of the hymn "Saviour, Now the Day is Ending," made a perfect close to a program that was full of good things.

Assisting the choir and making a most useful contribution to the great success of the evening were Mrs. Blanche Cowan, soprano, as guest soloist and the Peterborough String Quartette.

Mrs. Cowan, whose clear and sweet soprano voice was heard to the greatest advantage in four delightful numbers, sang with a feeling and with such a proper appreciation of the importance of having the words of her songs heard, that her share of the program was a personal triumph. Her first offering "May Day Morn," was most enjoyable, the always-popular "Homing" was most effectively presented. Ernest Charles' little song "Clouds" was a thoroughly pleasing number, and the sprightly "Ho, Mr. Piper" completed a most successful group of solos.

The quintette composed of Mrs. Percy Hooper, Mrs. E. M. Foster, first violins; Cecil Searles, second violin; Jack Thackeray, cello, and Cecil Gallagher, viola, with Mrs. Searles at the piano, demonstrated that Peterborough, well served in other musical organizations, is also fortunate in the field of chamber music. This talented group made a most favorable impression and their end of the program was thoruoghly enjoyed. Their opening offering was a serenade by Mozart, most effectively played. Later they were equally happy in their execution of two of Anthony Collins' arrangements, one of Vivaldi's "Giga" and the other of "Tambourin" by Aubert. The final contribution by the string ensemble was an aria by Tenaglia and a Bach gavotte, both excellently done.

Mrs. Charles Renaud, wife of the conductor, was of invaluable assistance as accompanist during the evening, both for the choir and for Mrs. Cowan.

During the intermission Ald. James Dutton outlined the history of the choir and made a plea for support for the organization and for the other musical bodies that were contributing to the culture of the community. The advent of Mr. Renaud was hailed by the speaker as a musical gain for Peterborough. Mr. Dutton paid a tribute to the self-sacrifice of the members of the choir in giving up their time for practice and mentioned the fact that six members who live in Norwood had not missed a rehearsal, driving to Peterborough in all kinds of weather.

Following are the members of the choir: First Tenor, Thos. Williams, W. R. Young, E. Bongard, Thos. Parker, A. V. Lillow, Wm. Gracie, T. A. King, D. A. Kennedy; Second Tenor, D. R. Fleming, Dr. C. H. Fulford, A. H. White, Wm. McGee, M. Bongard, G. McGregor, H. W. Hamblin; Baritone, S. Ivey, A. B. Burrows, J. Johnson, J. Edwards, Thos. Pitchford, J. H. Bell, L. Bongard, B. Clark, J. Stewart, W. A. Brown; Bass, W. F. Skitch, F. Biddle, E. W. Lloyd, H. G. Choate, H. Laing, M. Peters, D. McNeely, G. Dainard, W. J. Stares, E. Coleman.

Fireman Resigns

Fireman Joseph Finnie leaves the Peterborough Fire Department today (Thursday) after more than 13 years of service. He has purchased a farm in Otonabee. He joined the staff of the department on February 21, 1925. "He is a good man and I'm sorry to see him go," commented Fire Chief George Gimblett.

MOTORS IN HOMES ARE BEING BLAMED FOR RADIO TROUBLE

"I believe 75 per cent of radio interference in Peterborugh is caused by small motors which are being used in the homes of the people who may themselves be complaining of interference." That is the view of V. Brister of the Department of Transport, who has been checking complaints in this city for several days.

"Would people be aware that they are causing their own interference?" asked the Examiner.

"Probably not," was the answer, "and that is why I would like to suggest that people who use the radio should do a little experimenting at home in order to find out if the trouble is right there. The method is very simple," continued Mr. Brister, "just turn on the radio and then start up any motors there may be in the house and see if there is interference. Then it will be known if the trouble is right in the house and it can be cured by securing a filter, the cost of which in most cases would not exceed one dollar."

"Would trouble in one house bother people next door?" asked the reporter.

"Yes, that is almost certain. If you had a defect in your home which was causing interference in your own radio it would likely affect the reception in three or four houses on either side of you. If radio users would do that little experimenting with their own machines they could get rid of a great deal of the interference, and that would leave the inspectors with more time to go out and work on some of the major causes of interference."

"And what would they be?" inquired the Examiner.

"Well, for instance a leaky insulator on a high tension wire would affect an area of several miles. The equipment used in our cars will indicate to us at once when we are in such an area. We would like to get this whole matter cleaned up and the radio users themselves can give us a great deal of help if they will only check up at home."

SALARY INCREASES GIVEN CONSTABLES BY COMMISSION

Increases in the salaries of constables were adopted by the Police Commission last night. Two new men who are yet to be appointed will receive $1200 each, an increase of $100; Constables Clarke, Sexsmith and Rogers get an increase of $50 from $1300 to $1350; and Constables Naples, Puffer, Piercy, Stevenson and Menzies are advanced from $1490 to $1500.

Letters from the Border Transit Limited and G. N. Gordon called the attention of the Board to the action of a taxi service in advertising a rate of 25 cents for four passengers. The company regarded this price as an infringement of their franchise. Mr. Gordon alleged that some taxi drivers in the city were being paid only six dollars a week, a scale which he contended to be unfair to others engaged in the business. He suggested that the Board should draft a bylaw to determine the taxi tariff for Peterborough.

Both these questions will be considered at a special meeting of the Commission.

The Humane Society was given permission for a tag day on April 30 and the Institute for the Blind on May 28.

Application from a Toronto junk dealer to canvass from house to house was referred to the city solicitor for advice.

J. C. McRuer, K.C., wrote about the spring course of the Ontario provincial and municipal police training school, but the Commission decided to take no action.

UMBRELLA THEFT CHARGED TO MAN

William Saunders, a Sault Ste. Indian, who got out of jail here just a day or two ago from serving a sentence on a liquor charge after having been arrested at Lakefield, was back in police court this morning, charged with stealing an umbrella, the property of Canadian Department Stores. He pleaded guilty to the charge, and the Crown asked for a remand to make some investigations, the case going over to next Tuesday.

"People used to think umbrellas were everybody's property," commented Magistrate Langley, smilingly.

"Not in a department store," said Crown Attorney McElderry.

The umbrella, a fancy-looking shelter obviously designed for ladies' use, was produced but the Magistrate declared that he had no interest in it.

"I don't care if it is purple or what it's like," he said "I was merely referring to a very old joke about umbrellas coming from heaven."

Sewing For Pageant

Although the Y.W.C.A. spring pageant will not go before the public for another six weeks or more, work on the organization's most elaborate yearly show has already begun. Half a dozen, and sometimes more, women from George Street United Church are meeting every Wednesday and Friday to sew the hundreds of costumes that will be used in the pageant. On Wednesday the Examiner's cameraman caught some of the ladies taking a little time off for afternoon tea. The ladies seen here are Mrs. Thomas Mark, convener, Mrs. Wallace Harris, Mrs. W. P. Hetherington, Mrs. Harry Dulmage, and Mrs. F. E. Latimer. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

INVITING HON. P. M. DEWAN

Hon. P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture, is being invited by the directors to open the Peterborough Exhibition next August. The letter to the minister was sent this week. The Board is holding a meeting Friday night. The Exhibition's prize list has been completed and forwarded to Ottawa for approval by the federal Department of Agriculture, Tom Brown, president, reported this morning.

LONG SERVICE.

This is an historic anniversary for two members of the Peterborough police department, Detective "Bill" Meagher and P.C. Gordon Puffer. To-day the former is completing 30 years of service in the local force, while Constable Puffer rounds off 17 years' service to-night. Detective Meagher, who was a well-known hockey and rugby star, became a member of the Peterborough police department on April 1, 1908, while his colleague joined on April 1, 1921, shortly after returning from service overseas.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Suspended sentence was meted out to two youngsters in police court this morning on theft charges. One 12-year-old pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of scrap iron from Louis Florence and the other to the theft of a number of Examiners from a news company.

FALL WHEAT GROWING

Fall wheat throughout the district is green and growing and shows no signs of damage from winter frosts. It is too early yet to feel secure about the weather as the season is about two weeks in advance of the average advent of spring, and late frosts are within the range of seasonal possibilities.

SPEEDING EXPENSIVE.

A plea of guilty to a charge of reckless driving on Highway No. 7, east of Peterborough, cost Nicholas DeCarlo, 472 Reid street, a fine of $20 and costs amounting to $2.50 in police coutr this morning. Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton told Magistrate Langley that the accused had been driving at 60 miles an hour and when he was pulled up it was found that the brakes on the car were in a very defective condition.

SHOULD BE CAREFUL.

With the advent of mild weather bringing out juvenile cyclists and roller skaters in droves on city streets, motorists are asked to be especially careful. Chances of serious accidents have multiplied in the last few days, and the authorities point out that drivers need to be watchful at all time. Parents are also urged to warn children of the need for them to be careful on the street.

MR. LANCASTER'S TRIBUTE

The following tribute to the late J. F. Breckenridge was paid by T. P. Lancaster, publisher of the Havelock Standard, in his account of the funeral on Tuesday: "It was the writer's good fortune to have known him long and well, and we only knew him to esteem him more highly as the years passed by. He was a devoted husband and father and the soul of fellowship to his friends. But greatest of all he was a man, and as a man it is that those who knew him best will love to contemplate him. His cheerful, helpful life, his devotion to his wife and family and his kindness to everybody, will linger long as a fragrant memory."

FRESHETS FILL RIVER

Although the dam below the Locks Bridge is awash, the water flowing over it with a drop that has been reduced to apparently a few inches, and the level of Little Lake is nearing the top of George street wharf, and the river above the C.P.R. bridge has encroached upon the Engleburn shore line, and the outfield of Riverside Park is a broad lagoon; in spite of these manifestations of Spring, the Trent Canal front is quiet.

There are freshet conditions, but they are quite normal, and the excess water is expected to move off tumidly, of course, but not turbulently. At the first show of trying to gambol a bit in the spirit of Spring or kick over the traces and the reins would be tightened overnight.

JOHN I. ALLEN IS GUEST OF HONOR OF INSURANCE MEN

Insurance men to-day (Thursday) paid tribute to John I. Allen, retiring superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company and one of the founders of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Life Underwriters' Association.

Guest of honor at the association's banquet at Hooper's Tea Rooms, with close to seventy of his business associates present, Mr. Allen was presented with a silver cigarette case and lighter, and was toasted in warm words of appreciation.

"He is a fighter, but he has always fought fairly," said W. A. J. Giles of the Confederation company, president of the association. Lionel Scott, manager of the Imperial Life, moved a vote of congratulation to the guest. "His record is one we could all very well emulate," he commented. "When this smart young American came over here with an army of salesmen, I was frankly worried," related Tom Mark of the Manufacturers' company. "I didn't sleep at nights." In the years that have passed he has become a staunch friend of John I. Allen and has learned that "instead of cutting into our sales he has helped to open up the way for increased sales by all of us."

Burden Lightened.

"I know that in the years to come you will take pleasure and satisfaction in recalling that you have lightened the burden of countless widows and children," said A. J. McClellan of the Excelsior Life. He paid tribute to what he termed were Mr. Allen's "fighting qualities." W. E. O'Brien of the Metropolitan Life made the presentation.

"The ideal agent must know the life insurance business; must make me listen; must talk simply; must talk briefly; must talk the language of my business; must be able to appraise my life value; must have imagination; must be willing to concentrate on my personal problems; must be optimistic, must have tactful persistence; must own enough life insurance himself so that he can convince me that he believes in it." Those were the qualities that he stressed in choosing men to work with him, said Mr. Allen in his address.

"The noblest contribution which any man can make for the benefit of all is that of a good character," he said. "One builds in proportion as he is conscious of his faults and shortcomings, and as he seeks to remedy his deficiencies. He may never arrive at the point of perfection—that would be expecting too much—but he can censure and correct himself, pattern his life after high ideals, and win the commendation, good will and praise of an ever-increasing number of people proud to be numbered among his friends."

"When you stop and look at the type of men in insurance to-day and years ago, you can hardly believe in the change that has come about," he said, recalling the early years of insurance in this country. He attributed the rise in prestige and moral outlook in insurance to-day to the offices of the Life Underwriters' Association. He urged young men in the business to devote all their time to their work, promising they will be amply rewarded.

Asphodel Boy Hurt In The Sugar Bush

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 31.—Marvyn Preston, Asphodel youth was the victim of an unfortunate accident in their sap bush two miles east of this village yesterday. He had been making plugs to fill the holes in the trees where spiles had been removed, when the sharp axe cut the end off his thumb just above the last joint. He was brought into the village where he was attended by Dr. Campbell.

SPEAKER URGES HOLIER FEELING ONSABBATHDAY

With Mrs. Harold Rehill, the president, graciously presiding, a very interesting and instructive meeting was held yesterday afternoon by the local W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Scott Wildman, Aylmer street, lent her pretty home for the meeting and for the tea which followed, when a large number of members and visitors enjoyed the fine program.

The worship service was led by the president, with two minutes of silent prayer, followed by "The Lord's Prayer" in unison. The Scripture lesson, read by Mrs. Boorman, was the story of the tempting of Christ on the mountain, and prayer was offered by Mrs. A. I. Brown.

As guest speaker, Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church spoke on Sunday observance, law enforcement and legislation, and gave some pertinent facts regarding the law in relation to various public matters.

Outlining the Lord's Day Act, Rev. Mr. Young gave instances where these Sunday laws were not enforced and even in our own city were being constantly broken. Mr. Young made it very clear that Sunday should be a holy day—not a holiday. When Jesus said that the Sabbath was made for man, He thought of a people dedicated to God, and set apart to worship Him. The speaker scored Sunday amusements, the gathering of church members at the Sunday open drug store, Sunday visiting and travel for pleasure, and anything which makes a desecration of "The Lord's Day."

Much Business.

Business had a large place on the day's program, when matters of importance to the W.C.T.U. were discussed and settled.

The coming visit of Rev. Dr. George Little, who will lecture in Peterborough on the temperance problem April 27th, was left in the hands of a capable committee to arrange in detail.

The annual Spring rally, held as parlor meetings, was also discussed and all these will be announced later.

Some very interesting reports were given by department superintendents. Mrs. H. E. Connolly has the medal contests well under way, and is adding several good features.

Mrs. Wand reported on the poster contest, and judges were appointed. Mrs. Campbell gave a good resume of the work done through soap-wrappers, while the secretary, treasurer and corresponding secretary gave the business details of the month.

During the tea hour a delightful program was enjoyed, when Mrs. E. Wand sang "Give Me a House on the Hillside" (Penn), and Miss Eleanor Glover played several piano selections with fine expression. The humorous readings by Eva Blanche Parr were well received, and included "Back in Squashville" and "A Controversy Over How to Pray."

The thanks of the W.C.T.U. to Mrs. Wildman for gracious hospitality and to Mrs. Colman Elliott, who assisted in the service of refreshments, and to all who contributed to the program were voiced by Mrs. Rehill, and endorsed by all.

ANGERED BY BABY'S CRIES FATHER BEATS IT TO DEATH

Wife Returns to Find Him Bending Over Cot and Crying

MURDER IS CHARGED

Liverpool.—Left to mind his six-month-old son, a young husband thrashed the child to death because he cried, it was alleged at Liverpool police court.

The father, Charles Alfred Gibbs Church, 22, unemployed machinist of Toxteth Park, Liverpool, was remanded in custody, accused of the wilful murder of the child, Harold Charles Church.

J. R. Bishop (prosecuting) said that Church's wife left him to mind the child. When she returned an hour and a half later she found her husband leaning over the cot and crying. Then she saw that the baby was dead.

Church went out for some cigarettes. He returned and sat down and began ' smoke.

Later he left the house and he surrendered subsequently to the police.

When he entered the police station it was alleged he said: "I want to make a confession. It is about my son. I have killed him." He then made a statement in which he said:

"The child started screaming. I picked him up and tried to pacify him. He kept on screaming and I threw him in the cot.

"I smacked him with my belt and also smacked him on the face with my hand.

"He kept on screaming so I threw a pillow on his face, and that stopped him screaming.

"He just sobbed a bit and then went quiet."

Mr. Bishop said that Church was found to be wearing a leather belt with a brass buckle. When this was taken from him he said: "That's the belt I smacked him with."

When told that he would be charged with wilful murder Church said: "What did the wife say?"

It was stated that a doctor found that the child's death was due to shock following bruising.

HALT PROFITEERING IN GRETNA WEDDINGS

End Commercialization of Runaway Marriages in Scotland

London.—The commercialization of runaway marriages at Gretna Green is to be stopped.

That was evident from replies given by Walter Elliot (secretary for Scotland) to questions in the British House of Commons.

Mr. Kirkwood (Lab., Dumbarton) asked if it was the government's intention to give effect to the recommendations of the Lord Morrison committee which would make it compulsory for all marriages to be registered at state offices, thereby ending the scandal of profiteering in these marriages.

Mr. Elliot replied that he hoped to introduce a bill to give effect to certain recommendations made in the reports of the committee on the marriage law of Scotland.

(The chief recommendations of the Morrison committee were that irregular marriages should be abolished and a new and simple form of civil marriage should be introduced. "The principle of Scots law," stated the committee, "is that consent makes marriage. Irregular marriages proceed on this principle." The committee gave instances of the evils and misery which followed from such marriages as at Gretna.)

DRINKING CUT OFF FOR 2 LONG YEARS

"Life Is a Misery Now," Wails Culprit

Weston-Super-Mare—A month ago elderly William Fisher of Weston-Super-Mare was banned from visiting public-houses for two years, because he had been drunk and disorderly.

Recently Fisher begged the bench to release the ban to the extent of allowing him an hour a night occasionally in his favorite "pub" and to meet his friends.

"I want to get my pleasure back," he told the bench. "Life is a misery now."

But the bench was adamant, and sent him, sorrowful, away.

MINERS GAIN HOLIDAYS

Play-time Pay Assured in New Agreement

Manchester.—A new wages agreement, which will give holidays with pay to nearly 60,000 miners in Lancashire and Cheshire, was announced after a meeting of coal-owners and miners' representatives in Manchester. The miners are also to have an extra five minutes for meal times.

AT 77 ROBS DETECTIVE

Former Devil's Island Convict Given Day in Custody

Liverpool. — Eddie Guerin, of Devil's Island fame, now aged 77, had the shortest sentence of his life recently. He was given a nominal day's imprisonment on a charge of stealing a notecase belonging to a detective.

PREHISTORIC TOOTH WEIGHS FOUR POUNDS

Experts Believe Chiswick Find 50,000 Years Old

Chiswick—The tooth of a prehistoric elephant was unearthed in a swamp by workmen digging the foundations of the new workshops which are to be built at Chiswick for London transport.

Close to the tooth were a few crumbling bones.

Experts of the Natural History museum declare it to be the upper tooth of a straight-tusked elephant, and give its age as upwards of 50,000 years.

It was found 19 feet below the surface in water-logged soil, and is in almost perfect condition.

Measuring slightly over 8 inches in length, it is 5 inches high and 3 inches across. It weighs nearly 4 pounds.

SOMNAMBULIST TAKES OWN LIFE, IS THEORY

Ship's Fitter Found Dead With His Head in Oven

Plymouth—The theory that he gassed himself while sleep-walking was put forward at the inquest here on Mark Wellington Eke, 49, a ship's fitter employed in Devonport dockyard.

Eke was found dead with his head in a gas oven at his home.

Coroner W. E. J. Major returned a verdict that he took his life by inhaling coal gas, and that probably he was walking in his sleep or the balance of his mind was disturbed.

Frederick Eke, the dead man's son, said his father was subject to sleep-walking, and would frequently get up during the night, dress himself, and go through the motions of his work.

Leslie Burgoyne, brother-in-law, said the oven tap was turned on, but the window was open and there had been no attempt to seal the door.

Dr. H. G. Ludolf, police surgeon, said it was conceivable that Eke walked in his sleep and was not conscious when it happened.

The coroner said there was no doubt Eke committed suicide. It was only a question of his responsibility for his action.

DRESSES LIKE GIRL TO COMMIT ROBBERY

Clerk of Leeds Sentenced to Serve Six Months

Leeds.—Described by the police as "a sly, cunning thief" who once posed at a girls' home as a French girl, Dennis Holdsworth, 20, a clerk, of Leeds, was sent to prison for six months.

He pleaded guilty to two charges of stealing watches and money from clothing at a public swimming bath, and asked for two other theft charges to be taken into account.

A detective said on one occasion Holdsworth was arrested at a home for girls in Leeds, where he had gone wearing girl's clothing stolen from a shop. He had said he was stranded, and gave the name of "Desiree de Grey."

YOUTHFUL EXPERIMENT AT LONDON ZOO

Although his mother, a veteran of nine years, barked a warning, Joey, the 18-months-old baby sea lion, was most interested in proving his skill at juggling balloons when this little English girl paid a visit to London zoo to see for herself whether it was really true that the sea lions at that institution were as good at juggling as they were said to be by grown-ups. Apparently the youthful experiment met with success.

PASTOR DENOUNCES MORBID THOUSANDS

Crowds Swarm Around Spot Where Woman Was Murdered

Otley (Yorks).—Rev. Fred Cubbon denounced from his pulpit at Fewston the thousands of people who had streamed into the village to see the spot where Mrs. Margaret Peel, storekeeper, was murdered.

Police searching for the weapon which killed her had to be taken off their duties to control the traffic. The country lanes were completely blocked.

Mr. Cubbon, at a memorial service to Mrs. Peel, said he had been horrified to see the morbid curiosity-mongers. They had been going round glaring at each person they met as if he were a wild beast, the preacher declared.

Picnic parties in the fields and woodlands beat through plantations, hoping to catch a glimpse of the searchers at work, and, discovering the cemetery where Mrs. Peel is buried, had to be driven away by police.

SAVING THE FACADE

London.—In the £500,000 ($2,500,000) reconstruction plan for Guy's hospital it is proposed to save the Georgian facade, well-known by many Canadians who underwent treatment in the institution during the war.

HEDGEHOG-EATING HERMIT SOLD OIL FOR DEAFNESS

Recluse Found Dead in His Sod and Skin Hut Near Ashby de la Zouche

PAST WAS MYSTERY

Ashby de la Zouche, Leics.—For 20 years Edward Johnson had lived the life of a hermit in a tiny hut of skins and turf in a dell a mile from Swepstone, near here.

Chief item of his diet was roasted hedgehog.

He cooked the hedgehogs to a special recipe of his own, and from them extracted an oil, which he bottled and sold as a cure for deafness. Many of the villagers swore by it.

No crabbed miserly recluse was Teddy, as the villagers called him, but a friend of all. Only of one thing would he never speak of—his past.

Then he died in his hut alone.

The coroner held an inquest, found that he died from bronchial pneumonia, accelerated by exposure.

But the secret of his past remained hidden, apart from the fact that years ago he lived in London. His age, it was said, was about 72.

Soon after he came to the village, 20 years ago, he built his tiny hut at a spot screened by trees and hedges. Only those in the know could find it.

Odd jobs for farmers and selling watercress were his means of livelihood, apart from the hedgehog oil cure.

Teddy rejected all suggestions that he should leave his hut, and just before his last illness said he hoped he would be allowed to die there.

Local authorities once threatened to have his shack removed, because it broke the laws of hygiene, but local sentiment ran so strong that he was left alone.

On one occasion he attended the little village church, but his quaint manners and his odd dress so amused the choir boys that this visit was not repeated.

NUDES ARE BARRED FROM BIRMINGHAM

"Last Stronghold of Puritanism," Says Artist

Birmingham—The city of Birmingham, where chorus girls have to wear stockings, has banned six nude paintings from an exhibition at its Art gallery.

All the "nudes" are by one man, John Melville, and were entered for an exhibition of works by local artists.

When he was told of their omission, Mr. Melville exclaimed:

"Birmingham is the last stronghold of Puritanism, and this is just another sign of it."

MAGISTRATE RECALLS MODEL'S BLACK EYE

Charge Against Artist Withdrawn—Adequate Compensation Is Promised

London.—Mr. Boyd, Marlborough Street magistrate, remembered a black eye he had seen in court. It belonged to Miss O'Leary, artist's model.

Vasco Lazzolo, artist, was accused of assaulting Miss O'Leary in a Mayfair flat. His solicitor, giving brief details, began to describe the model's black eye.

Said Mr. Boyd: "All right. I remember that one quite well."

The charge against Lazzolo was withdrawn. A full apology had been given and accepted, it was stated, and the model would receive adequate compensation.

The model waited outside the court. She wore a shield on the eye, a bandage round her head, and the other eye was slightly discolored.

It was said the assault had taken place in the early morning. The artist had had a certain amount to drink, and resented the model telephoning for a taxi. As she went to the door he hit her.

Outside the court Lazzolo shook hands with the model.

VILLAGERS PUT CURB ON 'CRUISING DANCE'

Few Southland Residents Would Have Attended Novel Event

Leicester.—Swithland, near Leicester, is far from the sea—and glad of it. For Swithland (190 population) finds beach suits rather shocking.

Attention of the Swithlanders was focused on beach suits which appeared on local hoardings and fences to announce a "cruising dance" at the village memorial hall.

Now the posters have been torn down and the dance is off. Booking of the hall was cancelled by the trustees, the Earl of Lanesborough, the Ven. J. McKay, the rector, and Mr. Disney Barlow.

Lord Lanesborough said that the letting of the hall was cancelled because it was Lent, and because it was considered that the posters were "a little startling for a small country village."

"I don't know whether girls would come along in bathing costumes, pyjamas, sailor-suits and that sort of thing," he added, "but very few Southland residents would have attended."

LONDON POLICEMAN BALKS AT KISSING

Cricketer Is Charged With Assaulting Officer

Bradford.—An allegation that he adopted an attitude that he was going to kiss a policeman was made at Bradford when Abraham Wadington, former Yorkshire and England cricketer, was summoned for assaulting a police constable, keeping his headlights on his motor car illuminated when stationary, and using obscene language. He pleaded not guilty.

Imposing a fine of $25 for assault and $1.25 for the lighting offence, the stipendiary said the police must be allowed to do their duty whether the person is unknown or world-famous.

PAIR MEET AT VILLAGE DANCE MARRIED TWO HOURS LATER

Wed by Declaration in Watchman's Hut on Scottish Pier

WILL MARRY AGAIN

Elgin, Moray.—Louis Fitzgerald Hennesy-Pereth, a 22-year-old Londoner in Scotland on business, went to a village dance at Milton Duff, near Elgin.

There he met Miss Margaret Ross Nicholson, 20-year-old brunette, of Bishopmill, Elgin, at 1 a.m.

During their first dance he proposed. Miss Nicholson accepted him.

Two hours later she was his wife —married by declaration according to Scottish law.

They had first contemplated immediate marirage at Gretna Green, but abandoned the idea because of the distance.

Then they motored to the fishing port of Buckie, intending to go out in a boat with a minister beyond the three-mile limit and be married at sea.

Rough weather wrecked this plan. So, in a watchman's hut on the pier-head, at three o'clock in the morning they formally accepted each other as man and wife.

Three men and a girl, friends who had accompanied them from the dance, were the witnesses.

Mr. Hennesy-Pereth, who is employed by a Glasgow firm, said that they now intend to go through a more regular form of marriage.

"She struck me like a ton of bricks when I saw her at the dance," he explained. "I asked her to dance. It was a slow, dreamy waltz. I can't remember the tune.

"She smiled, said 'Thank you.' She was wearing a picture of a frock. We had a talk, and shortly afterwards I told my friends I was going to marry her at once."

William Mathieson, a business colleague of the bridegroom, said: "Another fellow and I got out the car after the dance to take the girl home. Five minutes later Jerry astonished us by saying: "Didn't I tell you I was going to marry Margaret?"

"In front of us he proposed. He said to her: 'Will you marry me?' Without hesitation she replied: 'Yes, I will.'"

One of the forms of irregular marriage in Scotland consists of exchange of consent anywhere before two witnesses.

'MAID IS ON FIRE' MESSAGE TO VICAR

Holy Communion Interrupted as Preacher and Scout Extinguish Flames

Grimethorpe (Yorks.) — "Vicar, come on. The maid is on fire and the vicarage is blazing."

This dramatic interruption as Rev. A. Raley, vicar, was conducting Holy Communion here, caused him to race across in his vestments to the vicarage, from which smoke was issuing in dense clouds.

After him ran Jack Evans, 13-year-old boy scout, still in surplice and cassock, to help him throw buckets of water on the flames."

The maid, Rowena Emily Hudson (19), was severely burned about the legs and body, but her life was saved by the pluck of the housekeeper, Mrs. A. Hancock, and 14-year-old Doris Middlebrook.

Doris told a reporter that Hudson was lighting a fire in the study when a flame leaped out and set her apron alight.

"She ran screaming round the study, setting fire to it, and then into the kitchen, where Mrs. Hancock and myself rolled her in a rug and put the flames out."

RADIUM IS LOCATED MISSING FOR YEARS

Found by "Clucker" in 8-Year-Old Cinders

Newcastle—Eight years ago £120 ($600) worth of radium—eight milligrams—was thrown away, by accident, into a bin used for old dressings at Newcastle Royal infirmary.

The "rubbish" went to the incinerator.

The loss was discovered. Search was made. But the cinders from the incinerator had been spread on garden paths.

Recently new search was made with the aid of a new instrument called a "hen" because it makes a clucking noise in the presence of radium.

And the whole of the lost radium, as good as ever, was discovered.

GRANDSON OF PEER OUSTED FROM ARMY

Lieut. Baring Had Been Sent to Jail on Perjury Charge

London—Lieut. D. C. N. Baring, grandson of the second Lord Fermoy, has been dismissed from the army.

This was announced in the London Gazette, in which it is stated that "Second Lieutenant D. C. N. Baring, 3rd Dragoon Guards (supplementary reserve) is removed from the Army, Nov. 9, 1937, his majesty having no further occasion for his services."

Lieut. Barin was sentenced at Derby assizes to 12 months imprisonment for perjury in connection with a summons for exceeding the speed limit.

It is also announced that Flight-Lieut. William Donald Anderson, D.F.C., is dismissed the service by sentence of general court-martial, Dec. 13, 1937. Anderson was awarded the D.F.C. for gallant and distinguished services in action, in connection with the Mohmand operations in India in 1935.

KITTEN GIVES ALARM SIX ESCAPE FLAMES

"Faithful" Is Rescued With Those Whose Lives He Saved

Luton.—Six people were saved from a fire at St. Mary's Rd., Luton, by a kitten named Faithful.

Live coals from the grate set the kitchen alight and flames blocked the staircase.

Jumping on the bed, the kitten roused Harry Price, the householder, and his wife.

Mr. Price dropped from a 14-foot window, ran barefooted to the police station, and called the brigade. Meanwhile a lodger carried his 12-yearlold daughter on to a roof.

An auxiliary fireman climbed through a first-floor window and rescued Mrs. Price.

Finally, two other lodgers were brought to safety by the brigade, Faithful sitting on one of their shoulders.

BRITAIN HAS SUPPLY OF 26,000,000 MASKS

Are Stored in Sealed Cans in the Event of Air Raids

London.—Twenty-six million gas masks are now ready to protect Britain's civilian population in the event of an air attack.

More than 9,000,000 of them are at present stored in the London area, and production is being maintained at about 650,000 a week.

These facts were revealed by Geoffrey Lloyd, parliamentary under-secretary for air. He claimed that the rate of production in England was much greater than that of any other country.

To ensure that the great stock of respirators remains fully effective they are hermetically sealed in cans with a special gas of a preservative nature, and stored at strategic points for distribution to the civilian populace in event of an air raid.

BRITAIN IS SEEKING MORE CANADIAN EGGS

London—Canada is making a successful bid to capture a part of the British market for eggs.

Denmark for many years has supplied the London market with the majority of imported eggs. Now, it is revealed, the small-scale shipments of Canadian eggs, which have been carried out as an experiment by the Canadian department of agriculture and various Canadian co-operative organizations, have proved so successful that the supply does not come up to the demand.

PRISONERS GIVE AID

Brighton, Eng.—When a van carrying two guards and four prisoners to Lewes prison overturned here the guards were hurt, first-aid being given by their charges. The journey was completed by bus.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

NEW YORK MOTHER'S PLEA REVEALS PARIS DRUG RING

Eight Men and Two Women Arrested and Warrants Out for 20

BEATING CUSTOMS

Paris—Eight men and two women have been arrested here following a New York mother's demand that supplies of drugs sent to her daughter should stop.

They are stated to be members of a drug ring doing a great illicit business in cocaine, morphine and heroin.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of 20 other men and women said to be members of the gang.

The complaint of the New York mother, whose name is given here as Mrs. Bertha Fanning Taylor, an artist, led to the unmasking of the gang.

Some years ago Mrs. Taylor came to live in Paris for a few years with her two daughters, then aged 16 and 15.

It is alleged that the elder girl while at a finishing school made the acquaintance of a drug trafficker known as "Axel" in the Montparnasse quarter.

He sold her heroin, and she had since been receiving drugs from him in New York, it is declared.

She was taken seriously ill recently and confessed to her mother that she was taking heroin.

The arrest of Axel, a former barman, and a police search in his apartment in Montparnasse put the police on the track of the gang.

One of the problems troubling the French authorities is how the traffickers were able to send drugs to the United States in ordinary parcels marked "household goods" without these being detected by the United States customs.

Parcels arrived in New York regularly every month.

FRENCH PARACHUTIST JUMPS FIVE MILES

Paris.—James Williams, French parachutist, jumped from an aeroplane here when it had reached a height of 5¼ miles.

He fell like a stone nearly five miles to within 1,150 feet of the ground before he pulled the rip-cord of his parachute.

His time of 2 minutes 29 seconds was a second behind the world record established by the Russian, Edmonkinov, shortly before his death.

WANT GAS MASKS FOR TEN MILLION

Paris.—Manufacture and distribution to the civilian population of ten million gas masks are provided for in a new bill to be introduced shortly in the French parliament.

The bill is being framed by the air ministry and the ministry of the interior. Its adoption is considered certain.

It is the purpose of the two ministries to effect the fastest possible distribution of masks to civilian and urban areas. The masks will not be kept in storerooms, as in England, but given out at once.

FLOPS AS KIDNAPPER IN PLAY, IN REALITY

Scheme to Secure Money for Show Puts Actor in Prison

Paris.—For months Andre Bonor was a successful kidnapper—on the stage. But when he tried it in real life he promptly landed behind the bars of a real prison.

Bonor was a bit actor in a vaudeville troupe that included in its repertoire an act entitled "The bearded woman has been kidnapped." The audience didn't take too enthusiastically to the skit. The troupe folded and Bonor was out of a job.

He had an idea for a new act but no money. But he did have a lady friend with a very jealous husband and he decided to resurrect the old skit in real life in order to make enough money to put the new one on the stage. He kidnapped the woman, locked her in a room and then communicated with her husband. For a reward the husband could have her back again, he warned.

The husband told the police; the police located Bonor, locked him up, then released the wife. Now Bonor doesn't have to worry about a new act. His costume for some time to come will be the drab garb of a French prison inmate.

17-YEAR-OLD BARMAID FACES 'BREACH' SUIT

Wealthy Man-About-Town Introduces Novel Action in Bulgarian Court

Sofia—The first breach of promise suit ever brought against a woman in Bulgaria is to be heard here.

Cyril Bojadieff, 25-year-old man-about-town, is suing 17-year-old Mimi Shopova, night club barmaid, who jilted him on their wedding day.

Some time ago Bojadgieff inherited a fortune from an aunt, and he soon became a familiar figure in the clubs frequented by Sofia's smart set.

In one of these clubs he met Mimi. Their friendship developed until one night, according to Bojadgieff, she tearfully confided to him her dream of a husband, home and family.

He proposed to her, and after a week's thought she accepted.

During their engagement she remained at the night club, where he spent most of his time and much of his money entertaining her friends.

WOULD DEFEND BUTLER

Port of Spain, Trinidad—Sir Stafford Cripps, British M.P., and noted lawyer, has offered to appear for Uriah Butler in the event of his appeal against conviction and sentence of two years for sedition coming before the privy council. Butler's sentence arose out of the disturbances in the Trinidad oil fields last June. The former British Labor party leader's offer was contained in a telegram to Mitra G. Sinanen here.

JAP PEARLERS 'BUY' GIRLS FOR FEW TOBACCO STICKS

Children of North Australian Aborigines at Mercy of Crews

HORRIFY TRAVELLER

Sydney, N.S.W. — The sales of aboriginal girls and women from North Australia to Japanese pearlers for a few sticks of tobacco is reported by W. B. Cochrane, a traveller.

The natives will do anything for tobacco, he says. "The Japanese luggers give them unlimited supplies of trade tobacco, and the missionaries give the natives only half a stick for a day's work.

"The luggers sail from Darwin, call at any points they like, pick up aborigines (four to a boat), give them tobacco and food, and take their women.

"It is horrifying to see children of 12 kept for days on luggers, absolutely at the mercy of the crews.

"Time and time again I have seen luggers with four or five young mission girls aboard within a few miles of the Bathurst island mission station."

FRANCO ASSUMES CONTROL AS DRIVE NEARS BARCELONA

HENDAYE, France, March 31. — (AP).—General Franco to-day assumed personal command of the insurgent forces closing in on Lerida, next to the Spanish government capital, Barcelona, 80 miles east.

With main body of troops reported at the outskirts of the city on the highway from Fraga, the insurgent leader threw other units forward in sweeping movements designed to encircle Lerida, but all deserted by its civilian population. Insurgent reports said huge clouds of smoke darkened the environs of the besieged city.

Part of General Juan Yague's column of troops, which had led the advance from Fraga on the southwest, branched off to the southeast into the valley of the Segre river to join supporting column advancing up the river bend.

These columns had struck a damaging blow by seizing the village of Aytona and a Hydro-Electric plant there which serves more than 50 Catalan villages, with supplementary lines into Lerida.

Franco's plan apparently was to strike Lerida from its two southern corners, his main body driving along the Fraca highway from the south-west, and part of Yague's command striking for the southeastern corner, where the Sagre enters the city.

Control River Banks

Before taking command before Lerida, Franco inspected the Barbastro sector, some 35 miles to the northwest, where his northern wing was moving slowly southeastward along both banks of the Cinca River.

The Insurgent southern wing established strong positions in the San Marcos Mountains before Morelle, only 38 miles from the Mediterranean.

Insurgent officers at Irun said they had received additional news from their aviators "confirming" yesterday's reports of fighting in the centre of Lerida. The government denied earlier reports of an insurrection.

There were three air raids on Lerida yesterday, but Insurgents indicated the big push would be withheld until recent gains had been consolidated.

Scenes of confusion about Lerida were described. Abandoned military equipment and dead soldiers littered the roads. Toward the coast, streams of refugees and disorganized troops clogged the highways.

The government was mobilizing hastily organized recruits and throwing them into the struggle. The international brigade was sent to the front.

In Barcelona, Defence Minister Indalecio Prieto said 10,000 volunteers had enlisted in the last five days.

CATHOLICS QUIT YOUTH CONGRESS

MONTREAL, March 31 (CP)—The Catholic Association of French-Canadian Youth has decided to withdraw from the Canadian Youth Congress because of "the strong influence exerted in that body by subversive and radical elements," Paul Leblanc, general president, said today.

"Mgr. Georges Gauthier, Archbishop coadjutor of Montreal, prohibited our association, which has 60,000 members scattered through every province but British Columbia, from further association with the Youth Congress," said Leblanc.

He said he understood Mgr. H. Mozzoni, Papal Charge d'Affaires at Ottawa, had instructed the Roman Catholic Episcopate throughout Canada to prohibit Catholic organizations from participation in the Congress.

"We took part in the Congress here last year," said Leblanc, "and noticed the strong influence of the Radical, or Communist if you like, element. We will not participate in this year's Congress.

"We would be glad to collaborate with the Congress if the influence of the Radicals could be diminished," he said.

There was no restriction on Roman Catholics participating in the Congress as individuals so far as he knew, but there was a strict edict against them representing the Church or Catholic movements.

At the Congress here last year, he recalled, Roger Ouimet had been named French-Canadian chairman, but had later resigned.

The association he headed was making plans for a Roman Catholic Youth Congress in Ottawa next autumn, said Leblanc. Catholic youth organizations of both French-speaking and English-speaking memberships would be invited to attend.

PARTY IS GIVEN MISS M. ATTWOOLL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 31.—Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Ford were host and hostess for a very enjoyable party on Monday evening, at their home, King street centre, with Miss May Attwooll, who leaves shortly to take up residence in Toronto, as the guest of honor.

Three tables were in use for bridge, and before the supper hour, Miss Attwooll was pleasantly surprised by the informal presentation of a solid leather week-end bag, the gift carrying with it many good wishes for health and happiness in connection with her new home and occupation, together with sincere regret at losing her from her local activities and circle of friends.

The recipient made grateful acknowledgement of the kindly words and remembrance, and a dainty dunch was served by the hostess.

Included among the guests, in addition to the guest of honor, were Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Misses Beatrice Turner, B.A., Josie Sutton, R.N., Ada Attwooll, and Messrs. Douglas Sheppard and Howard Lancashire.

Dogs Are Now Being Trained To Become Fulltime Mounties

Taught To Tack And Capture Criminals--German Shepherds Are Used

By FRED KENNEDY

CALGARY, March 31. — West of Calgary in the shadow of the same hills and coulees which sheltered cattle rustlers and whiskey traders from mounted police, Indian scouts and trackers in the halycon days of the early eighties, a new generation of Royal Canadian Mounted police "scouts" are in training.

Keeping pace with the general progress being made in police work on both continents, the famous force has established a police dog training school within sight of the Canadian Rockies, and men and dogs are being trained in the art of tracking and capturing criminals.

Within six months the "school" hopes to present for headquarters inspection their first graduating class of men and dogs, and if the experiment proves as successful as it appears to be at the present time all western detachements at least will be provided with well trained police dogs.

Use German Shepherds

Chosen because of their ruggedness, courage, and intelligence, five German shepherd dogs are now undergoing a thorough course of training under the direction of Constantine Ritter von Aichinger, former ober-lieutenant in the German army who for a time was in charge of Germany's war dogs on the western front of 1918.

Selected by Major-General Sir James M. MacBrien, commissioner of the R.C.M.R., because of his outstanding record in the training of police dogs, the former German officer has already made considerable progress with his canine charges in the few short weeks that the school has been in operation.

He is being assisted by Constable Byers, formerly of the Ottawa detachment of the R.C.M.P., who has been attached to the school as assistant trainer.

The use of dogs in police work is an old story on the continent of Europe. In Canada it was not thought of until quite recently. For years the mounted police detachments in the west used Indian trackers. Those were the days when criminals made their escape aboard swift running horses, and it was a comparatively easy matter for the Indian trackers to follow their trail. They merely studied the shape of the horse's foot, or maybe the size and design of the shoe.

When the automobile supplanted the horse as a means of making a getaway, the Indian trackers were "stumped." Cattle rustlers and horse thieves started to use high-powered trucks. The Indian trackers gave it up as a bad job. Progress had caught up with them, passed them and left them standing still. And so the mounted police turned to more modern methods.

Proved Its Worth

Sergeant J. N. Cawsey of the Calgary detachment of the R.C.M.P. had spent years tracking cattle and horse theives. In late years he had read of the wonderful assistance that German, Bavarian, French and Belgian police forces were receiving from their specially trained police dogs, so he decided to follow their lead.

In 1933 he purchased a handsome German shepherd dog. He named him Dale of Cawsalta and then proceeded to train him. Within two years the exploits of this intelligent dog were making newspaper headlines all over Canada.

He trailed one automobile thief for more than 20 miles over the prairie and trapped him in an abandoned granary in the heart of the Blackfoot Indian reserve at Gleichen, Alberta.

The police became so proud of Dale's conduct that they prevailed upon Sergeant Cawsey to sell him to the force and in the fall of 1935 he became "special Constable Dale decided to open a training school

With the dog's record before him it did not take Commissioner MacBrien long to realize the importance of police dogs, especially in Western Canada. Right there and then he decided to pen a training school and from the long list of applicants for the trainer's position he personally selected Constantine Ritter von Aichinger, a man who has spent the greater part of his life handling police dogs.

Today we find him in charge of the R.C.M.P. school, carrying on the work that he loves.

Six Months Training

Starting off with five dogs—all German shepherds—the police dog trainer hopes to have them ready for "active service" within six months.

"I had never seen any of the dogs until they were brought to me a few weeks ago and consequently we are all starting from scratch, Lieut. von Aichinger said.

"The first thing that I have to teach them is obedience, and when I have demonstrated my control over them their real lessons start.

"While the most important part of their training is the tracking of criminals, they must learn a number of equally important tasks before they are turned loose on a police case.

"For instance, they must be taught to get over or through any physical object that bars their way when they are on the scent. They must be taught to approach a criminal by making themselves as scarce as possible—they do that by crawling noiselessly along the ground. When the criminal is finally tracked and sighted, they must attack and hold him there, and accomplish this task without injuring the suspect.

"They are also taught to retrieve lost articles and guard their prisoners.

"They are taught to take no notice of gun fire and to close with a criminal whether he is armed or not. They must obey the word of command promptly while "working" and when a trainer has accomplished all of these things, he has what we call a "finished dog."

Wants Dog's Goodwill

Lieut. von Aichinger said that teaching the dog to remain on the trail of a suspect, and to take no notice of any counter-attractions during this period, represented one of the main problems during the teaching period.

He said that while there is a prescribed course of training for police dogs, he preferred to use his own methods because he had seen them prove successful over a long period of years.

"There is much said and written nowaday's about "force" training of dogs. I do not agree with this principle although it may be necessary in isolated cases.

"I endeavor at all times to first secure a dog's goodwill, and when this is apparent I make every effort to retain it. If you break that, you stand a good chance of destroying the dog's usefulness for all time to come.

"During the training period, I allow no one to handle them but myself. I feed them, water them, see that they are properly bedded down. The idea is to keep up a contact with them, both during their hours of work and hours of play."

Lieut. von Aichinger then proceeded to give a demonstration with "Toughy," a handsome specimen of German shepherd dog, who has been attending school less than two months.

He gave a first-class exhibition of obedience to start with. Walking along at his trainer's heels, he stopped suddenly at a low command. Another command and he dropped to the ground.

Stays at Post

Dropping his coat on the ground, the trainer ordered the dog to guard it. He returned half an hour later to find the dog and the coat in the same position. A newspaperman who attempted to retrieve it was warned off by a low nasty growl and a sudden baring of wolf-like fangs.

A mounted police constable secreted himself in a coulee covered with brush some distance away. The dog hit the trail without much effort. A wooden fence, seven feet high, barred his way. The dog took it in two strides and while the remainder of the party was searching for a way over the obstacle, the furious barking of the dog and the excited cry of a man announced the "capture" of the "criminal."

When the "posse" arrived, they found the man and dog rolling around in the brush. "Toughy" had seized the man by the left arm, but fortunately the constable who had been acting as the decoy had protected himself with a strong padded arm guard.

The dog was called off, and the party returned to the kennels, both police officers elated over the fine showing of their prize canine pupil.

The school is being operated under the personal supervision of Inspector J. O. Scott of the Calgary sub-division and police officials are confident that a new page in the history of the world famous force will be written when the dogs finally graduate and are posted to police detachments.

Very Apt Pupils

"Special constables" of the future for the famed Royal Canadian Mounted Police are these German shepherd dogs now being tutored at Calgary for active police service by C. Von Aichlinger who is shown at LEFT with Toughy, prize pupil. The two top pictures show how the dogs pursue, seize and overpower an escaping criminal and at the lower LEFT, one of the intelligent animals creeps slowly along the ground in the same way that it would approach its quarry without making any noise. At the RIGHT are four of the dogs now being taught by Von-Aichinger, Toughy, Tell, Rex, of Noranda, and Smoky.

DOWNEYVILLE

On Tuesday evening a large crowd was present in the hall here for the presentation of the Irish play entitled "You Can't Beat the Irish" presented by the Dramatic Club of St. Mary's Parish, Lindsay.

The word of the amateur performer proved worthy of the large crowd and each person carried himself or herself with confidence and ability while speaking lines. The three-act play was replete with humor of a distinctly Irish nature and changed with typical Irish speed from the heights of humor to the depths of pathos.

The cast was as follows: Mrs. Mary Malone, Mrs. John Baker; Peggy Malone, Miss Jean McGuire; Tommy Malone, Mr. A. J. Hannon; Danny Malone, Howard Baker; Steve O'Hara, Paul Galley; Armand Ravel, Frank Collins; Ellen Murphy, Leona McCabe; Capt. Dennis Dooley, George Hodgson; Mrs. Nora Moriarity, Miss Helen Hutton; Sylvia Carston, Miss Mary Parker; Anna Ravoli, Kathleen Cuddahee.

Special music was played by the orchestra composed of the Misses Edith Holmes, Ruth Shannon, Regina and Fanny Costello, Messrs Norman Skiteh, Edward Smith, Charles Smith, Claude Wade and Frank Dinner, also Jackie Herlihey sang and Doris Lucas did a special number to the "Sidewalks of New York".

COE HILL

Mrs. LeHigh of Kinmount conducted the Sunday Evening service in the United Church on Sunday last.

There were no services in the Anglican Church owing to road conditions on Sunday last, but will be every second Sunday if roads are favorable.

The Lenten services, conducted in the Town Hall by the Rev. Redding of Bannockburn, Rev. Gault and Rev. Wicks of Coe Hill are making great progress, being noticed more by children attending the Sunday schools.

Mrs. David Moore, accompanied by Mrs. H. H. Johnson, left for Toronto on Monday.

Floods At Sault Easing Off

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 31.—(CP).— Two sections of city, flooded as the result of a quick and early break-up and steady rain, today was in somewhat better condition. A flood at Fort Creek, which extended over several blocks, cleared up last night. In the Bayview section where a flood control works was built during the winter, proved inadequate, water was at highest point known, but was receding. Several houses could be reached only by boats. Dynamite, sand bags and ties were being used to help check the water.

At Thessalon, the ice went out of the Thessalon river, carrying a footbridge at the south of town with it. Flood waters have receded.

PETTING DEFINED

VANCOUVER—(CP).—Petting received a defintion in court here from a girl witness, who testified petting was kissing by a boy and girl with the arms around each other.

Campbellford Club In Sound Condition

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31. — The annual financial statement as read by Hugh Nind at the meeting of the Tennis Club held in the Public Library on Tuesday night showed the club to be in a very sound position and it was felt that with an increased membership which seem assured this year it would be possible to make still further improvements to the tennis courts and club house.

Officers were elected for the year as follows: Honorary president, Dr. H. B. Longmore; president, Wilbert Kingston; secretary-treasurer, Donald Meyers; membership committee, Hugh Nind, Eleanor Ferris, Cliff Weston; refreshment committee, Eleanor Ferris; purchasing committee, Cliff Weston.

The club will again this year defend the league trophy which they captured in the 1937 finals and it was also decided that a committee be appointed to attend the annual meeting.

Fees will remain unchanged with new players being assessed five dollars and having the privilege of the courts until seven in the evening.

SHOCK PROVES FATAL

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 31 (C.P.). — Charles Wattam, 27, died in hospital here last night of injuries suffered at the Western Hill Oil Company warehouse. It was believed Wattam, an eelctrician installing new wiring, received a shock and was thrown to the concrete floor of the warehouse from the gasoline pump, a 10-foot fall.

70 P.C. OF BRITISH FARM REVENUES FROM LIVESTOCK

LONDON, March 31 (CP-Havas). —Seventy per cent. of Great Britain's net farm revenues come from livestock breeding, which would be a prime source of food supply in time of war, Agriculture Minister W. S. Morrison declared at the annual dinner of the Central Landowners' Association last night.

"What I see very frequently expressed," Mr. Morrison said, "is that we ought in some way to reverse this tendency in livestock production and use the resources of the Government to work for increased arable cultivation of land.

"I don't know if we see as clearly as we ought the immense advantage, from a food point of view, of our livestock production. The stockage of the livestock population of this country is 170,000,000—not concentrated in vulnerable silos but walking on its own feet over fields of our own country."

"THOROUGHBREDS" READY

DETROIT, March 31 (C.P.). — An unknown number of thoroughbreds nervously paced their stalls to-day, awaiting the bugle call that will call them to the post in the annual University of Detroit Turtle Derby to-morrow.

Social grace was added to the classic with the announcement the race had received the official recognition of Dean Lloyd Fitzgerald. The school head, however, balked at a suggestion that a school holiday be declared.

A CASE FOR 3 DETECTIVES

CHAPTER 49

NOW THOUGH it looked as though there was nothing more to be said after the sergeant had reconstructed the tragedy, I for one was determined to clear up every point I could think of. I did not mean to be caught again by someone else who would come along with a theory that would supersede this one. So although Sergeant Beef had enxiously consulted a large silver watch several times, as though afraid that he was going to be late for some urgent appointment, I continued to question him.

"What about the ropes?" I said.

"Oh them, well, in the night 'e thought it all over, and it seemed a pretty neat crime to 'im. 'E knew by then that Dr. Thurston 'ad decided to keep quiet about this game of 'is and 'is wife's, in case 'e should be suspected. Come to that it's more than likely that Dr. Thurston had actually told 'im about it, as a lawyer. In fact, now I come to think of it, I should think he had. And Williams, of course, 'ad advised 'im to keen quiet till 'e saw what you gentlemen made of it. There might never be no need to mention the gae, of you'd found the murderer without that. But whether or not 'e'd actually told Williams, Williams knew 'e would tell 'im before 'e told anyone else, if 'e was going to mention it. So Williams thought 'e'd got things pretty well set, a mystery as no one couldn't soive. Well then, 'e began to wonder if it wasn't too much of a mystery. Left as it was, the only solution to it would 'ave to be the true solution, and that wouldn't suit 'im at all. So 'e thinks 'ow 'e could show up some other possibility. And some time in the small hours 'e gets up, goes down to the gymnasium, finds a ladder, 'auls them ropes across, and 'ides 'em in the tanks. 'E 'ad nerve. But it wasn't so dangerous as it looked. If 'e was caught with them anywhere 'e could 'ave said 'e was up to detective work, and 'ad just found 'em, and show 'ow the murderer 'ad used 'em. Bue 'e wasn't caught. 'E got 'em in the tank safe enough. 'E brought the two, in case it should be proved afterwards that one 'adn't been long enough, and all 'is work wasted."

"But what about Strickland— and the pendant?"

"Wot about 'im? 'Is lordship was right enough. 'E is the stepson. 'E got into a bit of trouble over racing, and changed 'is name. But 'e's oright. 'E didn't put 'is 'undred quid on that 'orse until Mrs. Thurston 'ad giv' 'im the pendant which 'e could pop for more than that, to cover 'im if the 'orse didn't win. 'E's oright, I tell you. I'm glad 'is 'orse did come in. It'll be drinks round tonight—if I get down there in time. Course he told one or two lies. Well, 'e wasn't going to let on about changing 'is name. Why should 'e? 'E didn't want all that raked up. As for 'is going to Sidney Sewell, well what could be more natural? A run in the car was what anyone 'ud want, cooped up 'ere for a murder inquiry. It's not everyone 'oo enjoys 'em, you know. And of course 'e chose Sidney Sewell, that being the place 'e'd stayed at. But there was no secret aoubt it, or 'e wouldn't of took Norris and Fellowes with 'im."

I was determined to find out whether the sergeant's case was complete. "But the chauffeur?" I asked. "And the girl? And her ex-convict brother?"

The sergeant smiled. "That's where I had the advantage, sir. See, being a sergeant in a place like this, you gets to know people and what they're up to. I mean, we know 'oo might be doing a bit of poaching, and 'oo's liable to get tight. I knew this chap Fellowes pretty well—played darts with 'im a good many times. Always starts on the double 18, 'e does. Never misses. Well, I knew 'e 'ad a bit saved up, and 'ad been looking for the right pub, for 'im and Enid for a long time. And I also knew that 'e'd settled to take over the Red Lion. Money was paid a week ago before any of this came along. And the brother, Miles, was to go and work for 'em. Pleased as punch they was about it. 'E wouldn't of wanted to go doing anyone in. Not 'im. 'E was getting married and everythink. 'E may 'ave 'ad a bit of a row with the girl over not 'aving give in 'is notice. But ten to one 'e told 'er when they was out together on Friday afternoon that 'e'd tell Mrs. Thurston that night And that settled it with Enid, so that when they got back to their car that afternoon their tiff was over. Then, as you remember. Mrs. Thurston sent for 'im, before dinner, to tell 'im about the rat traps, which meant to tell him she wanted to see 'im later. And he came out with it then and there in the 'all, that 'e wanted to leave at the end of the week. No wonder you noticed 'er looking a bit upset when you were on your way up to change. She was upset, but she'd persuaded 'im to 'ave a word with 'er later. Well, at 11 o'clock 'e and Enid 'ears Mrs. Thurston go up to bed. 'E wants to see 'er at once and get it over, but 'e mustn't appear to be following 'em upstairs. So wot does 'e do? Wot would anyone do? Look at the clock, of course, and sez, 'Why, it's past 11,' as though it was later than wot 'e thought it was, to explain 'is 'urrying off.

"So 'e went to go in 'er room. Only 'e couldn't because Stall was in there, after 'is two 'undred. Not that Fellowes knew 'oo it was, only 'e 'eard someone talking. And it's my belief, as I've told you, that 'e was just coming downstairs to 'ave another try, when 'e heard those screams, and doubled back up again. The girl 'ad a nasty experience, though. She was in the doctor's room, right opposite to Mrs. Thurston's, when those screams started. No wonder she couldn't move for a minute. It must 'ave turned 'er up, coming sudden like that with no noise first. Enough to give any girl a turn, especially when she 'arf thinks 'er lover's in there. She stays where she is a minute, till she 'ears ycu battering at the door, then she comes out and must 'ave been relieved to see Fellowes with the rest of you. 'E tells 'er to run downstairs, which she does, as we know from the cook.

"Mind you, it may of been lucky for Miles that 'e 'ad that alibi. It might easily 'ave appeared that someone would 'ave mixed 'im up in this, and brought out all about 'is past which wouldn't 'ave done'im any good in the village, when 'e goes to 'elp at the Red Lion. But fortunately nobody knows anythink about it, except you gentlemen and me, so 'e's oright. 'E'll go straight enough now. 'E never chizzles on the dart-board, and that's a good sign. Why, only the other night I was playing against 'im and I thought one of 'is darts was in the 60. 'One ton,' I says, but he says, 'No 60. It wasn't there.' 'E could of 'ad it as easy as wink, an' I shouldn't 'ave known any different. But 'e didn't, see? Honest 'e was. We shan't 'ave no more trouble with 'im!"

For Friday, April 1.

VERY LIVELY and propitious circumstances prevail under the interesting planetary configurations. There may be much stirring in the launching of new projects, but possibly the major energies may be concentrated on social, sentimental or other private interests. Friendship, courtship or marriage should flourish under this vibration, with functions, celebrations and gifts figuring conspicuously. It should be a day of merriment and happiness.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect to encounter a very lively year, with the forces and energies under high stimuli for action. These may, however, be centered on personal rather than business objectives, as the vibrations may emphasize social, sentimental, romantic and friendly indulgences. There may be a wedding, with bounteous gifts, and a full complement of joy and gayety.

A child born on this day may be energetic and lively enough, but it may direct its forces and faculties to the social, friendly, humane or sentimental domain of life rather than the sordid or commonuplance. It may be artistic, gracious and a lover of beauty, even in most practical application.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By R. J. Scott

DOROTHY DIX

Married Children Have to Use a Great Deal of Tact and Sometimes Be Quite Forceful, When "Mother" Comes to Live With Them—a Definite Understanding Is Necessary.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been very happily married for several years to a very fine woman. Recently my mother was left homeless without a penny and my wife and I gladly took her into our home to live with us, but the arrangement is working out disastrously. She has assumed entire charge of our home and us and treats us as if we were children. She tells us what we shall do and expects us to obey her. She thinks that she has a right to rear our children according to her ideas and that she should run my business. Worst of all, she considers that I should take all of my troubles and problems to her instead of confiding in my reliable, wise wife. Why can't she realize that a grown man can't be treated like a little boy and that he wants some companionship that a mother can't give him? Why can't she understand that the way a man loves his wife and his mother is different? I love my mother dearly, but she is ruining my home and wrecking the happiness that my wife and I have always enjoyed together. Is there anything that I can do? I am not able to support her in a separate home, and she wouldn't go to one if I could.

BEWILDERED MAN.

Answer:

There is no human problem that is so insoluble as what to do with the meddling and tyrannical old woman who must live in her children's homes and whose presence wrecks them.

Many thousands upon thousands of letters come to this column from desperate men and women who see the peace and happiness of their lives being destroyed, their husbands and wives alienated from them, their children driven from home by their mothers, and who do not know how to avert the catastrophe that is overtaking them.

They love their mothers. They are filled with gratitude and appreciation of all their mothers have done for them. They want to do their duty by them. They can't turn them out of their homes because they have nowhere else to go, and yet they have their duty to their wives and husbands and to their own children. How to reconcile these conflicting obligations, how to get their mothers just to keep their fingers out of their pies, they do not know.

Nor can any one tell them, because Mother does not realize the crime she is committing against her children. On the contrary, she feels that she is bestowing an inestimable blessing upon them by taking charge of all of their affairs and making them live their lives after her pattern. She cannot, or will not, see that they are no longer little children who must be guided and directed and that they have a right to individual liberty.

Nor can the average mother be made to realize that the bond between her married children and their mates is different from that between herself and them, and that just as she herself was not satisfied with her love for her mother's companionship, so they crave the love and companionship that comes to husbands and wives who have everything in common.

It is impossible for children to tell their mothers that they are ruining their lives without intending it, because at the first word Mother bursts into tears and begins reproaching them with not loving her and being ungrateful and recounting her sacrifices for them. And she is so filled with the sense of her own wrongs that she is incapable of appreciating theirs. But I have often wondered if it could not be got across to Mother in a letter which she could read after she had got over her hysterics and was able to understand a calm statement of facts.

Suppose you, for instance, should write such a letter to your mother, beginning by telling her how much you love her and how glad you are to try to make her last days happy and comfortable, but also telling her very plainly that she is making everybody miserable by not being willing to accept the fact that she is a guest in your house and not the mistress of it.

Suppose you should say: "Mother, you managed your own home in your own way. Why not be big enough and generous enough to let Mary have the same privilege? You brought up your children according to the ideas that prevailed in your day. Times have changed. Let us rear ours according to the modern methods. Can't you, for the sake of peace, refrain from telling Mary that you never used your best china every day, and that you never allowed your children to do the things that ours do, and from telling me how bad two cups of coffee are for my nerves?"

Maybe such a letter would bear fruit. Maybe it wouldn't But at any rate it is worth trying.

* * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am 40 years old. Single. Good-looking. Have a fine job that pays me well. Am perfectly content with my lot in life. I would be at peace with the world, but all I hear is the eternal question of why I never married. You would think I had committed the unpardonable sin by being an old maid. This continual nagging is beginning to get under my skin and make me lose my poise. I intend to lead my own life and marry or not, as I see fit, but how can I stop this avalanche of questions that are heaped upon me daily?

STIGMATIZED.

Answer:

I think what you have lost is your sense of humor, because when people ask a single woman why she has never married they have really no desire to know the real reason. They intend it as a compliment and to indicate that they consider her so attractive that she could pick and choose among a horde of suitors if she desired a husband.

Nowadays the girl bachelor stands on the same plane as the man bachelor and whether she marries or stays single is regarded as her own affair, and it is presumed that the reason that she sidestepped the altar is because she was too much interested in her career to marry, or Mr. Right didn't come down her street.

If you have nothing to worry over other than that people ask you why you didn't marry, you are certainly the favorite daughter of Lady Luck. DOROTHY DIX.

Later on, you'll look so smart and cool in it on balmy spring days without a coat. It's the new beltless silhouette, with V-shaped seaming that gives you a slim waistline. This frankly feminine dress would be striking if made of rayon crepe in pink and white print on a black ground. Note the tie-belt is of self-material. It boasts both charm and utility. The illustrated diagram shows how quickly it may be run up on the sewing machine, even if it is your first attempt at sewing. And the cost is so very moderate.

Style No. 2769 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BELLS

Uncle Wiggily laughed as he knocked the Bob Cat down the attic stairs, head over his short tail, by a blow from his golf club.

"That was a good shot!" chuckled Mr. Longears, who was staying home to open the door of the bungalow when the rabbit children came home from school. Mrs. Longears and Nurse Jane had gone to call on Aunt Lettie the goat lady. "Yes, a very good shot!" said Uncle Wiggily.

He made sure the Bob Cat had run away for, if the Bad Chap had not, Uncle Wiggily would have telephoned for the Police Dog.

"And, since he is gone, and since there is no danger, I will make a few practice golf shots, using a soft rubber ball in the dining room, while waiting for Baby Bunty and the others to come home from school," thought the bunny gentleman.

He was glad to have his golf clubs again and the golf clubs were glad to be taken out of the attic where they had been stored all Winter. They laughed and whispered among themselves as golf clubs do, when Uncle Wiggily dusted and polished them ready for the Spring play.

Hole in One

Uncle Wiggily drove the soft rubber ball around the dining room, making a hole in one through the lace curtain and another in two when the ball went in the sugar bowl.

"I'm getting good," laughed the rabbit gentleman. "I'll take the clubs back up in the attic. It will be a few more days before the greens are in shape to play even Winter rules."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped up the attic stairs again with his golf clubs. Meanwhile the whammed Bob Cat limped to the den of the Fox where the Wolf had called hoping to get something to eat.

"Hello, Bobbie!" greeted the Fox. "What's the matter? You don't look well."

The Bob Cat was about to say nobody could look well after being whammed over the head with a golf driver. But he said nothing for he was thinking of a trick he could play on the Fox. So the Bob Cat said:

"Oh, I'm all right. I feel fine!"

"I'd feel better if I could get a few nibbles off Uncle Wiggily," said the Fox.

"So would I," growled the Wolf. "I wonder where that rabbit is?"

"I can tell you," said the Bob Cat.

"Where?" asked the Fox and Wolf both together like twins though they really weren't. "Where is Uncle Wiggily?"

Alone, Too

"Up in his attic," said the Bob Cat and this was true for the bunny had gone back there with his clubs. "He is home all alone, too. So if one of you chaps want to go get him there is nothing to hinder."

"I'll go!" eagerly offered the Fox, not thinking to ask the Bob Cat why he didn't himself try to catch the rabbit. "You stay here and get the fire good and hot, Wolfie!" said the Fox. "I'll bring the rabbit back. Ha! Ha!"

The Fox, reaching the bungalow, sneaked up to the attic just as had the Bob Cat. By this time Uncle Wiggily had put away his golf clubs and saw, hanging from a rafter, a string of sleigh bells his grandfather had used in the days when there were no automobiles.

"Ha! What a jolly tune these bells can play!" laughed Uncle Wiggily jingling them. "Tra, la, la, la!" He made the bells ring very loud and the Fox, hearing them became frightened.

"That must be the Police Dog Patrol coming to get me!" thought the Bad Chap. Then he said: "My! How Loud those police bells ring! I'll run away before they arrest me!" So the Bad Chap sneaked back down stairs and ran away without even trying to catch Mr. Longears.

And if the ice pick doesn't pull all the dates off the calendar to make a fig pudding, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's April Fool.

"The Authority on Authorities"

KNOW THE ODDS

A THOROUGH player either knows the odds for and against the various idiosyncrasies of the cards or else is a sound mathematician in estimating the more important ones. For instance, a plain finesse is usually about an even money chance, whereas the odds favor seven missing cards being divided four and three by better than even money. Thus if a straight choice is offered between a finesse and that distribution, it is better to ount on the distribution.

North and South reached a contract of 6-Spades on this deal. South started with 1-Spade, North called 2-Hearts, South 3-Clubs, North 4-Spades, South 5-Diamonds and North 6-Spades.

When the diamond 2 was led, the 3 was played from dummy, East played the 10 and South the A. The declarer, instead of taking the heart finesse, immediately decided to attempt to set up that suit. The heart A was cashed and a heart ruffed. Next came a spade to the A and another heart ruffed. The spade J was played, followed by two more rounds of spades. On the heart Q, the diamond was discarded and on the heart 9 a club. After leads of the clubs A and K, one club trick was given up.

1938 Suits March On

Marching gaily along one of the new bridges that are part of the New York World's Fair, which is to open in 1939, are three young women wearing 1938 spring suits.

Reading from Left to Right, are: First, Molyneux's black and white tweed suit, with waist-length jacket trimmed in gay red suede; and black silk blouse. The jacket is buttoned down the front with a single row of buttons. Accessories preferably black, although they might be red—if you're "that kind of a girl."

Next, gray wool mesh three-quarter box coat over a fitted suit which is worn with a white blouse. A fine fur is worn with this suit.

The third model is a fitted suit made on soft lines, in gray jersey, single breasted, with front pleats in the skirt. Worn with printed silk blouse.

Another suit which is going to be very popular this year is the full-length soft wool coat lined with the print of which the dress is made. Add a fox fur to such a suit and you have a handsome and most becoming ensemble.

A novel spring suit that is very smart is in striped material, with an all-around pleated skirt, bolero jacket and top cape. With it is worn a lace organdie blouse.

The soft tailleurs with feminine details and worn with lacy blouses are being played up by Paris houses. Boleros still continue in the news from that interesting style center, and collarless jackets are still being done by prominent couturiers. Unpressed lapels are another interesting detail of tailored suits.

Noted Artist Dead

Complications resulting from an accident at Christmas, 1937, caused the death in Toronto of Joshua Smith, ABOVE, internationally recognized portrait painter. The famed artist was born in London, England, and has spent most of his time since coming to Canada in 1920 in Toronto. He was a member of the Royal Society of Artists and widely known for his miniature portraits.

kin's place one day shearin' sheep. They'd got through and was just settin' down to dinner when one of the young ones came in and said the pig was in the potatoes again. Old Haskins jumped up kind of mad like, and ran out with a hoe-handle. Then there was the blamedest row outside, pigs squealin', old Zeb hollerin' and beltin' at about fifty pigs as it seemed. Then things quietened down and he came back to dinner. He said that the pig has found a way into the potato field through a hollow log of the fence, and they couldn't keep it out; they tried to block up the hole, but it didn't make any difference—the pig got through every time.

"Old Bob said he could fix it, so after dinner he got a cant-hook and a couple of hand-spikes and he and Zeb pried that hollow log around cross-ways of the fence angle. Then they stood back for they saw the pig comin'. He went straight into that hole as he usually did, but when he came out at the other end he was still in the lane. He couldn't understand it. He stood there sniffin' and workin' his nostrils for a minute, and then had another try—and came out in the same place. They watched him go through four or five times before he gave up and went away."

The basket replaced in the buggy, Charlie wakened, they drove back to the valley road and followed it along to the east. Going down a long hill and across the C. N. R. tracks, some distance ahead a wire was noticed to be swinging low. A temporary splice had been made a few days previously but the troubleman was now prepared to make a finished job of it.

A Pleasure in Summer

On a glorious summer day, the work of the troubleman out on the lines is a real pleasure. The long, sunny road crossed by the tree shadows, the fields of waving grain, and the deep old woods, ringing with bird songs where the slanting sunlight streams through the dark green shadows, are the scenes that surround him daily. And there are many old gateways, shaded by lilac bushes on the worn path to the open farm house door where familiar faces greet him, and there is pleasant exchange of news and friendly gossip.

But that is the brighter side. Now comes the shortening days of chilling winds and drenching rains; and days when the snow is whirling in clouds across the fields, and the roads are drifted level with the fences. Then comes the dreaded ice-storm, and the wires are down on every line. Wire communication must be restored, for the failure of getting a message through may be a matter of life and death. So the troublemen are out, facing the fury of the storm, and fighting cold and hunger for many hours; climbing the ice-glazed poles, and beating their numbed hands on the rigid cross-arms before they can venture to handle a tool. In all the bitter winter weather these men are out along the roads; up and down throughout the land wherever the lines are strung, they are carrying on their duty—unsung heroes of the wire.

Homeward Bound

The work was finished in the valley, so they turned off on a road leading south, and were now headed home. It was the golden time of the afternoon; the sunbeams through the woods had a longer slant, and the meadows glowed with richer green as the shadows of the trees and bushes stretched farther to the east. The air was full of bird music. From across the fields the sweet, confiding song of the vesper sparrow sounded a tender strain above the bubbling jingle of the bobolink and the scolding of the king-bird.

There was a turn to the west toward where the low meadows ended in the shadow of a long wooded ridge, looming high with its rounded tree-tops edged with burning gold. The road led up the slope and then turned to the south into the cool, green shadows of the woods. Through here, it was built on a curious, natural formation like a huge, graded railway embankment, the ground sloping steeply on either side.

It seemed all too soon to be on the road again, but the red sun was smouldering behind the woods and would soon vanish. So again they were jogging along the winding road in the rosy evening light, over many long hills until they neared the valley of the village. It was milking time on the farms, and down at the end of the green lane by the pasture field, the boy lets down the bars and calls: "Co' boss, co' boss," and the feeding cows raise their heads and then slowly make their way across the field.

As they came down the long slope into the valley, the red glow was fading from the tops of the eastern hills, where the form house windows reflected the dying light. Down in the tree-shaded outskirts of the village, the trip ended. The brothers separated here with the younger going his own way and Bill, the stooping grey figure in the buggy and the old bay horse moved on and vanished in the deepening dusk.

MILLBROOK, March 31.—Harry Seabrooke, who has recently moved to the farm formerly occupied by Bert Armstrong, Seventh Line, Cavan, met with an unfortunate accident Wednesday, when helping with a wood-sawing machine at the neighboring Parks' farm.

Kicking the sawdust away, which had accumulated about the rapidly-revolving saw, Mr. Seabrooke had his right foot almost severed at the ankle. Dr. J. W. Wright was called, and took the injured man to the Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, for immediate attention. At present, there is some hope of saving the foot, though amputation may yet be necessary.

W. A. Kelly, Chief Troubleman On Percy Line For 20 Years

Knows Every Telephone Pole In His Ninety Square Miles Of Territory

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, March 31.—Ever since the Percy Municipal Telephone system was organized in 1915 W. A. Kelly has been connected with it. During the construction he worked as an assistant lineman, but following the completion of construction work a little over twenty years ago he has been the chief troubleman. The system takes in subscribers throughout the whole of Percy Township. He loves work for he is brought into close contact with nature. He is also very methodical and is always anxious to repair trouble just as quickly as possible. He is a good story teller so let us go with him as he follows the wires in the Trent Valley which is just a small part of the territory he has to cover.

When "Bill," as Mr. Kelly is better known by, arrived with his horse and buggy, his brother, who was his companion that day, was quite in the mood for the trip they had planned. They left the village by the old road winding up out of the valley to the north, past the greening fields and shady woodlands. Bill sat slouched over as usual, and with one leg hanging out of the buggy; and during the steady conversation one would think he saw nothing but the dash-board in front of him, but he had a keen eye for every length of telephone wire, pole, cross-arm and insulator.

In all the eighty or ninety square miles of his territory he knows every item of his lines. There is hardly a pole but he can tell when he helped to put it up. He travels all roads, and of course is known by everyone, and meets a welcome at every house; fore when they see his grizzled features and humorous grey eyes in the door-way, they know their disabled phones will be quickly put to rights. Generally he gets over the ground with a 1912 truck, but on certain occasions such as this particular one when he really wants to enjoy himself along with his buggy.

Model Horse for Trade

work he hitches "Charlie" to the Charlie is a model horse for this business. Bill never thinks of tying him when he calls at a house, but puts the buckled ends of the lines around the dash-board, and with a couple of new batteries in his tool box goes through the gate to the house without looking behind him. Charlie, having selected the best feeding ground, proceeds to crop the roadside grass. He seems to know what house his master is to stop at for his ears cock forward and he seems to be judging which side of the road has the best grazing. He never wanders far during these halts, and when Bill returns he knows well where he will find him.

Supplies of every kind are carried in the buggy?: batteries in a long, narrow box in front, and various other needs under the seat, besides the hand-box of repairing tools. That day was a special one for did not Bill have a guest, so a very pleasant looking covered basket which would have their undivided attention about noon, somewhere down the valley, was carefully placed under the seat also.

In answering his brother's question, Bill replied: "Yes, some people don't want us to cut any limbs from the trees near their houses. We never trim more than is necessary, so's to not injure the tree; but even that don't suit them. Last week an old lady down on the south line was goin' to throw a pail of scaldin' water over me if I dared trim any of her trees. She had no telephone herself, and didn't see the use of wires anyway." After glancing at wire connections on a side-line they were passing, he quietly resumed. "She went visitin' next day, and when she got back she found the branches all nicely trimmed."

A Beautiful View

The highest point on this road is at Cuffe's Corners, and they slowly mounted the long grade leading to it, partly shaded by a hillside woods. When they arrived at the breezy summit they had before them at last the wide, green valley of the Trent, with its tree bordered fields and shady woods that changed to darker green as the cloud shadows moved across them. Blue stretches of the river gleamed here and there among the lower hills and there were the steples and smoke stacks of Hastings. The blue, misty northern horizon is on the wooded highlands near Stoney Lake, and on a clear day one can faintly glimpse a peak of the Blue Mountains, near the eastern end of the lake. Far beyond the river a crawling rope of white smoke marked the progress of a passenger train on the C.P.R. rails near Norwood.

The way led down the long, mile and a half slope to the town where the journey continued eastward down the valley road. Most of the halts were at farm houses to change batteries or rectify some minor trouble. The road led along the side of the valley where there were fine views of the river down on the left, with Huycke's Island lying long and green beyond the shore woods. The river below here curves out of sight behind a high, rounded point of woods and just then they imagined the scene on that September day three hundred years ago, when, just disappearing behind it was a great fleet of canoes, in one of which was that famous explorer, Samuel de Champlain.

A Problem for the Pig

Said Bill, during the conversation, "Years ago when the country was gettin' cleared up, they used to build log fences when rails was scarce. Used some mighty big logs too. Old Bob Roberts was over to Zeb Haskin's place one day shearin' sheep. They'd got through and was just settin' down to dinner when one of the young ones came in and said the pig was in the potatoes again. Old Haskins jumped up kind of mad like, and ran out with a hoe-handle. Then there was the blamedest row outside, pigs squealin', old Zeb hollerin' and beltin' at about fifty pigs as it seemed. Then things quietened down and he came back to dinner. WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Definitely New Trend Seen In Spring Footwear

Airiness Retained By Spring's Latest Models In Footwear

OF all seasons, this spring is bringing most dramatic changes in footwear to be seen in a long time. For one thing, the downward D'Orsay sideline with variations in cutouts, closely grouped perforations, and more restrained open spaces which nevertheless retain airiness, are the newest characteristics.

Wanted Styles.

In selecting a spring shoe wardrobe every woman will want to keep in mind the fact that step-ins and pumps will be most important, with new-looking details such as gored and sleeve gore details, the shoe coming up fairly high on the foot.

Next in preference will be the strap types, in conventional or tricky arrangements. In general, this type of shoe will give the foot a wrapped and draped look. Ties and oxfords have a new look, too, but will be the least important shoe types, although the woman who prefers them will find them with dramatic style details.

Formal Mood

When it comes to evening slippers—they will ninety-nine times out of a hundred, be sandals—extravagantly fashioned, as cut out as possible, in beautiful new fabrics and colors.

The daytime shoe wardrobe may be chosen in a variety featuring gabardine, suede, calf, and kid, patent leather—new in every possible costume color, and practical because it is washable; lizard, snake, alligator, pigskin, and the newer morocco—these latter leathers smartest, too, in high shades for smart costuming.

BRIGHT COLORS FOR TOTS

Vive la France

It's in the artistry of juvenile coat design that the French creators play their part, introducing novel stitching to diminish the severity of tailoring and working unusual seaming, colorful bindings, appliques, higher waistlines, tricky pockets and grouped buttons toward a feminine effect.

An interesting innovation in children's wear too, is an increasing use of men's wear worsted for junior coats, many of these fabrics featuring vertical stripes frequently of a darker tone.

Tot Tones

Little children are, too, getting away from the standard pinks and blues, and are favoring more vital shades such as deep gold running into orange, olive green and dusty coral, as well as slate and royal blues. A bright and charming style trend noted is the tendency to flecked tweeds with very bright colors in the flecks, these colors picked up again by the coat piping and matching buttons.

Growing Up

For the teen ages, modified versions of grown-up styles are decidedly popular, such as fitted princess lines with single front closing; very flared skirt effects at back, below a fitted waistline, giving the figure a small, petite line: these are among the unique style features of a spring that promises to accentuate the advantages of youth and charm already possessed by her ladyship of the younger generation.

Style Whimsies

Wide-skirted period gowns in pastel colors are shown by the best Paris dressmakers, all stressing the romantic note. Flower trimmings are numerous. Molyneux uses lilies of the valley for spring. The romantic note is carried out in accessories, satin and lace shawls that are worn around white shoulders or over the head; fans and mittens of satin and ace. For those who like to dance the rhumba and other active modern dances, slim gowns, just skimming the floor are shown.

Dresses for daytime wear show bows at neck and waistlines; so do capes and coats.

Long fitted reefer style coats in chalk stripe blue or black cloths are in demand for town wear.

A popular three-color combination—eggshell, rust and olive green.

This is a season of contrast. That is, the hat contrasts with the suit or coat, but must match jewery, gloves and bag.

It is predicted that small colored bows will replace boutonnieres and flowers on coat lapels, and in the hair.

One of the new colors for evening satins is "off-white," which is a very faint pearl gray.

Training Girls In Help-By-Day

WINNIPEG, March 31.—(CP).—With cities tending to apartments with lessening sleeping accommodation for outside-the-family the need for responsible trained help-by-the-hour (or day) is becoming more acute.

Winnipeg has attacked the problem with special training classes for such help in the Y.W.C.A. building. From the employee standpoint the courses are designed to give girls who have special ability an opportunity to earn their own living in full-time hourly employment and still live at home. Householders who do not keep regular maid service are now able to hire highly-skilled and efficient help on an hourly basis.

This training school has been established within the past few months by the Manitoba youth training department in conjunction with the department of labor. The classes have at one time registered 90 girls between the ages of 18 and 30.

Every Suits Calls For Several Blouses

Every suit calls for a blouse—or several blouses. The more the merrier for the average, woman, for she feels she can vary her costume better by changing her blouse than in almost any other way.

Very sheer blouses were in demand last summer and will be this year as soon as the weather grows warm. In fact, they are already being worn in the warmer parts of the North American continent, and were much in evidence in the south.

The blouse shown here is a particularly charming one for Easter, as its petal jabot and floral pattern remind one of that flowery season. The material is a washable transparent Swiss organdie with a subtle floral shadow print. The petal jabot flares widely on each side of the front closing of this crisp spring blouse. Fine valenciennes lace edges the jabot, collar and short, puffed sleeves.

Leather, Cloth In Shoes, Bags For The Ladies

LEATHER and cloth are companions this season in frocks and boleros, in shoes and hats and bags, in two or more matching schemes. The gabardine shoes with their touches of leather are very smart, and the suede shoes with their black satin braiding are also smart. We note bags, too, part leather and part gabardine.

While on the subject of shoes, you will no doubt buy one pair of sport shoes of a suede and smooth leather combination. These have tongues or exposed laces as you desire. One blue pair has bright-colored leather in all the carnival shades plaited through the plain suede vamp. Pipings of patent appear on the cloth shoes. These are open up the vamp in five slits, giving an open effect to a shoe which is otherwise well protected at toe and heels. There are still a few toeless sandals for the women who like them. We were interested in a half-dozen air holes as big around as your finger tip, which are used in a decorative way up the side of a shoe.

Bluebirds and gulls in flight, flying fish, seaweed and coral formations made in crystal tubing (like a Neon sign) are table decorations to place on the centre mirror of your dinner table, and look pretty with or without flowers. There are also some lovely crystal centrepieces in clear crystal and in colors.

Do you remember the old-fashioned mesh bag with gate top to it you used to carry in your hand to church with your collection and out of an evening before it seemed so necessary to take half your dressing table implements with you? We want to tell you this little bag is being revived again, in gold and silver, and is so small it can be taken into the palm of your left hand, but it will hold door key and money.

Those cellophane boxes for accessories can be bought with a little decoration on the cover. We saw one with an orchid on it; and another with a pink feather. A nice gift to the personal shower for the bride.

Chromium tubular frame work, and washable leatherette seats comfortably padded at seat and back, make chair any kitchen would be proud of. There are also all enamel are bought for house refreshment chairs for the kitchen, and tall stools with upholstered tops (these bars as well as the kitchen sink). Since so many of the handsome and convenient kitchens are made in a complete unit of built-in features, this stool or chair for the housekeeper is the only extra piece of furniture required for the kitchen.

A vivid and striking costume combines a wine colored, collarless coat, extremely fitted, with a violet-blue print frock. A felt hat in matching shade of blue completes this ensemble.

Says Queen Mary Knows Her China

MONTREAL, March 31.—(CP).—Queen Mother Mary is "a real expert on china" and occasionally visits antique shops in search of rare cups and plates. Paul Saks, Montreal antique dealer just returned from a two-month tour of Europe, said:

"At the British Industries Fair I saw Queen Mary examining some tea sets with great care. I knew the man who made them, so I asked him. He told me that Queen Mary is a real expert on china and is well-known in the trade as such."

Check Tweeds, Giant Plaids In New British Mixit Mode

Mixit Suits Are Fashion Pets, New Pastel Tweeds Lead

FASHION CHECKS the British entries in the fashion race this Spring! Plaids, houndstooth checks, nubby Scotch tweeds and plaids have all gained favor with the American sportswoman. Backed by the college group, these new 'mixit' suits combine in every color and type, with special favor shown to the mannish jackets and simple pleated or gored tweed skirts in blending hues. Norfolk jackets, double-breasted or single-breasted styles are all in favor. Patch pockets in many amusing shapes give the only variation to these classic styles.

Bolero Jackets New Mixit Mode

Being as young as possible, the smart woman this Spring will vary her mixit wardrobe with bolero jackets. Looking very girlish and chic, she wears these in plain soft colors or colorful tweeds with pleated skirts; for more tailored moods, she combines the bolero with a simply tailored skirt and a skirt with matching tie. And for country wear, she may even use a bolero jacket with her neatly tailored slacks, or with a tweedy skirt and sweater.

Dressy Casuals In Mixit Mode

With soft suits favored for all daytime occasions, the more feminized versions in twill jackets and other light woolens, are worn with matching or contrasting skirts to create smartly tailored daytime suits. Three-piece suit costumes are also created by the addition of a classic tweed reefer coat or a dressy casual topcoat.

Variety in blouses ranges from the strictly tailored shirt blouse with bright studs and matching tie, to the most feminine and frilly creation of chiffon or lace. Gay little taffeta blouses in prints are especially liked with boleros and skirts, and give a bright accent to simple jacket and skirt ensembles, as the 'mixit" mode goes merrily on its way through Spring.

Turkey will spend nearly $13,000,000 to improve its railways.

Wife Preservers

Finger marks on backs of chairs, woodwork around door knobs and metal plates that surround electric light push buttons are signs of careless housekeeping. Wipe them daily with cloth rung out of soapsuds as part of daily cleaning routine.

Tweeds Are Smart

The vogue for tweed is interpreted in a stunning suit topped with smartly swinging three-quarter length coat.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Definitely New Trend Seen In Spring Footwear

Airiness Retained By Spring's Latest Models In Footwear

OF all seasons, this spring is bringing most dramatic changes in footwear to be seen in a long time. For one thing, the downward D'Orsay sideline with variations in cut-outs, closely grouped perforations, and more restrained open spaces which nevertheless retain airiness, are the newest characteristics.

Wanted Styles.

In selecting a spring shoe wardrobe every woman will want to keep in mind the fact that step-ins and pumps will be most important, with new-looking details such as gored and sleeve gore details, the shoe coming up fairly high on the foot.

Next in preference will be the strap types, in conventional or tricky arrangements. In general, this type of shoe will give the foot a wrapped and draped look. Ties and oxfords have a new look, too, but will be the least important shoe types, although the woman who prefers them will find them with dramatic style details.

Formal Mood

When it comes to evening slippers—they will ninety-nine times out of a hundred, be sandals—extravagantly fashioned, as cut out as possible, in beautiful new fabrics and colors.

The daytime shoe wardrobe may be chosen in a variety featuring gabardine, suede, calf, and kid, patent leather—new in every possible costume color, and practical because it is washable; lizard, snake, alligator, pigskin, and the newer morocco—these latter leathers smartest, too, in high shades for smart costuming.

Pastor Delivers Fine Address To Young People.

The Rev. M. C. Parr was speaker to the members of the Young People's Union of George Street United Church at their regular meeting attended by sixty members and guests.

A very interesting and inspiring talk on "The Six S's of Gethsemane—Suffering, Sympathy, Sacrifice, Surrender, Supplication and Security—was given by Mr. Parr, and he stressed the fact that Right must triumph, as the life of Jesus is realized. During the address a beautifully colored slide of Christ in Gethsemane was shown.

The meeting was in charge of the Christian Fellowship Group. The Misses Muriel McMillan, Iona Terry, and Thelma Bullock assisted in the Worship service with Ron Akers in the chair. A devotional story was told by Mrs. Lloyd Ash, and Miss Gladys Mills was heard in a solo during the evening, accompanied at the piano by Miss Ethel Mills. The recreation period was in charge of Cecil Wasson.

Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. Successful Euchre Party.

Attended by a large number of guests, a most successful euchre party was held in the Orange Hall last evening under the auspices of Vimy Ridge, L.O.B.A.

Twelve tables of cards were played and prizes (orders for chickens) were won by: Ladies' 1st, Mrs. M. James; 2nd, Mrs. James Milby; Men's 1st, T. Sarginson; 2nd, Mr. Greenwood.

An added feature was the presentation of four attractive door prizes in the form of a pair of embroidered towels as first, and corsages to the other three winners. These were won by Mrs. J. Colbert (1st) and Mrs. M. James, Mrs. F. Pilling and Mr. Greenwood. The affair was convened by Mrs. T. Monk, with assistance from Mrs. I. Wilson. Later in the season, the lodge plans to hold another large party. A special guest present was Mrs. E. Moore of Lindsay, Grand Mistress of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East.

Mrs. W. Pallant Hostess For Euchre

Mrs. W. Pallant of Driscoll Terrace was hostess at her home yesterday afternoon for another of the enjoyable weekly euchre parties under the auspices of the Ladies' Chapter of the Loyal Order of the Moose. Mrs. Pallant is Senior regent of the Chapter.

Five tables of cards were played and prizewinners were Mrs. B. Coursey, Mrs. D. Leether and Mrs. J. Higgins. Refreshments were served after the games, in charge of Mrs. B. Gash and Mrs. J. Bell.

Next Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. G. James will be hostess for the euchre at her home, 250 Charlotte street.

Smarter Details Used to Pep Up Suits

Suit in navy blue and white combined in lace tweed to produce gray effect, white pique flower.

Navy blue frock of Poiret twill wth red patent leather and black cire braid embroidery with silver.

More and smarter details are being used to pep up the new spring suits. They are flowers, in new materials and styles; lapel jewelry, zipper closings, braids, buttons and whatnot used for trimming. Tuckings, pleatings and other details also do their stuff to make the spring suits look very new and smarter than in any season yet, or so it seems.

Just to illustrate all the points mentioned, notice the two suits pictured. At the LEFT is a lace tweed that combines navy blue and white for a gray effect.

The dress has a front zipper fastening. The three-tiered jacket is lined with navy blue silk taffeta. The flowers that decorate the shoulder are white pique. This, you see, is one of the collarless, rever-less jackets that are one of the latest manifestations of spring.

Very wearable is the mushroom-brimmed hat of wine-colored toyo, making a very clever color combination with the suit.

Quite military looking is the navy blue town frock, RIGHT. It is made of Poiret twill and is slimly fitted. This dress has an intricate trim of red patent leather strips and black cire braid embroidery held with silver metal.

The modified pillbox hat is of black silk jersey trimmed with red patent leather to tie it up with the dress. Of course it has a chin strap, as American women have found chin straps or bonnet strings that tie under the chin very becoming, and will not let them drop even in Paris, where elastic has replaced the ties.

A handsome Himalayan marten scarf finishes this costume.

Surrealist Art Has New Twists

PARIS, Mar. 31 (CP)—Opening of the Surrealist International Salon in the Beaux-Arts Gallery was attended by almost as many policemen, to keep order, as distinguished spectators. The latter kept arriving until two o'clock in the morning.

There have been surrealist exhibitions in New York and London, but Paris is more or less the birthplace of this cult and it is here they come to their fullest—er—expression?

Fourteen countries are represented including Germany, England, Italy, Japan, Spain, Austria, United States, France and so on. More than 60 artists are represented, such big names in surrealism as Andre Breton, Paul Eluard, Salvodar Dali, Max Ernst and Marcel Duchamp among them.

The first exhibit is an ancient automobile in the courtyard. Instead of facing outwards the lights face inwards. Ivy, weeds, ferns ramble over it. Inside a chauffeur, his head in the skeleton jaws of some ferocious animal, occupies the front seat and behind, a mannequin, bare to the waist is covered with snails (live ones) cobs of corn and other eccentricities. From a specially-constructed sprinkling system in the roof waters pours down giving the whole the pleasantly-humid atmosphere of a rainy day in the Maritimes.

Entering the salon and paying 10 francs, one is greeted by a sacrilegiously real odor of fresh earth and stale potato peelings. This emanates, undoubtedly, from the 1,200 gunnysacks which are suspended from the ceiling. The fear of receiving 100 pounds of whatever they contain on the head puts one in a sympathetic mood for understanding and enjoying the exhibition. Chopped cork, dead leaves and straw covers the floor.

Dictionary Provided

To aid the profane an abridged dictionary of surrealism is on sale. Such definitions as: "Art—a white shell in a pitcher of water"; "River—the river descends like an egg and we are the birds"; "Mystery — a proud wind in a suburb" and "Umbrella—a bluebird become black" are a great help.

Among the choicest exhibits are two wheelbarrows upholstered in rust-colored satin, a china casserole covered with white feathers, wine glasses full of powdered sugar and garlic, a bird cage filled with celluloid gold fish and four yellow satin double beds covered with very crumpled and soiled linen. The beds represent, we venture, the parents of those nightmares in paint which express the souls of the surrealists.

A corridor contains a series of mannequins dressed in vegetables, rubber-tubing, corncobs, tin spoons, beetles, gardenias and poached eggs. These represent streets of a surrealist city in 1938.

The pictures can only be understood in a surrealist way. They show a variety of subjects but those things recognizable to an uncultivated Canadian observer and to be found in almost all of the pictures are eggs, can openers, legs (women's), buttons, bits of bicycles, other portions of human anatomy, fish, corncobs, electric light bulbs and safety pins.

Pink and Black

Just what occasioned the present vogue for pink does not seem to be clear, but pink, especially as an accessory color, certainly is very popular.

This wool street costume is done in casual manner and combines the Degas color scheme of pink on black. A slender, high-necked frock in sheer black wool is topped by a wrist-length jacket in pastel pink. A diagonal row of notched pockets on the right hand side of the frock sets a trimming motif which is carried out on the left hand side of the jacket. A wide leather belt, combining black kid and pink suede, is buckled about the waist of the frock.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"When life gives you something with one hand, be prepared to find that it has taken away somethng with the other."

—V. H. Friedlaender.

"When a firm decisive spirit is recognized, it is curious to see how the space clears around a person, and leaves them room freedom."—John Foster.

Dear Friends:

I think that is why we do not seek for better things in our lives more often. We know if we get one thing, we must lose something else, so we cling to what we have, long after it has lost its usefulness to us.

We think we will miss this that will be taken away, never realizing that when we are truly discontented with our lives, we have used up all the good we could get from it, like an orange from which we have extracted all the juice.

But we dally around, not satisfied at all, yet not decisive enough to let go the one thing that we might grasp something better. That is why so many never get what they have longed for from life, because they don't give up one phase when they are through with it, then wonder why their lives hold so little to interest them.

Some even do it in the hoarding up of old magazines. They have gotten all the good they can from them, but they keep them around littering the place up, when they should pass them on to someone less fortunate.

Just realize that life is like the pages of a magazine. If you keep reading the same page over and over again, it will become distasteful to you, if you keep reading the same stories and articles over, they will become wearisome indeed.

So, if you have got all the pleasure out of one phase of life, be through enough with it to let it go, and a nicer phase will come to take its place. Once you make a decision, it is amazing how things will clear away difficulties, so that you can get your heart's desire.

If you want to go somewhere, you have to go. You cannot be here and in another place too. So many times I have had to make that decision when I travelled from place to place. I had to leave my old friends my old way of life, but I knew there would be another way, and that I would make new friends.

But so many want to hang on to what they have now, their hands are full of it, so there is no room to take what is being offered, no matter how good it might be. Let go that worn out part, so you will be able to grasp the newer better part.

All life is a taking and a giving. We cannot remain young all the time, so we let youth go, and enjoy middle age, and believe it or not, middle age is the best part of life, between thirty and forty-five. You are through with the silly things of youth, you have acquired some experience, you are like a flower coming into full bloom.

But, if you persist in hanging onto the skirts of youth, you will go from that part into old age without ever enjoying the middle part of life. If you persist in hanging on to your old clothes, how are you to get interested in some new ones?

So, instead of bewailing because life has taken something away from you, set yourself to enjoy what has been given you in exchange. I think I would like to amend that quotation to read, "Be prepared to find when life takes away something with one hand, it always gives you something with the other." That's more like it.

Old friends are good, but new ones can be good too. Old scenes where you spent your childhood must have outworn their delight for you else you would never have left them. Old joys can give place to new, old times to better ones, so don't be like a spoiled child refusing to give up your toys when you have outgrown them.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Place of Amateurs In Community Life

CHARLOTTETOWN, March 31.—(CP)—The importance of amateur dramatics as a community activity is stressed by Professor E. A. Corbett, director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education.

In an address here Professor Corbett referred to the work done in a typical rural community in the Peace River district under the guidance of the Extension Department of the University of Alberta. Good amateur productions brought the members of a community together "in an amazing way," he said.

The director of Adult Education suggested that the drama groups throughout Prince Edward Island should be grouped together in one organization so that similar aims and methods could be used to further their efforts. It would create a more efficient and more mature type of production, he believed.

"Amateur dramatics should be a cultural activity, not merely an amusement," he added.

LONDON—(CP)— Lt.-Commander J. R. Poland, who was City Marshal of London toured Canada with the Lord Mayor in 1936, has been promoted to Common Crier.

CHEESE DISHES ARE POPULAR DURING THE LENTEN SEASON

However For Many Canadians Cheese Popular During The Entire Year

By MARY MOORE

It lasts all year for me but Lent has a lien on cheese until Easter, and I get a vicarious gustatory satisfaction from just regaling you with recipes using it. (Read that sentence again; you didn't know you had a literary light in your bailiwick did you?) It doesn't spoil my appetite for cheese though.

Do you remember our recipe for Corn au Gratin published last year some time, It makes a nice vegetable item, but we discovered that by adding more eggs and a little extra work it could be amplified into a Corn and Cheese Souffle and suffice as a meat substitute.

Corn and Cheese Souffle

One-quarter cup butter, ¼ cup flour, 2 cups milk, 1 cup grated cheddar cheese, 2 cups corn (bantam or white, cream style or kernel), 1 teaspoon salt (you may use less), dash of paprika, few drops of tabasco (if you have it on hand if not a shake of cayenne), 1 tablespoon pimiento (or fresh green pepper if you prefer it), 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated. Melt the butter and stir in the flour, gradually add the milk which could have been warmed to shorten stirring time, stirring constantly until it thickens, then add the cheese, corn seasonings and pimiento and remove from heat. Beat the whites, then the yolks well, add the yolks to the mixture, then fold in the whites. Pour into rather large buttered baking dish (one you can take to the table is preferable as the effect of a souffle is lessened if it is served in the kitchen). Stand casserole in large pan containing warm water and bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr., for 50 to 60 minutes until souffle is well puffed and rather firm to touch. Serve immediately.

As my little family grows, adding inches to its height and pounds to its weight I have to admit a mistake. I have belittled the use of potatoes. I have constantly avoided calling them a daily necessity. I still do not think they are, but we are approaching the bottom of our third bag this winter, all because Marianne likes baked potatoes, Peter likes creamed potatoes, and H.R.H. likes mashed potatoes. Consequently (and on purpose) we have them leftover, and one of our favorite ways of using up these leftovers is:

Cheese and Potato Croquettes

(Macaroni or rice may be used in place of potatoes.)

Two cups leftover potatoes (mashed or riced or baked), 3 tablespoons chopped cooked bacon, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 cup old cheese grated, teaspoon onion juice or grated onion, 1 cup thick white sauce (2 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons flour, ¾ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt). Add the bacon and parsley to the mashed potatoes, then the cheese, onion juice and white sauce and blend well. Spread out on plate or platter to chill, then shape into cylinders or balls or cones, quite small, and drop into hot deep fat at 365 to 380 deg. Fahr. for from 3 to 5 minutes. Keep hot in warming oven on unglazed paper while remainder is frying.

The following recipe for Cheese and Olive Custard is rather unusual, you must take my word for it that it is good. Do try it once. A good friend of mine to whom I read the recipe said it would never be popular because olives are too expensive. A ten-cent bottle of olives will yield the half cup of sliced, stuffed olives this requires.

Cheese and Olive Custard

Five slices bread, crust removed, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup well packed of grated Cheddar cheese, ½ cup sliced stuffed olives, 3 eggs slightly beaten together, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, one-third cup liquor in which the olives came, 2 cups hot milk. Spread the bread with one tablespoon of the butter, cut the bread in cubes and scatter one-third of it over the bottom of a buttered deep baking dish, over this sprinkle one-third of the cheese and ¼ cup of the olives. Repeat. Then cover with remaining bread cubes, then remaining cheese, and dot top with remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Mix the beaten eggs with mustard and olive liquor then stir in the hot milk. Pour this over mixture in casserole and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. (slowly) standing casserole in larger pan containing warm water, for about 1 hour, or until silver knife when inserted, comes out clean. This is good served on a vegetable plate with Fried Apple Rings, Baked Potatoes and Fresh Celery Hearts.

Hostesses, here is that little item that can revolutionize your dinners. A sensation that you have heard of before, but didn't get around to trying it. It was published on this page too. Try it this week:

Cheese Balls

One and one-half cups grated cheddar cheese (mild or old), 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, few shakes of cayenne, whites 3 eggs, cracker dust. (We like this well because it is a delightful way of using up the whites leftover from making mayonnaise.) Mix the cheese with the flour and seasonings. Beat whites very stiff and add to first mixture. Shape into balls one inch in diameter, roll in fine sifted cracker dust, fry in deep fat at 395 deg. Fahr. until they puff and are golden (about 3 minutes), skim out, drain on unglazed paper, and keep warm while remainder are frying. Serve as hot as possible with salad course, or fruit dessert course.

We make a practice of grating the odds and ends of cheese and letting them dry out, then storing in jar for quick use. Dry old cheese does not toughen in cooking like a mild or moist cheese would.

Shredded, boiled green beans (or canned) are nice if butter and grated old cheese are added and allowed to stand over double boiler until melted before serving.

Add grated old cheese to your milk and egg and sugar mixture for French toast to vary the flavor for Sunday morning or when guests are present.

When absolutely puzzled for a main course for luncheon make a Welch Rarebit. If no eggs are on hand merely add plenty of cheese to a buttery cream sauce, and sprinkle top with paprika. Serve on toast or buttered toasted crackers.

Double-Duty Cape

Two-timing is not nice, you know, when applied to the humans of the species. But in a garment for milady's wear it may be very fine and practical besides.

The cape pictured here and worn by Anna May Wong, screen actress, is such a garment, as smart over a sports frock as it is over an evening dress.

It is made of suede in the gorgeous color of a gold nugget. Wide padded shoulders give the new squared look to this wrist-length cape with its girlish collar, which is worn by Miss Wong over a gold and blue leaf print frock.

The cape may be had in such other colors as paradise blue, cavalry red, Yankee blue, honey beige and strawberry.

How Women Speak In Public Forum

CAPE TOWN, March 31.—(CP).—The London correspondent of The Argus sends the analysis by Mrs. Alfred Watt, Canadian-born president of the Associated Countrywomen of the World, of the national characteristics of women speakers.

Mrs. Watt thinks that one of the most beautiful speakers in the world is a Jewess using Hebrew, while she regards the Indian woman speaker of today as an orator.

The general survey follows:

American women—Not afraid to be original and personal and are usually amusing. Have a directness of utterance and a quality of unexpectedness which arouses interest at once. Much more wordy than they need be.

Canadian women — Often lack grace and diction, but seem to have a personal charm which gets them a hearing readily. Nervous speakers, they would benefit by training in public speaking.

Australian women—Speak in a narrative form, use emotion, but are apt to repeat themselves. Anxious to speak well and treat subjects conscientiously.

English women—A clear and precise, if cold, mode of speech. Do not speak unless they have something to say. Have the advantage of a voice with a beautiful tone.

French women — Devastatingly polite and decisive. Jerky in method of speech but self-possessed.

German women — Speeches well prepared and exhaustive, sometimes exhausting. Take themselves very seriously.

Irish women—Irish women do not need to learn to speak, they can get away wit hanything. They can say things with which audiences profoundly disagree, yet shriek for more.

Scotswomen—When they forget that they are Scots, are interesting speakers, with an engaging accent. Can use both humor and pathos to advantage. Jokes against themselves delight audiences.

South African and New Zealand women—Have excellent delivery and method. Their vocabulary is rather limited, but they speak simply and naturally.

Welsh women—Have a delightly manner and all the resources of rhetoric are theirs. Usually internationally-minded.

CAMPBELLFORD

Master Is Host Boy Scout Troop

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 31. — Twelve members of the local Boy Scout organization were guests on Tuesday evening of Scoutmaster Charles Collard, who gave a social evening in honor of the Scouts who had not missed any meeting since the organization began last October. Prizes were awarded to winners of games of monopoly and crokinole and consisted of various articles of Scout equipment.

For his knowledge of the Scout laws, Buddy Peloquin was awarded a prize and others receiving awards were Kenneth Dunk, Jack Tinney and Jack Sutton. Jim Hamilton was awarded the Scout shirt for winning the bird-house contest with his five-compartment swallow colony house. Rustic houses by Jack Tinney and Gerald Martin were tied for second place.

The hope was expressed by Scoutmaster Collard that uniforms would be available for all the members of the troop by summer. At the conclusion of the evening the boys enjoyed a delicious lunch.

Donalda Library Comes to McGill

MONTREAL, March 31. (CP).—The entire music library built by Madame Donalda in more than 30 years has been presented by the Canadian-born opera star of other years to McGill University—the source of a scholarship that started her on her career.

The collection of more than 300 volumes was presented by the former Pauline Lightstone as a tribute of her appreciation for, to use her own words, "the wonderful things McGill did for me." It was back in 1902 that Miss Lightstone won the scholarship that enabled her to study in France.

"For that help," she said, "I never have been able to pay much. I'm not wealthy, you know, and this collection is the most valuable thing I have. Its historical and sentimental value is priceless. It means a lot to me, but I don't think I can ever repay McGill for what they have done for me—even if I gave my life for them. . . ."

A sob choked the deep, cultured voice of Madame Donalda who took her name from that of Donald A. Smith, Lord Strathcona, donor of the medal and scholarship which enabled Miss Lightstone to start on a career that carried her through the British Empire and many parts of Europe during the 18 years she sang from the concert stage.

For a few seconds there was a pause, and then she continued to describe how she had started to build the library with the ultimate hope of creating something she some day could present to McGill. Now the day has come.

Prominent among the valued pieces is the score of "L'Heure Espagnole," by Maurice Ravel, with his signature and a dedication, the leading role of which she herself created at Covent Garden in 1919.

Many of the volumes in the collection are scores and musical biographies bound in leather by Madame Donalda herself. She said that at least 150 scores were of her own binding and that some of them were of operas she had sung herself.

Amongst the correspondence, which Madame Donalda has included in the gift, great names are those of Melba, Sara Bernhardt, John McCormack, Yvette Guilbert, Adelina Patti, Pablo Casals, Madame Albani, Sir Granville Bantock, Emma Calve, Sir Charles Wyndham, Sir Henry Lytton and the names of Gounod's son and daughter.

Madame Donald, a native of Montreal, studied at Royal Victoria College and the McGill Conservatory of Music. After further study made possible by the Strathcona Scholarship, she made her first appearance in opera in 1904. For the next 15 years she sang in all parts of the world, in operatic and concert work. After her retirement she lived in Europe for some time, later returning to Montreal.

Discovery Of Radium First Of Long Series Of Mineral Finds In Great Northwest

Oil, Gold And Salt Found In Country So Vast Estimate Impossible

By FRANK F. MOYLE
Copyright by Central Press Canadian

FORT SMITH, N.W.T., March 31. —Ever since Labine's radium discovery in 1930, and the subsequent rush into Great Bear Lake, there has been considerable interest taken in the development, probable and actual, of Canada's northland. Of the probable development the country is far too vast and little known for the average man to hazard a guess. Too many things enter into the making of a mine, an oil field or a tar sands plant for any one man to say, "There is a mine" or "There is an oil field." The best thing for anyone to do who is fond of such fantastic speculation is to examine a map of the Pre-Cambrian shield of Canada. Take the area prospected, divide it into the number of mines and multiply it by the area still unknown. That would give you an idea of the possibility of the country—but do not bother because no one would believe you, no not even yourself.

The actual development is a different thing. Since 1932 things have moved so fast in the north that nothing surprises anyone any more and the residents are becoming so used to change that they have forgotten that a few years ago the country was little different from that which Mackenzie discovered in 1789. The aeroplane has taken its rightful place so naturally that it is impossible to imagine how people got along without it, and with the coming of wings the edge of the unknown has been thurst back a thousand miles.

Tar Sands First

Starting from the south, which is what the rush did NOT do, the tar sands of Alberta are the first to show the impetus of the '30's. Since '22 various companies have been interested in the world's largest tar sand deposits that stretch for many miles along both sides of the Athabasca river just south of Fort McMurray. The visible area of this potential wealth is known to be not less than 1,500 square miles. This represents 750 million tons of bituminous sands, or, considered on a content, this means almost 100 million tons of bitumen; the total area is considered much greater.

In '22 the International Bitumen Company, Ltd., acquired some 10,000 acres of tar sands at Bitumount, Alberta. In 1930 they made the first shipment of pure bitumen and since then the plant has been enlarged and improved. Today it stands on the bank of the Athabasca river, 70 miles below Waterways, Alberta, and the end of steel, a fully modern venture already proving the faith of the men who started it. The second company to take advantage of the resources laid down by Mother Nature so handy to transportation, appeared in June, 1930, under the name of Abasands Oils, Ltd. To date a 350-ton separation plant has been constructed on the reserve. Once under way, the program calls for the capacity of the separation plant to reach 3,000 tons daily with an increase in the near future.

Salt Deposits Showing

Another industry as yet in its infancy is the salt deposits of Waterways and Fort McMurray. Here Industrial Minerals, Ltd., completed last year an evaporation plant which, with its three drying pans in operation, will be capable of producing 100 tons of salt a day. Eight hundred feet below lie the salt beds, 200 feet thick and of unknown extent. The salt is as pure as is found anywhere.

Travelling down river from Waterways, the very method of transportation shows the marks of progress. Where a few years ago one main transportation company and a couple of smaller outfits fought over the freight, today the consignees wonder whether or not two large transport companies boasting such boats as the new, all steel, twin-screw Radium Queen and the stern-wheeler Northland Echo, plus the additional help of innumerable smaller craft, are going to get the freight down before freeze-up Boats and railways show the increase with overcrowded seasons and heavily laden brages, and the warehouses at Waterways are bulging to the eaves from before the opening of navigation until lthe last boat leaves in the faill.

Freight Shows Trend

Goldfields in Saskatchewan was unnamed a few years ago. Two years ago its freight was numbered in tons. This year sees it numbered in thousands of tons with more men employed in proportion. Over the Portage trail from Fitzgerald to Fort Smith moves all the freight to be delivered north of Smith. Prior to '34 one road and one portage company easily handled the freight; today two companies each with a road and a fleet of trucks, are kept busy.

Last season two new boats of 500 h.p. and 120 h.p. respectively were added to the river transports with barges for the Mackenzie, for the Great Bear river and the lake. This to a fleet which in 1934 was considered adequate to handle all freight problems.

A few years ago they talked in tons of freight in this north country, now it's thousands of tons. Not very many thousands it is true, but it shows the trend of events. Today half a dozen mines and as many prospects are making the north hum. And tomorrow? Well, it is a big country, too big and too little known to prophesy about, but if half a doben workings keep the transport companies busy, what will happen with half-a-dozen dozen? Figure it out!

ROSENEATH

Although the attendance was not large, the crokinole party sponsored by the W. M. S. on Friday night in the town hall resulted in a very enjoyable social gathering.

Mrs. Stewart Thackeray won the ladies prize and Andrew Brown carcied off the men's prize, after playing off with C. W. Varcoe. Mr. Brown's and Mr. Varcoe's score were tied at the end of the game period. Mrs. D. Brisbin was time keeper and Mrs. L. W. Scott kept score.

The serving of refreshments concluded the party.

During the quarterly temperance program, observed by the United Sunday School and presented on Sunday morning, S. Bradshaw, superintendant of this department threw a challenge to the young people to wage unceasing war on King Alcohol and his resulting train of evil and misery. Mr. Bradshaw concluded a brief talk on this subject by leaving this question with his audience "what do you think of your community, and what will be your contribution towards its betterment?"

Miss Lois Talling read a story illustrating once again that alcohol and gasoline do not mix; and Miss Ruby Blodgett read a poem: A Barrel of whiskey, which recounted the misery contained therein.

At an executive meeting, held following the United Sunday School hour, it was decided after discussion to raise the yearly missionary contribution as in previous years by class allotments.

The W. M. S. members met in the hall on Tuesday afternoon and quilted two warm quilts in readiness for the autumn bale.

Kief (Bill) Brown of Detroit arrived on Saturday to visit his father William Brown, and other relatives.

Frank McGrath of Sudbury visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. McGrath last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baptie (nee Jean George) a recent bridal couple are visiting here with relatives and on Saturday night a group of young people welcomed them with a charivari serenade.

Mrs. L. E. Down has returned home following a visit at Centreton with her sisters, Mrs. H. Prettie and Mrs. Edgar Smith.

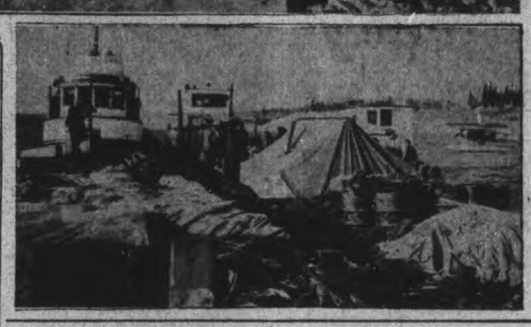
Busy Northland

Here is Canada's busy northland! Aeroplane and river barge are the means by which the grim, vast and unbelievably rich country which is opening up along Canada's sub-Arctic frontier draws its supplies from less isolated areas and pours its flood of new wealth into Canadian industry. At TOP is the motor vessel Liard River discharging a load of freight at Echo Bay on Great Bear Lake, with oil and dynamite the principal articles. BELOW, a typical scene along any northern waterfront—drums of oil, bags of ore, tarpaulined piles of perishable produce, an aeroplane at rest in the river and the big river steamers loading and unloading at the dock.



URGE RAIL PROBE BE HELD IN OPEN

OTTAWA, March 31 — (CP). — The Senate was scheduled to-day to continue its marathon debate on Canada's railway problems with the impression growing that the matter would be referred to a Senate committee for detailed consideration.

Senator Arthur Marcotte (Con. Ponteix) last night resumed the railway debate which has been in progress for several weeks and condemned proposals for unification of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

He urged that the Senate committee inquiry which has been suggested should be conducted in public and not behind closed doors as was a previous Senate railway investigation in 1925.

The current railway debate involved a resolution moved by Senator C. P. Beaubien (Con. Montreal) urging the government to seek a solution to Canada's railway problem. Senator F. B. Black (Con., Westmoreland) moved an amendment to permit the whole problem to be examined by a select committee of the Senate.

A sub-amendment by Senator James Murdock (Lib. Ottawa) urges that the committee devise a plan to relieve the country of the railway burden and assure an annual return of $75,000,000.

"I never believed and do not believe yet in the success of state operations in a democratic country such as ours with 10 governments, each one interested to grab as much as possible from such immense sources of power, prestige and suffrage," said Senator Marcotte.

'I believe in co-operation and fair competition and both are possible at the same time. This has been proved to the utmost satisfaction of the public in England in recent years."

No Select Committee.

He urged that the proposed inquiry be conducted by the regular Senate Railway Committee and not by a Select Committee as urged by Senator Black. The Senate should not go farther back than the Duff Railway Commission of 1932, thxt should investigate what has been done since then to relieve the debt burden.

Senator J. A. McDonald (Con. Shediac) agreed with Senator Marcotte that a Special Committee was unnecessary.

After the railway debate was adjourned until to-day, Senator W. A. Greisbach (Con. Edmonton) urged calm recognition of a troubled world situation and advocated taking such steps concerning conscription and training of officers to enable Canada to avoid mistakes made during the Great War.

He was discussing the proposed amendments to the War Veterans' Allowance Act which would add about 5,000 Canadian ex-service men to the present 12,000 now receiving the monthly grant of $20 for single and $40 for married men.

He said one-third the casualties suffered by the Canadian forces in the Great War were due to lack of training and employment of men not fit to bear the ravages of war.

"We are probably faced with another great war," he said. "We are engaged in a rearmament movement of sorts and discuss matters of policy and the like, but no one seems to worry about the fact that whatever we do involves trained man power. If we would avoid the mistakes of the past we would be well advised to face the issue of conscription."

CAROL GATHERING YOUNG CABINET

BUCHAREST, March 31—(CP). — The cabinet of Patriarch Miron Cristea resigned today.

The Cristea government, headed by the patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox Church, came into power in February following the fall of the anti-semitic government of Octavian Goga.

A cabinet reorganization has been forecast for some time in view of the dissatisfaction of the Liberals with the present distribution of portfolios.

The 80-year-old patriarch was commissioned by King Carol to form a new government and it was expected formalities would be completed before evening.

It was stated at the palace that Rumania's cabinet of "old men" had served its purpose and that, at the request of many members of the ministry, the King was gathering new leaders about him.

In informed quarters it was said Georges Tatarescu, foreign minister, and other members of the Liberal party would be excluded from the new government.

The same sources said it was likely that several members of Juliu Maniu's now inactive peasant party would receive portfolios.

It was emphasized, however, that Rumania is no longer ruled on a party basis and that parties, while existent, are dormant.

U.S. RAIL INQUIRY MAY AID CANADA

OTTAWA, March 31 — (CP). — The report which is to be presented to President Roosevelt, possibly this week on recommendations "for immediate action by Congress in regard to the whole railway situation, which is critical," is being awaited with almost as much interest on Parliament Hill as in Washington.

The railways in both countries have the same trouble, inability to make both ends meet in a financial way. The Canadian Senate doubtles swill shortly launch a committee to study the railway situation in this country and it should be a great help to have the views of Mr. Roosevelt's conference.

The body invited to advise the President on some method to save the railways in United States was composed of 14 of the leaders from rail, industrial and financial circles. It included three members of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Association of American Railroads asked the Commission for a 15-per-cent freight rate increase and was awarded 5.3 per cent. However, the railways there as in Canada are in the unhappy position that if they get rate increases sufficient to make profits, the competing services, water and truck traffic take away business and the advantage after is lost.

Lowest Rates in World.

Canadian railways claim they have the lowest freight rates in the world, yet they frequently have found it advisable to ask the Railway Commission to reduce their rates to meet water and highway competition.

Consolidation of railways is being urged in United States and amalgamation of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific is being advocated in Canada. In both countries a particular objection is that any saving by such a procedure a considerable extent would be achieved by displacement of employees.

The arguments for and against amalgamation are likely to be presented fully before the Senate committee and it will doubtless study thoroughly the conclusions of the Roosevet committee reaches.

CAMPBELLFORD

Miss Ruth Palliser and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Palliser of town and Miss Reta Palliser of Frankford motored to Toronto on Monday to visit the Flower Show.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Campbell, Sebastopol Street, have returned to town after a motor trip to Florida.

Mrs. L. Hendy and daughters, Jean and Frances, Front Street, have returned from spending a few days with relatives in Toronto and with Mr. Owen Hendy of Kirkland Lake, who was also visiting in the city on Saturday.

To Lead Tories?

Arthur B. Purvis, ABOVE, head of Canadian Industries Limited, and former chairman of the National Employment Commission, will be asked to succeed the Hon. R. B. Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.

Burdock Blood Bitters drives out the impurities from the blood, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth and healthy.

Miss Phyllis Twiddy, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes:—"Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.

It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.

I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."

Employment Probe Decides Relief Is Dominion's Job

Urge Action on Low-Rent Homes, Less Public Works, Tourist Drive, Aid to Settlers, Women's Bureau

OTTAWA, April 1.—(CP)—A national system of unemployment insurance, already projected by the federal government, would demand a supplementary system of unemployment relief and this could best be administered by the Dominion, it was said today in the report of the National Employment Commission tabled in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Rogers.

However the commission recognized certain impediments in the way of the immediate assumption of federal responsibility for unemployment aid and said:

"This further step would necessitate determination by the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations of the financial basis on which such a system should be established, and in the light of all relevant considerations, of the wisdom of further constitutional and financial changes.

Advantages Over Present Setup

"The National Employment Commission does not consider it to be within its competence to express an opinion on these changes, other than to record its considered judgment that if financial and constitutional considerations should permit, co-ordination of a nationally administered system of unemployment insurance and employment offices, buttressed by a similarly administered system of unemployment aid, would have decisive advantages over the present system in coping with problems of employment and unemployment."

(The federal government has already asked the provinces to sanction an application to the imperial parliament for an amendment to the British North America Act, Canada's written constitution, to bring unemployment insurance within federal jurisdiction.)

The seven-member commission, headed by Arthur B. Purvis of Montreal, submitted a unanimous report after coast-to-coast examination of the unemployment problem. Interim reports, one of which was for the now-effective Home Improvement Loan plan, have been submitted.

HOWLER BLANKETS NORTHERN ONTARIO

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 1.—(CP).—Blizzards subsided through Northwestern Ontario to-day as rain-swollen rivers in Fort William overflowed their banks to threaten railway bridges and homes in low-lying sections of the city.

The Neebing and McIntyre rivers, levels raised by a two-inch rainfall in 48 hours, flooded basements of homes close to the rivers. Water was up to doorsteps of many houses.

An overnight drop in temperatures as the rain stopped was believed to have saved the railway bridges from serious ice damage. Ice jams in the rivers were blasted with dynamite during the night to break up the field and let it through the bridges.

An old bridge over the Neebing was washed out. It had been out of use except for foot traffic for several years.

A blizzard which grounded airplanes, disrupted communications and practically isolated Red Lake mining district, passed off toward the north-west shores of Hudson Bay. Snow flurries continued, but they were negligible after yesterday's fierce winds.

Telegraph communications west of the head of the Lakes was disorganized by the storm, numerous poles falling. Where poles withstood the wind aurora borealis affected telegraph wires.

Creeks around Fort William all were reported swollen far beyond normal levels by the rainfall. As long as the cold weather which set in overnight continues no serious damage is expected.

STARVING STOCK, CANNIBAL'S DIET JAIL SOO HERMIT

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 1 (CP).—Frank Hart, 64-year-old recluse, was ordered to jail today for observation after he appeared in court on a charge of cruelty to animals.

The story of Hart's preferance to live in a tumble-down shack without heat instead of a comfortable cottage nearby the shack and his feeding of his animals was termed by Magistrate Andrew Elliott as "incredibly horrible."

"I found that he (Hart) had been living on meat cut from the carcass of a cow that died from starvation," said Inspector R. B. McCaulay. "Only other food I found was some flour."

McCauley testified the ground in Hart's shack was frozen hard and Hart bedded down on the ground with cowhide for a pillow. He found two cows chained to poles in a tumble-down barn. All the cows and a young calf allowed to run around outside had been given to eat was brush cut near in adjacent creek.

Neighbors had given Hart some hay for the animals, but he refused to feed it to them and kept up the brush diet, McCaulay testified.

Outside the shack was the carcass of another animal and, the sanitary inspector said, "evidently when he wanted meat he just went outside and cut a piece off. He seemed to have cooked the meat in some instances with hide still on it, for vessels in the shack were coated with cattle hairs.

Refuses To Live in Cottage.

Hart's clothing was in shreds, witnesses testified, and he used bagging to cover himself. Two years ago Hart was given a small cottage, complete with stove, pipes, coal and mattresses, by James Lyons, former Conservative Minister of Lands and Forests, but he refused to live in it.

Before ordering Hart to jail, Magistrate Elliott commented that on a visit to the Hart farm 2 years ago there had been a fine herd of cattle but even then Hart was living in a shack.

Shown a picture of his shack, Hart pointed to boards he nailed over the window. "I had to do that," he said. "The bears were continually climbing in through them."

"I'd soon go to jail," Hart answered when given his choice between the House of Refuge and jail. "If you want to send anyone to the House of Refuge you can send that man there," indicating McCaulay. "I want none of that place."

Where Pupils Escaped

This picture vividly shows what would have happened had this school, the Highland grade school, at Columbus, Kas., been filled with pupils when the tornado tore off the roof and half the top floor. Fortunately, most of the 110 pupils had been dismissed; several others were injured when pinned in the wreckage. When this photo was taken, a member of the American Legion was helping his son, one of the pupils, recover his things from his desk.

BLIZZARD LEAVES PRAIRIES STREWN WITH DEAD STOCK

CALGARY, April 1 (C.P.). — Fast disappearing snowdrifts, melted by a warm sun, to-day revealed a toll of live stock dead in Alberta. Early reports from ranchmen indicated the toll of the blizzard which lashed across the rangelands south-east of Calgary would be heavy.

But the big ranches to the south-west along the foothills of the Rockies escaped disaster. The heaviest storm toll was reported from the barren Prairie country between Medicine Hat and Brooks. Cattle and sheep drifted ahead of the storm were caught in fence corners and trapped in the deep snowdrifts.

Losses had definitely reached as high as 20 per cent. in some districts, the heaviest since the big storm of 1918 when whole herds were destroyed in a rangeland blizzard.

Dead cattle were strewn over fields and highways near Tilley, in the Brooks district, south-east of here. One ranchman counted 70 dead animals in the fields and along the roadway. Twelve others had died in the 10-foot drifts.

Tombstones Nearly Grave For Watch-Hunting Boy

500-Pound Slab Of Granite Slips And Pins Lad Till Firemen Save Him

TORONTO, April 1 (CP)—Held tight by a 500-pound slab of granite which slipped and wedged him head-first in a pile of tombstones, Don Peffers, 11, was rescued yesterday by firemen who eased the huge piece of rock off his body.

It started when Don decided to squeeze into the pile of rocks at a monument works yard in search of a watch his brother, Jim, dropped during a game of tag. Because it had been a Christmas present the boys were afraid of what their parents might say about the loss.

While Jim held on to his brother's legs, Don lowered himself head first into the eight-foot pile and edged between the huge slabs. Unable to find the watch he started to crawl back when one of the tombstones moved to wedge him in.

Monument company proprietors could not move the stone which held the boy with blocks and wedges and were afraid that in their efforts they might dislodge another stone atop Don.

Firemen were called and after striving unsuccessfully with an electric hoist were forced to quick action when another of the granite slabs started to move. Four firemen grabbed the block holding Don while another grabbed the youngster by the feet and pulled him out.

10TON PLANE CRASHES

BRUSSELS, April 1—(AP).—A 10-ton substratosphere plane crashed near the Evere Airdrome today on its maiden flight, killing the pilot in its hemetically-sealed cabin. Pilot Jan Dane was in the cabin.

The tri-motored plane weighed 10 tons, had a wingspread of 77 feet and was designed to carry a crew of three and 20 passengers at a height of 20,000 feet.

Sweden spent slightly over $1,000,000 in unemployment relief last year.

Conant Offers $200 Reward For Gang Involved In Bruce Attack

Toronto, April 1 (CP)

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Conant announced today the Ontario government would pay a $200 reward for information regarding persons who caused the disturbance at the legislative buildings Tuesday when Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former Lieutenant-Governor, was rescued from an angry mob.

Three provincial constables protected Dr. Bruce from the crowd after the private bills committee turned down a proposal to allow chiropractors, osteopaths and drugless practitioners to take the designation of doctor. Dr. Bruce had pleaded with the committee to refuse the application.

The reward will be paid for information as to the name or names at present whereabouts of the person or persons who caused the disturbance and breach of the peace, the attorney-general's announcement said.

Ontario Endorses Sweepstakes Run By Province

Hepburn Leads 41 Liberals, Macaulay 5 Tories To Swing Vote 48 to 34 in Favor of Lotteries

TORONTO, April 1—(CP)—Vision of hospitals receiving financial aid from government-operated sweepstakes dangled before Ontario legislators today as the province prepared to seek federal authority for such a lottery. Copy of a resolution asking this authority and bearing legislative endorsation will be sent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King at Ottawa.

Sponsored by F. G. McBrien (Cons., Toronto Parkdale, the resolution had full support of Premier Hepburn and Conservative Leader Leopold Macaulay and carried by a 48-34 vote late yesterday. The vote split party lines to such an extent that two cabinet ministers, most Conservatives and a scattering of government members voted against the resolution.

Eight of the 90 members in the House were absent when the voting took place on the resolution which asked specifically for federal authority to allow provincial legislatures to legalize operation of sweepstakes for hospital purposes. Highways Minister McQuesten, Provincial Secretary Nixon, George S. Henry, former Conservative Premier, and Farquhar Oliver (U.F.O. - Grey South) were among those opposing it.

Now Up To Ottawa.

Next move is up to Ottawa because sweeps can be held only if parliament amends the criminal code to permit them. Ernest Bertrand (Lib., Montreal Laurier) has a bill before the House of Commons to grant provincial legislatures authority for legalizing them. It has not advanced beyond first reading.

The House acted on the sweeps proposal, which aroused week-long furore throughout the province, after completing the budget debate. A Conservative non-confidence amendment to the traditional motion to go into committee of supply after the debate was defeated 61-23. The resolution, moved by Mr. Macaulay, charged the government with "failure to carry out its pre-elec-

$3000 Fire Damage In Oshawa Block

OSHAWA, Ont., April 1—(CP). — Fanned by a strong southeast wind, fire to-day threatened the Burns Block, one of the largest buildings in Oshawa's business section. Damage estimated at $3,000 was done before the blaze was brought under control.

The fire started on the second floor of the four-storey building and before firemen had reached the scene, the fire had licked up the walls of the room at the rear of the Steel Union hall. Smoke and water poured down through the floor, doing considerable damage to premises on the ground floor. Burns Shoe Store, Canadian National Telegraph, United Cigar Stores, and Puckett Brothers grocery store suffered heavily from smoke and water.

About three months ago $1,500 damage was caused by fire to the United Cigar store in the building.

"APRIL FOOL" CHEQUES

CORNWALL, Ont., April 1—(CP) — There was no April fool joke about cheques distributed today to about 500 of the 1,500 employes of Canadian Cottons Limited. Some workers received more than $100, others amounts ranging down to $20.

When the general strike in the mills was settled last August it was agreed adjustments in pay as a result of intervention by the industry and labor board should be retroactive to date of work resumption early in September. Accumulated sums were paid today.

Cook Swims River Hikes 20 Miles To Obtain Help

Bridge Swept Out in Flood Stalls Gang, Teams From Camp 40 Miles North—Without Food 2 Days

MASSEY, Ont., April 1—(CP)—A rescue party set out from here today for 20 men stranded by rising flood waters 20 miles north of Massey. The men have been without food since early yesterday.

Word of their plight was brought to this town, 60 miles west of Sudbury, by Arthur Brazeau, 36-year-old cook, forced to swim fully-clothed through turbulent waters and walk 20 miles in cold weather to reach Massey.

The men set out from Charles Duval's camp, 40 miles north, yesterday with four teams and sleighs. Hindered by lack of snow, progress was slow and they were stopped by flooding creek waters which made a bridge impassable 20 miles from the camp.

Brazeau set out alone to bring a rescue party in for the men. Six miles north of Massey he found the bridgeover the creek was washed out. Fully clothed he swam across. Tired and cold from the long walk through falling temperatures and a bitter northwest wind, Brazeau reached the home of W. J. Hall last night.

The rescue party carried food for the men and the eight horses.

GIRL 6, TRUCK VICTIM

CHATHAM, Ont., April 1 (CP). — Dolly May, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Smith of Chatham, was killed today when her head was crushed beneath the rear wheels of a truck. The vehicle, owned by the Chatham Hydro system, was being backed out of a driveway, and it was believed the child tripped and fell beneath the wheels. An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. Fred Hall.

ENSOL MYSTERY TOLL REACHES 9 AS 2 OTHERS DIE

ORLANDO, Fla., April 1 (AP).—A man and a woman died in hospitals early today, bringing to nine the number of persons who have succumbed after being injected with a Canadian-made cancer treatment serum.

Mrs. Lydie Morrison, 49, and C. S. Pore, 65, both of Orlando, died within two hours of each other.

Six women died Wednesday and another yesterday, and two other patients—a man and a woman—stricken at the same time, were gravely ill today.

Dr. T. A. Neal said the 11 and another woman admitted to a hospital last night all had received the serum at his clinic from a single bottle.

Those seriously ill were E. S. Bolte, 70, and Mrs. Ola Hall, both of Orlando.

Officials are working on the theory that one bottle of the serum was contaminated.

More than 250 drunken motorists were convicted in London in a recent month.

Packers Fix Cattle Prices H. H. Stevens Charges

"Not Set By Supply, Demand —Farmers Unjustly Deprived Of Million Yearly"

OTTAWA, April 1.—(CP).—Cattle prices in Canada are fixed "in Toronto by the head of the packers," it was charged in the House of Commons last night by Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon. Kootney East).

Cattle prices were not fair in Canada and were not fixed by supply and demand.

"There is no question in my mind the farmers to-day have been defrauded, certainly unjustly deprived, of millions of dollars annually which they should be getting. I am prepared to prove that and I will some day."

The former Minister of Trade and Commerce made his statement while the House was considering agricultural estimates.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said space on ocean vessels had been provided this year for 40,000 or 50,000 cattle for the British market.

More cattle could be shipped if there was more space but that was all available. One reason was the lack of wheat in Canada to attract the ships this year. Ships carrying cattle needed wheat to fill the holds.

Three Men Pull Strings.

Alex Edwards (Con. Waterloo South) said he was informed three men controlled the space, one in Montreal, one in London and the other in New York. He wondered if there wasn't some plan to beat down the price by them.

Three men controlled the space, the Minister agreed½ but they had for years. They had controlled it when Canadians shipped 6,000 cattle and when 60,000 left the country.

There was a fluctuation in the cattle shipped to Great Britain, Mr. Gardiner said, due to varying prices in the United States. Canadians evidently preferred to ship to the American market if prices were anywhere near a parity.

A few years ago, the government subsidized the steamship companies to construct cattle stalls, said Mr. Stevens. This resulted in a big

Budget Surplus Of 143 Million Is British Triumph For '37

Armaments However Force Search For 125 Million New Revenue This Year

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 1.—(CP Cable). —Great Britain closes the financial year with a highly satisfactory budget surplus of £28,786,000, ($143,930,000) against an estimated surplus of £258,000 ($1,258,000). Yet when on April 26 Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, submits his budget to the House of Commons he will have to find approximately another £25,000,000 in revenue.

The explanation of this budget paradox lies in expenditure for armaments.

Ordinary revenue for the year which closed last night exceeded ordinary expenditure by the budget surplus of £28,786,000. Nor was this the full astonishing story. Included in ordinary expenditure was a payment of £10,545,000 on the national debt.

Adding these figures the budget surplus therefore is £39,338,000. But a surplus of £39,338,000 does not take into consideration arms expenditure

HINT HOMEWOOD IS NOT HOSPITAL NOR REST HOME

Lawyer Tells of People Dashing About Shrieking

TORONTO, April 1 (C.P.) — Angus McIntosh, Montreal lawyer who yesterday alleged he was "misled" while a patient at Homewood Sanitarium, made no complaint to two physicians who examined him in 1936, an inquiry into affairs of the Guelph mental institution was told to-day.

R. S. Robertson, counsel for the Homewood, read reports by Dr. George Boyer and Dr. R. A. Finlayson who examined McIntosh in his room at the sanitarium on July 6, 1936. They said the patient made no statements detrimental to Homewood at that time.

On the witness stand yesterday McIntosh charged a Montreal doctor gave him a drug in 1934 and he "woke up in the Homewood Sanitarium." One of his counsel, Charles Vien, told Commissioner F. H. Barlow, conducting the investigation, it would be proved McIntosh was sane during the 26 months he was an inmate of the sanitarium.

The report of Dr. Boyer and Dr. Finlayson said McIntosh denied he was mentally ill. He had told them he purchased poison in Montreal, but only for the purpose of killing rats. Dr. Boyer found McIntosh "somewhat pathological."

The doctor recommended a six-months' probation period of discharge as earlier had Dr. W. T. B. Mitchell.

Fit for Probation.

Dr. Finlayson's report said McIntosh was not well enough to be discharged, but was a fit subject for probation. It held he was not able to handle his own affairs.

An order for probation was signed in July, 1936.

Robertson asked Albert Marck, Hamilton lawyer who acted as McIntosh's attorney in the attempt to free him, if an effort was made to have McIntosh examined after the expiry of the probation period.

Lerida, Major Barrier To Barcelona, Totters

ZARAGOZA, Spain, April 1—(AP)—Insurgent commanders announced today they had seized the positions dominating Lerida, key city in Northeastern Spain, and that occupation of the provincial capital awaits only a cleanup of the Segre river alley.

Rolling with tanks and machine guns through the olive groves and hills east Lerida, troops commanded by General Juan Yague continued their encircling movement of the historic citadel and expected the 1st major barrier to Barcelona and the Mediterranean coast soon would fall.

Government forces, however, had erected a new defensive line 10 miles to the east, and resisted savagely every step.

Insurgents reported the capture of a large number of prisoners in the Lerida sector, including the chief of the sanitary corps of "El Campesino" brigade and a lister brigade major, Carmelo Martinez of Madrid.

El Campesino, "The Peasant," was commander of the government garrison at Teruel and was reported killed while trying to escape from Teruel February 22).

In Northern Huesca province dispatches continued to push the enemy back toward the Catalan frontier, capturing positions along the Esera River Valley, including the village of Graus at the confluence of the Esera and Isabena rivers.

Many Forced Over Border

The movement continued to pinch the defenders across the French frontier.

General Jose Moscardo, hero of the defence of Alcazar, who is under a government death sentence though never in custody, led his insurgent forces across the Cinca at Monzon and advanced toward Binefar. It was believed Binefar, on the road running south-east from Barbastro to Lerida, had been evacuated by the government.

On the southern sector General Garcia Valino's Italians and Navarrese division and Colonel Jose Monasterio's cavalry broke the enemy's resistance at Nonaspe, 10 miles east of the battlefield of Caspe, and advanced through the Matarrana River valley into the Catalan Province of Tarragona.

Refugees from the front were arriving at the rate of about 150 an hour at Bagneres de Luchon, on the frontier. One thousand troops and 2,000 civilians fled Spain yesterday, and French border officials shifted them to camps in frontier towns. Soldiers were disarmed.

(In Barcelona, the Catalan coalition of trade unions and political parties appealed for 100,000 volunteers and 50,000 fortification builders to fight the insurgents.)

2 MILLION MORE VOTED FOR RELIEF IN SASKATCHEWAN

OTTAWA, April 1 — (CP). — A graphic insight into the disastrous effect of last year's drought in Saskatchewan was given the House of Commons yesterday as on the last day of the fiscal year 1937-38, estimates for contingencies unforeseen when the main estimates were passed last session were approved.

Finance Minister Dunning said no Canadian province had ever experienced such an economic trial as Saskatchewan did during the year. Dry weather over the vast grain-growing area cut the value of the province's crop from $101,000,000 to $36,000,000.

After the minister's statement the House passed an appropriation of $2,000,000 as a further amount to assist the Saskatchewan Government in maintaining essential services. Added to $1,500,000 voted last session for the same service this meant total grants of $3,500,000 to the Saskatchewan Government for ordinary governmental services apart from relief.

To-day the House will discuss defence estimates and possibly Pensions Minister Power's resolution to introduce a bill limiting political expenditures.

Four-Fifths Getting Aid

Mr. Dunning also told the House four-fifths of the people of Saskatchewan required relief or assistance in some form or other. He thus supplemented an earlier statement from Agriculture Minister Gardiner

SERUM MYSTERY SEES 8TH DEATH WITH 3 VERY SICK

ORLANDO, Fla., April 1 (AP). — Mrs. Lydia Morrison, 49, of Orlando, died early today, bringing to eight the number of fatalities among patients who took injections of a Canadian-made serum for treatment of cancer.

Six women died Wednesday and a seventh yesterday after receiving injections. Symptoms resembled tetanus (lockjaw) physicians said, in each case.

Three other patients — two men and a woman—who had taken the serum, known as ensol, and said by Dr. T. A. Neal to have been administered at his clinic from a single bottle, remained gravely ill.

"We have not given up hope in any of these cases," hospital attaches said.

Physicians said tetanus treatments had no effect on those who died, a fact which puzzled them. They said the patients had all the symptoms of the disease except their lack of response to the usual treatment. The serum is made at Kingston, Ont.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury was in recess until investigations were completed by the Federal Food and Drug Administration, the Orange County Medical Association, the State Board of Health and the American Medical Association.

"I don't think there was," Marck said.

C. L. Snyder, commission counsel, volunteered to file a report of Dr. H. Stevenson of London, Ont.

"By order of the court Dr. Stevenson had power to commit Mr. McIntosh at any time during the six-months period," Snyder remarked.

Vien asked Marck if he was present at the examination of McIntosh at the sanitarium, Marck said he and F. H. Avery, then Liberal M.L.A. for Lincoln, were not allowed to attend the examination.

They went to the Homewood office of a doctor and were told to "get out," he added.

Robertson objected to Marck's statement an attendant had been asked to make the report on McIntosh "as black as he could make it."

Neither Hospital Nor Rest Home.

From his observation, the sanitarium was neither a hospital nor a rest home, Marck said. He told of seeing persons up and down the hall, screaming and shrieking.

Marck said he advised McIntosh to report monthly during his probation period to Dr. G. H. Stevenson, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at London. The six monthly reports of Dr. Stevenson were submitted as exhibits.

Snyder said he could produce correspondence showing why McIntosh was not examined at the end of the probation period by Dr. Finlayson, Dr. Mitchell and Dr. Boyer. He said the chief reason was a difference of opinion as to how the examination should be conducted.

Dr. Stevenson's last report was dated Jan. 25, 1937, one day after expiration of the probation period. It said: "Dr. McIntosh appears to be in excellent physical health although is putting on too much weight, claiming to have gained more than 50 pounds since leaving the Homewood Sanitarium.

Enjoying Life

"States he is not getting enough exercise and is enjoying his meals and his life in Hamilton with his friends and relatives there.

"During the examination no undoubted mental symptoms presented themselves. He was composed and well conducted, friendly and in a happy mood."

Then a report made by Dr. Finlayson Aug. 1, 1934, was read. The concluding paragraph read: "There is no doubt but that the subject was suffering from a mental disease when he [illegible] when he [illegible] Sani[illegible] ta[illegible] the [illegible] point of [illegible] e[illegible] tion would brook most [illegible] it accomplished their

Independent Stores Advised To Take Closer Stand

Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas Gives London Merchants Some Tips

LONDON, Ont., April 1—(CP). — Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas, expert retail economist of Peterborough, after spending four days shopping in London stores, last night addressed a dinner meeting of members of the Retail Merchants' Association and their staffs at Hotel London to discuss with them the rights and wrongs of their merchandising.

Dr. Thomas began by saying she was convinced the independent stores could compete with any kind of organization if they stood together. Together they could buy the services which the bigger retailer bought for himself.

Retailing was more than a business. It was a profession. More than that, it was a community service.

The merchant was the focal point for distribution in our economic system and without scientific distribution all our productive science and power was useless.

There were some merchants, she said, who did not make proper use of their windows. They did not seem to realize that a window cost just as much every time it was idle as it did to buy space in a newspaper and then leave it blank.

She wondered if London merchants had to cater to a race of

MORE ABOUT—
BUDGET SURPLUS

The surplus of £28,785,000 was realized by revenue exceeding estimates to the tune of £9,480,000 and by expenditure falling below estimates to the extent of £19,084,000.

New Taxes Likely.

Now, in his coming budget Sir John Simon will have to find about £940,000,000 from revenue. That is exclusive of expenditure from loans. It is further estimated that existing taxes will yield £915,000,000 during the coming year.

Sir John, therefore will have to find another £25,000,000. How he proposes to find it will be revealed when he submits his budget to the House of Commons.

He did not in the financial year which has just closed use the full loan authority for defence expenditure. He may, therefore, decide to borrow more.

But with one of the ablest lawyers in the United Kingdom presiding at the treasury, it is probable that the wealthy tax dodger will find his path increasingly difficult. These tax evasions, skilfully conceived within the terms of the law, are estimated to be costing the treasury £30,000,000 per annum.

A favorite device is transference of assets to a private company paying no dividends but subsequently distributing reserves in the form of capital payments. The company pays income tax but as an individual not receiving legal "income" he escapes payment of surtax.

DEBT CUT $600,000 NOT 33 MILLIONS MACAULAY CLAIMS

TORONTO, April 1 (C.P.). — The collapsed Lake Sulphite Company is "an outstanding monument of the most mismanaged enterprise in Northern Ontario," in the opinion of C. W. Cox, Liberal member for Port Arthur, placed on record in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Cox started an unexpected timber argument yesterday just before the Government forces defeated 61-23 a Conservative want-of-confidence amendment to the routine motion to go into Committee of Supply. The amendment charged the Government with failure to carry out pre-election pledges to reduce public debt and Government costs.

Mr. Cox, prolonging the budget debate beyond the planned time limit, criticized the way in which the Lake Sulphite project was handled and demanded a complete inquiry into the company. Such a probe would shock the people of old Ontari o"as they never were shocked before."

The Port Arthur member's criticism of Conservative timber policies brought William Finlayson, former Conservative Forestry Minister, into the debate after Forestry Minister Heenan also spoke. Mr. Finlayson urged the Government to consider seriously whether it should allow export of pulpwood.

The Debt Picture.

Winding up the debate, Conservative Leader Macaulay said a signed statement by G. A. Brown, Provincial Auditor, published last year "was not true." No financial editor in the province would say it was a statement of the province's true financial position on the day it was signed.

Premier Hepburn in his 1937 budget speech claimed a $33,000,000 reduction in gross debt. Really the reduction was not more than $600,000 in the actual debt "and George A. Brown was just out $32,000,000."

Mr. Hepburn said he never interfered with the auditor, an independent officer, and had nothing to do with his work. He added Mr. Brown was seriously ill at present.

Mr. Cox "never saw drunken sailors spend money more rapidly" than persons in charge of the Lake Sulphite project at Red Rock in the Port Arthur area. Questioned by Frank Spence, he said he approved of probing the concern which went into bankruptcy recently. He wanted that probe, however, to extend to timber policies of former Conservative Governments.'

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg wheat futures followed stocks to higher levels to-day to close ⅝ to ¾ cent higher, May $1.21¼, July $1.10, and October 89¼ to ⅝ cents.

Minor export demand, higher Liverpool cables, firm cash prices and scarcity of offerings featured the quiet session.

May wheat slumped ⅝ cent lower on hedging sales and profit-taking, but quickly rallied to advance 1⅞ cents above yesterday's final quotation. May and July averaged a cent higher through, but October was sluggish.

5,000-YEAR BATHROOMS

CHICAGO, April 1—(AP).—Discovery of a prototype of the modern bathroom in Mesopotamia of 5,000 years ago was disclosed to-day by Dr. Allen B. Albert, Jr., of Seabury-Western Theological Seminary.

"The buildings had regular bathrooms, fully equipped like those of the present day, with tubs, washbasins and other facilities not greatly unlike their modern counterparts," he said.

s three-acre garden plot lies in midst of wide open rolling ries, the soil a sandy loam. It is rcled by a belt of trees, prevent- drifting.

he garden has not been plowed 16 years. Each year half is seed- and the other half remains fal- under a cover of fertilizer. Then is cultivated to a depth of four hes with a spring-tooth cultiva- r.

Seeds are planted in rows about three feet apart, watered and then covered with a horse-drawn scuffler of common variety. Subsequent cultivation consists of that necessary to keep down weeds and "hilling" potatoes.

Mr. Colquhoun believes this method leaves the ground firm to form a good water reservoir covered with a fine dry soil to prevent ready evaporation.

Last year from a patch 30 by 150 feet he raised 500 watermelons and about 300 cantaloupes. He likes to experiment and two years ago grew more than 100 strains of corn, 30 varieties of squash. He is now turning attention to producing peanuts and casaba melons.

DEATH RATE LOWERED

WATER RESERVOIRS IN GLACIAL SANDS

SASKATOON, April 1 (C.P.). — Vast reservoirs of pure water can be obtained by drilling into glacial sands, T. C. Main, water engineer of the Canadian National Railways, said in an address here.

Drilling into the sands has proved fruitful in Humboldt, Watrous and Nokomis districts. Watrous, which faced a water shortage for several years, got a new supply from the newly-discovered natural reservoirs on February 1 last, and engineers are now at work on other fields, he said.

Mr. Main explained that here and there through the West ground reservoirs have been tapped, but the well-owner probably did not realize the significance of his find and merely considered himself lucky.

Water obtained at a depth in the Prairie country is almost always hard or alkaline, or both, due to the dissolving out of the soluble solids in the ground as the precipitation passes through the earth's crust.

Here and there are sand and gravel deposits left by the last glacial period covering many acres. Precipitation on these areas cannot run off directly into the coulees as the ground is too porous. Thus the water must sink down through this formation until it hits the water table on the underlying clay.

This theory has been tested at the points mentioned with the result that new supplies of water, fresh, soft and potable have been obtained At Nokomis the supply is sufficient for the townspeople, the railway company, and for a limited irrigation scheme in the locality.

Plans have been made for the testing of several other districts for similar water supplies during the coming summer, and engineers are now at work on available geological data.

EXILED AUSTRIAN NAZIS COME HOME

SALZBURG, Austria, April 1.—(AP).—Austrian legionnaires came home today as disciplined heroes from their five-year exile in Germany.

These Austrian Nazis fled across the border in 1933 and 1934 as outlaws, fugitives from independent Austria. They returned a carefully drilled, motorized corps, neatly uniformed as Nazi storm troopers. How many returned was an official secret, but one estimate placed 14,000 in the line that thousands of cheering weeping home folk greeted.

They were perfectly dis which tended to set at rest their return would bring action.

To relatives, their coming was the first concrete evidence of Anschluss. They crossed the Austrian border—now stripped of customs barriers—at Rott, near here, in a chilly rainstorm. Truck after truck, each carrying 16 men with full military equipment, passed the former frontier.

From Salzburg they will be transported to their own towns for welcoming ceremonies. The first contingent of Salzburgers, all of whom appeared to be about 35 years old, gathered at the Cathedral Square for a colorful ceremony, the return of the old Salzburg storm troop flags.

Emperor Is Key To Japan's Ambitions About China

Younger Officers Oppose Conservatives Over Program Of Military

By ALLEN CORLEY
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

TOKIO, April 1.—Those who are puzzled as to the underlying purpose of Japan's invasion of China and how far Tokio plans to go with their campaign might well consider the key part played by Emperor Hirorito of Japan in the situation.

Despite the emperor's policy of keeping aloof and in the background, it is he who is the determining factor in a complicated setup and at a critical moment which may determine the whole future of the Nipponese empire.

To at all understand the reasons underlying Japan's military policy, one must appreciate the worship and awe with which the emperor is regarded. Age and an honorable name are held in great reverence in the far east, and no name or reputation is more august than that of the emperor whose dynasty has reigned without interruption and with honor for more than 2,500 years.

Younger Radicals Powerful

As a result there is an adoration for the ruling house tantamount to a religion. Because of this there has come into being an intense spirit of nationalism, a patriotic zeal almost fanatical in nature. The people, and especially the military, are taugh, and believe that they are led by one who rules by divine right and one whose empire should be the greatest on earth.

Those most extreme in their imperialistic ambitions to make Japan and its chosen people and "divine" emperor supreme are the younger officers of Tokio's war machine. It is they who are driving on toward conquest of all China, hoping to make Japan mistress of the orient and possibly of the entire world. They represent the more headstrong and fiery elements. And they were the ones who were back of the attempted coup in February of 1936 when an effort was made to overthrow the government and set up a military dictatorship.

In their revolutionary plans, nevertheless, they still maintained blind allegiance to the emperor. There was no thought of challenging his supreme power. Their aim was to set up a junta which would bring him greater glory.

EMPEROR HOROHITO

Opposed to them were and are the more conservative older men in military command and the financial and industrial leaders who fear the effects on Japanese commerce of any drastic military campaign. They agree with the younger radicals in the latter's imperialistic program to the extent of obtaining more room for Japan's crowded millions to expand.

Is Japan at Crossroads?

But this end was largely realized with the annexation of Manchoukuo in 1931. Efforts to colonize and settle this considerable territory with Japanese have been only partially successful and are only now well under way. The problem of how to police all China and what to do with it would be even more of a task for Japan than Italy has experienced in capitalizing on their Ethiopian campaign.

Meanwhile, Japan's warlords encourage and abet the people in their worshipful regard for the emperor and capitalize thereon. By inspiring the public to fervent adoration of the emperor they benefit, since the military sets itself up as the right hand of Japan's "divine" ruler and a group to be respected and obeyed in all matters.

It may be that Japan is to-day at the crossroads. There is obviously a showdown imminent between the jingoistic and more conservative factions. On the outcome of that struggle will depend the future of the far east and possibly of much more.

There have even been reports that extremists might attempt to assassinate the emperor were he to oppose their imperialistic plans. This might seem doubtful in view of the regard in which he is held, but the fanatical viewpoint of some of the jingoist faction would brook most any action if it accomplished their end.

Old Kentucky CIGARETTES

MOTHER'S TROUBLES VANISH!

Life's so much happier for the whole family— especially the youngsters! —when you change from harsh, bad-tasting, old-fashioned doses to Feen-a-mint, the delicious chewing gum laxative children love to take!

No more coaxing and scolding—no messy, bitter dose to cause tantrums—and, more important still, no heavy bulk to burden delicate digestions. On the contrary, chewing increases the flow of natural mouth fluids that aid digestion. Furthermore, Feen-a-mint's tasteless laxative ingredient acts in the intestine where it should—not in the stomach. Join the modern parents who depend on Feen-a-mint for all the family! It's gentle and trustworthy. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's today—and you'll never go back to old-fashioned methods! 44

NEW PAIN KILLER MINUS ADDICTION

BALTIMORE, April 1. (AP — Discovery of two narcotic chemicals which have the pain-killing effects of morphine without its addiction properties was announced yesterday at a general meeting opening the annual convention of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Dr. Nathan B. Eddy of the University of Michigan, one of a large group of research men who have conducted a 10 year search for such a chemical, announced the discovery before a group estimated at 1,00 who attended the initial symposium.

Neither chemical is perfect yet, he said, but progress has been made toward the goal. One of them, a derivative of morphine made by splitting its molecular structure and tacking on other substances, "is giving very favorable results in clinical trial."

The other, a synthetic chemical, "is also showing promise, although it must still be modified to eliminate certain undesirable side reactions." No name, either technical or popular, was revealed.

When their worth is proven, Dr. Eddy added, they will be made widely available to physicians for the treatment of painful diseases and injuries under public patents held by the government to prevent any possible exploitation.

Dublin has a safe-driving campaign.

So They Shot Him

Arthur Petit is 15 years of age, and is large. His home is in Montreal, but at the moment he is in the hospital. It happened this way: Two policemen had been sent to investigate the report of a theft in the east end of the city. They saw some one wandering along the street and called to him to come over to the police car for questioning. Instead of doing that he fled and the police opened fire. In all the police fired eight shots, most of them of the warning variety, but one entered the back of the individual running away. He was Arthur Petit, aged 15 years.

The case of course is going to be investigated. And it should be. In this country a police officer is supposed to use his weapon when he considers he is in danger of attack. He is not supposed to start firing to make up for his own inability to overtake a person who starts running away. We can think of no reason at all why police should have started firing at that youth, or why they should have continued firing until they brought him down.

The Better Way

The Ministerial Association of Hamilton sent a telegram to Premier Hepburn. They had a gathering and decided to find out what the Premier meant by referring to ministers as hypocrites. The ministers must have meant business because instead of forwarding a letter they sent their request by wire. Mr. Hepburn replied saying he had not yet endeavored to correct the statement. He had not intended to put all ministers in one group and use the word hypocrites so it would be tacked to each one. The ministers who were hypocrites were those who had sent strongly-worded protests in an effort to intimidate him when he said he favored the sweepstakes plan.

So according to that form of separation some of the ministers may be hypocrites and others may not. The protesting folk in the ministry seem to fall under the use of the strong word, while those who went about their business and did no protesting can be free of the charge. They seem to be hypocrites or non-hypocrites according to their attitude toward Mr. Hepburn's ideas.

We believe it would have been much better had Premier Hepburn stated plainly his desire to withdraw the word in its entirety. A man, be he minister or layman, is not a hypocrite because he differs with the judgment of Mr. Hepburn. It would be much better for the Premier of this province to demonstrate that he has as much regard for the views and beliefs of others as he expects to have entertained for his own convictions. Instead of engaging in explanations or seeking to place ministers in this class or that class it would be much more dignified to frankly announce his desire to withdraw the word in its entirety.

No Reason To Worry

J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., leader of the C.C.F. party, admits he is worried. Off and on for many days the House at Ottawa has been debating a want-of-confidence motion. The motion is the child of the Social Credit group. Then Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader added an amendment. He too would like to express want-of-confidence in the Government of the day, but he desires as well to make it known that he does not believe Social Credit is the method or idea which is going to cure Canada or any part of it of the ailments which pester the body national.

Mr. Woodsworth and his followers of the C.C.F. are now in a peculiar position. The leader says he could not vote confidence in the Government, nor could he cast a vote for the Conservative party. The process of elimination carries him farther to the point where he cannot vote for the Social Credit group, and the rules of the House hedge him about so he cannot move a motion of his own liking. So the man is worried.

Mr. Woodsworth should not let that form of worrying get him down. He has been in the House of Commons for a good many years and he knows well enough what is going to take place. And so does every other member of the House. The vote on the want-of-confidence will be called and taken. The original resolution of the Social Credit group and the amendment offered by Mr. Bennett will both fall by the wayside because the Government has sufficient voting power to defeat all such moves. That is, the end was known even before this long debate had started. And yet the long debate was something which had to take place. It always does. Had Mr. Woodsworth been given opportunity to add yet another motion or amendment it too would have been defeated. So why should he worry?

Doing Fine Work

Charles Renaud took charge of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir a few months ago. After the fall and winter work he has taken his choir to several places in the district. Wednesday evening he presented his organization to the folk at home in the Collegiate auditorium, a place by the way where acoustics seem perfect.

Mr. Renaud has nothing for which to apologize regarding the sort of work he has been doing. Not a thing. The membership has been brought up to thirty-five; he has been able to build well the two difficult ends of his choir—first tenor and second bass. Mr. Renaud also had the good judgment to arrange a program which was neither heavy, ponderous nor flippant. It was all within the range of appreciation of the average listener. The conductor made it abundantly plain that as well as understanding the reading of a score according to the written note he has that added quality which can be generally described as musical imagination. To use a common enough expression it can be said that Peterborough's "got something" in its Male Voice Choir.

We Hope It's True

Frank Spence, member of the Ontario Legislature for Fort William, announced the finding of a large body of hematite 100 miles west of his city. He had a small bag of it which he placed before Premier Hepburn. Then he volunteered the information that the company developing the property had all the money it needed; it was all Canadian money, and the deposits were large.

We hope Mr. Spence had all his facts well in hand and that the deposits of hematite are greater even than he anticipates. Hematite is iron ore and in this country we have virtually none which is of commercial value. Steel companies in Nova Scotia get their ore from Conception Bay, Newfoundland. Blast furnaces in Ontario have to be served from deposits in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. If we were shut off from our outside supplies then our steel industry would cease and we would have to import so basic a thing as pig iron.

It would take a large deposit to make certain of a future supply for Canada. If Mr. Spence's claim is found to be well founded then his statement regarding it becomes the most important pronouncement in the Legislature for this session.

Horse Deals On The Tenth

We noticed in a district paper where a case had drifted into court, and it had its origin in the selling of a horse. The claim of the plaintiff A was that the horse had been misrepresented to him by the defendant B. The animal had been spoken of as sound in wind and limb, and it was also referred to as seven years old while the new owner had become certain it was at least ten or twelve years of age. He said the age of a horse could be determined by looking at its teeth. The plaintiff A said the horse also had the nasty habit of kicking whereas he had been assured it was as quiet as a lamb at the time of the sale. None of these statements had been placed in writing, and the court decided it was difficult to make out a case particularly in the trading of horses. So the affair was dismissed.

Even on the Tenth Concession where truth was a virtue and honor something to be much esteemed there was always an element of doubt regarding the continued existence of these fine qualities when it came to selling or trading a horse. Grandfather knew his horses, and he could spot weakness in an animal which it was afar off. Also he was an upright man. But as we recall it he preferred to do his horse trading when not surrounded by the family circle. It seemed as though the words he used to close the deal were not words which should form a topic of conversation at the supper table. He talked to his prospective customer in a confidential manner where the voice was subdued.

There was one good chunk of a work horse and there was a bit of weakness in him. Perhaps several bits. Grandfather had brought him through a spell of greasy leg and he had also developed a shell on the foreleg, but that too looked as though it was going to come all right with the use of a blister. The hired man and the rest of the family knew also that the horse had the heaves, and his wind was not good. That came out on him when he was put to a heavy sort of a day's work, but it would knock off when the animal had a chance to be stall tied or put in a few days on pasture.

Grandfather got rid of that horse and he took in one that was a trifle lighter and also gathered in a fair showing of dollars to boot. And it ought to be mentioned too that the horse had a habit of letting fly with his hind leg now and then. The hired man never put a curry comb on him without going into the stall sideways first and starting at the other end of him, but when grandfather was trading that horse he brought him out and stood him so his hind legs were pretty much against the straw stack, and no horse is going to bother taking a kick at a straw stack. Nor did grandfather run the animal up and down; he said his rheumatism was a trifle bad. When it came to explaining why he was using a blister on the foreleg grandfather explained that treatment like that often headed off a lot of trouble and then he gave a sort of lecture on the proper care of a horse. He talked about everything except what ailed that animal, and then he turned to picking the horse to pieces that the other man had brought to trade him. He could see where he was going to have trouble enough getting him into shape, and he talked that way so much that the owner of the horse might have been wishing he could give the horse to grandfather to save himself a heap of trouble in future.

But of course they never brought grandfather up in court on his horse trading. There was a sort of unwritten law up and down the Tenth that a man who didn't know horses should never go into the trading of them. It was a dangerous sort of business and grandfather always attended to it himself. But he was an upright man.

Making Them Live Longer

It is difficult to keep accurate record of all the associations which have to do with the serious business of seeing what ails us. Just now the American Institute of Nutrition is in session at Baltimore and several scientists from Cornell University have been telling of experiments with a view to finding out how to cause people to live longer. The desire is to take the alloted span of three score years and ten and stretch it out a bit.

They have been doing most of their experimenting with rats. A rat we learn, when left to eat what it likes or what it can find, will live for two years. But when rats were placed under care and a reduction made in the number of calories which they devoured they started at once to live for three years. Of course causing a rat to live a year longer cannot be regarded as an accomplishment, but the theory is that what the rat can do the human being can try to do or actually accomplish.

The adult of today does not need to lean forward in his chair and hope to find here something which will build a lean-to or an annex to his length of years, because we find the learned men saying it is necessary to begin on the cutting down of diet process in relatively early years. So if you have been cutting your beef thick and buttering your bread on both sides the regulated rats have demonstrated little in the way of decreased caloric count which can be of benefit in your case.

And there must be a limit to what would work and produce results on a rat being applied to a human being. It is possible to put a rat in a cage and feed it this, that, and no more. One can place a man on a diet but the beggar is so apt to go raiding the ice box when no one is looking.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Thirty-three commercial artists in Toronto have gone on strike. It is to be hoped their grievances are not as bad as they have been painted.

Thieves in Toronto stole Mayor Day's car, drove it 35 to 40 miles, and then calling it a day, abandoned the machine.

Fifty members of the Legislature are visiting the Ontario Agricultural College and we hope the staff had Duncan Marshall's prize bull all nicely groomed for the occasion.

There was a picture of some Toronto school gymnasts in a paper the other day and all the girls were wearing stockings. That makes it a real news picture.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels of Germany says the political heart of Europe beats in Berlin. Somehow we do not believe Premier Mussolini will appreciate that boast.

Information has come from an expert saying the one way to get rid of starlings is by eating them. The one chance to popularize the idea is to start a rumor that the starling is rich in vitamin A and D.

The future of the store clerk looks brighter today. One man in Memphis has put out his automatic vendors claiming "Machines can't think and they can't explain things to a customer."

WEAKENING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I like seed catalogues to come, I read them and I sing and hum, my hope runs very high; I see the posies red and pink, and each in turn just makes me think, of all the things I'll try.

¶ I like to walk about the yard, and write things on the order card, I did that just at noon; for I can see flower beds just there, and roses filling up the air, and everything in bloom.

¶ I'll tackle things in ways quite big, I know I'll have to hoe and dig, with joy I'll face the toil; I'll get right down upon my knees, and plant the pansies and the peas, and dabble in the soil.

¶ And as I toil from day to day, the folk will halt when going their way, with pleasure in their eye; they'll pause as happy as can be, and say it's very plain to see, there dwells a noble guy.

¶ I fear I'll weaken later, though, when I reach for the spade and hoe, that's just a few weeks hence; for as I work I like to talk, and gossip up and down the block,—and lean upon the fence.

¶ So I get pleasure from the book, in thinking how these things will look, that way seems best to me; when heat takes off my coat and vest, I fear I shall prefer to rest—beneath my basswood tree.

Just Where as That Money ne

(From Official Parliamentary Report)

Mr. ILSLEY: The right gentleman dealt with the Exchange Fund Act the other night, and as what had happened to the $63,00 The most curious thing is that one comes to read the Exchange Fund Act, he will find that he can tell anybody what happened to $63,000,000.

Mr. BENNETT: That secret has never been proclaimed. The administration of the stabilization fund comes into effect only by proclamation of the governor in council and that proclamation has never been made. Certainly the minister can tell me where the $63,000,000 is.

Mr. ILSLEY: Under paragraph (2) of section 4 of the Exchange Fund Act it is definitely provided that the provisions of the Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act are not to apply to the exchange fund account. Amongst other things, this means that it is not to appear in the public accounts during the period of its operation. Section 9 of the act provides that an annual audit of the account shall be made by the auditor general in such manner as he thinks proper, with a view to ascertaining whether the transactions in connection with the fund account have been in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Mr. BENNETT: I do not wish to interrupt the minister, but may I point out that the exchange stabilization fund has never come into being. There is none. The government has never availed itself of the provision by making a proclamation that it is in force.

Mr. DUNNING: That is quite right, but the $63,000,000 is in existence.

Mr. BENNETT: We have a right to know about it. The audit act applies only to stabilization, and at the government's initiation, so that if any operation were carried on the auditor general would know. The minister has assumed that this provision is in force, but it is not.

Mr. ILSLEY: The right hon. gentleman was told the other night that the $63,000,000 is in existence.

Mr. BENNETT: I want to know where it is.

Mr. DUNNING: You did not want to know where it was.

Mr. BENNETT: I want to know what it has been used for.

Mr. ILSLEY: It is in the hands of the government.

Mr. BENNETT: Where?

Mr. ILSLEY: And it is intact.

Mr. BENNETT: I never questioned its intactness. I want to know if it is available for purposes of accounting, or if it is in the consolidated revenue fund, or where it is.

Mr. DUNNING: Under the law it must be in the bank.

Mr. BENNETT: The Bank of Canada?

Mr. DUNNING: Yes. The law has been followed in every particular.

Mr. BENNETT: We put that provision there, at any rate, and I remember the Minister of National Defence (Mr. Mackenzie) making an observation on that occasion.

Mr. ILSLEY: There are two or three further observations I should like to make, but it is now six o'clock.

Mr. BENNETT: Call it six o'clock, and come back.

Mr. ILSLEY: I have not much more to say, but I shall ask to call it six o'clock, so that I may continue in the evening.

At six o'clock the house took recess.

FLOODS IN DUST BOWL.

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

RESIDENTS of Saskatchewan's "dust bowl" must have viewed the floods of last week with mixed feelings. The sight of so much water must have been pleasing to those who for years have watched their land blowing about as dust. To them it must have been a good augury. But there must have been regret, too, that even a part of it should flow away and be lost to a land that has been parched for seven years.

There was a heavy snowfall during the past Winter and last week it rained in the south. That meant melting snow, melting too quickly in fact, with the result that the small rivers which have been dry or nearly dry so long were filled to the top of their banks and overflowed.

However, residents of the district say that, although the flow-off was heavy, the soil was receptive and much of the water sank into it and will be useful later in the year.

NO SEEING THE END.

(New York Herald Tribune)

IN BERLIN THERE sits a successful gambler, flushed with the spoils he has won, surrounded by a propaganda-crazed nation and urged on by the obvious calculation that now—when his opponents are dazed by his coups, divided, internally confused and behind in their rearmament—is the time, if it ever will be to stake everything on a supreme throw. But on the other side, in London and Paris, the democratic foreign offices are facing precisely the same kind of calculation. It is now—when the totalitarian thrust in Spain and to the east may still be halted—or never.

That is the situation, and it is stated at its blackest to show why we think it the gravest situation which has faced the modern world since July 24, 1914. It is of the sort over which events may take command, and when that happens the end may be anything.

"THE PANSIES ARE IN BLOOM"

(Examiner News Item)

Little pansy blossom,
Won't you tell me why?
You are here so early,
Smiling at the sky.

Soon as winter's over,
You are here again,
Like the sun that cometh,
Shining after rain.

We are here, good Master,
Sent by God above,
Sent to tell His people,
Of His wondrous love.

Sent to point the weary,
To a home on high,
Where in God's own garden,
Flowers never die.

Sweeping and Fishing.

Editor Examiner:

Sir: What's the difference between buying a ticket or licence from the government to go fishing for "pairch" and mud-cats with whiskers on and a fifty dollar government sweepstake?

It's a chance in both cases and if I choose to pay for a chance I'm sure can see nothing wrong about that either it be Kiwanis draws for cars any other respectable thing. Anyhow now that we have given up The Ile we have nothing to go by but ourselves and I'll do my own thinking thank you.

Seized Liquor.

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Being a ratepayer I would like very much to know what is being done with the seizures of liquor and beer which have been collected from bootleggers and others. Would you kindly reply through your columns.

RATEPAYER.

Peterborough, March 31.

In the case of a raid where seizure is made if beer or liquor is known to have been the product of any recognized plant it is turned over to the Liquor Control Board. If the seizure is of liquor or beer which is of the variety where origin or quality is doubtful it is turned over to the Customs department. The method of dealing with it then is generally by way of the sewer. There are occasions when seizures are kept for some time. The case in which they are used or required for evidence may have been several times remanded and so the seized goods have to remain in custody until the case is finally decided.—Ed. Examiner.

Canada's Position.

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Kindly permit me a few lines re the international situation especially regarding Canada and her attitude towards Britain and the so-called Empire. It has been stated at Ottawa that Canada would remain neutral in the event of the Empire going to war. It sounds kind of lopsided. I thought Canada was part of the Empire; I thought Canadians were British subjects. I've read a lot in the Canadian press about British institutions, free peoples, Canadian products in the British market, etc, The Canadian Premier attended the Coronation, probably took the oath of fealty to the British crown. It sounds very perplexing. What's it all about? Is Canada only in the Empire when it suits herself and out of it when a storm blows up.

Doesn't Canada trade all over the world under protection of the British flag? Doesn't the British Navy protect her trade routes? Who pays for that protection? Not Canada but the folks in the British Isles? Premier Mackenzie King and Miss McPhail don't believe in any help for the Old Land; they probably think they are comparatively safe here. I wonder if they would help their own old folks living next door or across the street if they were attacked by thugs?

Perhaps Canada is too good to fight, her people are so happy and contented, no millionaires, but everybody comfortable, an example to all the world, nobody working for their board. No—it's doubtful if Canada is without sin, not according to Mr. Hepburn and others. Perhaps Canada thinks her destiny lies with the United States. If her latest attitude towards the Motherland is the evidence then its doubtful if President Roosevelt would consider himself honored to have Canadians as his subjects. They might be all right till the U. S. A. was in peril. Canada lost 60,000 men in the last war for democracy or so called democracy, and they are still remembered. Many people have cause to remember, others remember nothing, they have no cause to remember. They never lost as much as an hour's sleep for their country in their lives. Other parts of the Empire also lost men; Scotland lost 120,000 out of a population of 4 million, probably the greatest sacrifice of any part of the Empire, and many men from the Old Land fell with the Canadians, Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, Tasmanians, etc., and somebody remembers them all. So let Canada be fair to the Motherland and if Canadians are so righteous let them give Canada back to the red man and send the Governor-General home. There is no altruism in the present attitude; it is purely a selfish, impossible policy and don't forget it is known in the Wilhelmstrasse as well as Westminster. Hitler and Mussolini know well enough that Britain will do her best to keep out of war and that's why they are strutting their stuff. Germany will get her colonies back and more as far as we are concerned, but this is the time for the Empire to stand together and let them know that we're here to the last man and the last drop of blood, and wars will cease when peace is worthwhile for everybody. "When man to man the world o'er shall brothers be for a'that."

DAVE BARCLAY.

U. S. RAIL EARNINGS.

(New York Times)

APPARENTLY there is little hope that a general reduction of wages in the railroad industry can be avoided, and all interested forces seem resigned to that fact. The plight of the nation's carriers is increasing rather than diminishing as is readily seen in the reports of earnings for February. With few exceptions, there was during the month a sharp curtailment of maintenance expenditures, but the curtailment failed to reduce the operating expenses as rapidly as the gross revenues dropped. As a result, it is estimated that when a majority of the carriers has made its reports for February, net operating income will reveal a drop of from 50 to 75 per cent based on the reports available to date. The statements issued so far also show that the curtailment of all expense items which were in force last month have been carried into March, with further cuts of way and shop forces on most of the railroads.

A Bible Message For To-day . . .

AND THE LORD spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy. . . .Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect the person of the poor, nor honour the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour.—Lev. xix, 1, 2, 15.

Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish. Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God.—Ps. cxlvi, 3-5.

THINKS CANADA LOGICAL CHOICE AS AIR ARSENAL

LONDON, March 2 (CP) — An mpire policy to bring the British ommonwealth of nations into a ngle, powerful defence unit in the r, with Canada serving as a cent- l arsenal in event of war, is urged Norman Macmillan, noted avia- n authority, in his latest book, he Chosen Instrument."

n a general review of the race for supremacy among the powers of world, Macmillan declared that ne United Kingdom today presents vulnerable target of attack for nemy air raiders, demanding a rank appraisal of her future secur- ty.

In the event of a conflagration involving the British Empire, the writer envisages the United Kingdom under a virtual siege from the air, transportation systems disorganized by enemy bombers, armament factories put out of action and vital sources of supply jeopardized. To meet the possibility of such an emergency, the writer says, Britain must seek a comprehensive and definite scheme of Imperial defence, whereby the whole Empire would be bound together by military ties and definite military obligations.

Canada's position of geographical security, the author says, is of prime importance to the welfare of the British Empire. She possesses the ne safe territory in which the Brit- h people should build the aircraft required for the defence of the Empire. There, factories would be secure from attack and the increased wealth that would flow into the Dominion would assist development of her territory and natural resources.

Canada's Security

Furthermore, in the event of war, in which the central European bloc, allied with Japan, might menace every other part of Empire, Canada could provide the one secure domain from which the issues of a world war could be directed, the book suggests.

"With Canada as an arsenal and base, European nations could not defeat Great Britain," Mr. Macmillan declares. "Whatever happened to the factories and airdromes in Great Britain that lie within the defence zone near Britain's eastern shores, a steady stream of new bombing aircraft could be ferried across the Atlantic day and night to maintain operations against the airdromes and factories of any opposing nations.

"Aircraft of the type required for European defence could be flown across the Atlantic in 15 hours or ess, landed at British airdromes, situated as far west as possible, to be refuelled and munitioned.

"Thus one absolute necessity for the safety of the Empire as a whole is the organization in Canadian territory of air bases where aircraft of the required type could be manufactured safely and rapidly and where pilots could be trained and flown across as passengers in the bombers."

Mr. Macmillan believes the British people have not yet become air-mind, and that the country's air policy is dominated by a naval and military outlook. The present policy of small short-range, high-speed fighters equipped with ordinary machine-gun armament, coupled with anti-aircraft guns on land and a balloon apron somewhere outside London, he says, will never prevent the British people from feeling the effects of air attack.

Air defences, he declares, must hit out, far from the British shores, chase and harry the foe, not over British terrain, but over the heads of the enemy. Instead of a heterogeneous collection of aircraft, Mr. Macmillan suggests Britain should concentrate on the production of not more than six types. Production should be speeded up and a real offensive air fleet created. Its full weight could be detailed to bomb or fight.

By adopting such strategic types before other nations do so, the British air force could gain a lead that would make it as much the master of the air in Western Europe as the navy has been master of the seas.

Need Nelson Of Air

What the nation needs, he declares, is a man who is prepared to sweep the skies as Nelson swept the seas; a man who can show the British and other peoples that air war need not threaten the security of Britain's urban population, but be waged instead as a battle in the distant skies.

For Empire defence, Britain should adopt aircraft with a range of not less than 3,000 miles, top speed around 300 miles an hour and bomb-carrying capacity at full range of not less than two tons. To carry an air campaign into enemy territory, such long-range, high-speed craft should be equipped with guns as well as machine-guns and carry some kind of an aerial depth charge.

The author also envisages the construction of what he describes as anti-aircraft monitors—ships specially designed to carry nothing but anti-aircraft gun equipment. Such vessels, he says, could be stationed well out in the waters about the coast, thus extending the defence zone beyond the country's land frontiers.

Dominion's Defence

Although Mr. Macmillan points out there is no definite obligation on the part of any of the Dominions to come to the aid of the Mother Country in event of war, he can see no reason why each unit of the Empire should not bear a proportionate contributory part of Empire defence costs. Steps should be taken to strengthen the inter-defence of all Empire units, including the provision of adequate local defences to stave off attack until reinforcements could be sent from other parts.

"What is required is that all Empire units should combine in an Imperial Defence Council, with a concerted plan for equipment, bases, and regions of supply, worked out on a definite scheme for the complete defence of the Empire as one unit," the author says.

"Such restoration of the strength of Britain might well produce that real world peace which everyone so earnestly desires. With Britain's air and sea forces supreme over the seaways of the Old World and the air and sea forces of the United States supreme upon the Pacific, nations would desire to forget their rights by treaty and agreement."

CAMERA TOO BUSY IN STRANGE HAND

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 31.—(CP—Reuters) — Pilots flying mail airplanes on the Australian interstate routes are concerned at the activities of foreigners in taking photographs of positions which might be strategically important to an invading enemy. It is stated some foreigners have taken moving pictures of almost the entire route from Brisbane to Sydney, particular attention being paid to photographing north and south heads.

On the flying route from Melbourne to Sydney, foreigners have been seen photographing the Hume weir and other water catchment areas with high-speed cameras. Several pilots are urging that action be taken by civil aviation authorities to prevent foreigners from taking photographs on airline routes. This practice, they say, is adopted in many other countries.

"Mystery airplanes" have recently been sighted flying over North Australia. A search has been made to discover their origin and the Commonwealth government has ordered authorities at Darwin (Northern Territories) to make a report.

CATTLE HOLD OWN AND HOGS GAIN 25 ON WEEK'S SALES

TORONTO, April 1.—(CP).—Cattle prices were down 25 cents cwt. at the opening of Toronto livestock market this week, but the early loss was fully regained by the close and all offerings sold, Dominion Livestock Branch reports. Calves were steady with hogs gaining 25 cents cwt. A plain quality supply of sheep and lambs sold about steady.

All grades of killing cattle were off on Monday with butchers down to a top of $5.75 and best cows at $4.25. Light runs for the balance of the week brought a stronger tone to the market with price gains of from 25 to 40 cents cwt., from the week's low level.

Good butcher steers and heifers sold Thursday at $5.75 to $6.25 with few sales of common below $4.75. Butcher cows closed at $3.25 to $4.50 with canners and cutters from $2.25 to $3. Fed calves ranged from $5.50 to $7.50, according to quality.

Weighty steers sold on Monday at from $5 to $6.50 with two loads at the top price. For the balance of the week, steers were scarce with a few reaching $6.75 cwt.

Exporters took around 400 steers for Great Britain. There were only a few loads of plain steers shipped to United States from Toronto, although some 300 Canadian cattle were reported sold at Buffalo at $6.50 to $8.75 cwt.

Steers Up to $5.25.

Small lots of stockers sold at $4 to $4.75 and some fleshy feeding steers sold up to $5.25 cwt. Milkers and springer trade was dull with most of the offerings unsold. A few good tested springers sold at $65 to $70 each.

Choice veal calves were $9 to $10. Bulk of the supply consisted of common to medium eastern calves, selling from $5 to $8 cwt., with some culls down to 4.

Hogs opened steady at $10 to $10.10 off trucks for bacons and closed at $10.25 to $10.40 with sows from $6.75 to $7.25. Quotations on f.o.b. hogs were usually 50 cents cwt. under the off-truck quotation.

Sheep and lamb receipts were light with no westerns included. A few good lambs sold at $9 to $9.25 with most sales from $6 to $8.50 Spring lambs sold in small numbers at $7 to $10.50 each. Sheep were unchanged at $2 to $6 cwt. according to quality.

Bandit's Widow to Get Only $118 Of $708 Found On Slain Husband

Bellingham, Wash., April 1

WIDOW of Edward McMullen, Canadian bandit slain in a gun battle with United States customs officers at Blaine, Wash., in May, 1936, will receive $118 of the $708 found in her husband's possession after the shooting.

This was disclosed in a report filed by Dr. A. Sonneland, administrator of the estate. The remainder of the money was paid in claims, principally to doctors who tried to save McMullen's life.

McMullen, one of the Norman (Red) Ryan gang of Ontario bank robbers, was slain by a bullet from his own gun after he shot a customs official to death at the border customs station. His death followed shortly that of Red Ryan, killed in a Sarnia, Ont., liquor store holdup.

FORESTRY GRADS ARE SELF-RELIANT

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., March 31 (CP).—Ontario's first comprehensive forestry school has finished its first season's operation and 30 youths have graduated as real bushmen, with jobs for every one of them.

The students between 19 and 23 years old, were soft and entirely inexperienced when they set out for their headquarters.

50 miles west of here, where they trained under actual bush conditions.

During three months they studied forestry work, tanning leather, repairing snowshoes, cruising timber, drafting and mapping, and hundreds of other subjects.

"Drop any of them out of an airplane 500 miles from nowhere and they would come out to civilization all right," said their instructor.

Training was under the Dominion-Provincial training scheme.

30-TEAM 5-PIN LOOP WINNERS RECEIVE TROPHIES AT BANQUET

C.G.E. BOWLING CIRCUIT ENDS GOOD SCHEDULE

The C.G.E. Shop Bowling League concluded its season last night at its fifth annual social evening, including a banquet and the presentation of prizes, in the Empress Hotel. There were 130 members present at the enjoyable occasion.

This league, the largest one in the city, had a highly successful season, playing at the Duffus' Alleys. There were 30 teams in competition and 235 members listed. Some excellent scores were run up in league games, the winners receiving their tokens last evening, following congratulatory speeches. Fred Batterson, president of the league, was chairman at the banquet.

Prexy Speaks

The president spoke briefly on the activity of this circuit before presenting the season's playoff prizes. The first went to C. Cowling. Bert Burgess came second. G. Walton won the third, while Les Calladine got the fourth.

Following a short outline on C.G.E. bowling, with some interesting highlights mentioned, E. G. Hardy, president of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Association, presented the group winners of the first and second sections with prizes. In the first division, T. McPhate, Ray Clifford and C. Cowling were the winners. The other section saw T. McPhate, Bert Burgess and Charlie Kearns carry off the trophies.

Roy Parnall, vice-president of the Bowling League, gave a short address, in which he praised the work of Secretary Tom Miller, before presenting the season's individual prizes. High average went to G. Walton with a mark of 227, while Charlie Kearns' with 941 took the high three, and Frank Wood won the high single with 347. "Turk" Walton rolled a single of 395 and a three of 964—as well as a low of 97!—but was not eligible for three prizes.

Ald. Cotton

Ald. R. S. Cotton, who presented the prizes for the evening's bowling, doubles, spoke feelingly of the fine work of this large shop league, and he urged continued interest and co-operation in this sport. The prizes went to: J. Denault and J. Tobin with 1364, G. LaPlante and J. Menzies with 1328, R. Pilling and D. Sproule with 1320, J. Wilson and J. Adams with 1297, C. Low and P. Halliday with 1289, and F. Wood and F. Kirkcaldy with 1258.

W. G. Shiner, past president and active member of the league, was applauded for a speech of a congratulatory trend. R. E. Layfield also spoke of the fine connections and enjoyment connected with bowling in the shop circuit, getting a hand for his sentiments.

Fred Martin, past secretary of the loop, advised the gathering to take more active interest in organization work, and highly commended the work of the present secretary. The latter, Tom Miller, gave a financial report, accompanied by a few remarks, and this hard-working officer was given a hearty vote of thanks before the session adjourned.

Baseball Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

New Orleans.—Al Milnar, rookie southpaw hurler from New Orleans, is definitely in the running for regular mound assignments on Cleveland Indians, according to Manager Oscar Vitt. Milnar has hurled 12 straight scoreless innings against the Giants, Athletics, Phillies and New Orleans Pelicans.

Lakeland, Fla.—With Bill McKechnie apparently set on Willard Hershberger as one of Cincinnati Reds' two catchers, there is talk in the Reds' camp that either Ernie Lombardi or Spud Davis, the other receiver, will be with another club by June 1. McKechnie has said he will not carry more than two receivers.

Yuma, Ariz.—While the management of Chicago White Sox admitted it was hot on the trail of a shortstop to replace Luke Appling, all hands denied the Sox were seeking Woody English of Brooklyn Dodgers.

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Manager Bucky Harris refuses to get alarmed at the failure of his Washington Senators at bat in spring training games. "Last year down here we were sensations," he recalls, "and then when the season started we lost seven out of our first eight games."

Clearwater, Fla.—Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn Dodgers' general manager, thinks talk of the first division for his club is "silly." The Dodgers, he pointed out, were 17½ games behind the fifth place Bees last year. "Clubs do not improve 17½ games overnight," says Larry.

Landis Makes Two Bisons Free Agents

CHICAGO, April 1.—Two players of the Buffalo International League club, Pitcher Charles Stanceu and Outfielder Myron W. McCormick, were declared free agents yesterday by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, whose statement said Buffalo had 'covered up" both players for Cleveland Indians throughout the 1937 season.

Landis' announcement said the Buffalo club transferred the contracts of Stanceu and McCormick to Cleveland last September, and that investigation disclosed the players were "covered up" under a "gentleman's agreement." The statement also said "the alleged payments by Cleveland to Buffalo were secretly refunded by Buffalo to Cleveland."

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THIS IS hot out of the feedbox, a local Hockey Club Officer slipping it to us this morning: Four puckists will be imported this summer and the Petes, with an artificial ice arena, will step up into O.H.A. senior "A" company! Three of the players were with Toronto Goodyears the past winter, and the other is from Oshawa—their names have not been announced yet. Furthermore, Irvin (Ace) Bailey, who coached Toronto Varsity the past two seasons, has been transferred by his company here and has agreed to coach the club. The former senior star with the Petes, who was put out of pro hockey with the Leafs in Boston with a head injury several years ago, intends to apply for re-instatement to amateur ranks and, if he gets it, may again patrol right wing for the Petes! This may be a heck of a date—yeah, it's April 1st—to spring this news on an unsuspecting public, but April Fool's Day is the only time we can deliberately lie in print and get away with it! So, a merry April Fool's Day to youse folk, and many of them!

* * * * * *

AT THE Y.W. tonight, three girls' basketball playoffs will be staged and a big crowd of fans is expected out. Quaker Debs tackle "Y" Gym at 7.45 in a sudden-death junior semi-final. Westclox meet St. John Teenites at 8.30 in the first of their three-game senior finals. It ought to be a dandy. The Teenites finished the schedule half a game up on the Armour Hill gals, and it is anyone's series. Quaker Maids meet St. John Stars at 9.15 in the other junior semi-final, also a sudden-death tilt. Two junior finalists clash next Friday then in a sudden-death playoff. There is also a chance next week of a challenge match between the L.O.B.A. senior squads, C.G.E. and Westclox damsels.

FOR NO reason whatsoever, simply that it occurred to us, we would advocate brighter and gayer uniforms for local athletes. Our puck outfits switched two winters ago from staid blue and white outfits to a rainbow-hued ensemble that had opponents dazed the first period of their initial games with the locals. That is an advantage, of course,, but the real asset in lavish-tinted unies is the peppy feeling it gives the players. Like a peacock or pouter pigeon, they toss out their chests and say, in effect; "I'm good and you'll find that out pronto." We would suggest our baseballers, lacrossers and gridders do likewise when the next set of uniforms are being ordered.

* * * * * *

ON THE other mitt, we must admit that it is the filling in your puck sweater or ball blouse that counts. You could wrap a Gehrig up in a bum's working rags and he would still sparkle on a diamond, or you could put a cheesy rookie in a Yanks' new outfit and he would still smell bad! We have seen chaps in spring workouts going through their paces in odds and ends of ball clothes that would startle a hobo—odd socks, patchy pants that were incompatible with ragged shirts of different hue, and so on. Yet no one minded this sartorial nightmare so long as the lad could pick up a sizzler and throw it fast, or rap a liner through the box. However, all else being even, we'd lay a few dimes on the club that trotted out on the field wearing smart uniforms, rather than the bedraggled bunch in hand-me-downs. Big League clubs have two sets of uniforms, white for home games and gray for road trips. Amateur teams are lucky to have one set for all occasions.

* * * * * *

LEO DEADEY, whose application for a transfer will be considered by the O.B.A.A. executive this weekend, hopes to be in the Petes' outfield come summer. Not to mention rugby in the autumn. Deadey was a senior fly hawk in Toronto and played last season for Lake Shore Mines, a senior squad in Kirkland Lake. Affiliated with the E.O.B.A., playing off with Ottawa Valley. He was regarded as a first-class gardener up north, and we get our info from a Kirkland resident. Was mentioned on a couple of all-star lineups as utility man. Batted in the neighborhood of .300 most of the schedule, but his team was beaten out of a playoff spot in the final fixture. The Petes could use a fast, hard-hitting outfielder and Deadey—if he gets his transfer — might fill in okay.

* * * * * *

BOB ELLIOTT and Max Swanston left this morning for Niagara Falls to take in an executive ball meeting tonight and the annual O.B.A.A. convention tomorrow. Won't know much about the session till Monday but it is expected that a number of the rules of the constitution will be stretched like the last dollar in the budget, or busted to bits. Shouldn't be much trouble for clubs to get three or four transfers a year, we imagine. By the way, Red Scrutton finally pulled out from Kingston and has located at Kirkland Lake. Harold Buck of the Ponies is also sojourning in the northern region once more, but the Daley gang plan to bring in about four from the States. Summer school students, one supposes. Next C.O.B.L. organization meeting will be held in a couple of weeks in Cobourg.

* * * * * *

A BIG gang of guys rolled up some neat counts last eve at the Empress Hotel banquet of the C.G.E. Shop Bowling League. The successful affair terminated a good season by the city's biggest bowling loop. Prizes were presented the various leading trundlers and high cheer prevailed. Much of the credit goes to such officers as Prexy Fred Batterson, Vice-Prexy Roy Parnall, Secretary Tom Miller, and to E. G. Hardie, head of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club. There were 30 teams competing during the winter months, with over 200 players listed. About 130 sat down to the spread last twilight. The Electrics' maple-toppling circuit provides keen rivalry and excellent fellowship associations for a fine gang of men.

SEEMS THE local Orfuns' protest to the L.O.B.A. is just being ignored. Coach W. Thirnbeck's gang of girl basketeers squawked when Cobourg claimed the Central Ontario group championship and went into Provincial playdowns. Despite the fact that the group president didn't know a thing about it, and also despite the fact the Orfuns still had a good mathematical chance of beating Cobourg. They split even with them in the schedule. We haven't heard a word since, barring some vague remarks by the Cobourg scribe about Orfuns failing "to state their case," "the cards have changed since last summer" and the suggestion the locals "practise the sportsmanship attitde they tried to sell a local softball manager last summer." He is the manager who couldn't even be "sold" sportsmanship, and he led his team off the field when they were being badly beaten. However, what has softball to do with basketball?

HITHER AND YAWN: Aurora Mayor has declared a half-holiday there tomorrow as Aurora and Orangeville mix in an O.H.A. junior "C" final in Toronto. . . . Oshawa General and Sudbury juniors have their third play-off in Toronto tomorrow night. . . . Though a bit late with their bouquets, the Belleville Rink Company have decided to call the place the "Hume Arena" now, in honor of the late Billy Hume, the rink's angel". . . . Hawks had to hustle to win over Amerks last night, and we rather like the Old Men of Manhattan to win out and meet Leafs. . . . Kingston and Barrie have a "B" junior final tonight at Midland. . . . Cornwall surprised Falconbridge last p.m. with a 5-1 Allan Cup playdown win. . . . That Louis-Thomas thing in Chi. tonight comes over WJZ at 11 bells. . . Drake Jopling is home again after a good season with N'Yark Rovers; says Les Patrick is rather interested in a local puckist. . . . 148 MEASLES CASES

WINDSOR, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Despite 148 cases of measles in this district during March — an unusually high total—the disease is being kept within reasonable bounds, according to Dr. Fred Adams, medical officer of health. There were 12 cases of the disease reported in January and 32 in February. "In a real epidemic we get as many as 700 or 800 cases a month, so the present situation is not too bad," Dr. Adams said.

ROSS WILSON IS EXTENDED IN TITLE PLAY

HAMILTON, April 1. — Several outstanding matches featured a notable program as the annual Ontario indoor tennis championships continued at the Thistle Club here last evening, and the singles series went far into the second round as a result of the play.

Outstanding of all matches was that in which Ross Wilson, Toronto Davis Cupper, eliminated R. Hock of Buffalo in three sizzling sets, for, after losing the first, the Toronto player came from far behind in the second and then won a long-drawn-out third set by a scanty margin.

In a match that took more than two hours to complete, Wilson and Hock held the interest of the fans. In the second set, after losing the first by 4 to 6, Wilson was down four love when he started a grand comeback that eventually gave him a 7 to 5 victory. In the final set, Hock carried the Toronto star to a score of 10 to 8 before conceding a victory. Wilson made the issue tough for himself with many errors, but he fought beautifully to emerge from many pinches. In the third set he had match point seven times, only to have the Buffalo star play himself back into contention.

Laird Watt polished off J. Robertson of Hamilton and L. Schaeffer of Buffalo, with comparative ease, and Gus Franczyk of Buffalo won his second-round game also with a handy margin over G. Sullivan of Hamilton, while M. Tressell turned in two victories, one over W. Noyes of Toronto, and the other over Stewart Veysey, Montreal star.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Varsity Grads won the historic Allan Cup 11 years ago tonight when they downed Fort William 2-1 for their victory in four matches at Vancouver. Grads represented Canada at the 1928 winter Olympic Games at St. Morits and swept through the tournament unbeaten.

Carpetball Notes.

The Legionnaires could only repeat the results of their first meeting with the Scabs, losing the round by 2 to 6 points.

Those Central School Boys certainly made it decisive when they trimmed the Howdenites by the score of 34 to 8, bringing their scoring average up to the 60 mark.

Those Fighting Parsons have lost their power punch entirely this year and lost 3 double headers in a row. First to the Hook and Ladder squad by 12 to 22, then Rumary's Antiques 9 to 21, and finally to the No Surrender squad by 12 to 26.

Those Decorators slipped up when they met the Captains and Chiefs in a return match. After beating the C.'s on their own ground two games, they could only get one small point at home.

The grand upset of the season came when the lowly Curtis Brickyard gang went down south and trimmed the second place Braidwood Rovers with a double for the second time this season. They are the only team who has been able to take all points from the Braidwood Boys.

In the President's Cup games semi-finals, Rumary's Antiques took two straight from the Fire Hall squad by the score of 24 to 9, thus earning their position in the finals. They will meet the Captains and Chiefs, who won from the Legionnaires in the first two after tying up the first game in the eighth frame. This was the first tie game in the play of the series.

IN SEMI-FINALS OF SCOTTISH CUP

schedule fins Celtic away to Falkirk,

GLASGOW, April 1.—(CP Cable.)—Interest in Scottish Football Cup semi-final matches is at a high pitch, with the draw assuring a final, April 23, between First and Second Division clubs.

St. Bernards and East Fife, representing the junior league, clash at Tynecastle Park, Edinburgh, Saturday and Kilmarnock and Rangers, famous First Division squads, will attract a huge crowd to Hampden Park here.

Rangers' achievements in cup play are well known, the Light Blues having won the trophy ten times, but none of the other survivors of the current competition can claim such a record. Kilmarnock was successful in 1920 and 1929, St. Bernards away back in 1895, while East Fife has never earned the distinction.

Feature game in Saturday's league matches finds Celtic away to Falkirk, and, in view of the Celts' disappointing displays in their last two fixtures, anything may happen. Two drawn games have whittled Celtic's advantage over Hearts at the top of the league to one point, but the leaders have two games in reserve.

RADISHES ALREADY UP

LA SALLE, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Two weeks ahead of schedule, radishes are showing in gardens here. Carrots, beets and potatoes are either in the ground or about to be planted.

But local gardeners are worried about the weather, because it's too warm. Greenhouse fires, usually common this time of year, are cold, and the majority of early crops are already planted without their use.

England has a warm argument over whether blood donors should be paid.

FALCONS LOSE TO CORNWALL

TORONTO, April 1—(CP).—The odds favored Cornwall Flyers today, after a smashing 5-1 first game victory, to sweep past Falconbridge's famed but leg-weary Falcons.

The Flyers, boasting an impressive record but against lesser lights than the teams that have toppled this season before the speedy Falcons, trimmed the team from Northern Ontario with ease last night in the first game of their best-of-three series. The teams will renew their rivalry to-morrow night in Ottawa.

Vince Godin led Flyers with two goals, while Farrand Gillies, Dick Proulx and Mike McMahon each had one. The lone Falconbridge tally went to Blink Bellinger in the third period.

CHIHAWKS AND AMERKS TIED IN STANLEY CUP SEMI-FINALS

Cully Dahlstrom Sinks Winner To Give Bill Stewart's Club 1-0 Victory In Second Game

Calder Cup Winner Takes Trudel's Pass For Winning Goal In Overtime

CHICAGO, April 1 (C.P.). — It took the playoffs to bring out the best in Chicago Black Hawks, hockey's "scoreless wonders' and surprise team of the National League season.

Fighting off Detroit's bid for third place in the closing weeks of the schedule was only a warm-up for the Hawks, who stood within a game of Stanley Cup finals with Toronto to-day after battling from behind twice in playoffs. Bill Stewart's mixture of veterans, youngsters and cast-offs has but to spill the Americans again at New York on Sunday to enter the final stage with Toronto's league champions.

Hawks levelled their semi-final series with Americans in a brilliant overtime duel here last night, when prize rookie Cully Da 'strom broke up the second battle with a goal that meant victory by 1-0. The result made up for New York's 3-1 win in the first match of the best-of-three round.

Hawks' showing against the A's parallels what they did in the first two games of their preliminary round with Montreal Canadiens. The Habitants won the opener and Chicago came back to take the second and third matches and the series.

Played 90 Minutes.

Dahlstrom, announced only yesterday as winner of the League President Frank Calder's Trophy for the year's best rookie, came down centre ice to take Louis Trudel's pass and spank home the winning counter in the second period of extra play. The teams had duelled 90 minutes and one second when the youngster went to bat.

Whatever difference the advantage of home ice makes in the betting odds on Americans on Sunday, it will be partly balanced by Hawks' superior condition and by the spirit they have shown. They are an entirely different club from the one which had so hard a struggle to make the playoff circle.

Out of the playoffs altogether last spring, Hawks were the lowest-scoring team in the league this winter with only 97 goals in 48 games. Goalie Mike Karakas turned in only one shutout in the schedule.

The same Karakas has been a brilliant back-stop since the first game with Canadiens, when his club was beaten 6-4. The shutout last night was his second of the Cup series, and his performance the most sparkling of any man on the ice.

The big, plunging Americans had an attacking edge in a game that made Karakas and Earl Robertson, New York netminder, do miracles.

The crowd of 13,500 saw brisk skating and hard checking with a first-period fight thrown in as Americans tried to end the series in two straight contests.

Miss Two Chances.

Red Dutton's punchers almost accomplished that object on two third-period chances. Hooley Smith broke in on Karakas once and the goalie left his net to clear the shot. Sprinting in for the rebound, Red Beattie just missed the net.

Then as the period died Nels Stewart whacked the puck into the net, but Referee Clarence Campbell said Eddie Wiseman had been in the Chicago crease and no score was allowed despite loud New York protests.

In the opening minutes Joe Jerwa of Americans and Jack Shill of Chicago went to the ice together, and as the Hawk wingman lay on him, Jerwa kicked out with his skates. They came to their feet swinging and minor penalties were handed out.

But the battling didn't end there. Manager Stewart left the Chicago bench, pulled off his coat, and tried to get to the penalty enclosure. The officials chased him back and the closest thing to hostilities from that point until the game's end, well after midnight, was hard, bruising checking.

All in all, the game added up to another advantage for Toronto. The Leafs won't be called on to start finals until Tuesday, when injuries suffered in the bristling title series with Boston will just about have disappeared.

Happy Band Of Warriors

Many years ago the sports writing fraternity began calling New York Americans, the Amazing Amerks. The name has stuck, and good times or bad, they're still the Amazing Amerks. This year they lived up to their title by their work in the Stanley Cup playoffs. Usually making the playoffs is a task in itself for the star-shirts but they only had to finish ahead of the Morose Maroons to accomplish that feat this year, so they hardly justified the title on that score. To caption this picture we might call them the Delirious Duttonites. LEFT to RIGHT, Tommy Anderson, Nels Stewart, Ching Johnson and Art Chapman. Ching has Lorne Carr on his back. They were caught whooping it up after they had knocked Rangers out of the playoffs and turned back Chicago in the first game of the semi-finals.

If Cochrane Returns To Game What Of R. Preston York?

You Can't Leave a Guy Like That Sitting On Tigers' Bench

A swarthy Georgia Indian named Rudy York may be the man who makes or breaks the Tigers in the team's fight to overthrow the Yankees.

Again, the key man may be Mark Christman, slashing third baseman from Beaumont, who is expected to fill Marvin Owen's old position.

Sou'paw Jake Wade may be the man to lead the Tigers toward a pennant with his sweeping curve, Frankie Croucher, dependable infielder brought back from Toledo may be the player the Tigers need.

What Will Mick Do?

These men are important enough to be called the keys to Tiger success—but the real answer to the fans' question probably will come from Mickey Cochrane himself. Cochrane is reconsidering his recent decision not to play again. The old fire horse hesitates turning over his catcher's glove to Rudy York. One of baseball's hardest workers and greatest competitors, the Mick feels the urge to get in there and catch again.

Cochrane rapidly recovered his physical health during the winter, and the effects of the pitch that fractured his skull last summer in Yankee stadium he has erased, he says from his mind. Working out in Lakeland, he discovered that he was not plate-shy, as many feared he would be as a result of the mishap that nearly cost his life. Now he yearns again for action.

If Cochrane decides to catch, it will mean that York will have to be shifted to another spot. A man with York's undisputed batting power cannot be left sitting on the bench. Since the teams appears set in all departments, many of the Detroit fans, many friends of Cochrane and many baseball observers hope that Mickey will not risk his health or place himself in danger by coming back to the game. It is one of the hardest decisions Cochrane has been called upon to make.

Christman Scintillates

In Lakeland Christman has shown the same sensational ability as a fielder around third that he displayed in the Texas league for two years. In addition to his fielding ability, he is a splendid baserunner, stealing 46 bases last season. He hit .291 for Beaumont, and that is regarded as a fine figure in a league that specializes in good pitching.

Croucher is a capable infield performer, too. His work at short for Toledo was all that could be desired. He has been battling the veteran Billy Rogell for a regular job, with more than a fair chance of success.

The deal that sent Gerald Walker to the White Sox took away some of the abundant Tiger power. But Dixie Walker is a good ball player, too, and the fans of Detroit have taken him into their arms. An unfortunate accident suffered when he was a Yankee several years ago threatened to cut short Dixie's career, but an operation on his collarbone restored him to the diamond, and last year he really began to find himself with the White Sox.

Looking at the Staff

Cochrane thinks the tigers have plenty of power, and his belief is sustained by the averages. Better pitching is the manager's quest, and the club stands in a fair way of getting it. With Tiger power to help him, Vernon Kennedy should be a 20-game winner. Jake Wade, southpaw, improved tremendously last summer, and should be reckoned a regular starter. Harry Eisenstat free agent picked up from Louisville, is counted upon for more left-handed help. Young Cletus Poffenberger may draw a relief role, where his fast ball can be used with good effect. With Auker and Bridges as aces, the Tigers look forward to better all-around pitching than the club had last year.

Schoolboy Rowe? The tall boy still is a question mark. Cochrane is hoping that great right arm has come back to life. If it has, the Tigers will be very lively, too lively perhaps to get along with.

RAMBLERS OUST NEW HAVEN CLUB IN TWO STRAIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, April 1 (CP)—Marathon struggles in professional hockey playoffs are getting as common as April Fool's jests were today. Latest to indulge in the pastime of keeping the customers up half the night were Philadelphia Ramblers and New Haven Eagles.

Ramblers took 90 minutes last night to defeat Eagles 3-2 and oust the New Haven team from the International - American Hockey League playoffs in straight games in their best-of-three preliminary series. Syracuse Stars walloped Pittsburgh Hornets 5-2 to dispose of Hornets in two straight.

Ramblers now taken on Providence Reds, who finished first in their section, in one semi-final. Stars, defending champions, will play Cleveland Barons in the other sectional final and the winning teams in the best-of-three series will then play for the title.

Jack Markle and Norm Locking paced Stars to victory over Hornets by each getting two goals. The other Syracuse tally went to Bill Thompson. Mud Bruneteau fired home one goal for Hornets, while Dede Klein got the other.

Charlie Mason rammed home the puck at 2:55 in the third 10-minute overtime period to give Ramblers their boost into the series against Reds. During the regulation 60 minutes each team scored a goal, Tony Hemmerling getting the one for New Haven in the first period and Johnny Sherf firing the tying goal in the second.

Then in the first overtime period Yank Boyd gave Eagles the lead near the five minute mark. But Kilby McDonald kept Ramblers in the race with a goal with just 12 seconds left to play of the extra session. After the second overtime session, which went scoreless, Mason fired the winner.

PITCHING GIVES AMERICAN CLUBS BASEBALL EDGE

(This is the second of three stories dealing with the currently debated baseball issue: Is the American League stronger than the National?)

NEW YORK, April 1 (A.P.). — National Leaguers shudder or put cotton in their ears when they think of tackling those ferocious Yankees in another World Baseball Series.

Five times in the last 11 years the Yanks have flattened their rivals in the big-money battle. They have taken 20 out of 23 games, including 12 in succession in 1927, 1928, and 1932 against the Pirates, Cardinals, and Cubs. Only the Giants have put up anything resembling a struggle, and last year they came apart, too.

It distorts the picture, however, to contend that this Yankee domination carries with it superiority for the American League, as a whole. You can't take the Yankees out of it, of course, but it should be observed (1) that the New York club has contributed chiefly to the 21-13 margin of the Americans in World Series competition, and (2) that outside of the Series in which the Yanks have participated since the Great War, the inter-league battle has been pretty much of a standoff.

Contrary to a general conception, again based upon what the Yankees have achieved, pitching has been more important than batting power in giving American Leaguers the World Series edge. The records show that each side has outhit the other on 17 occasions.

If theres anything to cycles or the law of averages in baseball, it's the National League's turn. Yankees or no Yankees.

European Conditions Reviewed Present Situation Explained By Well-Known Lecturer

Mrs. John Davidson Addresses Audience In St. Andrew's Church

That thinking people in Peterborough, as well as the world over, are on tip-toe to hear the latest trend in current events, was evidenced Thursday night at St. Andrew's United Church when first hand information on the situation in Europe was brought in a thrilling and widely appealing lecture by Mrs. John Davidson of Toronto, the well-known lecturer and traveller.

Sponsored by Mrs. E. R. Shirley's group of St. Andrew's Women's Association, the lecturer was introduced to Peterborough, where she already had personal associations and was warmly greeted upon this return visit.

Acting as chairman, Mrs. C. M. Scott welcomed the large audience and presented the noted speaker as one well qualified to discuss the European situation since her residence in other countries had enriched her knowledge and made her an able student of world affairs.

The pastor of the church, Rev. E. R. Young was also seated in the pulpit and offered earnest prayer for world peace, while Mr. Harle the church organist presided at the organ.

Distressing Picture

"The world today indeed presents a picture which is most distressing," said Mrs. Davidson in her "Analysis of Events Upto-date," a comprehensive and clear-cut outline of existing conditions.

Opening her lecture with a general observation of the crisis, she spoke of it as a state of tension, which, if not relieved, is bound to accumulate until it eventually explodes.

In the second place, the speaker observed that during the post-war years, we have lost out in asserting certain principles, such as the establishing of peace by collective action, as in the League of Nations. Disillusionment with the actions of such international gatherings has become increasingly clear and obvious, even to their most ardent exponents. Why? Because the majority of people did not bother to make such action effective, and those who had power, used it not for world well-being but for national well-being.

Force is still the dominant effective factor in the world and our own shortcomings have precipitated the dangerous conditions of today which cannot be ascribed to any one government, or any one people.

Justice Must Break Through.

Though at the moment force is triumphant, yet eventually justice will have to break through. In beginning her more detailed analysis, Mrs. Davidson pointed out that in history, as in science, we observe a casualty. In February, 1938, Germany indicated clearly to the world that she intended to run through a greater gamut of successes than ever before.

Hitler seized the opportunity to become head of the German armed might, when the army dared to criticize his action in permitting the unequal marriage of his general. In the totalitarian state no murmur of criticism is allowed, and in establishing himself as head of the army, Hitler indicated his future line of action. At the same time, the head of the Foreign Office was replaced by a man like Hitler, who was convinced of the national purpose and ready to fight for his tenets. In view of these facts it is easy to see the trend of affairs.

Most Important State.

Austria is the most important state in Central Europe today, because Hitler has broken his oral promise to Chancellor Schuschnigg to preserve Austria's independence. In his annual resume of internal and external progress on February 20th, Hitler spoke of its incorporation —not of its independence.

Referring to the situation in the British Cabinet, the speaker pointed out the division that had arisen over Eden's resignation. It is impossible to give an exact analysis of the events behind this—We must resort to the obvious reason—the fundamental cleavage between himself and Chamberlain on foreign policy. This leads to the question—what is the principle behind British foreign policy? Is it to preserve the balance of power in Central Europe? Is it the need for protection for those not so strong? Is it a saving of self in a future emergency or the justice in need of others?

Chamberlain's position was that this was Britain's first opportunity to negotiate with Italy and the cabinet showed their general willingness to conciliate the dictators.

Italy's basic compromise was to recall all volunteers or a portion of them, from Spain, but this was not an easy solution and has not yet been accomplished. Britain also demanded that Italy should have no economic or strategic advantages on the Iberian Peninsula after the war. Italian influence was also to be withdrawn in several sectors, such as Egypt and Palestine. In return, Italy demanded a share in the administration of the Suez and Gibraltar and advantages in Ethiopia. The agreement also asked that Italy be the co-equal of Britain in the Mediterranean, "the jugular vein of the British Empire." Thus Anglo-Italian negotiations have become tedious and protracted, with no settlement yet.

Occupation Of Austria

At the beginning of March the staggering occupation of Austria by Germany took place and became not only the union but the fusion and absorption of Austria. Every realm of the social order has been invaded by Germany, much to the apprehension of France.

The large proportion of German citizens in Czechoslovakia may lead to the same situation there as in Austria, and its gain would make Germany a major power on the continent. This is what we fought in 1914. Today also marks the zero hour between Poland and Lithuania.

Surprises in the world situation have become our daily food and we live in a difficult age which is undermining the educational, spiritual and physical status, which is the birthright of every human being. We must learn to look at history not in terms of headlines, but through acquaintance with the life of nations. Through study we must try to gain a degree of tolerance and to examine our own responsibility.

We must realize that sometimes force may be used to introduce justice but when used indiscriminately, it becomes an instrument of fear and death.

Born in Riga, Latvia, having lived in China and at present on the staff of the University of Toronto, with an experience of travel over the whole world, this lecturer comes to us with first hand authority. Added to this Mrs. Davidson's charming personality, her beautiful phrasing and diction we will remember this as the most illuminating as well as pleasing address we have been privileged to hear in Peterborough.

Suggests Parents Advise With Care

ATLANTIC CITY, April 1. — (CP)—Parents sometimes should be seen and not heard because the average youth today "knows his own limitations" and just how high to aim in life, according to Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow, director of admissions at Brown University.

At an annual convention here of the Head Masters' Association, Dr. Bigelow said:

"In the selection of courses, the modern boy knows his own limitations better than do his parents. He may know that although dad wants him to be a research chemist, he is not fitted for that vocation. If forced into a program of study leading toward that goal, he may miss it by a mile and become a soda jerker."

3-ACT COMEDY IS ABLY PRESENTED BY TRINITY CLUB

Laughter filled Reid Street Hall Thursday evening, peal after peal of unrestrained mirth came from a thoroughly amused audience as members of Trinity Young People's Club presented the hilarious 3-act comedy, "Aunt Abby Answers An Ad."

Leading character in the play is Aunt Abby (played by Edna Forster) the capable and irrascible proprietress of the "Toonerville Tourist Camp," with a "dyed-in-the-wool old maid," who cannot abide men and continually spurns her faithful suitor, Horace Harter (Malcolm Latimer), whose frequent proposals are accompanied by a threat to set up a rival camp and run her out of business.

Abby's sentiments towards men have infected her maid of all work, Lucindy Lovejoy (Margaret Weir) but prove very annoying to her niece, Anna Ainsley (Marie Kearns) and her girl-chum, Lillian Lorraine (Margaret Preston), who are not allowed to see their boy friends and are afraid of having their love letters confiscated.

Gives Away Secrets

Then Essie Ebbersole (Phyllis Harris), a precocious little tattletale from next door, gives away the girls' secret that they receive letters from the boys, and causes a flare-up in which Lillian accuses Abby of not liking men because she could not get one herself, except the "antique" Horace Harter. A visiting tourist, Mrs. Purviance, further rouses Abby by boasting of her happiness with her "mail-order" husband, and, stung by Lillian's taunts, the man-hater answers a matrimonial ad in "Love Secrets" magazine belonging to Essie.

Poor Abby does not know she is discovered by the girls, who tell their boy friends when they arrive unexpectedly, with the result Abby's letter is hidden in the waste-basket and plans are made for the boys, with the help of identical disguises to impersonate by turns the mail-order suitor. But Abby's letter and also an extra special delivery one are safely mailed, and the resulting scenes form a tangled and uproariously funny "comedy of errors" that are added to in the third act by the appearance on the scene of the real advertiser, Horace Harkwell (Harold Rehill), bringing three greybeards into the picture. But all ends well with the tangles straightened out and Abby accepting the faithful Horace Harter.

Living-Room Setting

The entire action of the play takes place in the living room of Abby's home in her tourist camp. The parts were excellently portrayed throughout the production, which was smoothly "run off" from beginning to end, and for which great credit should be given to the direction of George Nicholls, who unfortunately went down with scarlet fever this last week. His part as Horace Harkwell, the lonely widower, was splendidly taken by Harold Rehill on such short notice.

Edna Forster put a good deal into the portrayal of Aunt Abby and with magnificent results. She was an energetic man-hater and a skittishly romantic old maid by turns and was screamingly funny and convincing as both. Margaret Weir gave a fine presentation of Lucindy Lovejoy, the maid and maker of excellent lemon pies, which, to quote Abby, are like love, "terrible sweet on top and darned sour underneath."

Cleverly-Taken Parts

Horace Harter, Abby's unwelcome but persistent suitor, and Essie Ebbersole ,the infuriating little tattletale, whose constant threat is, "And so I will," were particularly cleverly-taken parts by Malcolm Latimer and Phyllis Harris respectively, and the other characters were extremely convincing, too. The whole cast is deserving of praise for the dramatic ability with which the climax in each act is approached.

Most enjoyable music was supplied in the intermissions by Trinity Sunday School orchestra, conducted by F. Ford ,and little boxes of delicious home-made candy were sold by girls of the club. This very worthwhile production will be presented again this evening in Reid Street Hall.

Egypt Looks To Her Armaments

MORE ABOUT—

UNEMPLOYMENT

Mr. Purvis served without remuneration. Other members were A. N. McLean, Blacks Harbor, N.B.; Alfred Marois, Quebec; Tom Moore, Ottawa; Professor W. A. Mackintosh, Kingston, Ont.; Mrs. Mary Sutherland, Wells, B.C., and E. J. Young, Weyburn, Sask.

One Reservation.

The final report was signed by all with a reservation attached by Mrs. Sutherland. Mrs. Sutherland dissented from the view that relief of distress arising from unemployment should be a Federal responsibility. She saw results flowing from this policy that would place burdens on the Dominion that might better be cared for by the Provincial and local governments.

Unanimous recommendations in the report include:

The need for early action to provide low-rental housing.

Recognition of the importance of the tourist trade and creation of an advisory national tourist committee.

Recognition of the importance of agricultural rehabilitation and assistance to settlers in rural areas.

A contraction in public works programs "at this stage of recovery."

Modernization and extension of the employment service of Canada with the Federal Government being given control over existing services.

Establishing of a women's bureau in the Federal Labor Department "to undertake research in connection with the employment of women."

Mr. Purvis, in a statement to Mr. Rogers accompanying the report, noted certain questions that came within the commission's purview are also being investigated by the Rowell Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations.

"For this reason the commission has indicated in its report where certain actions would, in its view, be contingent upon such financial adjustments as may emerge from the report of the Royal Commission," he said.

The recommendations made by the commission will be the basis for a debate in the House of Commons, it was expected.

The report emphasized the importance of the registration of relief recipients "in view of the background this provides for arriving at remedial measures applicable to each different type of distress, or, where remedial action is impossible, for the care of differing groups on a permanent basis."

House Building Lags.

Revival in house building has not kept pace with the improvement in other lines of industry, the report continued. It attributed this to these causes:

1. The high cost of building a home, generally far beyond the cash resources of the would-be owner.

2. Difficulty of retrieving an investment in a house, if circumstances require the owner to sell it.

3. Uncertainty as to the continued desirability of certain neighborhoods as places to live.

4. High real estate taxes, involving possibility of loss of the whole investment.

The Tourist Trade.

Stressing the importance of the tourist trade as an employment factor, the commission recommended "that the Dominion Government set up an advisory national tourist committee, representative of all the provinces, to advise governmental and other interested bodies respecting policies and administration of such phases of the tourist trade as come within their respective jurisdiction or as may be deemed wise to be brought under the Dominion jurisdiction."

The committee would be composed of a Minister from each Provincial government, citizens interested in developing tourist resources, a representative of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureau, with one or more Federal Ministers.

For consideration of this committee, the commission commended these matters:

National tourist highways;

Retail articles attractive to tourists on which import duties should be adjusted to reduce the sale price;

Souvenirs symbolic of the products, history or art of Canada;

Stimulation of native handicrafts; restoration and marking of historic forts and other sites; sports and competitive sports projects; improvement in tourist accommodations.

Land Settlement.

Rehabilitation through land settlement was discussed. Special study was given to the problems created by Western Canada's drought. The commission's recommendations were:

Assistance to settlement to be shareable by the Dominion, the provinces or the municipalities and to be of two kinds:

(a) Assistance in establishing new settlements on unimproved lands.

(b) Assistance in re-establishing on improved lands in good localities settlers who are now located in districts unsuited for agriculture.

Public Works Programs.

Of public works programs to relieve unemployment, the commission said "experience in this and other countries has shown that such programs fall short of their objective in that they:

1. Duplicate the demand for skilled labor of which a scarcity is evident in many centres at the very time industry needs the skilled men if it is to absorb the unskilled.

2. Frequently overlook the unskilled worker.

3. Create a feeling of dependence on the government for work and even attract workers from private industry.

4. Represent the most expensive method of putting men to work, discouraging private industry through resulting taxation.

The commission directed attention "to the urgency of correlating Dominion and Provincial public works projects" to stop unnecessary waste and overlapping.

A Dominion Job.

Discussions with provincial governments have brought agreement that the employment service set-up is unsuitable to today's problems, the report said. The commission recommended that the employment service, both as to controlling principles and broad policies, be placed immediately under the direction of the Dominion.

Regional directors and regional councils, to whom certain decentralized powers would be given, would adjust the national service to peculiar local conditions.

The report commented on the "relative unattractiveness" of household occupations to young women. A voluntary reform program might be accomplished through the employment service, it was suggested.

These reforms would include standardization of the requirements for household service, standardization of the skill of workers, principles of fair dealing in employer-employee relationships, vocational guidance to direct the right girls into the service.

Some Practical Plans.

The commission recommended development locally, but on a nation-wide scale, of practicable plans suitable to employment opportunities likely to be available in each region, which will tend to increase the employability of those receiving aid, this to be done by means of:

Plans to train young people who lack experience in gainful occupations.

Plans to restore the skill, physique and morale of middle-aged worker.

The commission, looking into the causes of depressions, cities what it considers proper indicators of policies for government.

These include:

1. The importance of curbing expenditures and reducing prices in periods of rising revenues.

2. The great advantage of intelligent and informed control of credit by the Bank of Canada.

3. The need for financial and administrative preparation for relief of unemployment distress in times of readjustment.

4. The desirability of expanding public expenditures when essential readjustments have ben completed.

The commission would make it clear it believed that under the system it proposed the responsibility for relief of distress other than that arising from unemployment "as defined by the Dominion Government employment service should lie with the Province and its creature, the municipality."

Too Heavy a Burden.

Experience in other countries has shown no unemployment insurance system can carry the full burden of unemployment the report said. It can provide for casual unemployment and for unemployment incidental to the changing of jobs and shifts of industry.

Provision must be made for those who cannot qualify for an unemployment insurance plan and for workers who exhaust their benefits in such a plan through prolonged periods of idleness. Unless this is done there will be pressure of public opinion to force actuarially unsound payments on an insurance fund.

"A system of unemployment insurance ultimately necessitates a system of nationally - administered unemployment aid to care for need arising from unemployment not covered by insurance benefits," the report said. Administration of such aid should be along with unemployment insurance but the funds of the two systems should be kept separated.

"Unemployment aid should be similar to unemployment insurance in that only such persons as have been hitherto employed, as have been self-supporting, and or who are now employable, should be eligible for aid," it said. Aid would differ from insurance in that it would be proportioned to need and to contributions made to any fund. There would be no statutory right to such aid.

Work Out Assistance.

As far as possible those receiving aid should be required to work for it. Individuals should be allowed to work on publicly-financed projects until they earned, at prevailing wages, the amount given in aid.

Such categories as farmers and fishermen who are still at work but who by reason of drought, low prices or other circumstances need help, could not come within the scope of unemployment aid, the report said. Provision for such classes involved local standards of living, supplementary earnings, property ownership and other factors, and should be left to provinces and municipalities.

The Commission said:

"It should be emphasized that the limitations of the existing financial and constitutional framework and broad functions of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations in viewing suggested readjustments in the light of all relevant considerations, are fully recognized.

"The National Employment Commission feels, however, that it would be failing in its responsibilities if it did not record its opinion formed out of its own experience with problems of employment and 'relief' that since the Dominion Government has already invited the co-operation of the provinces to achieve a national system of unemployment insurance it would be in the interests of sound and economical administration that a unified and co-ordinated system of nationally administered unemployment insurance, unemployment aid and employment service be instituted.

"The commission is not judging the financial abilities of the various governments nor the source from which funds should be derived; nor has it given consideration to any compensating readjustments which might be considered a necessary part of such a system; all these matters it considers to be beyond its purview. It is, however, recommending that the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations give consideration to the views here expressed."

The commission looked at labor-saving devices and said "mechanization in both primary and secondary industries can be encouraged to the maximum where production of more or better quality goods results thereby, provided that a fair proportion of the extra economies resulting from these developments is expressed in lower selling prices or better consumer value; and for reduced hours of labor or higher wages for those involved. Still more should mechanization be encouraged where the result is the production of new types of good of better service.

Fortune Spent To Make Fools Of Practical Jokers' Friends

TORONTO, April 1. — (CP) — It has been estimated that April Fool industry in the United States grosses $500,000 a year. No figures are available of the turnover in Canada but there's no doubt it runs into money.

Most of the items of this trade, it was learned, are priced at five cents, so the gross would indicate the existence of a greater number of practical jokers than most people suspected. The demand is about the same from year to year, depressions and recessions notwithstanding. As you can see, there is hardly anything that will stop a practical joker.

Sales, it is stated, are pretty uniformly spread over the country, so there is no refuge anywhere. This should be a warning. As for the people who buy tricks and jokes to discomfit their friends, they come from all classes, right up to society. No one is safe, it seems, except a hermit.

Our biggest scare came when our informant said practical jokes were becoming subtler, more difficult to spot. This was something of a jolt. He explained that the counterfeit commodities with which April Fool jokes were perpetrated were so close to the real thing now that even a dealer could be fooled.

Most April Fool jokes and tricks depend for effect on a jack-in-the-box mechanism. At this time of year if someone says "Have a marshmallow" or "try one of my cigarettes," you had better say, "Thank you, not now," because the chances are if you lift the lid of the marshmallow tin or open the box of cigarettes something will pop out and rattle you no end.

Taxpayers' Reward

The latest joke box, which is selling nicely, our informant told us, is called "The Taxpayer's Reward." You open the box—if you are as innocent as we are—and out pops a boot. Get it?

Other popular items, perennially interesting to boys who will be boys, are cigars and pretzels made of sponge rubber, matches that won't light, hand buzzers (to shock your friend when you shake hands), dribble glasses that leak when filled with water, spoons that come apart when lifted from the table and a golf ball that goes to one side when hit. (Lots of our friends can do that without a trick ball).

If you want to be known as a "card" in your office, or if you aren't popular, anyway, get yourself a package of April Fool chewing gum. One of the slices protrudes about half an inch, and when you hold of this slice. You hold on to proffer the gum, the victim takes the package and talk about the weather. Out comes the slice, which releases a spring, which snaps on the finger and your victim jumps a foot or two, depending on his condition.

Some fun, eh?

PARIS SETTING ROYAL WELCOME FOR GEORGE VI.

PARIS, April 1 (CP). — The subject animating conversation and newspapers in Paris is the proposed visit in June of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The news of their coming was carried on all front pages with headlines bigger than those reporting internal disturbances in Germany. Academicians and writers have their names signed to articles expressing the pleasure of the French people at this unlooked for honor; radio gave it first place in the program and every French friend one meets beams and says, "I see your King is coming over to visit us." Like all Republicans, they adore royalty.

At the Opera inquiries are already being made to know if there is to be a Royal performance ,and if so, will it be open to the public? People would like to reserve seats now. It is many years since the last official British Royal visit and Parisians had the occasion for so brilliant a gala.

One is called upon to remember that up until the time of Henry VIII. trips back and forth across the Channel, especially military calls of a more or less belligerent aspect, were frequent. From time of Henry VIII. to Queen Victoria, English sovereigns studiously ignored the existence of France—in a social way. Queen Victoria was a diplomat. She called upon King Louis Philippe in 1843 and settled a delicate divergence of opinion about Egypt. In 1855 she made another trip across the Channel to see Napoleon III. and proved to be equally tactful with a king of common blood as one of Royal lineage.

Edward the Peacemaker.

But it was Edward VII. 60 years later who won the hearts of the French. Not the first time he appeared, however. His first visit was in 1903—ostensibly social; diplomatically to prepare the Entente Cordiale. When Edward stepped off the train at the Bois de Bologne station in Paris he was met by the President of the Republic and the catcalls of the crowd, not all cordial over Britain's conquest in South Africa. They shouted "Vive les Boers" and "a bas Edward" (down with Edward) while the President frantically tried to divert his attention.

That night when he entered a box at the Comedie-Francaise he was met with whistles and boos, but he paid no attention. At the intermission he walked about among the crowd, completely disarming them with his genial smile. He appeared for the review at Vincennes, the steeplechase at Langchamp, the Opera, and finally at the dinner and ball given in his honor at the Presidential palace, the Elysee. The animosity simply evaporated, and when he left, the streets and station were jammed with people shrieking enthusiastically, "Vive le Roi."

Paris bristles with monuments to King Edward. Theatres, hotels, restaurants, pensions, streets, and squares bear his name or arms. The Riviera which he popularized has many monuments to him witnessing the affection and gratitude of the people.

The next visit of English Royalty was in 1914 when King George and Queen Mary were guests in Paris in the spring. The Duke of Windsor was and is a favorite in Paris, but his only official visit to France while King was to unveil the Canadian monument at Vimy.

Papers are full of the significance of the coming visit. Much is made of the fact that the King represents not only England, but the Dominions. King George visited Paris in 1931 for the Colonial Exhibition, and his words then, "the points of friction between our two countries have long since disappeared and sincere friendship and a common ideal of justice animates our two people for the peace of the world" are quoted everywhere.

Naturally everybody is interested to know if there will be a meeting between the King and the Duke of Windsor. Officially the French Government cannot ask the Duke and Duchess to take part in the official celebrations because they are living in France as private citizens, but if the King expresses the desire, M. Lebrun, the President, may invite them as personal guests.

Cardinal at Theatre.

For the first time in the history of the Comedie Francaise the Cardinal-Archbishop of Paris honored the theatre with his presence. French Catholics are not quite sure whether this borders on the frivolous or not.

The play, however, was "Esther." Racine's interpretation of the Biblical story. It was revived to celebrate the 249th anniversary of its creation. The audience was, to say the least, surprised to discover among the spectators his Eminence Monseigneur Verdier, Cardinal-Archbishop, accompanied by a party of bishops and members of his suite, including Monseigneur Valerio Valeri, Mgr. Roland-Gosselin, Bishop of Versailles, Mgr. Sudour, Archbishop of Saint-Denis.

The play was created in 1688 at the request of Madame de Maintenon, the morganatic wife of Louis XIV., and it was given the first time at St. Cyr, a fashionable girls' school which she had founded. Louis XIV. and a number of the princes of the church were present.

The tragedy is revived in its original form with the choirs, orchestra, and music of J. B. Moreau retaining its semi-religious, semi-lyrical conception. It is having an enormous success.

Further astonishment (and delight for the Catholic Theatre Association) came when after the spectacle the Archbishop and his retinue went back-stage to congratulate the artists. Such an act is without precedent. "I intend to be less severe upon the subject of theatre," said Cardinal Verdier. "I am greatly attached to Racine and Moliere and will come to the Comedie-Francaise to see them played."

STOMACH PAIN

Overcome in Record Time

You would hardly believe it possible that stomach pains could be relieved as quickly as they are by Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Even when your stomach trouble is so severe that the pain is nearly more than you can stand, you can look confidently for help to this hospital remedy. "I was suffering severely," writes Mrs. J. R., one of many former sufferers from indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach troubles who have written us. "I decided to get Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. I took a teaspoonful and a half and was surprised how the pain faded away."

Maclean Brand Stomach Powder has been used with highly encouraging results in hospitals. Find out how greatly it can help you. But be sure you look for the signature, "Alex C. Secret Of Extracting Bitumen Supplies Key To Wealth

These drab gray hills, at lower RIGHT, may prove to be virtually paved with gold if present development of their potential wealth continues. For they consist of bitumen-laden sands along the Athabasca River below Waterways and Fort McMurray in Northern Alberta and from them is already coming oil and tar sufficient to indicate that a new source of wealth is awaiting Canadian industry. At LEFT, top, is one of the processing plants at Fort McMurray and below it the factory of the International Bitumen Co. on the Athabasca's banks. At RIGHT, a scow pulls away from the warehouse at Waterways, Alta., after loading and reloading a cargo.

MAKE COME-BACK IN MEAT-EATING

LONDON, April 1 (CP).—Decline in the total amount of meat entering world trade which had been in evidence since 1931 was apparently checked in 1936, according to the latest report on meat, just published by the Imperial Economic Committee.

Beef exports were heavier than in 1935, mutton and lamb declined and pig meat showed little change. The Empire continues to figure as a net importer of all meats but the import balance was again reduced last year, while production in the United Kingdom itself continued the upward trend of recent years.

The share of Empire counties in the beef imports of the United Kingdom increased from 10 per cent in 1930 to 23 per cent in 1936.

Production of veal and beef in Great Britain increased by more than one-and-one-half million hundredweight between 1930 and 1936 and in the latter year comprised just under one-half of total supplies, or about the same as in 1935 and a greater proportion than in any other recent year. The apparent consumption of beef per head in Great Britain, which had declined from 70 pounds to 63 pounds between 1926 and 1932, has increased annually since and returned to 70 pounds in 1936.

World production and consumption of beef in 1936 probably exceeded the previous peak reached about 1925-26; the quantity entering international trade rose to highest figure since 1931. Imports into the United Kingdom, which had increased from 73 per cent in 1930 to 89 per cent in 1935, declined very slightly last year due to a revival in German imports.

World exports of mutton and lamb were reduced further in 1936 to the smallest figure since 1920 and imports into the United Kingdom also declined although still accounting for 95 per cent of total world shipments. About 80 per cent of exports of mutton and lamb to the United Kingdom in 1936 came from Empire counties, as against 64 per cent in 1930 and the figures show the growing importance of lamb at the expense of mutton.

The year 1936 witnessed the reversal of a marked downward movement in pig-meat production, but present tendencies suggest that production in Europe in 1937-38 will decline, while in 1936 the United States will show a recovery from recent low levels.

HALL'S BRIDGE

The meeting of the Y.P.S. was held on Tuesday evening, March 29, at the home of Mrs. C. Fulton. The president, Miss D. Menzies, presided over the first part of the meeting as follows: Current events given by Donald Haines; the adoption of minutes and a few business matters. Miss Murial Bennett, worship convenor, then took charge and the following program was presented: Prayer by Miss M. Riel; scripture lesson, read by Miss Ola Stabler; topic, "Doubts," read by Mr. E. Montgomery; poem by Miss Helen Windover; and a solo by Mrs. H. A. Shearer. The meeting closed with a hymn and the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction. An enjoyable half-hour of recreation was then enjoyed by all.

MINE PROSPECTS LOOKING BRIGHT

REGINA, April 1—(CP). — Development of Saskatchewan's mines will be one of the highlights of Canada's 1938 economic history Department of Natural Resources officials believe.

Overshadowed for years by wealth from the grain fields, new attention is being given this year to mining in the province with three new metal mines nearing production stage.

Flin Flon Gold Mines Limited report production is likely this year from its property southwest of the Flin Flon mine of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, near the Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary.

In the Lake Athabaska district in the northwest corner of Saskatchewan, two mining plants approach production. Construction of the 1,000-ton capacity mill of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company has been delayed since Jan. 1, 1938 only through non-delivery of freight.

Favorable diamond drilling results have been obtained by Athona Mines Limited on claims south of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company property. Substantial buildings have been erected.

Discoveries in the central part of northern Saskatchewan suggest an influx of prospectors is likely after ice breakup.

The Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company this year will send prospecting parties into Saskatchewan's mineralized areas.

A marked advance is likely in the non-metallic division, particularly in claywares production.

"Drilling will be resumed for oil at Lloydminster, Kamsack, Simpson, Vera, Maple Creek, Riverhurst and Battleford," said officials of the government.

In southern Saskatchewan mineral production during 1937 reached new levels. Lignite coal production exceeded 1,000,000 tons and a modern briquetting plant was erected.

"Saskatchewan clays are replacing high-grade English pottery clays on the United States market and more than 15,000 tons were exported from the province in 1937," Prof. W. G. Worcester of the University of Saskatchewan said in an address.

On Tuesday evening of this week Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown entertained a number of friends at their home.

The Argonauts Tuxis Square of St. Mark's Sunday School held their regular meeting in the club rooms on Wednesday of this week. One candidate was initiated. It was decided that this organization sponsor a Dominion Marksmen Rifle Club and Elmer McInroy was appointed secretary. Donations were made to the church funds and also to the Sunday School. The next meeting will be held April 13th.

CEYLON HOLDS UP ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

COLOMBO, Ceylon, April 1 (CP)—After a stormy debate in Ceylon's legislative council further discussion was postponed on an order-in-council giving the governor special powers to enact such legislative measures as he may consider necessary.

The order-in-council, dated Buckingham Palace, Nov. 23, 1937, was accompanied by a despatch to the governor from Colonial Secretary Ormsby-Gore. The despatch said opposition on measures for the improvement of salaries of police officers was such as to nullify the governor's powers of appointment, promotion and discipline.

A motion submitted for repeal of the order-in-council said it was "calculated to curtail the powers and privileges of the (legislative) council and has undermined the confidence of the people in British justice and fair play."

After long debate an amendment was tabled declaring that the council resolved not to transmit any business until the board of ministers has succeeded in getting the new order-in-council repealed. This was substituted as a substantive motion by 24 votes to nine, 14 members declining to vote.

Then D. S. Senanayake, acting leader of the House, prevailed upon the House to agree to postponement of the debate for a month to give ministers time to negotiate.

The council agreed by 25 votes to 21.

HARTLEY C. DAVIS DIES

NEW YORK, April 1 — A.P.). — Hartley Courtland Davis, 72, a former advertising consultant who 25 years ago created the character "Addison Sims of Seattle," died yesterday. "Addison Sims," a character in a series of advertisements for a memory training course, became a byword in the continent's conversation.

MACHINE ASSISTS MODERN PIONEERS

REGINA, April 1—(CP).—A 45-horse power tractor pushing a massive steel blade treats the landscape to a close shave in the northern settlement areas of Saskatchewan, plunging through six-inch trees and scrub, and preparing the land for the settlers.

Dawn sees a puffing monster enter a crowded berth. Nightfall finds a 30-acre field shorn of trees and brush and ready to be cleared. Then it is the settler's turn to go to work hauling away the trees. But it provides him with his winter's supply of fuel.

After the land is cleared a tractor and breaker prepare the ground for seeding. The settler makes his own arrangements for breaking, but the government allows him advances to cover part of the cost.

G. J. Matte, commissioner of the northern settlers' re-establishment branch, said that after one year 15 per cent. of the families under the scheme were off relief. In two years he estimates 75 per cent. will be self-supporting. There are approximately 5,000 families under care of the branch.

Northern Settlers' Re-establishment, a relief activity kept under separate administration, has cost $906,750 since its inception in 1936.

In one months, 4,370 workers in an auto plant in Moscow, Russia, made 10,615 suggestions for increasing productivity and reducing costs.

Locate Coal Seam In Drought Areas

READLYN, Sask., April 1—(CP)—The drought in this district 75 miles southwest of Regina brought one blessing to farmers—a seam of good lignite coal to bring them warmth during the winter.

When they plowed up the bottom of a dried-out lake, uncovering bones of thousands of buffaloes in the process, they came upon solid layers of an excellent quality of lignite coal.

With the return of wet years these deposits will be unworkable and farmers are losing no time in getting out as much coal as possible before next spring.

tion, Mr. Heenan said. He had talked with the receiver and prospects seemed bright for early resumption of work. The Forestry Minister also defended his legislation permitting the Government to reallocate timber limits.

Export of pulpwood, a right granted to the Sensenbrenner-Allstead interests that had limits in northwestern Ontario was a criminal policy that could lead only to depletion of Ontario's resources, said Mr. Finlayson.

Timber limits were granted prior to last fall's provincal election, he added, but there was no advertisement for tenders. Election speakers talked of as many as 12 new mills being erected in the North, but only one had been started and it was "a lamentable failure." He referred to Lake Sulphite. He asked why Government inspectors had not told the Forestry Minister of "waste" by the concern.

Misleading Figures.

Mr. Macaulay accepted the explanation of Mr. Hepburn regarding the auditor, but insisted the auditor, by including figures of the gross debt rather than the net debt, was misleading the people. The Financial Post, Toronto weekly publication, had analyzed that statement, drawn a different conclusion and Mr. Macaulay challenged the auditor to say where that paper was wrong.

"I never interfered with the work of the Provincial Auditor," the Premier interjected.

"If you got a statement like that from the Provincial Auditor I have to blame the Provincial Auditor," said Mr. Macaulay. "I challenge the Provincial Auditor to say where the Financial Post is wrong and the difference between them is $32,000,000."

The Conservative leader said the Premier in his first budget speech in 1935 had lumped all the liabilities together and said that was the Province's financial position. Now, however, the Premier as Provincial Treasurer shows only gross debt, debenture debt and treasury bills outstanding.

G. H. Doucett (Con., Lanark) maintained the one-mill subsidy the Government paid municipalities was an unequitable grant because of the variation in municipal assessments. Instead of that subsidy, the Government would serve municipalities better by assuming a greater share of primary education costs.

The Subsidy Picture.

"Government records show that in the five years ending March 31, 1937, the Province contributed in subsidies $6,129,000 for township roads, $8,418,000 for county roads and spent $31,628,000 on highways. During this same period the Province received almost $125,000,000 in revenue which properly belongs to the highway improvement fund, thus leaving a difference between revenue and expenditure of approximately $79,000,000."

Revenue from highway traffic jumped from $15,000,000 to more than $26,000,000 in the period between 1925 and 1937. While Provincial revenue from highways increased almost 100 per cent., no increase was made in assistance given counties.

to the effect 438,000 persons, approximately half the total population of the province were receiving direct relief in the drought area.

Mr. Gardiner also obtained the House's sanction for expenditures of $25,390,000 for direct relief expenditures in the drought area in both Saskatchewan and Alberta, for the purchase of feed and fodder for livestock, expenses in marketing cattle from the area and distribution of foodstuffs in the area.

All the further supplementary estimates for the fiscal year 1937-38, totalling $36,717,688 were approved.

The House also ended a long intermitten debate on a want-of-confidence motion proposed by John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, and an amendment sponsored by Conservative leader Bennett.

Both were defeated. Mr. Blackmore asked the House to declare the government had failed adequately to use the resources of the country to abolish poverty and to avoid having Conservatives forced to vote confidence in the government or by inference endorsing Social Credit Mr. Bennett moved an amendment to declare that this neglect would not be repaired by the adoption of the policies of the Social Credit group.

A Scrambled Vote

The voting found the parties somewhat scrambled. Social Crediters joined with Liberals to vote down the Bennett amendment by a count of 168 to 43. Supporting the Conservatives were members of the C.C.F. group and a couple of independents.

On the next vote on the Blackmore motion without the amendment the Liberals had the support of the Independents but the Conservatives and the C.C.F. group supported the Social Crediters and the motion was defeated 157 to 53.

A. A. Heaps (C.C.F. Winnipeg North) told the House a dispute had been going on for some time between The Canadian Press and its teletype operator employees. He said the dispute appeared "as far from settlement as ever" and apparently the management had refused to recognize the employees' organization.

Labor Minister Rogers confirmed Mr. Heaps statement that there was a dispute and said the Labor Department hoped it could be settled "but aparently differences are not capable of being settled by direct negotiations." An application for a board of conciliation has been made by the employees and is now pending, he added.

He could assure the House it would be dealt with "entirely on its merits." The department had no intention of placing obstacles in the way of granting the application.

A Strike Likely?

In order to avoid the setting up of conciliation boards in frivolous cases, the minister said, a declaration from one of the parties to a dispute that it was reasonably likely a strike would occur was necessary before a board could be set up. Normally a strike vote was taken as evidence a strike was likely but without consulting the act and the regulations he would not say a strike vote was always required.

The minister said a board could be set up without the consent of one of the parties on the application of the other. If the dissenting party refused to nominate a member of the board the minister could do so on his own initiative. This had been done in the miners' strike at Minto, N.B., recently.

The department, however, always desired the co-operation of both parties, Mr. Rogers said. "The department believes that if and when this board is established, it will have the full co-operation of The Canadian Press with respect to the nomination of a representative of the employers concerned."

Amendments to the militia and the naval service acts were introduced by Grant MacNeil (C.C.F. Vancouver North). They are designed to increase parliamentary control over the armed forces of Canada and prevent their being employed in war outside Canada without parliamentary approval.

As the measures are proposed by a private member they must take their turn for second reading with other private members' bills in the two hours weekly alloted to private members' business. It may be some time before they advance another stage towards approval or rejection.

giants.—Many cards in the window were above the eye level.

Mrs. Thomas revealed that during her anonymous shopping tour of the city she had appeared as various "types" to test the technique of the sales staff. She had been brazen, she had been diffident and so on. She mentioned at this point that while the sales staff must do its part, the customer should also be willing to co-operate.

Winner Always Right.

"When you see a family quarrel over a garment in question before you, let the mother and daughter fight it out and then remember that whichever one wins is right," advised Dr. Thomas.

An important part of the background of any store was the sales staff and it was important how they looked.

She advised London merchants to make it easy for their salesgirls to have the best kind of clothes. Good clothes did something to a woman, and allowed them to work on a basis of equality.

He said that on the whole she found London merchandise excellent, but thought perhaps it lacked coordination in certain stores. The sales staffs on the whole were willing and hard workers. But they perhaps lacked something in scientific methods and training.

"I must say, however, that I found particularly good looking salesgirls here. I did not find one girl who was slovenly," said the speaker.

John T. Cook, Retail Merchants' Association president, was chairman. Mayor Kingsmill spoke briefly and urged that every co-operation be given to the Old Boys' Week to be held this year.

tion pledges to reduce the public debt and cost of government."

There was no debate on the sweepstakes resolution. Discussed for more than two hours Monday, debate had been adjourned by the premier until more members were present. It was placed before the House after the budget division and members clamored for an immediate vote.

Hepburn Takes A Chance

Flooded by letters and telegrams all week, many of them protesting the move, legislators desired to settle the question. Premier Hepburn and Mr. Macaulay previously had stated they wished to bring the whole thing out into the open. The premier even declared Monday he was staking his political life on the question.

There was no flurry or fuss as the Speaker called for the yeas and nays. The yeas had this by a wide margin. Then every one sat silent in their seats. Liberals who were dissenting from the Prime Minister's stand were noticeably ill at ease, and apparently hoping no registered vote would be taken. The Conservatives, however, dashed these hopes completely—rose and indicated their demand for a division. It resulted as follows:

After Tennessee Prison Break

State prison guards stand by as one of the prisoners who attempted a break from Brushy Mountain State penitentiary in Tennessee crawls up through a hole blasted from a coal mile 30 feet underground. Through the same hole 38 other convicts made their escape, 23 being recaptured. Working in the mine the prisoners blasted through almost 30 feet of solid slate to force their way out. The prisoner above is giving a demonstration on how the "break" occurred.

increase in shipments and it might be wise to consider a similar plan to-day. The British market could absorb many Canadian cattle but there had to be a steady supply, something that had been lacking in the past.

Extra Cargo Unavailable.

Boats to carry cattle had to carry other cargo in the hold, said Mr. Gardiner. Investigation made by Government representatives in Montreal showed this other cargo was not available and even if the Government had offered to subsidize the equipment of vessels for cattle shipment sufficient space could not be obtained.

For a time last year prices of cattle in the United States were high, went up to 19 cents a pound. Then no one wanted to ship to England and many cattle were shipped to the United States. Then United States prices dropped and there was again a rush to ship to England. More recently prices had revived in the United States and now there was less pressure for shipping space to the United Kingdom.

"I have no doubt if we could give an undertaking to the Old Country to supply a certain number of cattle every year the British market would take all the cattle we might want to ship," said the Minister.

But the British people wanted a steady supply of meat and could not be dependent on a source which was variable. If Canada was to ship 60,000 head one year it would have to be prepared to shop 60,000 the next year and some method of assuring continuity of supply would have to be worked out.

Gilbert Weir (Lib. Macdonald) thought the auction method of marketing cattle might be an improvement over the present commission method. The efficient marketing of Western cattle at the Dominion Ranch at Carberry, Man., last fall demonstrated the possibilities of the method. It showed that buyers would come and purchase at auction. The commission men did not buy there because they thought the prices were too high.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKET FOR CITY IS SUGGESTED TO COMMITTEE

Footbridge Over Quaker Dam Ruled Out As Too Costly

Bridge To Serve 120 Persons Daily Would Cost $3,700

Because a proposed footbridge over the Quaker Oats dam at London street, costing about $3,100 with an extra $600 for approaches, would serve only an estimated number of 120 persons, some members of the Board of Works last night suggested that the project be abandoned. City Engineer Parsons said one of the steel companies might be in a position to quote a lower cost than he had computed, and Alderman Dutton moved, seconded by Alderman Stocker, that he write these companies for any information they could offer.

A census taken this week provided the information that in a twenty-four hour period there were between seven and eight hundred crossings from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. on Wednesday 175 persons crossed the bridge from the east and 120 from the west. On Tuesday during the same period 88 persons crossed from the east and 103 from the west. On Tuesday from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. 23 persons crossed from the east and 12 from the west; and on Wednesday from 6 a.m. until 2 p.m. 71 persons crossed from the east and 125 from the west. It was believed that some persons used the bridge two or three times during the day.

"The surprising fact we learned," Mr. Parsons commented, "was that the number of Quaker Oats employees crossing the bridge was negligible, probably not more than one out of every fifty of those who were counted in the census. The employees evidently go around by Hunter street in most cases."

His estimate of $3,106 was for a footbridge on the west side of the railway bridge over the dam.

Buy Cement and Oil

The Peterborough Lumber Company's price for cement of $2.25 a barrel in car lots, two cents lower than the next lowest tender was accepted on Alderman Bradburn's motion, seconded by Mayor Hamilton. The citys' normal consumption of cement is from three to four car loads.

The Imperial Oil Comany's tender of 12 cents a gallon for asphaltic road oil was accepted on Alderman Stocker's motion, seconded by Alderman McCannan. The price includes the sales tax.

Mr. Parsons said that seven or eight tank cars were bought during the year for the laying of dust on the city's streets. It was proposed that a trial order of British-American road oil at 12 cents be placed some time during the season as a test of its quality.

10 Cent Wage Increase

The wage of teamsters who are employed by the city from time to time was increased 10 cents an hour to 80 cents on Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Stocker.

Alderman Stocker proposed that the men employed in the care of the city's parks should get at least $20 a week, but Mayor Hamilton contended that they had been receiving 40 cents an hour, working nine hours a day, and that arrangement had proved satisfactory and should not be changed. It provided overtime pay for any extra work these employees did.

Lorne Woodcock's request to the finance committee for permission to conduct a refreshment booth at the Hunter Street Tourist Camp was referred to the parks committee.

Doug Miller, Harry Tudhope and Jim Lehane, representing the lacrosse club, suggested that the city provide dressing rooms at the Townsend street "box" at an estimated cost of $500. The club spent $1,700 on the property last year, and is planning additional improvements for the coming season. Mayor Hamilton said the council could not spend public money on a private undertaking, and Alderman Dutton remarked that a grant might be made to the lacrosse association as was done last lear. The deputation's request was referred to the parks committee for consideration.

TAX CLAIM STILL AWAITS DECISION OF CITY COUNCIL

Emmett F. Sheehy's tax claim against the city council is beginning to catch up on the famous Jarndice case Dickens told about. It has been ambling along for two or three years with occasional mention but no definite action. He was a candidate for the city council in 1934 and 1935, and on each occasion received from the tax collector of that time a declaration to the general effect that his taxes were paid. On one of those occasions he paid $81 which was to be refunded to him if the tax on his office was not in arrears. Subsequently Mr. Sheehy received a bill from the tax office stating that the tax on his office over Bond's drug store was unpaid.

Some time last year Mr. Sheehy met J. R. Corkery, then city solicitor, and M. E. Shaver, city treasurer, discussed the case, and Mr. Corkery declined to assume responsibility that the document given to Mr. Sheehy by the tax collector as a condition to qualifying for aldermanic candidature was a valid receipt such as is given in the usual course of tax payments.

"But it is a declaration signed by the tax official of the city at that time," Mr. Sheehy argues.

When the later tax bill was forwarded to him he could not find any other tax receipt than the statement that had been given to him to present to the city clerk as proof that he could qualify as a candidate for the council.

Alderman Gordon said Mr. Sheehy could take a friendly action against the city for a declaration that he has a valid receipt, but before that end is reached the Legal committee will once more tackle Mr. Sheehy's problem.

CENTRAL ONTARIO OPPOSES 'SWEEPS'

Members of the Legislature from Central Ontario voted seven to three against sweepstakes when the vote was taken in the Legislature on Thursday. Of the eleven ridings in what is regarded as Central Ontario by both the Liberal and Conservative parties, Cecil G. Mercer, Liberal member for Durham, was the only one who was not present to vote. By parties the vote was three Liberals for one against; Conservatives six against.

The vote was registered as follows:

FOR.—Hon. Gordon Conant, Ontario; J. F. Kelly, Muskoka-Ontario; and Harold N. Carr, Northumberland, Liberals.

AGAINST.—A. L. Elliott, Peterborough, Liberal; Cecil G. Frost, Victoria-Haliburton; R. D. Arnott, Hastings West; H. E. Welsh, Hastings East; J. de C. Hepburn, Prince Edward-Lennox; T. A. Kidd, Kingston, and W. D. Black, Addington, Conservatives.

HUMANE SOCIETY WILL BE ASKED TO CATCH DOGS

Although the morning hours of these Spring days are lyric with the matinals of the song sparrow and the bluebirds are flashing their lovely color along country lanes, it is a distracting and melancholy season for Alderman Cotton. For some unaccountable reason the council has traditionally wished on its chairman of the finance committee the job of having dogs rounded up, and if you want to strain a lot of friendships and cause a general revision of your character in the community just give the order as finance chairman that the dogs have got to be leashed again and put in their place. And follow the order up by having it obeyed. It all means grief and argument and a whittling down of dignity and whatever esteem you may have fancied you felt in your contacts with all your friends and acquaintances who own dogs.

So, Alderman Cotton plucked up his courage last night to ask the finance committee what they intended to do about the business of dog catching. And that business is a perennial and unfailing joke for everybody in the council except the chairman of the finance committee who has to bear the brunt of the repercussions from the dog rodeo. Not the least of the acerbities you encounter, if you are thoughtless enough in January to take the finance chairmanship, is to find yourself on the receiving end of the telephone with some woman at the other end laying on the shellac for impounding her dog. And you learn, according to some of the aldermen who have been through the mill, that a man's attachment for his dog is a pale and cold emotion compared with a woman's.

Events, however, may come to "Bob" Cotton's rescue before he is road-rollered beyond self-recognition. He has to appoint a dog-catcher right off the bat at $20 a week. That means the elimination of the fee system of last year, with numerous police court cases and all kinds of trouble. And then Ted Outram, assistant city clerk suggested that the council follow the example of Oshawa, and turn the dog problem over to the Humane Society. The Oshawa society last year not only absorbed the jolts, but they wound up their campaign with $2,000 for the cit ytreasury. Following that promising line of least resistance, Alderman Gordon suggested that Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Cotton and Dutton be a committee to investigate the escapist manoeuvre so satisfactorily followed by Oshawa and consult the Peterborough Humane Society as to whether they would fall in line with this essentially humane idea.

All of which points to an absolute certainity within the limits, of course, of the uncertainties of man's mortality, that Alderman Cotton is not going to let the grass grow under his feet while he is trying with the aid of Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Dutton, to talk the Humane Society into the spirit of service to the community, including its kennelled colony, by assuming this job in which their ideals of kindness to animals will find abundant scope.

JOHN ROSBOROUGH DIES IN REGINA

REGINA, April 1—(CP). — John W. Rosborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rosborough of Smith Township, Peterborough County, died very suddenly here today in his 55th year. Mr. Rosborough, a chartered accountant, had been in apparent good health and was suddenly stricken this morning. He has been a resident of the West for 25 years. He is survived by his widow and five children also three brothers, Walter of Regina, Arthur of Edmonton and Wilbert of Smith Township near Peterborough, Ontario; and two sisters, Mrs. A. E. Naylor of San Monica and Mrs. Lorne Pinches of Piermont, Ohio.

Trinity Play

With the coming of spring comes play time for the amateurs. On Thursday night the Trinity club played "Aunt Abby Answers an Ad," to a full house. Production of the play struck a snag that cost the cast hours of extra work when the director, who had a small part to play as well, was struck down with scarlet fever only a week ago. Here are two members of the cast being made up by Charlie Huffman, who took over the play's supervision, for their appearance before the footlights. A SHORT SESSION

There was an April 1st joke at the expense of the usual habitues of police court this morning. Hardly had the regular attendants settled comfortably in their seats, glad to be out of the chilly April wind, than the session was over. There was only one case, a charge of drunkenness and it was adjourned for a week.

HE'S AN EXCEPTION

The schedule of police salaries adopted at the last meeting of the police commission discloses the fact that Chief Constable Samuel Newhall is the only civic employee who has not had the pay cut made during the low level of the depression restored. Other salaries have been elevated to their former level but the Newhall remuneration was left untouched.

PREFER VICTORIA PARK

E. F. Reid and Bert Lockington of the L.O.L. will take another look at Riverside Park before deciding whether it is more suitable for the 12th of July celebration than Victoria Park. Experience has convinced the council that the Court House lawn rates far down in accoustic, but if the Orangemen really prefer it they can have it.

MEETS THE TEST

The wedding of Traffic Officer Archie Menzies still remains the leading topic of conversation in police circles. The Examiner's photograph of the bride and groom is prominently displayed on the police bulletin board and yesterday some of the force called in the services of "Doc" Deremo to give the groom a medical test. The verdict was that the traffic officer registered a 100 per cent showing.

TWO RAODS ASSUMED.

Reeve Milby of North Monaghan has received word of the Department of Highways' approval of the assumption of two township roads by the county. One of them is the extension of Sherbrooke Street westerly from the Peterborough-Port Hope highway to the Cavan boundary, and the other is Monaghan Road south from Lansdowne Street to Cameron Street.

ADVERTISING CITY.

A half-page advertisement in Ackerman's Sportmen's Guide and one-quarter page in the special Canadian National Exhibition number of The London Weekly Times, both of them publicizing the city, were approved last night by the manufacturers' committee of the council of which Alderman Glover is chairman.

GARBAGE COLLECTION AREAS.

CITY TOO LENIENT?

"Possibly we have been a little too lenient in giving relief in cases of family separations," remarked Alderman Dutton Thursday night. Passing out relief and letting husbands wander away with no concern for their families is going to receive a little closer attention henceforth at the city hall.

ORDER 175 COPIES

An order for 175 copies of the auditor's report for the year 1937 was given to the Peterborough Printing Company by the finance committee of the council Thursday night. The price will be about the same as last year.

BANK CLEARINGS

A decided decrease on the past week over the same week a year ago and a slight dropping off in March over the same period in 1937 was reported to-day in bank clearings by the Peterborough Clearing House. For week ending Thursday the clearings totalled $495,219 and for the month $2,432,506 while the figures a year ago were $610,009 and $2,567,550.

A PATHETIC NOTE

Meetings of the committees of the council Thursday night occupied nearly four hours. Most of the first hour was spent on correspondence regarding indigent patients in various hospitals. A pathetic incident was reflected in a letter from the Children's Aid Society, — a seven-year-old boy received temporarily as a ward because the father was serving two weeks in jail. The mother dead. The charge to the city will be 75 cents a day.

MAY ATTEND LECTURES

Mayor Hamilton and Alderman Cotton were authorized by the finance committee of the council Thursday night to designate any members of the city hall staff to attend the course in public administration of the extension department of the University of Toronto. The course is for four days, and it is believed that some of the lectures may be of special interest to several of the city hall staff, especially the men of recent appointment.

TWO PHOTOGRAPHS ACCEPTED.

Fred Cripps local photographer, has two photographs hung in the fifth annual exhibit of the Canadian Salon of Photography at Hamilton. One is a portrait, the other an unusual shot of the Peterborough Lift Locks, entitled "Trent Valley Canal." This is the fourth consecutive year Fred Cripps' work has been shown at the Salon. More than 500 prints were submitted from all parts of the Dominion for showing and less than 150 of them were accepted.

How Can 10 Members Of Council Ask Chairman To Decide Tie Vote?

With ten members in the council could there be a tie vote requiring the chairman to decide it?

That's what happened Thursday night in the finance committee. W. F. Huycke, K.C., city solicitor and Bolton the collector's role will could ask for the Chemong-Ennismore bridge to be taken over by the Suburban Area Commission without incurring any liability in the event of extraordinary costs for maintaining or rebuilding the Chemong Lake bridge.

Alderman Gordon's motion recommending that the road be as-[illegible] Glover supported [illegible] was seconded by Alderman Dutton. Mayor Hamilton and Alderman was 5-5 for the members called on.

On the other side representing the idea of "don't sign anything" were Alderman Bradburn, Stocker, Wilson, McCannan and Juby.

At least that was the count at the press table, but the adermanic circle apparently believed the vote was 5-5 for the members caled on Alderman Cotton to vote and his assent went with the Gordon-Dutton motion.

$8,500 IS SOUGHT IN Y.M. CAMPAIGN

The Y.M.C.A. has launched a campaign to raise $8,500 needed to balance the Institution's annual budget.

Low membership fees are responsible for the deficit, and the records show that 50 per cent. of the total number registered as members are under 21 years of age.

Eight different craft clubs under ten volunteer leaders interested 130 boys last year, and Gordon Minty, swim instructor, gave free tuition to 260 pupils from public and separate schools, with 90 per cent. getting swimming certificates. Membership of 1,094 is the highest per capita in Canada, and the average weekly attendance is 1,500. During the year 33 different organizations used the "Y" building as a meeting centre.

When the $8,500 drive opens at the banquet on Friday night, 60 business men divided into two teams will start a canvass of the city. It is hoped the amount will be raised between April 1 and April 8.

Controller Conboy, of Toronto, has been named as guest speaker for the opening campaign banquet tonight.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH ANN STANGER

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Stanger, a resident of Peterborough for the past 65 years, died at her home at 311 Stewart street, early this (Friday) morning. She had been ill only ten days. She was 79 years of age.

Born in Norwood, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan. She was a member of St. Andrew's church here for the past sixty-five years, having a pew in the church since its inception. She was one of the church's most active workers and has been a member of all women's organizations.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. H. Miller and Mrs. J. S. Boyd, both of Peterborough, and Mrs. F. W. Moeser of Toronto, and by one sister, Mrs R. H. Duce, Hollywood, California.

The funeral will be held from the family residence at 311 Stewart street, at 2 p.m. on Monday, April 4, with Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's, assisted by Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity United church, officiating. Interment will be made at Little Lake cemetery.

MARY SOUCIE

A native of Otonabee and at one time a school teacher in that township Miss Mary Soucie, daughter of the late John Soucie and Mary Ann O'Keefe, died at her home, 76 Eaton avenue, Toronto on Wednesday night March 30, after a short illness. Miss Soucie had been a resident of Toronto for the past fifty years. She was born in Otonabee and in her youth was teacher in the Redmond School on the Keene Road.

In Toronto she was a member of the Holy Name Church and for twenty-nine years was connected with the ladies auxiliary of the Catholic Church extension. She taught school for a long period.

One sister Miss Salome Soucie of Toronto survives. Miss Adeline Dorris, Miss Evelyn Dorris and Mrs. Geo. Lynch of Peterborough are nieces and James Dorris a nephew of the deceased.

The funeral will place on Saturday April 2 from Duffus' Funeral Parlors to St. Peter's Cathedral for requiem mass and thence to St. Paul's Cemetery, Norwood for interment.

DIED

STANGER, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann—On Friday morning, April 1, 1938, at her home, 311 Stewart street, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Stanger, widow of John Stanger, in her 80th year. Funeral on Monday, April 4, 1938, from the family residence, 311 Stewart street, at 2 p.m. Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church, assisted by Rev. G. S. Easton of Trinity Church, officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Scheme Be Partly Financed By Government Subsidy Would Cost About $197,000

Plan Submitted To Special Committee Of City Council By H. G. Walker

Plans for a co-operative market partly financed by government subsidy were submitted to the special marketing committee of the council by H. G. Walker at a meeting in Alderman Gordon's office this morning.

Alderman Gordon presided as chairman, and with him were Aldermen Wilson and Glover and City Engineer Parsons.

Estimated cost of the proposed building, regarded as large enough for Peterborough's marketing business, is $197,000, and the financing prospects include a Dominion subsidy of $36,000, a provincial loan of $98,500, and $87,500 from 875 shares of 5½ per cent cumulative preferred shares of stock of $100 par value to be underwritten by private sources. From the sale of stock $62,500 would be applied to the cost of the building and $25,000 retained as working capital.

Mr. Walker told the committee that legislation is already in effect whereby the Dominion government, under the Cold Storage Act, may grant a subsidy of 30 per cent of the cost of the installation of cold storage facilities, and legislation is being contemplated by the Ontario government providing for loans for marketing purposes on the security of a first mortgage, repayable at 4 percent in twenty years. The amount of the loan in this case would be fifty per cent of the cost of the building.

No Announcement Made

Alderman Gordon pointed out that the Ontario government has made no announcement of its intention to pass during the present sessions legislation providing for marketing loans, and as this expected assistance represents a large part of the financing it would actually become essential to the project Mr. Walker outlined.

The private source subscribing to the 875 preferred shares are said to be several out of town interests who have already received conditional approval to a similar undertaking in Kitchener. The balance of the capital required for the erection of the building and the provision of working capital will be provided from private sources through the Toronto General Trusts Corporation or other trust company as agents for the group," Mr. Walker said.

Ald. Gordon objected that if the proposed scheme should be favorably regarded some understanding should guarantee employment of local men and purchases from local industries. Mr. Walker replied in the form of a question as to what Peterborough men would assume the raising of $87,500. It is understood that the investment in preferred stock would be largely in the form of electric refrigeration, elevators and other features of the building.

Site From City

Proposed plans require the city to supply a site, no other charge being made against the municipality. The capital set up includes not only the 875 shares of preferred stock, but also 10,000 shares of no par value voting stock to be owned by the city. Management of the market would be in the hands of five directors, the Mayor and two representatives of the city appointed by the council, the Warden of the county, and one nominee of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation or other trust company.

Other details of the plans are:—"The rates to be charged for space in marketing section will be set on an equitable basis by the board of directors. They will be low; probably the same as now paid for equal space n icovered markets elsewhere. The rates charged for cold storage are to be under the supervision of the Dominion Department of Agriculture as provided in the Cold Storage Act.

Users of the market are to be actual farmers, certified as such by the reeve of the township in which they reside, and any other persons permitted to operate on the market by city bylaw."

Size Of Building

The building would have a ground floor dimension of 100 feet by 220 feet with space for approximately 500 stalls. The second floor would be used for cold storage. Reinforced concrete construction would be used throughout with a plain surfaced exterior of rubbed concrete.

Mr. Walker said the estimated earning power from the market and cofi storage section was $46,050, providing 75 per cent of the 500 stalls were used on 156 market days during the year at 25 cents a day. This service would yield $13,650 and cold storage $32,400.

Fixed and operating charges: payment on government loan $7,486; dividend on 875 shares of preferred stock $4,812.50; market 10% $1,365; cold storge 16% $5,184; salaries and overhead $5,000; depreciation $9,750. Total $33,597.50, leaving a surplus of $12,452 payable to the municipality.

Attract More Farmers

Alderman Glover enquired about the effect the proposed market would have on the business of established merchants, and Mr. Walker replied that the same point had been brought up in Kitchener. A modern market would attract more farmers to the city with the consequent expenditure of more money in the local stores. One advantage to the producer would enable him to place surplus perishable goods in cold storage, instead of having to get rid of them, strawberries for example, at a sacrifice price.

Mr. Walker said the marketing scheme was modelled on similar successful co-operative enterprises in Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

The committee this morning decided to invite F. H. Dickenson of the MacDonald Engineering Company and W. H. Jamieson, both of Toronto, to come to Peterborough and discuss the project with the city council and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and Business Men's Association.

TANKER HITS TUG, 5 DIE

LE HAVRE, France, April 1 (CP-Havas)—Six persons were drowned in the port here today when the tugboat Abeille No. 10 was cut in two by the 8,000-ton Norwegian oil tanker Mosli. The 197-ton tug, which was approaching the tanker for the purpose of pulling it into port, sank in five minutes.

TORONTO TAXIMEN POSTPONE STRIKE

TORONTO, April 1 (CP) — Officials of the Toronto Taxi Drivers' Association early today postponed action on a threatened general strike of Toronto drivers until noon Saturday. The strike was scheduled to go into effect at three a.m.

Union officials said postponement was made after they received a call from Richard Barrett, president of the Taxi Owners' Association, expressing the owners' willingness to meet with the men in negotiations to be conducted by the Department of Labor.

The strike will be called at noon Saturday, union men said, unless confirmation of Barrett's agreement is received in writing before then.

The union, claiming 580 members, demands a minimu weekly wage of $12.50; a 60-hour, six-day week and condition amounting virtually to a closed shop. Owners have refused to recognize the union, claiming willingness to meet the men as individuals.

DRIVER IS GIVEN 3-YEAR TERM MUSTN'T DRIVE FOR 10 YEARS

Motorist, Lacking License, Hit Cyclist Near Southampton

CENSURED BY JUDGE

Southampton.—Sentence of three years' penal servitude, plus a ten-year driving ban, was passed by Mr. Justice Humphreys at Hampshire Assizes, on a motorist found guilty of manslaughter.

Remarking that he intended the sentence to be severe in the public interest, the judge told the driver: "Cases of conduct similar to yours are so appallingly frequent in our courts now that it has become necessary to deal with cases of this sort with severity.

"Part of the punishment to you will be the knowledge that must remain with you for many years that you have been the cause of the death of a fellow being by your criminal negligence.

"You were at the time driving without having the slightest right to be driving a motor car on the road at all. Your license had expired the previous May. The circumstances showed a complete recklessness on your part, and a total disregard for the lives and safety of other people."

The motorist was William Guy, aged twenty-seven, aircraft fitter, of Totton, near Southampton.

The case arose out of an accident at Southampton on November 8, when a cyclist was knocked down by Guy's car and killed.

MAN NEVER TOO OLD TO WED, SAYS GROOM

Would Soon Find Wife Even If 100, He Declares

Eastleigh, Hants.—"A man is never too old to marry. If I were 100 and without a wife, I would soon find one."

These were the sentiments expressed by Edmond James Dilrew of Eastleigh, when he married for the third time at the parish church.

His bride was Mrs. Alice Dunford, 58, of Southampton.

Mr. Dilrew is national secretary of the Ancient Order of Comical Fellows Friendly society.

Mr. Dilrew lost his first wife after 25 years' married life, and was married for 38 years to his second wife, who died last May.

"I've always been happily married and have never had a quarrel in my home," Mr. Dilrew said. "I look on marriage as a partnership."

WITHHELD EVIDENCE · POLICEMAN ADMITS

Girl Undergraduate Is Awarded Costs When Summons Is Dismissed

Watlington, Oxfordshire — Police were criticized for withholding evidence in a case in which Miss Desiree Stringer, an Oxford undergraduate of St. Hilda's college, was summoned for dangerous driving.

The summons was dismissed, and two guineas ($10.50) costs were awarded against the police.

It was alleged that when driving a friend's car she drove round a corner at high speed, scattering pedestrians, but one of the witnesses for the police said that a badly filled-in trench crossed the road at the corner. This made driving difficult and dangerous.

A policeman who had given evidence was asked why he did not mention this. He said he had received instructions to the contrary.

"The bench expect you to give all the evidence in your knowledge, whether it is in favor of the police or in favor of the defendant," said Lord Macclesfield, chairman of the bench.

ELECTROCUTED MAN FALLS INTO CANAL

Touches Wires Carrying 100,000 Volts While Working on Pylon

Liverpool.—A dramatic story of an electrocuted man falling 80 feet, a mass of flames, into a canal, was told at an inquest here.

John O'Neill, 28, of Warrington, while working in the employ of the Central Electricity board on a pylon that spans the Leeds and Liverpool canal at Sandhills, Liverpool, accidentally touched the wires carrying over 100,000 volts.

There was a loud report, a flash that startled people 200 yards away, and O'Neill, with his clothes ablaze, was seen spinning through the air.

He fell into the canal. A man dived in and rescued him, and it was found that he was severely burned about the face and body. He died in hospital.

COULDN'T KEEP LOG

Plymouth—When Ernest Tossell was fined for failing to keep a record of lorry journeys he pleaded that neither he nor his father, mother and three brothers could read or write.

"I cannot find anyone to keep the records," he declared. "I have been to night school to try and learn to read and write, but could not do it."

WARNS MODERN JAILS ARE TOO ATTRACTIVE

Instance Given Where Man Commits Crime for Shelter

London.—"Our prisons to-day are by no means the hells on earth represented in some quarters," said B. S. Townroe, J.P., in a Chadwick Trust lecture in London.

Care had to be taken that prison was not made too attractive, he added, otherwise a man might break the law to enjoy a warm, comfortable shelter with good food.

He knew of one man who spent the summer at country fairs and, when the nights were chillier, committed some offence to pass the winter in jail.

'GOOD COMPANIONS' AID BRITISH TRAFFIC

Road Accidents Decrease Since Modern Knights-Errand at Work

Manchester—The 520 polite young men, who are acting as modern knights-gallant on the noisy roads of Lancashire and Cheshire are already more than justifying their existence.

In the north these men are known as the "Good Companions of the Roads." In the few months they have been at work road accidents have decreased.

They have also been responsible for a more friendly spirit between road users, and a new era of co-operation between drivers and police.

There are 300 "Good Companions" in the Lancashire county area; 100 in Cheshire; 50 in Manchester; 50 in Liverpool, and 20 in Salford.

The cost of the service is borne by the government under the scheme devised by the home office and the ministry of transport.

Many of the police cars carry loud-speakers, through which advice is given to motorists, cyclists, and pedestrians, where there is heavy traffic and danger of congestion.

BAN SUNDAY DANCES

Young Folk Organized to Stay Off Streets

Oxford — Sunday evening dances for young people of Oxford have been banned by the police authorities.

For some weeks the juvenile organizations committee, of which the senior proctor, C. R. Morris, is a leading member, have organized informal social gatherings in the town hall to keep young people off the streets.

Dancing was an item in the program, and attendances averaged between eight and nine hundred.

ASK BOUNTY ON TRIPLETS

London—Application was made for the King's bounty for triplets born to Mrs. Mary Gilbert of Coburg Rd., Wood Green, N., 45-year-old wife of a coal loader. The heaviest child weighed 4 pounds 3 ounces, and the smallest 3 pounds seven ounces. Mrs. Gilbert has seven other children, the eldest 21 and the youngest three years old.

PRESENTATION TO QUEEN MARY

Held at London's first play centre, a special party was recently attended by Queen Mary when the organization's young members presented a program to mark the 40th anniversary of its founding. Master Billy Grant left the stage at the conclusion of the celebration to present a bouquet of flowers to the Queen. In one of the skits, Billy played the role of a North American cowboy, although he was born and raised in London, England.

GRAMOPHONE RECORD 'DROWNS' OUT CHOIR

Pastor Controls Music During Service by Turning Knob Under Desk

Benenden, Kent.—Rev. V. B. Yearsley, vicar of Benenden, controls his choir during church service by turning a small knob under his desk.

Beside him is a powerful radiogram which he made himself. It is connected to wires which trail across the church to a loud-speaker behind the organ pipes.

"Gramophone records are used," the vicar said as he showed the apparatus, "to augment the choir. Sometimes organ, choir, and loud-speaker blend together.

"When my choir sings badly," he continued, tinkering with valves and wires, "I 'drown' them by turning up the volume of a gramophone record —perhaps of Westminster choir.

Then the vicar showed a contraption which replaces a organ blower. An electric motor is coupled to a wheel— once the rear wheel of a bicycle — this works the pedals which, in turn, moves the organ blower handle up and down.

LIFE OF LUXURY AND GLAMOR ENDS WITH THREE-YEAR TERM

Woman Robbed Rich Benefactor of $70,000 in Four Years

KEPT UP TWO HOMES

Kingston, Eng.—Mrs. Eunice Mary Rose, 35-year-old blonde dressmaker, was "full of glamor and full of boastfulness," according to a police inspector, when she—

Bought six ears;

Paid her chauffeur an average of £15 ($75) a week for nine months;

Hired taxis from Brighton to travel the country;

Made aeroplane trips from Shoreham to Croydon with men friends;

Rented two houses at Hove, furnished them lavishly, lived in one with her so-called fiance and his parents; invited her men friends to cocktail parties at the other house.

She met all these expenses because she came into contact with Mrs. Edith Barnes, "a widow with religious scruple," of Normanton, Reigate Heath, Surrey, deceived her and robbed her of £14,000 ($70,000) in four years, leaving her practically penniless.

After all these facts about Eunice Rose had been given at Surrey assizes, she was found guilty of obtaining cheques and money by fraud from Mrs. Barnes, and sentenced by Mr. Justice Branson to three years' penal serviture.

Demure and pale, still impeccably dressed, she had no word to say when sentence was passed, and Mr. Justice Branson said: "You got help from a kindly person, and you abused the kindness of her heart to enable you to rob her."

Nor had she anything to say when her counsel suggested that she was shielding someone, and mentioned "a suspicion of blackmail."

PRAYERS TO APOLLO HELD OATH BINDING

London—When Count Potocki, described as a journalist, of Lamb's Conduit St., Bloomsbury, was asked to take the oath at Clerkenwell county court, he inquired whether he might be allowed to swear by Almighty God, but not on the Bible.

Judge Earengey: You may take the oath in any manner that is binding on your conscience.

HAD TO QUIT GOLF DOCTOR TAKES LIFE

Didn't Know What to Do With Time, Coroner Is Told

Coulsdon, Surrey.—A doctor who had been on the staff of Cane Hill mental hospital, Coulsdon, for 27 years, shot himself because he had lost interest in life since he had to give up golf.

This was told at the inquest on Dr. Frederick Morres, 57, first assistant medical officer at the hospital, and a bachelor.

Dr. Butler, of the hospital staff, said after arthritis compelled Dr. Morres to give up golf he had complained that he did not know what to do to fill in time.

RACE MAY PAY DEBTS

Reading.—When creditors of Richard H. Warden, racehorse owner and trainer, met at Reading, one of them said to the official receiver: "I believe he is partly interested in other racing stables, and if one of these horses happens to be lucky enough to win the Lincolnshire, we may get our money in full."

FIRMS THROUGHOUT WORLD SWINDLED BY LONDON MAN

Retired Solicitor Gets Two Years for Series of Frauds

CANADIANS FLEECED

London.—William Henry Billiat (Bey) Quilliam, fifty-two-year-old retired solicitor and international financier who from a small set of offices in central London operated frauds which deceived 134 firms throughout the world, was sentenced at the Old Bailey to two years' imprisonment.

The transactions were so complicated that police investigated for a year before starting the prosecution.

They took statements from Arabs, Jews, Indians, Canadians, South Africans and Americans and, to prove their case, brought witnesses from Palestine and Delhi, capital of India.

Two men described as minor figures in the case were also convicted—Charles Frederick Davies, aged fifty-one, a clerk, of Harrow, was sentenced to four months' jail, and Joseph Jacques Leoni Helou, thirty-eight-year-old merchant from lower Egypt, was sentenced to twelve months.

Among those who saw Quilliam sentenced were people who knew him in the days, when, according to his autobiography, he lived in luxury in Europe's capitals, associated with foreign rulers, dealing with millionaires—in millions.

Once he was commissioned to buy a warship for "a South American country" and took steps to buy an out-dated ship from the British navy and to re-equip it ready for battle. His price for this deal was £2,000,000 ($10,000,000).

Under the contract he had also to provide aeroplanes, guns, thousands of rifles and ammunition.

The deal was nearly completed when Scotland Yard intervened. Quilliam had an interview with Sir Basil Thomson, then head of the special branch, who told him that for his part in the deal he was liable to life imprisonment if convicted.

Quilliam was astounded to learn that the arms were to be used in a rebellion against the government of Venezuela. When he produced documents to prove his part in the affair was innocent, the incident closed without reflection on his character.

One of Billal Quilliam's friends said: "He thinks and works in the grand manner. Out of mud swamps of a desolate district in the south of France he created a luxurious resort, dug canals, floated gondolas, and held a grand carnival for the opening ceremony."

DIDN'T STEAL PEARLS HID THEM, SAYS LAD

But $1,250 Necklace Can't Be Located in Bin

Weymouth.—A 16-year-old boy, who appeared at Weymouth on remand, charged with stealing a £250 ($1,250) pearl necklace, was bound over.

The boy, it was stated, still maintained that he put the necklace in a dustbin. It had not been recovered.

When the chairman of the bench urged him to go straight, the lad replied, "I'll kiss the Bible."

He took the necklace from a bedroom at a hotel.

6 ISLANDS FOR SALE SANCTUARY FOR SEAL

Owner Giving Up Group in Mull District

Mull (Argyllshire)—Six islands form part of an estate in northwest Mull, which is for sale.

Now uninhabited, the islands are noted for their Nordic fortifications and as a sanctuary for seals and sea birds.

Dr. Fraser Darling, the Scottish naturalist, his wife and a friend spent three months on Lunga, largest of the group, last autumn to study the habits of the great seal.

The estate, Treshnish, is owned by T. MacMorran. He is selling on account of ill-health.

GIRL AWARDED $300 FOR PROMISE BREACH

Man Should Make Up His Mind, Woman Lawyer Declares

London—Before getting engaged a man should make up his mind that he really wants to marry, says Miss Jean Lang Kirkhope, London barrister. If he does not he must take the consequences.

Miss Kirkhope used her eloquence before a London sheriff's court jury on behalf of a jilted girl of 23.

Why, she asked, should the girl be made to suffer? She said to the jury: "You will appreciate the gossip that goes on about breach cases. Sometimes the girl gets more jeers than sympathy.

"Damages, therefore, should be awarded to enable a girl to hold her head high among her neighbors so that they will not think of her as some one's 'cast-off' girl."

The girl for whom Miss Kirkhope pleaded was Lydia Rose Barker of 6 Baxter Rd., Islington, N. The jury awarded her £60 ($300) damages in a breach of promise action against William Terry, 23-year-old printer, of Walthamstow, E.

Miss Kirkhope said: "The young man in this case is not well-to-do, and we do not know what he can afford to pay. But that is no reason why he should be let off lightly. Whatever sum is awarded he can only be compelled to pay what he can.

"Miss Barker loved the man, who promised to be hers for life, and it makes it more bitter to be thrown over for some other girl."

HAD SWEEP TICKETS MAN IS FINED $500

London Magistrate Imposes Sentence on Book Distributor

London.—A fine of £100 ($500) or three months' imprisonment was imposed at Thames police court on James Patrick Richards, of Stebondale street, Poplar, for having in his possession for distribution or sale 56 Irish sweepstake books for the Grand National.

It was stated that he had said: "I admit I've been doing the Irish sweepstake since it started. I give out about 150 books per sweep."

Forms in connection with the Grand National sweepstakes of 1936 and 1937, showed that Richards did business amounting to over £800 ($4,000) on each occasion.

John Harris, the magistrate: "I suppose these people are really on the same footing as the bookmakers who appear before me. There is somebody behind them who pays the fine."

TOSS OUT CANDIDATE MADE DRINK GESTURE

Would-Be Councillor's Error Was Paying in Advance

Shrewsbury.—A candidate in a town council election, who sent cheques in advance to hotels to pay for free drinks after the poll, was fined £25 ($125) and ordered to pay £75 ($350) costs, at Shrewsbury Assizes.

He was 74-year-old George Ponsonby Rogers, a member of Ludlow town council, and the verdict automatically disqualifies him for seven years from voting or holding public office.

FIRED FROM SERVICE FOR DESERTING SHIP

Marine Gets Jail, Too, for Attacking Officer

Chatham.—Marine Leonard William German, of H.M. cruiser Ajax, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment with hard labor and dismissed from the service at a naval court-martial at Chatham.

He pleaded guilty to disobeying an order given him by Cpl. Cyril George Bashford, to deserting from his ship, and attempting to strike Cmdr. Douglas Henry Everett, of the Ajax.

It was stated that after taking no notice of an order given him by Cpl. Bashford, German left the ship, and was subsequently arrested in plain clothes by Northampton police.

GERMAN IN ARMORED CAR INVADES BELGIUM AT 80 M.P.H.

General Staff, However, Figures N.C.O. May Be Daring Spy

MYSTERY IS PROBED

Brussels—Belgium's military authorities are worried about the young German N.C.O. who sped at 80 miles an hour across the French border in an armored car and told the customs officers who arrested him that he was just a deserter.

The Belgian general staff has good reason to believe that this "deserter" is, in fact, a bold and daring German patriot.

His plan, they think, was to find out whether the famous Maginot line, the steel and concrete fortifications which are described in military circles as the "lifebelt of France," could be penetrated.

Belgian military experts, concerned over the defence of their own eastern frontier, are puzzled by such facts as these:

1—How could this German N.C.O. steal an armored car from a barracks without the alarms being given at once?

2—How could he drive for 50 miles in Germany without being detected?

3—How could he pass the German frontier, which, since Hitler's purge last month, has been practically closed?

HARDY ALASKAN MEN PARTIAL TO BLONDES

Select Golden-Tressed Maidens for Places of Honor

Fairbanks, Alaska.—Gentlemen of Alaska definitely prefer blondes. And they pick them every time, whether it be for a "Miss Fairbanks" or a "Miss Anchorage," for a queen of an ice carnival or even a queen of the campus. The latest golden-tressed maiden to be singled out is Gertrude Schlotfeldt of Fairbanks, elected by the student body at the University of Alaska to be "Miss University."

GUSTAV OF SWEDEN BOTHERED BY STRIKE

Guest in Nice Hotel as Employees Walk Out

Nice.—Guests in 17 hotels in Nice had to serve themselves because of a strike.

One of the guests was 80-year-old King Gustav of Sweden.

He lunched at Monte Carlo, dined at Beaulieu and returned to the silent hotel, where his valet and the manager attended him.

Hotel employees alleged that the owners were not honoring an arbitration award.

BEER 'BLACK LIST' CLOSELY OBSERVED

South African Bartenders Closely Check Record Before Serving Customers

Capetown, S.A.—If the barman in a Capetown hotel peers intently at a customer and then consults a list behind the bar before serving the beer, it is because he does not want to be fined.

For in Capetown there is an official "black list," and the names on it comprise all sorts of people, native and European. A man on the black list cannot purchase liquor legally. He may not enter a bar or off-license, and must not have liquor in his possession. And it is an offence to serve such a person.

People get on the black list largely owing to affidavits sworn by relatives. They are blacklisted for six or twelve months. The ban, however, is only operative in the district where it is issued, so the victim may go to a neighboring town and buy all the liquor he wants.

SWEDEN PREPARES

Gothenburg, Sweden — Swedish ship building in 1937 enjoyed a record year. The total tonnage launched was 165,000 gross tons against 155,000 in 1936. Of last year's production, 96,000 tons, or 58 per cent., were for foreign owners. Orders on hand amount to about twice the tonnage launched in 1937, and are estimated to keep the yards busy until the end of 1939 or the beginning of 194[illegible].

NOT WOMAN'S RIGHT TO BOX MAN'S EARS

Even Though He Calls Her "Little Brute" on Tramcar, Court Decides

Amsterdam—Cissy van Bennekom, slim, 26-year-old dark-haired actress, is fighting a legal battle to establish a woman's right to box a man's ears.

She exercised her right on a tramcar. The man who had his ears boxed called her "a little brute" and took her to court.

There Cissy explained that she did not like the way the man approached her while getting off the tramcar; she thought he intended to be insulting.

The judge fined Cissy 10s. ($2.50). No man, he said, spoke to a woman unless she gave cause for it; and in that case she had no right to box his ears.

Cissy was indignant on the tramcar. In court, when she heard the judge's words, she was furious.

She immediately entered an appeal, says she will fight the case to the supreme court if necessary.

SAT STAGE CHARGED

Paris.—Evidence of a widespread plot to wreck French warships while in dock has been collected by the special government commission inquiring into the fire on board the 26,000-ton battleship Strasbourg.

The vessel is nearing completion at St. Nazaire.

This was the third fire to have broken out in the ship within two months.

FUTURE FUEHRERS GROOMED IN RIGID 15-YEAR COURSES

Successful Matriculants May Enter Universities After 29th Birthday

POLITICAL DEGREE

Berlin—A whole generation of "future Adolf Hitlers" is being groomed in Germany. At the age of 12, the pick of the boys of the nation are being launched on a course of training which will not end until they are 29 years old.

The first stage of training, from 12 to 18 years, will be completed at "Adolf Hitler schools" of which there will be one for each of the 32 German districts. Here the "future Fuehrers" will not be taught but unless she gave cause for it; and in must work themselves into National Socialist ideology, according to Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi labor leader.

Successful matriculants from these schools will next enter one of four "universities for Nazi leaders" for courses in rifle shooting, equestrian sports, light athletics, flying, skiing, mountain climbing, and spiritual development. Twelve weeks each year will be devoted to practical work in political offices.

The student is then released to complete his academic work or learn a profession, after which he will qualify for the degree of "political leader" by a six-months study of the German east.

Essential qualifications for entry to the schools are ability, bravery and courage. Students will be chosen by regional Nazi leaders on the recommendation of group leaders and will be supported during training by the party.

ASK $2,500,000 FUND TO ADVERTISE FRUIT

South African Industry Said Threatened With Ruin

Cape Town, S.A.—A proposal to make £500,000 ($2,500,000) available for fruit farmers for publicity purposes over a period of five years is being considered by the Union government.

The government has been informed that position of the industry is so serious it is threatened with ruin unless help is given by the state. The precise form of such help has not yet been decided, but a committee of economists is considering the matter.

Colonel Deneys Reitz, minister of agriculture, has stated the government fully realizes the grave position of the fruit farmers as result of extremely low prices in the overseas market.

AUSTRALIA'S TRADE SHOWS BIG DECLINE

Favorable Overseas Balance Reflects Fall in Export Values

Canberra, Australia — Favorable overseas trade balance for first half of the current financial year was £5,499,000 ($21,996,000). The figure for the same period last year was £12,874,000 ($51,496,000).

An adverse balance on commodity trade, excluding gold of £485,000 ($1,940,000) is shown, compared with a favorable commodity balance of £8,230,000 ($32,920,000) in December, 1936.

The drop is accounted for by an increase in imports and fall in price of exports.

Air View Of School After Tornado Struck

This aerial view shows wreckage of Highland Park school at Columbus, Kas., after it was struck by the tornado which ripped across five states, killing at least 10, injuring scores and causing extreme property damage. The school was dismissed 15 minutes before the twister hit—and thus an appalling death toll was narrowly averted.

WILL STOCK BLOOD FOR TRANSFUSIONS

NEW YORK, April 1.—(CP). — Local hospitals have installed "blood banks," a system of storing the four main types of blood for quick transfusion purposes. This storage system is the first of its kind here.

General Medical Superintendent of the Hospitals Department, Dr. F. M. Bernecker, said the storage system, in addition to saving many lives through immediate treatment, will save the city more than $200,000 yearly.

"The blood banks great value is that it makes blood available in any type and quantity immediately in emergencies," Dr. Bernecker said. "Instead of casting $40 per transfusion, blood from the bank will cost nothing if friends of patients constantly replenish the supply."

"Because of its present high cost, blood transfusion has been limited to use in specific emergencies. Unlimited quantities of blood will permit its use before and after operations in preventing post-operative shock."

Through the addition of a small amount of a harmless chemical, sodium citrate, which prevents the blood from clotting and in no way alters its value for transfusions, the storage system will keep the blood in perfect condition for a period of from two to six or more weeks.

Fruit And Vegetables Offered Are Subject To Inspection

Regulations Are Being Carefully Observed And Close Check Is Made

Dominion Fruit and Vegetable Inspector, working under appointment of the Ontario Minister of Agriculture, continue their inspection of produce grown in and transported, packed, advertised, or displayed for sale in Ontario. Under the Farm Products Grades and Sales Act of Ontario, persons in possession of produce not properly marked, graded and packed, are liable to fines imposed under the Act.

In October of last year the Dominion inspectors were given authority to enforce the regulations of this Act, as published in the Ontario Gazette of September 14, 1937. The inspectors now have jurisdiction under the Dominion Fruit, Vegetable and Honey Act in respect of import, export and interprovincial trade, and under the Ontario Farm Poducts Grades and Sales Act in respect of intraprovincial trade. Two convictions for infractions of the Ontario Act have been registered in the last few weeks in the district of Eastern Ontario.

Compulsory inspection applies to export and interprovincial shipments, while this is not necessary in the case of trade within the province, such produce is, however, subject to inspection at any time or place for compliance with the Act and regulations.

Marking Rule

Under the "marking" section of this Act, every person who packs, ships, sells, offers for sale or has in possession for sale any fruit or vegetable in a closed package shall mark the package with his initials and full surname and address (or in case of a firm or corporation with the firm or corporate name and address), a proper designation of the grade of the fruit or vegetable as named and defined in the regulations respecting grades."

"Every person who packs, ships, sells, offers for sale or has in his possession intended for sale any fruit or vegetable in an open package shall mark the package with the initials of his Christian names and his full surname and address, or in the case of a firm or corporation, with the firm name or corporate name and address."

Under packages, it is stated that "no package shall be used, transported, offered for sale or sold as a container for produce which is damaged sufficiently that the shipping or marketing quality of the produce packed therein may be injuriously affected or while is so stained, soiled, warped or otherwise deteriorated as to materially affect its soundness or appearance."

Futher provisions require that, "No Person shall offer or accept for shipment or ship, transport, offer for sale or sell any produce which is below the minimum grade for such kind of produce, except to a person engaged in the operation of an establishment or other manufacturing or processing plant."

"No person shall sell or offer for sale or have in his possession for sale any produce in any package of which the faced or shown surface falsely represents the contents in that more than ten per cent of the produce is smaller in size than, or inferior in grade to, or different in variety or maturity from such faced or shown surface."

Running A Lottery Costs $750 Fine

Winnipeg, April 1.

ANDREW McMorland, railroad employee, today paid a fine of $750 and costs, heaviest imposed here in years, when he pleaded guilty to a lottery charge in connection with the Big Four Death Relief Fund draw. Proceedings were stayed by the Crown against Alexander Martin, arrested with McMorland.

Mr. Beer's Stolen Beer Gets Two Jailed

Toronto, April 1.

TWO kegs of beer stolen from a hotel operated by Frank Beer were recovered yesterday afternoon by Plainclothesmen Scott and Dennis when they arrested three East End youths on Front Street.

The suspects were Robert Graham, 24, of Pape Avenue; Edward Sullivan, 24, of Riverdale Avenue, and Albert Hill, 25, of Frizzell Avenue. The beer was stolen a few hours before from a Danforth Avenue hotel.

BROCKVILLE CHIEF QUITS THE FORCE

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 1 (CP) —Chief of Police here for 11 years, John Brown retired last night in compliance with a resolution passed by the Police Commission Wednesday notifying him to turn all books and keys over to Constable Forsyth, who will head the force temporarily.

Formerly Constable in Peterborough, Ont., and Port Hope, Ont., Brown came here from Campbellford, Ont., and was dismissed by the commission a month ago for alleged failure to re-organize the force as ordered by the commission.

APSLEY

WEED INSPECTOR NAMED IN BURLEIGH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, April 1. — The Burleigh and Anstruther Township Council met on March 30 with all the members present.

Moved by Councillors Tucker and Bolton that the clerk order one copy of the revised statutes of Ontario, 1937. Carried.

Moved by Councillors Bolton and Booth that the assessor be authorized to search title at Registry Office of all debatable lots, the municipality to pay cost of same. Carried.

William McCauley was appointed weed inspector at a salary of $10.00, on motion of Councillors Bolton and Kilborn.

It was decided that the municipality would become a member of the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Booth.

Councillors Bolton and Booth moved that all arrears of taxes against the following lots be removed from the county treasurer's books: Lot 8, Concession 10, South Burleigh; Lots 14, 16, 17, Concession 18, Anstruther; Lot 16, Concession 16, Lot 10, Concession 9, Lot 16, Concession 11, Anstruther. Carried.

On motion of Councillors Tucker and Booth no action will be taken with regard to an account for fighting fire on Lot 16, Concession 16, Anstruther, sent in by the Department of Lands and Forests, as no official of the Township Council had been notified of the fire, and they therefore disclaimed liability.

Moved by Councillors Kilborn and Bolton that the Reeve investigate the cutting of timber on Lot 9, Concession 8.

A request from the Women's Institute for the use of the Town Hall for library purposes was granted on motion of Councillors Kilborn and Bolton, with the provision that the erection of book shelves be under the clerk's supervision. The Women's Institute also asked that the Council erect signs at the entrances into the village specifying a reduced speed limit. It was pointed out that the Council passed a by-law last year reducing the speed limit in the village to 25 miles per hour, but no word had been received from the Department approving the by-law. The matter will be taken up by the clerk with the authorities.

On motion of Councillors Bolton and Kilborn a grant of $25 was made to the Red Cross Hospital.

Moved by Councillors Booth and Bolton that the Reeve be authorized to look after a relief case in the city of Peterborough. Carried.

On motion of Councillors Booth and Bolton the collectors' roll will be extended until next meeting of the Council.

Bylaws abolishing statute labor, arranging for the expenditure of $3.500 under the Highways Improvement Act, and appointing Frank McFadden road superintendent received their first and second reading, and will be sent to the Department for approval.

The following accounts were paid on motion of Councillors Tucker and Booth:

H. Young and Josiah Young, $3.50 each for snow shovelling; H. Windsor, $6.00, snow ploughing; R. Brown $4.50, search at Registry Office, etc.; Peterborough Printing Company, $16.47, printing auditors' reports; Dr. Carl Harris, salary M.O.H. for three months, $37.50; A. M. Windsor, treasurer, salary three months, $15.00; membership Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities, $5.00; Municipal World, dog tags, etc., $6.98; Peterborough Printing Company, tax bills, $8.10; treasurer Red Cross Hospital, $25.00; H. Tucker, councillor's salary meetings, $6.00; J. Booth, councillor, meetings and mileage, $8.80; N. Bolton, councillor, meetings and mileage, $9.40; Roy Brown, salary meetings, $6.00; G. Keep your liver healthy and you'll feel great every morning. When you wake up feeling "rotten" your liver is out of order. Your liver clears the blood of poisons, separates the nourishing part of your food from the waste. Supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands—gives out bile, the body's laxative, helps stomach, kidneys and intestines to work properly. A mere bowel movement isn't enough. "Fruit-a-tives" made from fruits and herbs, will strengthen and build up your liver like nothing else will. You'll be amazed how well you are every morning. Try Fruit-a-tives. All druggists.

Travelling advertisements for modern merchandise . . . that's what they call these big, smartly streamlined Chevrolet trucks, and that's why you see so many of them carrying the names and trade marks of Canada's great commercial organizations throughout the land. But there are other important reasons why big business thinks highly of Chevrolet trucks. For example: (1) There's the record of this famous line, in dependability, adaptability, and economy. (2) Its consistent price leadership. (3) The unequalled and nation-wide parts and service facilities it makes available to owners. (4) The unusually wide range of factory-built-or-installed bodies it offers in every capacity class.

CHAPTER 50

WHEN Sergeant Beef finished at last, Mgr. Smith got up to leave us. He bore no grudge against the sergeant, and like the good sportsman he was enjoyed being wrong at last. "You see," he explained, "by the very nature of things it has never been possible for me to be mistaken before. And while there is error in a man, a man may be in error."

He beamed round on us and picked up his parasol.

"Where are you off to?" I asked.

"I must go to the vicarage," he said, and scuttled out. We heard that it was several hours before he returned from the gloomy vicarage, but what had passed in that time it was not our business to inquire.

When he had left the room I was seized by yet another doubt. "But, sergeant," I said, "there is one matter which you haven't explained. And now I come to think of it, it is a serious one. What about the vicar? You cannot account for all his movements so simply. They were really most peculiar. First of all his questions to me. Then all that time when he said he was out in the orchard, then his being by the side of the corps so soon after the murder, and finally his saying that he had sinned. What does it all mean? Was he really mad?"

"Mad? No!" said Sergeant Beef. "'E isn't mad. That was just 'is way of trying to get out of it—defend 'imself, like."

"Defend himself? Then he did have something to do with the murder?"

"No. Not that. But 'aven't you really guessed, sir, what it was 'e was ashamed of? It's as plain as the nose on your face."

"I can't say I have—unless it was this interfering puritanism of his."

"No, not that. Though it's all part of it. You see the kind of man he was? Always seeing something wrong when there was nothing to see. Well, you know what goes with that, don't you? A nasty mind, that's what! No wonder 'e was ashamed of 'imself. When he left here that night, where did he go? Out in the orchard, pacing up and down? Not 'e! 'E knew Mrs. Thurston would be going to bed in a minute, and p'raps didn't trouble to draw the blinds. And out 'e goes in the garden to see whether 'e could see anything 'e shouldn't. That's how 'e came to 'ear the screams, and that's why he was guilty afterwards."

"In fact," drawled Lord Simmon, "as Monsignor Smith would say if he were here, he was not only a Nosey Parker, but a Peeping Tom."

The public bar of the Red Lion was brightly lit, and the beer glowed happily in glass tankards. Enid, behind the bar, watched placidly, while Sergeant Beef and I attempted with zeal to win a game of darts against Fellowes and Miles.

"Police versus criminals, you might call it," Enid had observed when we started, with pointed reference to my efforts of some months ago to assist investigation of the Thurston mystery and not without recollection of how we had disinterred the unfortunate past history of the two men who were now our opponents. "Criminals," in this contest anyway, were on top, for the inn keeper, whom I had met as chauffeur, and his brother-in-law were, as Beef put it, "mustard at this game."

Williams had been hanged a week before. When his trial had come on, the amount of evidence which had been collected against him was enormous, and I suspected that the prosecution had received some kindly hints from two at least of the investigators who had been concerned in the case. They had rallied good-naturedly to the sergeant, who had never lost his admiration for them. He was wont to wonder even today at their inventiveness, and envy their remarkable gifts.

Our game was finishing. Fellowes needed 157 to get out. Jealously I watched him throw his three darts, treble 19, treble 20, double top—a brilliant bit of work. And when the well-merited beer was brought, we returned, not unnaturally, to talk of the tragedy which had first brought us together.

"It was a funny business, altogeth," commented Fellowes, not, as you will gather, imputing any comedy to the affair, but referring to the elements of unexpectedness which had been noticeable in it.

"Wasn't it?" said Enid, as she crunched potato crisps. "You could have knocked me down with a feather when I knew it was that Williams who had done it. I never liked him, though. Too 'igh and mighty for anyone, he was. But you wouldn't have thought he was the one to do a person in, would you? Still, there you are. You never know, as they say."

"I reckon it was a blarsted shame, though," said Miles. "To go and cut her throat like that. She'd never done anyone any harm."

"Ah," said Fellowes, "but when they gets in a mess over money they'll do anything. How much was it he'd had off of 'er? Six thousand quid, wasn't it? And nothing to show for it. He had to do something to keep her quiet."

"I dare say, but that's no reason to go on like 'e did," observed Enid. "And then shooting the doctor as well. No one can't say he didn't deserve all he got. What was it the lawyer called him? A 'homicidal opportunist', wasn't it? He certainly took his opportunity all right."

"That's what made it so hard to get him," I ventured to observe. I have learned not to give my opinion too freely of late.

"Yes. And what I say now," said Enid, "is what I've said all along—it was really clever of Sergeant Beef to have spotted him. Really clever, it was!"

"Hear, hear!" said Fellowes.

The sergeant sucked his mustache. "Oh, I don't know," he said, "there was nothink in it. I just went 'a'ead and carried out ordin'ry instructions. 'Ad a look at the bloodstains, and the rest followed. That's where it came in. I told those gentlemen 'oo came down to investigate right from the start that it was too simple a case for them."

"Unfortunately, sergeant, they have been told that so many times by the police that they couldn't be expected to believe you."

"Well, but it was. What was there to it? Them inkstains, and then the stains on Williams' shirt, and that bit of pillow case wot 'e'd been burning. That's all it was, and the rest came on top of it as easy as wink. It wasn't the case for them at all. I mean, wot they want is something complicated. This was just a police business — not even worth bringing Scotland Yard down. There's things of this sort 'appening every day. And all you 'ave to do is carry the ordin'ry instructions, take your notes, and there you are. Only I wish to gawd I could make up a story like they can. Genius I call that. Well, wot about another game of darts?"

For Saturday, April 2

A day of surprises and sudden undertakings is revealed by the planetary operations. There may be unexpected developments causing a change of residence, interests or an unforeseen journey. An element of secrecy or collusion seems at the bottom of this. It would be advisable to be influenced by elders, who have the best welfare at heart, but be wary as to deceit or treacheries from doubtful associates. Go slow on secret agreements.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for the advent of sudden and surprising developments in the affairs. These may call for unplanned change, travel, new interests and associations. Confer with elders when making decisions and be alert to schemes, pitfalls and secret agreements with others.

A child born on this day may have a sound mind and good judgment but may be disposed to accomplish matters by easy methods, intrigue and secret understandings, rather than open standards of ethics.

DOROTHY DIX

Health, Beauty and Independence Are All Valuable to a Woman, but Love and Serenity Are Her Best Assets When She Approaches the End of Life.

WHAT does a woman need to make her happy? If you could, what gifts would you ask her Good Fairy to drop into your baby girl's cradle?

Mrs. Loraine L. Blair, founder and executive of the Women's Finance Forum, which is trying to teach women how to take care of the money their fathers and husbands leave them when they die, has promulgated a formula for feminine happiness. She says: "Between the ages of 1 and 14 a girl is entitled to good health and good parents. Between the ages of 14 and 40 she should have good looks. Between the ages of 40 and 60 she should have personality and charm. After 60 she must have cash."

This is a fine recipe, so far as it goes, for attaining earthly bliss, but it doesn't go far enough. It leaves out the most important things. Certainly to have had good health and good parents as a child; to be pulchritudinous and attractive in middle life and to have enough money when she is old to be considered "eccentric" instead of "cranky" are all blessing that would smooth the pathway through life for any woman. But not all of these put together would make any woman happy if she lacked love, if she lacked a compelling interest in life, and if she lacked a philosophy of life.

Some of the most fretful and discontented women in the world have abounding health; some of the most peevish and dissatisfied are beauties, and many of the most miserable have everything that money can buy. So if I were devising a formula for happiness for women I should add several ingredients to the cake that Mrs. Blair stirs up for them.

Like her, between the ages of 1 and 14, I should give them a peaceful home in which to grow up and not only loving, but sensible, parents who would teach them common sense ,self-control, integrity and courage, without which no woman can shape her life and be mistress of her fate. Fool mothers who spoil their daughters are responsible for nine-tenths of the disasters that befall women.

From 14 to 20 I should give a girl a father and mother who had intelligence enough to understand adolescence and to sympathize with it. I would give her all the pretty clothes and the good times that I could possibly afford, because that is the playtime of life, the only time in her whole existence that she will be carefree and have no responsibilities and when she will have an unslaked appetite for pleasure. I would want her to have this glamour period to remember.

And I would let her play around with the boys, but I would hold her safe in the middle of the road and not let her wander off into the primrose paths that look so alluring and are so dangerous. I would keep her from marrying until she was old enough and had judgment enough to pick out a husband that she would want to keep instead of return to the bargain counter within a year.

From 20 to 40 I would give her love and a husband who was her heart's desire, children, a home and work that would keep her hands so busy she would not have time to think about whether she was happy or not. I would fill her days with vital interests; with making her family happy and comfortable; with keeping up with her husband and helping him make his fortune; with developing her own abilities; with civic work; with making friends, with all the thousand activities that round out the modern woman's life and make it exciting and worth while.

And after 60 I should give the woman certainly enough money on which to be independent of her children, and to insure her being treated with courtesy and consideration by all with whom she came in contact. But beyond that I would give her serenity of spirit and contentment and the ability to accept age and its limitations without fighting against them.

I would make her kiss her youth and beauty good-by without frantically and vainly struggling to hold them. I would make her let her children go about their own business of life with her blessing instead of her tears. And so, as she came to the end, she would be filled with peace and happiness as is one who looks back upon a busy, useful day; whose best hour, after all, is the twilight.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

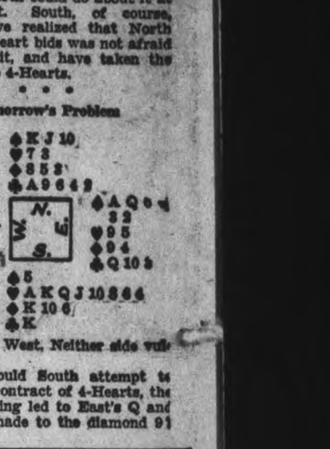
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T INTERFERE

WHEN YOUR opponents have terrifically misbid a hand and are about to wind up with a contract in the worst suit they could pick, don't interfere. Let them stay in trouble. A double will only scare them out of a suit you like into one they will like. Ordinarily a good rule is not to make a penalty double of one suit unless you would welcome a chance to double anything they may thereafter select as a refuge.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the North-South pair did some fancy bidding that landed them in a disastrous contract. North started off with 1-Heart, East passed, South bid 1-Spade, West passed and North jumped to 3-Hearts. South rebid his spades at the three level and North called 4-Clubs. East doubled this, and South decided to pass this up to North for his decision. North now decided to show his void in diamonds with a bid of four, and South being unable to read North's holdings, decided with his fit in that suit, his lack of heart support and North's failure to support spades, to let the contract stay there.

West, who was delighted with this contract, cagily passed, figuring that if he doubled North would go back to his hearts. There was nothing North could do about it at that point. South, of course, should have realized that North with two heart bids was not afraid of that suit, and have taken the contract to 4-Hearts.

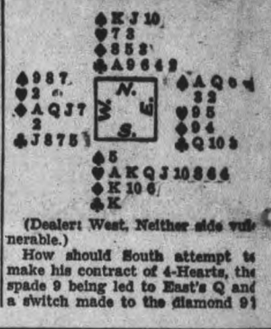
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South attempt to make his contract of 4-Hearts, the spade 9 being led to East's Q and a switch made to the diamond 9?

BEDTIME STORY

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S APRIL FOOL

Baby Bunty hopped on tiptoes out to the kitchen of the hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"Hello, Baby Bunty!" greeted Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who was getting breakfast ready.

"Good morning, Nurse Jane," said the orphan rabbit. "Which is the sugar bowl Unkie Wig uses?" she asked.

"Oh, so you are going to help me serve breakfast, are you, Bunty, by filling Uncle Wiggily's sugar bowl?" said Nurse Jane. "That's sweet of you."

"Yes, Nurse Jane, but the sugar isn't going to be sweet!" said Bunty with a laugh. "I'm going to fill the bowl with salt for Unkie Wig! Ho! Ho! Ho!"

"Why, the idea!" squeaked Nurse Jane. "You wouldn't do that to Mr. Longears, would you?"

Fooling

"Of course I would. This is April Fool's Day!" laughed Bunty. I'm going to play tricks on him. So are all the bunnies. Quick, give me the sugar bowl and I'll fill it full of salt."

This Baby Bunty did, though Nurse Jane shook her head and whisked her long tail and said no good would come of it.

No sooner har Baby Bunty put the salt in the place where the sugar should be than Buster, a boy rabbit, came hopping out to the kitchen.

"Good morning, Nurse Jane," he said. "Please may I squeeze some lemons?"

"Why do you want to squeeze lemons?" asked the muskrat lady.

"I'm going to put lemon juice instead of orange juice in my daddy's glass," said Buster. "I'll April Fool him!"

"Oh, so that's the idea, is it?" asked Nurse Jane. "Well, here are the lemons. Don't squirt any juice in your eyes when you squeeze them." But that's just what Buster did and he hawled a little, but Nurse Jane thought it served him right for wanting to play an April Fool trick on Uncle Wiggily.

Soon out came hopping Jingle and Jangle. They looked mysterious and they whispered mysteriously:

"Quick. Nurse Jane, give us some flour and water."

"Are you going to make a cake?" asked Miss Fizzy Wuzzy.

"No," said Jingle, "we are going to April Fool daddy."

"We are going to mix up some flour and water and he will think it is milk for his coffee!" giggled Jangle.

Here He Comes

"Oh, such rabbit twins!" sighed Nurse Jane, but she set out the flour and water for them.

'Good morning, everybody!' greeted Uncle Wiggily when he hopped to the breakfast table. "Now don't tell me!" he went on. "I know this is April Fool's day, so don't try any tricks. I'll find them out."

He sat down and started to drink the orange juice.

"Oh, that is very sweet, lovely orange juice," he said.

Buster almost fell off his chair. What had happened?

"Now for some coffee with milk and sugar in," said Mr. Longears. Nurse Jane poured the coffee. Uncle Wiggily put in the milk and then three spoonsfull from the sugar bowl. Baby Bunty giggled; so did Jingle and Jangle. But when Uncle Wiggily drank his coffee he said:

"That's the best cup of coffee I've had in a long while. Ha! Ha! April Fool!" he shouted. "Nurse Jane fooled you. She took Bunty's salt out of the bowl and put sugar back in. She threw away Buster's lemon juice and gave me real orange juice and she gave me real milk after she threw away the flour and water Jingle and Jangle mixed. April Fool, my dears! Ha! Ha!"

And if Swiss cheese doesn't try to talk Italian to the macaroni, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's spinning wheel.

Looking Back On This Date

APRIL 1

Seventy years ago today, on April 1, 1863, the people of Canada secured the first fruits in the postal services of the harvest of Confederation. Up to that time the old reciprocal service between Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, entered into a decade before, had been continued; but on that April 1 the charge of five cents per half ounce on letters was lowered to three cents per half ounce.

Fred Williams

The officials had expected quite a loss of revenue. The opposite was the case. Although the reduction was one of 40 per cent, the revenue by 1871 was $55,000 greater than the amount collected three years before. The postal rate of three cents per half ounce was continued until 1889 when the public benefit was doubled, the three-cent rate then carrying letters of one ounce.

Ten years later, under the management of William Mulock, the postmaster-general was able to announce a rate of two cents per ounce. In 1870 the rates to the United State and to Great Britain were reduced from ten to six cents and from 12½ to 6 cents, respectively, per half ounce; but in 1878 a convention between Canada and the United States reduced the postal rates between the two countries to the domestic rate. When Canada was admitted to the postal union in 1878 postage on letters to all countries within the union was reduced to five cents. Then, on Christmas Day, 1898, Mr. Mulock made his great empire gesture and gave imperial penny postage to the whole empire, which, of course, also meant the lowering of the domestic rate.

But the war came and revenue was needed, so that one cent war tax was imposed. This was abolished in 1926, but re-imposed to meet the economic crises by the Bennett government soon after it went into office.

One sequel to the growth of Canada has been the expansion of the postal service. In 1867 when the post-office department was organized, there were 3,777 post-offices in the new Dominion. At the end of the fiscal year, 1935-36, there were over 12,000, some of which were being served by air. Now this year, 70 years after the first step forward, we are to have a Dominion-wide aerial mail service. Canadians have reason to be proud of their post-office.

COL. W. W. FOSTER.

from England to make his home on the Pacific coast. He served as gunner in the British Columbia Battery, Canadian Artillery, and as sergeant in the Fifth Regiment Canadian Artillery.

In 1901, he was promoted to lieutenant in the 6th Duke of Connaughts Own Rifles, and at the outbreak of the war was a captain in the Victoria Squadron Horse, enlisting in Victoria. In the first two years of the war, he served as captain in the 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles and captain in the staff, 3rd Canadian Division.

In 1916 he was promoted to major and second in command of the 2nd C.M.R., and the following year he was appointed lieutenant-colonel commanding the 52nd Battalion. At the close of the war, he was commander of the 9th Infantry Brigade.

Col. Foster's rise through the ranks and ability as a leader of men is told in the following straightforward account taken from the copies of the official Gazette orders:

Nov. 8, 1916: D.S.O.: Major W. W. Foster— When ordered to take Mouquet Farm detailed two patrols and took a third one personally under heavy fire and obtained valuable information. Later by skilful disposition and leadership he carried out a successful attack. He displayed the greatest courage and initiative throughout. September 15, 1916.

October 26, 1917: First bar to the D.S.O.: Lt.-Col. W. W. Foster, when in command of a support battalion, personally led two companies of his unit in a flanking attack upon concrete strong points containing hostile machine guns. Owing to his personal example of gallantry, and effective leadership, the whole objective was gained and a critical situation was retrieved.

August 15, 1918: Second bar to the D.S.O.: Lt.-Col. W. W. Foster, 52nd Battalion; for conspicuous gallantry and splendid leadership. After two unsuccessful attacks on a village he made a daring reconnaissance to locate the enemy machine guns; and then organizing two raiding parties, he led one of them personally while the other made a feint attack on a flank. With his own party he accounted for several machine guns, and the eventual result of his third attack was the capture of the village, the complete defeat of an enemy counter-attack and the capture of 250 prisoners by his battalion. He rendered most valuable service.

November, 1917: Belgian Croix de Guerre: For personal gallantry in the attack upon Bellevue Spur, and skill and example shown in repulsing the counter attacks launched by the enemy.

September 2, 1918: French Croix de Guerre, Gold Star. As the result of a clever manoeuvre undertaken upon his own initiative he on the fifteenth of August, 1918, personally leading his men, captured the Village of Damery, and on the right assisted French troops in the encircling of the Bois de Zee, and finally completely repulsed a violent counter-attack made by three enemy battalions and took numerous prisoners.

Mentioned in Despatches.

Col. Foster was mentioned in despatches five times for his gallant conduct, in addition to the awards.

Born in England and educated at Wycliffe College, Stonehame, Eng., Col. Foster's business career started with the construction and engineering departments of the Canadian Pacific Railway in British Columbia in 1895. In 1909 he was appointed deputy minister of public works, British Columbia, remaining in that post until 1913, when he was elected M.L.A. in British Columbia Legislature for the Islands.

On his return from overseas in 1919, when he brought back the 52nd Battalion, he remained at Ottawa for a year, later moving to Vancouver again to enter the engineering industry. On January 1, 1935, he was called to take over the leadership of the Vancouver police force, accepting the position of chief constable.

Col. Foster's active interest in mountain regions, perhaps aroused to some extent through his work in the Rockies in early days, has brought him high honor in international organizations. He is past president and life member of the Alpine Club of Canada; life member of the Alpine Club of England and the American Alpine club; past president and member of the council of the Canadian aUtional Parks association and past president and honorary member of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies. He served as chairman of the international committee of the Mount Logan expedition and was recorder and assistant leader of the expedition.

PLANE SMASH KILLS 3

Melting Ice Leaves Bridge A Twisted Wreck

Once a tourist attraction, the famous Falls View Bridge, at Niagara Falls, presents a rather pitiable spectacle as it lays broken and bent, in the Niagara River. The huge ice jam, which brought doom to the bridge, is swiftly melting under the spring sun and when this picture was taken, at the end of March, was nearly

SELWYN

On Wednesday afternoon of this week, a number of the ladies of the United church Women's Association gathered at the hall for a pot-luck dinner and to quilt two quilts owned by Mrs. Herbert McIlmoyl. The patterns were the Old Dutch Girl and Single Irish Chain. There were seventeen ladies present and they partook of a bountiful dinner and before leaving for home in the evening the table was again set, and the remainder of the food eaten. Two weeks previous to this, there was another quilting party held at the hall in the same way. Also to quilt two quilts for Mrs. McIlmoyl.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bradburn, who have taken up residence on the farm formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Preston near the Selwyn cheese factory, have had the Hydro installed and are also renovating the house on both the interior and exterior, much to the improvement of its appearance. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Mortimer and daughter, Dorothy, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradburn, are also residing with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Whitmore and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ralph, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wilson on Friday evening last.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Forsythe and daughter, Joyce, of Omemee, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle over the past week-end.

BACK FROM DEATH POPE MARKS LIFE WITH MIND VIGOR

VATICAN CITY, April 1(CP).—Pope Pius XI today is a stooped man, 80 years old, with face darkly ashen, steps slow and gestures pathetically weak.

There still is fire in his eyes and his lips brave the ire of the great dictators, but the real wonder is that he sits at all on the throne of St. Peter. On Sunday, Feb. 6, the pontifical flag fleg over the Vatican buildings to mark the 16th anniversary of his accession.

His Holiness plans at Easter to preside at the Pascal high mass in St. Peter's. Preparations for canonization will require him to preside over dozens of meetings of the Congregation of Rites. Perhaps he will give final aproval for the beatification of his favorite predecessor, Pope Pius X, whose name he took and whose case for sainthood already has been filed.

With mental vigor surprising in one who had been so ill, the Pope has tackled three major problems—the spread of bolshevism, the development of neopaganism in Germany and the suppression of Catholic activities by the Nazi government, and the religious situation in Spain.

Only a year ago Pope Pius lay near death in his sparsely-furnished apartment at the Vatican palace. Newspapers in every land carried bulletins on his condition, and the world's 350,000,000 Catholics awaited late reports anxiously.

Pope Pius himself has thanked God for his almost miraculous recovery and has asked all Catholics to join in the thanks. His personal physician, Dr. Aminta Milani, says the Pope's own will to live was the best medicine. Although His Holiness was unafraid of death and said repeatedly he had resigned himself to God, he declared also that he was determined to live and work for the church.

A complication of ailments endangered the Pope — principally hardening of the arteries, weakness of the heart, asthma and varicose veins which partially paralyzed his legs for many weeks. To meet these threats, Dr. Milani ordered rest. For the hardening of the arteries, he admitted there was no cure. But he sought to curb its progress. This illness, together with an uncertain heart condition, still afflicts the Pope and his full work program often makes Dr. Milani look askance.

Audiences Restricted

The Pope's life, though busy, is somewhat different from the program he followed before his illness. At least half of his time will be spent at Castelgandolfo, his summer retreat 17 miles from Rome. He passed six months there last year and has decided to do the same this year—from May 1 to Oct. 31.

Audiences both there and in the Vatican City will be more restricted than before. The Pope will receive in general audience only two days a week instead of daily, and will ascend St. Peter's throne and talk to the throngs, instead of passing from person to person so that they may kiss his Fishermen's Ring.

He arises early, has a frugal breakfast while his two secretaries read him dispatches, receives Vatican officials, then noted visitors privately, and receives 500 to 1,500 persons in public audience on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

On other days, he receives a large group of religious pilgrims anyway. About 2 o'clock or later he has lunch, then rests a while or takes a drive or even a brief walk in the gardens. Late in the afternoon he dictates correspondence or works on papal documents. He eats sparingly again about 10 p.m., then reads himself to sleep.

CENTRETON

Messrs. Clarence Jones and Willie Honeywell have gone to their usual summer work on the boat at Montreal.

Mr. James Honeywell, Castleton, spent Tuesday afternoon with Mr. Rice Honeywell.

Three of the villagers celebrated birthdays on April 1, namely Audry Prettie, J. R. Brewster and Rev. H. W. Bromwich.

Mrs. Roy Merriam and Ira, Carmel, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. John Merriam.

Miss Delia Pratt has returned after spending a few days with Misses Helen Minor and Miriam Pratt of Cobourg.

The Y.P.S. held a citizenship meeting on Tuesday night with Miss Mabel Webb in charge. The topic was taken by Mrs. Brown. A good program was given and recreation period enjoyed.

HASTINGS

The United midweek Lenten services were held on Wednesday evening at St. George's Anglican church when a large representation from St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Trinity United, and St. George's churches were present. The guest speaker was the Rev. R. Caldwell of Marmora Anglican church who preached a most inspiring sermon choosing his text from Colossians 2-6, "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him."

Rev. F. W. Newell read the Scripture lesson from the 55th Chapter of Isaiah, and the Rev. D. K. Perrie led in prayer. Rev. William Stocks conducted the service.

The service next Wednesday evening will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at 8 p.m. Following the Lenten service the three choirs held choir practice under the direction of the Rev. William Stocks for the singing of the anthems and hymns to be sung at the united Good Friday service.

The April meeting of the Hastings Women's Institute will be held in the Council Chambers on Tuesday, April 5th. The roll call will be "From what country did your ancestors come." The topic on "The flag, its origin and uses," will be given by Mrs. J. A. Brown. Mrs. P. Baker will give a demonstration on Lesson 11, storage, clothes closets, storage suitable to fabric, seasonable storage and moth control.

Miss Rose Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Smith, left on Friday morning as a nurse-in-training in the Parry Sound Hospital.

N. Y. BILL BANNING PUBLIC SERVICES TO REDS IS KILLED

ALBANY, April 1 — (AP). — A bill designed to close New York's public service to Communists or any person advocating forceful overthrow of the United States' government died to-day at the hands of Governor Lehman on the ground it would "stimulate, not curb" Communism.

The measure would "abridge freedom of speech, freedom of thought, freedom of the press, and freedom of assembly," he said.

Vetoing it "in the interests of safeguarding American democracy," the Democratic chief executive said "these are inherent rights guaranteed by the constitution of the State and nation to every citizen."

"Were we of this great liberal State to approve this bill to-day," he added in the memorandum accompanying his veto, "we might find to-morrow that we had opened flood gates of oppressive legislation in the nation against religious, racial, labor and other minority groups."

In disapproving the measure Governor Lehman acted without calling a public hearing, his usual course on highly controversial legislation.

Thousands of petitions for and against the bill have flooded his desk, with Catholic individuals and societies the chief proponents. Several civic organizations, including the New York League of Women Voters, asked the veto.

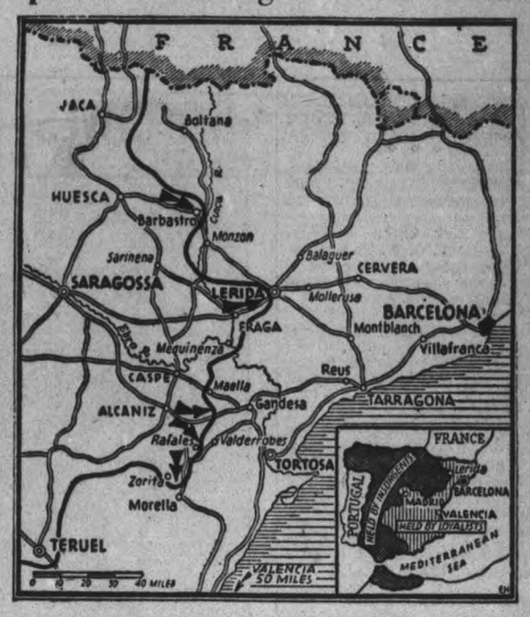
BURMA ASKS FOR DEFENCE IN AIR

RANGOON, April 1.—(CP-Reuters)—A resolution calling for the establishment of an air force for the protection of Burma has been carried unanimously in the senate. The resolution pointed out the seriousness of air raids in the Sino-Japaneses conflict and in Spain and recommended the government to find ways and means for the speedy establishment of a small air force.

This, it suggested, should consist of a number of fighting airplanes based on a suitable town in Upper Burma which could be used "for training sons of the soil in aerial protection and civil aviation, and for the protection of Burma in an emergency."

W. Booth-Gravely, counsellor to the governor, said the government sympathized with the ideal and principal of the resolution. An officer had been sent to England to study the question and his report would be considered by the government. Every endeavor would be made to afford Burma protection by the Royal Air Force.

Spanish Rebels Begin Drive On Lerida



A smashing drive against Lerida, key city in the insurgent drive on Barcelona, has been ordered by the rebel command, and map shows the present situation of the loyalist and rebel forces in war-torn Spain. Barbastro only recently fell to General Franco's troops and a drive for the sea is in full force in three places toward the southern end of the battle line. Strong fortifications have been thrown up by the government forces on the path to Lerida and all bridges in the Lerida-Barbastro sector have been destroyed.

ART AT AUCTION

NEW YORK—(CP). — The late Mortimer Schiff's private art collection, one of the largest in America, will be sold at auction.

FROM SEED TIME to meal time

Financing the food supply of the nation is a continuous process of extending bank credit.

Farmers borrow at the Bank to buy seed and sow it; to cultivate the grain and reap it; they borrow on security of the harvest.

Grain dealers borrow on security of warehouse receipts over grain in the elevators.

Grain processors borrow against grain supplies, pending the sale of flour, feed, prepared cereals and food specialties.

Shippers of grain and grain products borrow to finance shipments at home and abroad.

Wholesalers and retailers borrow to keep the grain foods moving to their customers, and so on—until the tables of millions are reached, in Canada and overseas.

Making loans to such borrowers is one feature of our modern, experienced banking service—the outcome of 120 years' successful operation.

Prince of Wales H. & S.
Music Appreciation Night.

Prince of Wales Home and School Association regular meeting took the form of a "Music Appreciation Night" last evening at the school, when a delightful program was presented of numbers from the Spring Musical Festival.

Mrs. H. Darling, the president, was in the chair, opening the meeting with the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison, followed by the routine reports, and correspondence, as follows: Secretary's report, Mrs. F. J. Frapé, treasurer, Mrs. W. Casey; Home and School Council, Mrs. Gertley; Local Council of Women, Mrs. Frape. An interesting and colorful report was given by Mrs. P. Black, covering the demonstration of the new curriculum at the Normal School meeting.

It was decided to elect officers for the coming year by nominations, with a committee appointed in Mrs. G. Worboy, convenor, Mrs. R. Gus[illegible]ney and T. Allen. It was also decided that children's fashions in suits [illegible]anges as [illegible] exact replicas of the older misses you'll [illegible] tend by motor th[illegible] School Convention [illegible] Toronto in Eas[illegible]

Black Materials Are Favored

There is something dramatic as well as romantic about the new formal frocks, especially those for dancing. Their wide skirts, the trimmings that are used, and the slim waists and decolletages are all different and interesting. Black stuffs are favorites for these graceful gowns which suggest but do not exactly copy those of Civil war days when women were addicted to hoops.

Zorina, lovely ballerina star of a new screen musical in technicolor, LEFT, is wearing an exquisite gown also in black tulle. It has a tightly shirred bodice and very wide skirt. The skirt has a wide band of intricately designed sequins in reds, greens, yellows and blues.

A black chiffon dinner dress is worn by Andrea Leeds, cinema actress, right, the chiffon being posed over a mint green slip. This dress, too, has a very full skirt, the hipline in both dresses being kept slim. The hem of this skirt has a cartridge pleated ruffle, and sleeves are short and puffed, and the waistline suggests an empire.

The very latest and most sophisticated dress silhouette is from Robert Piquet, Paris designer. He uses a very bloused silhouette for a turquoise blue satin faconne jacket with tiny polka dots worn over a slim cyclamen jersey evening dress.

Twilight Recital
In St. John's Church.

In response to requests for more, Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus., organist and choirmaster of St. John's Church, will give a second twilight organ recital in the church on Sunday afternoon. A week or two ago Mr. Mann introduced this pleasant innovation with a delightfully diversified program, which will be equalled with as interesting a selection on Sunday. It is interesting to note also that the program will contain one of Mr. Mann's own compositions, "Grand Choeur in G."

The following numbers will be played, commencing at 4.15: 1 Andante Maestoso and Allegro (Concerto No. 2) (G. F. Handel); 2 Intermezzo (Cavalleria Rusticana) (P. Mascagni); 3 Chorale—Es ist das Heil uns kommen her (J. P. Kirberger); 4 Grand Choeur in G (F. G. Mann); 5 Ave Maria (Arcadelt-Liszt); 6 Caprice in B flat (H. Botting).

Casual Style

You must be smart in your dress, but the very tops in smartness is to achieve, with the chic, a casual air.

The ideal is achieved by the dress pictured, a model by an American designer, by the way, Bettina Casabona.

The skirt of this dress is navy sheer and the blouse of marquisette is done in a scroll of navy sheer also, put on in panels. The blouse has the full back credited to the Gibson Girl period.

A patent leather bag with a monogram and a smart little rolled brimmed straw hat complete the picture.

Revisit Island Where They Met

KINGSTON, Jamaica, April 1. — (CP).— Viscount and Viscountess Greenwood visited Jamaica on a Caribbean cruise—returning to the island where they met for the first time 31 years ago.

In 1907, Viscountess Greenwood, then Miss Marjorie Spencer, was staying with her uncle and aunt as the guests of the late Sir John Pringle. The viscount, plain Mr. Hamar Greenwood, and Liberal member of parliament for York, was paying his first visit to this British colony. The meeting resulted in their marriage four years later.

"You can quite see how we have looked forward to this visit," the Viscount said on his arrival. "We have been looking forward with great emotion to coming back here."

Viscount Greenwood attended the University of Toronto, served eight years in the Canadian Militia and, during the war, served with the British Expeditionary Force. He was deputy-assistant-adjutant-general on Lord Derby's staff at the War Office in 1916 and three years later was appointed under-secretary of state for home affairs. He was Secretary of the Overseas Trade Department for a year, and chief secretary for Ireland in 1920-22.

Viscountess Greenwood was created a Companion of the Order of the British Empire in 1920, and a Dame of the Order two years later.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Bolero Omnipresent, Pleated Skirt Chic

Spring Apparel Is Not Very Different From Last Year's, But Many Subtle Changes, Trimming Make Mode Look New and Fresh

Schiaparelli's leather colored wool dress and bolero, braid collar, cuffs.

By LISBETH

SIMPLE TAILORED suits trimmed with patterned stitching, etons and boleros are stressed by Paris dressmakers. There are also many redingotes.

Possibly this is not so very different than last season at this time. But there is a decided difference in the suits and frocks of yesteryear and today.

Coats and jackets this season contrast with the dresses with which they are worn, and this, too, is similar to last year. But the jackets and coats, too, show a great difference from last year's models.

A number of designers are showing coats that have backs suggesting Watteau plaits, and there are novel jackets with rippled basques.

Piquet shows streamline suits without collar or revers. His jackets are longer and his skirts shorter.

The two interesting costumes pictured here were taken with a background of a bridge at the New York World's Fair, which will open in 1939, and is in process of construction.

Fond of Boleros

Schiaparelli is one of the "bolero hounds," if she will not misunderstand my use of that term. "All is boleros," says this dynamic and highly original person.

Her newest version of this style is shown here, in a leather colored novelty wool dress and tiny flaring jacket just reaching the bust. It has braid collar and cuffs, and buttons to match the dress.

Molyneux loves an all-round pleated skirt, and his model is shown in a printed sli kdress with semi - fitted beige - colored wool jacket wrist-length, with buttons down the front.

Suits retain their popularity this season without too much change, and worn with gay or dainty lingerie blouses. Some few houses revive coat frocks.

Many thin wools are used, and quantities of prints. Also much linen in a great variety of weaves, and considerable satin.

Colored pipings, some braiding, decorative pockets, novel buttons and much ribbon are the trimmings used.

One designer binds light colored tailored suits with darker velvet, even around the armholes. This dressmaker also bands black coats with color striped black velvet ribbon.

Another features leather, especially in new cocktail suits.

A practical suit for the business or college girl is the so-called "four-way" costume. It consists of a two-piece dress, a tweed suit to be worn with the blouse; the dark blouse and tweed skirt, and a tweed topcoat. Imagine how many changes you can ring on that sort of a suit!

Centreton Woman Is 82 Years Old

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTRETON, April 1.—Mrs. William Score, one of the pioneer ladies in the village, celebrated her 82nd birthday on Thursday. She was born in Cornwall, England, and came with her parents to this village when a child. She has always led an active life and has been in fair health. About a week ago she took a cold which developed into bronchitis, and she is now confined to her home and was unable to attend the birthday supper in her honor with her old friends of past days.

She has been a member of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid since they first organized and has been in regular attendance at Sunday School and Church services. She is the last surviving member of her family; all have lived to attain a ripe old age.

Mrs. Score was married about 65 years ago to the late Mr. Score who passed away about three years ago in his 85th year. They celebrated their diamond wedding at the home of their daughter, in Cobourg, about five years ago at Christmas time. Mrs. Score since then has been spending the summer at her home here and the winter at her daughter's in Cobourg. She has three daughters living, Mrs. W. S. Sherwin and Mrs. F. MacIntosh, Cobourg, and Mrs. C. Turk of the village, with whom she came to make her home about two weeks ago. She also has three grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Infinitely charming are the miniature suits for the little miss, with their boxy coats and trim skirts. Made in the new high shades, the children's fashions in suits and coats are often almost exact replicas of the older misses or women's.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The longer I live, the more deeply I am convinced that that which makes the difference between one man and another — between the weak and the strong, the powerful and the insignificant—is energy. Invincible determination, a purpose once formed and then death or victory.—Powell Buxton.

Dear Friends:

This is the opinion of a learned man, and later in this article I shall give you a learned woman's opinion. I am in full agreement with this. And it is not always energy of the body, but energy of the mind which makes the difference.

You can be awfully busy, yet get nowhere. You can expend a vast amount of time and trouble, yet never get the results you crave. And it is all in the way you think. If your thoughts are chaotic, if you will not take time to find out what you want from life, what else will you have but a lot of muddled thinking?

And that sort of thinking can give you much unnecessary work, it can keep you busy, but like a treadmill, it doesn't take you places nor enable you to do things. Some people give more time and thought to a new hat or a new dress or suit, than they ever do to what they truly need to make them happy or successful.

And this is what Mary Cholmondeley says: (Pronounced Chumley) "Every year I live I am more convinced that the waste of life lies in the love we have not given, the powers we have not used, the selfish prudence that will risk nothing, and which, shirking pain, misses happiness as well. No one ever yet was the poorer in the long run for having once in a lifetime "let out all the length of the reins."

Many times in my life have I let out all the length of the reins. I knew I was taking a chance, but I never had cause to regret it. Just now all the length is out, and I know it will be as it was before, I shall win what I am reaching out for.

Why save your powers? How do you know you will be able to use them at a later day? Why be afraid to risk something to gain something much better? Every day of your are alert, you are not the loser. Even in crossing the street you risk some life you must take risks, but if you one shooting around a corner and knocking you down.

But are you going to let that keep you in the house? Then why not risk trying to exchange what you have for what you want? It's fun. It's exhilarating. it keeps you alert and vigorous and on your toes. It gives you a younger viewpoint.

Our Lord said—"What would ye that I would do unto you?" He did not say "here you must take this." He wanted us to have some of the things that would make us happy. Then why be afraid, for many of the things you fear dissolve into thin air when you walk right up to them and dare them to do their worst.

I know, for I have dared much. Sometimes the old fear comes back and I have to fight it all over again. Fear that I will lose, fear of the criticism of my friends, fear that I may be laughed at for expecting so much.

But there is another fear that pushes me on and makes me try again, and that is the fear that I will not get what I want in life if I do not dare to reach out by my wishes and my prayers. But you must have energy of the mind, determination, knowledge of what you do want, otherwise you are like a ship without a rudder.

You cannot lie back and expect it to fall into your lap. The big thing is in knowing what you are heading for, determine to get it, and it will amaze you how doors will open here, opportunities occur there, and all things seem aiming to help you. If I had not experienced these things I could not be sure, and I am sure.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

DIES IN CAR CRASH

NEWCASTLE, Ont., April 1 (C. P)—Harvey Thompson of Newtonville was killed last night when thrown from a car which overturned. J. Butler, driver of car, escaped with a shaking up as his car righted itself after turning over.

The accident occurred when Elliott attempted to pass a truck going in the same direction.

"Introduction to Loveliness"
A NEW BOX BY Elizabeth Arden

In one delightfully compact box, Elizabeth Arden presents her "Introduction to Loveliness"—the essential Arden preparations which form the basis of true facial beauty with a daily routine of Cleansing, Toning, Soothing.

ARDENA CLEANSING CREAM—feathery-light and sweet-smelling, instantly penetrates the pores and cleanses them thoroughly.

ARDENA SKINTONIC patted on after removing all cream with Cleansing Tissues, will tone your skin and make it clear and sparkling.

ORANGE SKIN CREAM—to be used at night, keeps the skin wonderfully soft and smooth in texture and prevents dryness.

VELVA CREAM MASK—a splendid quick treatment which magically erases lines, refines pores and makes the contour firm.

HAND-O-TONIK—Elizabeth Arden's newest discovery for keeping the hands and arms exquisitely soft, white and smooth.

SPECIAL RACHEL ILLUSION POWDER—a glorious powder—clinging and exclusively scented... the finest money can buy.

MAT VICTOIRE ROUGE—a rich brilliant shade to delightfully accent any complexion.

VERT-BLEU EYE SHA-DO—the final alluring touch to your make-up.

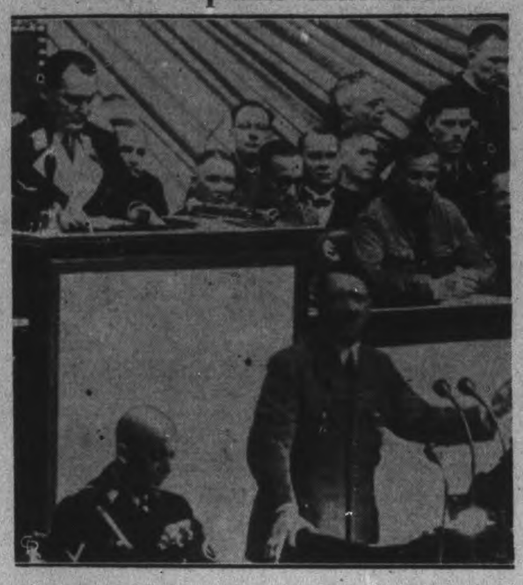
Hitler Explains Annexation



No self-conscious nation could any longer look on complacently while 6,500,000 kinfolk at its very doors were being denied their most elementary rights, Reichsfuehrer Adolph Hitler told the last Reichstag of the old Germany as he gave them his reasons for the annexation of Austria. He is shown making his address in the Kroll Opera House, Berlin. Seated behifid and to the RIGHT of the German dictator is his right hand man, Field Marshal Goering.

ALBERTA URGED TO SET UP BANK TRY OUT THEORIES

OTTAWA, April 1. — (CP). — The House of Commons expected to-day to hear Social Credit Leader John Blackmore elaborate on a statement he issued last night in connection with Finance Minister Dunning's invitation to the Social Crediters to establish their own bank in Alberta to test their monetary theories.

Mr. Blackmore in his statement last night said an Alberta bank alone would be unlikely to help in the introducton of social credit. However, he added, if Mr. Dunning offered the power to give an Alberta bank the right the Bank of Canada has to take $1 of gold and create against it $4 of Bank of Canada bills then there would be conferring upon Alberta real monetary power with great possibilities.

Mr. Dunning made the suggestion yesterday speaking on a Social Credit want-of-confidence motion passed by Mr. Blackmore. When debate resumes to-day, the Social Credit leader will have the floor and it was forecast the House will reach a vote.

The Finance Minister sad he made the suggestion seriously because he felt it should now be evident to the Social Crediters that they could not convince Parliament of the efficacy of their theories. Rather than pursue disruptive tactics and attempt to force their views on the rest of Canada they should take advantage of the provisions of the Bank Act which permitted any group of citizens to obtain a bank charter.

Mr. Blackmorne had said the chartered banks of Canada could abolish poverty, said Mr. Dunning. He had stated if he were in office he would call in the banks and tell them to do so and if they said they could not he would give them experts to show them how.

A Glorious Example?

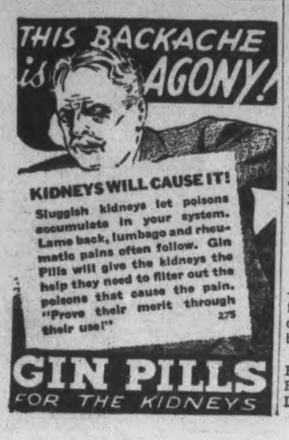
If a bank was established under Social Credit control they could call in their own bankers and they could staff the bank with all the experts they wished. They would have all the privileges as well as all the responsibilities of the present chartered banks.

If their theories were sound they would have the glory of showing the way to the rest of Canada and the whole civilized world.

The Social Credit motion to resolve the House into committee of Supply and declare the Government had neglected to use the resources of the country for the purpose of abolishing poverty.

Conservative Leader Bennett moved an amendment to the amendment adding a clause to the effect that the policies of the Social Credit group were no remedy for this neglect. It failed to meet with the approval of J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, who failed in an attempt to have it ruled out of order.

The C.C.F. group would have to vote for the Bennett amendment, Mr. Woodsworth said, although they did not wish to support the Conservatives. He was precluded by the rules from moving another amendment but had he not been he would have liked to move one declaring that the policies of the Conservative Party were no adequate remedy.



Dental Work Done Free Of Charge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 1.—An aged Hastings resident had the experience yesterday of having a tooth extracted by a sympathetic inebriate using his fingers only. The old gentleman with the painful molar enquired at a local garage where the dentists offices were, when the innebriate offered to do the job free of charge. The tooth was pulled by the strong finger process and the old gentleman was none the worse for his experience.

OTTAWA EXPERTS AIDING CONNELL ON ENSOL PUZZLE

OTTAWAA, April 1. — (CP). — The Department of National Health said to-day three of its experts were working in the Kingston, Ont., laboratory of Dr. Hendry Connell, seeking to help him trace source of virulence in ensol serum which was believed to have killed six women in Orlando, Fla.

The department said the men had been sent to co-operate with Dr. McConnell and a representative of the United States Department of Health to trace source of the virulence, a task it expected would be difficult.

An official explained they exercised no control over free distribution of ensol, a serum Dr. Connell developed as a cancer remedy, and which the department does not recognize as a remedy nor license for sale.

Ensol, he said, had a world-wide distribution and, as far as the department knew, it had given rise to no such incident as that reported yesterday from Orlando where six cancer sufferers died of tetanus (lockjaw) after receiving injections of the serum.

Sale Is Prohibited

The department, an official said, "prohibits the sale of any cancer remedy in Canada," as it has been shown no bona fide remedy.

When a proven remedy is found, he said, the department will grant it a licence.

The official said men from the department had inspected Dr. Connell's laboratory procedure and found nothing in it which should give rise to tetanus. He called attention to the fact that the same batch of ensol which was believed to have caused the fatal infections had been used on other patients without ill results.

Meanwhile, he continued, the United States had prohibited further distribution of ensol and was seeking names of all physicians who had obtained supplies with a view to having them avoid its use until the investigation at Orlando is concluded.

The health department official here said all batches of ensol were tested before they left Dr. Connell's laboratory for virulence and potency. The test consists of an injection of five cubic centimetres of the serum into a guinea pig.

In Kingston are Dr. Norman MacL. Harris, chief of the department's laboratory of hygiene; H. M. Lancaster, chief Dominion analyst, and James Gibbard of the hygiene laboratory.

CLERGY EVENLY SPLIT ON SWEEPS SAYS HEPBURN

Chemong Bridge Is Badly Wrecked By Ice And Storm

Railings Are Completely Wiped Away; Apron on Ennsimore Side Is Broken

Shorn of its protective railings by wind driven ice that had been pounding it from both east and west since the middle of the week, the floating bridge across Chemong Lake was reduced this morning to a narrow icy strip over open water with its apron at the Ennismore end broken, and a further siege of buffeting likely to be renewed before the present threat of more extensive damage passes.

On the Smith side a pile of posts, braces and railings picked up along the shore east of the bridge was all that remained of the railings except a remnant two hundred feet more or less near the Ennismore approach.

The distinctive features of the bridge for at least two thirds of its span were obliterated this morning, and the ice-coated floating highway seemed only a detail of the chill lake scene. Open water extends on each side of the bridge to the main expanse of ice, that has still to go out, for a space of one to two hundreds yards, and Seymour Forsythe, caretaker, remarked to the Examiner that anything could happen when the main body of ice breaks up.

Ice Broke Up Slowly.

Describing the stripping of the railings Mr. Forsythe said: "The ice didn't break up all at once. You can see that only a narrow lane of it is gone on each side of the bridge. The wind has been blowing nearly all around the compass most of the week, first on one side and then on the other, just short hard blows, you might say, shearing off the east railing first and then Thursday ripping off the west side. Then it blew up more

CHEMONG BRIDGE

Chemong Bridge Wrecked

This is all that remains of the Floating Bridge across Lake Chemong. Ice that has been pounding it from both east and west since the middle of the week at last succeeded in demolishing a large part of the famous bridge last night as is seen in these pictures, taken this morning and rushed to an early press. At LEFT is a view of the bridge with all railings washed way. Taken from the Smith end the picture shows the extent of the damage there, while on the Ennismore end the apron was broken. At RIGHT the camera shows how the huge blocks of ice have buffetted and finally broken the railing. Workmen in punts are busy picking up the floating debris out of the water, and hauling it to the end of the bridge.

OTTAWA RELIEVED AS ENSOL CLEARED BUT SEALS SUPPLY

OTTAWA, April 2—(CP)—Health department officials were relieved last night when it was learned the cancer treatment serum from which nine persons were believed to have died in Orlando, Fla., was not ensol from the Kingston, Ont., laboratory of Dr. Hendry Connell.

Three department officials who were sent to Kingston several days ago to investigate the manufacture and distribution of ensol, returned to Ottawa yesterday.

Dr. W. Harrison, of the National Health Institute of Washington, a division of the United States Public Health Service, who was sent to Kingston at the same time as the Dominion government experts, left yesterday for Philadelphia. It was believed the serum used in Orlando was manufactured in Philadelphia from the Connell formula.

Meanwhile the department here will complete its tests of ensol, Health Minister Power said. Samples of ensol were brought back from Kingston.

Mr. Power said Dr. Connell had given the department experts every assistance while they were making their inquiries in his laboratory.

Distribution Is Halted

In the course of a statement to the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Power described the steps taken by the Hendry-Connell Foundation to prevent further use of ensol by those to whom it had been distributed, pending investigation.

"In the meanwhile," Mr. Power said, "all further distribution of ensol has ceased pending results of laboratory examination and autopsies."

In an interview last night, Mr. Power said:

"Our department officials consulted with Dr. Connell in Kingston when the deaths were reported and almost immediately he prohibited further distribution of ensol and got in touch with persons whom he knew were using it as a treatment."

In his statement to the House of Commons Mr. Power said his department, under existing legislation, "is unable to supervise or control free distribution, as it has no authority therefor; nor has it authority to interfere with the making up of and preparation of prescriptions by laboratories, by physicians themselves, or by hospitals."

"An application was made by the Hendry-Connell Research Foundation to manufacture and sell ensol in 1935," he added. "A licence was refused and the applicant was advised that a licence would not be granted until such time as a pronouncement had been made upon the efficacy of ensol by a responsible medical authority."

MICHIGAN STRIKE AFFECTS POWER FOR 1,174 TOWNS

JACKSON, Mich., April 2 (A.P.).—Electric and gas service continued without interruption to-day despite seizure of six strategic plants of the Consumers' Power Company in Southern Michigan by workers belonging to a Committee for Industrial Organization union.

The employees, members of the Utility Workers' Organizing Committee, peaceably took possession of the plants last night after negotiations with the management for renewal of their contract were terminated.

The company said the union demands included upward revision of wages; the union said it sought assurance there would be no reduction in wages.

Governor Frank Murphy, concluding a Florida vacation, upon being notified of the situation, called representatives of the company and the U.W.O.C. to meet with him in eDtroit on Monday.

No Inconvenience Planned

"We will conduct the strike," said Albert Stonkus, U.W.O.C. national director, "so that the consuming public will suffer no inconvenience, at least until every means has been exhausted to settle it."

The union took over a hydro-electric plant at Milwaukee, near Saginaw; two electric sub-stations in Flint and one in Bay City, and gas plants at Flint and Lansing.

No disorder was reported. Non-union employees and foremen were requested to leave and complied. A few pickets were on duty outside some of the seized plants. Only union members were permitted to enter the plants.

The power company is a subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, and has nearly 6,000 employees. It provides electricity for 358 communities and gas for 126 in Southern Michigan, all outside of the Detroit area. Many of the state's principal industries are dependent upon it for power.

More Damages Loom In Fatal Mishaps

House Moves to Extend Mortgagors' Relief Act; Hunter Urges Title of M.P., instead of M.L.A. or M.P.P.

TORONTO, April 2—(CP)—Ontario legislators today awaited an announcement from Attorney-General Conant whether he would introduce a bill providing for extension of damage provisions of the Fatal Accidents Act. Following a request from Conservative Leader Leopold Macaulay, he will give his answer Monday.

Observers saw indications in a debate yesterday over an accident bill that the government might widen the amount of damages recoverable from fatal accidents. The Attorney-General said then the House "might reasonably and intelligently consider an extension of the basis of damages in fatal accidents."

Mr. Conant's comment came in the debate on the bill of Ian Strachan (Lib., Toronto St. George) amending the Trustee Act. Designed to counteract a decision of the House of Lords last year it provides no damages for death or loss of expectancy of life of a deceased person might be recovered from his estate. The bill was given second reading and referred to legal bills committee.

"I am prepared to support this bill if the Attorney-General will include in his Statute Law Amendment Act (an "omnibus" bill

STABBER NABBED AFTER KILLING ONE WOUNDING SECOND

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 2.—(CP).—One man was killed and another critically wounded in a stabbing affray at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Saba here last night. John Baby was arrested later by police of West Fort William after an extensive search and police said he would be charged with murder.

Nick Micululk, 27, was killed and Mike Boyko, about 40, was critically injured.

The fracas occurred during an alleged drinking session in the home occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Saba. The three men were in the house at the time along with the married couple and an argument arose.

Baby, who originally came from Toronto, is alleged to have picked up a butcher knife from the table and attacked the two men, fleeing the house.

Boyko was removed to hospital with a gaping wound in his left side. Michuluk, stabbed in the right chest, died within a few minutes.

Police Net Is Spread.

When police were summoned Baby had made his escape and the alarm was sent out over the Lakehead district, including Port Arthur and railway police and Provincial officers. All were given a fair description of the wanted man, and the description was also broadcast.

Baby was described as a Ukrainian, about 32 years of age, five feet six inches tall, brown hair. He was arrested early this morning on Superior Street by Chief C. E. Watkins, Inspector George Marr and Sergeant C. Palmer.

After he was wounded Boyko staggered to his own home nearby, and the first alarm was given when Mrs. Boyko ran out shouting for help. Police and medical officers were summoned quickly and Boyko was removed to hospital. A crowd of several hundred persons had assembled in front of the house where the stabbing occurred.

Police were confronted with the body of Michuluk lying in a huge pool of blood in the kitchen of the house. Staba, said to be in a very drunken condition, was removed to the police station.

VICTORY AT COAST BUT 21 MILES OFF FOR REBEL ARMY

HENDAYE, France, April 2 (A.P.). — General Franco's Foreign Legion to-day had but 21 miles of rolling hills to pass before planting its red and gold banners on the seacoast and splitting government Spain.

The Legiannaire Corps, once commanded by Franco in Morocco and brought to the mainland to lead his insurrection, occupied Valderrobres and pressed on toward Tortosa on the Ebro River coast delta.

Northward, General Juan Yague's Moorish Corps occupied the outskirts of Lerida, the historic citadel that guards Barcelona, 80 miles away. Although insurgents claimed government militia had evacuated Lerida, despatches from observers with the Barcelona army said eight shock units of seasoned, well-trained troops occupied the city.

The government garrison, it was said, was commanded by the confident young officer who defended Teruel. The city's 50,000 inhabitants had fled and insurgents said many buildings were in flames.

Government officers claimed a counter-attack yesterday had pushed the insurgents back six miles to the south-west on Alcarraz. Insurgent advices asserted General Yague's men merely were waiting for advances on the flanks before occupying Lerida.

The government held machine-gun positions south of the city across the Segre River and raked the insurgent columns. To the north-east General Jose Moscardo, hero of the Alcazar, made progress toward the town.

BRITISH PROTESTS REJECTED BY JAPS

SHANGHAI, April 2 (A.P.). — General Shunroku Hata to-day rejected British protests against reported Japanese threats and discourtesies to British nationals

General Hata, commander of Japanese troops in Central China, denied Japanese soldiers were guilty of offensive acts charged by Major-General A. P. D. Telfer-Smollet, commander of British forces at Shanghai.

The Japanese commander said Japanese military authorities regretted General Telfer-Smollet's "discourteous attitude" in protesting upon "one-sided, unverified" reports and characterized the British protest as "not friendly."

The British note had cited several instances in which Japanese soldiers were alleged to have threatened or been discourteous to British soldiers or civilians.

One case cited was that of British sentries who, on two occasions, were sai dto have been threatened with rifles by Japanese military police.

Rochester Rocks In Weak Quake

ROCHESTER, N.H., April 2 (AP).—An earthquake which shook houses, rattled dishes and in some communities within a 10-mile radius of Rochester last night sounded like a "terrific explosion," was dismissed by scientists today as a "very weak" earth movement of only 15 seconds' duration.

Mrs. Helen Piper, Rochester telephone operator, said a "rumbling sound" preceded what seemed to be an explosion. She and other Rochester residents said buildings shook, and in South Lebanon, Me., across the Salmon Falls River from Rochester, housewifes reported pictures were knocked from the walls.

Picks Only Certain Of Protestors Out As Hypocrites

Claims One Pastor Objecting to Lottery Move Had Asked Him for Loan to Cover Up Stock Deal

TORONTO, April 2.—Correspondence from clergymen shows as many ministers approve government-operated sweepstakes for hospitals, approved by the legislature yesterday, as opposed the measure. Premier Hepburn said in an interview. He said he "made no sweeping charge against all ministers" when he applied the term "hypocrite" to some during his speech Monday in the sweepstakes debate. When he spoke in the debate he had a sheaf of protests on his desk from ministers and the reference was to some who protested.

Some Examples.

Mr. Hepburn said a check of the protests he received showed the name of one minister "who asked me for money to cover him up on a margin shortage in a brokerage transaction." Another was from a clergyman who continually approved lotteries in that minister's church. A third protest was from a minister asking a government member to arrange police protection so he could operate a lottery.

"These were the individuals whom I describe as hypocrites and not the ministers as a whole," Mr. Hepburn said. "I would say from the letters I have received there are as many ministers endorsing sweepstakes as there are opposed to them.

"I had no intention of any general denunciation of all the clergymen of the province. Many of them are personal friends and have openly stated they are for sweepstakes."

The Premier made his statement to legislative reporters whom he called to his office after the day's session adjourned. He said he had intended to make the statement in the House.

10TH VICTIM DIES, DISCOVER SERUM NOT FROM CANADA

ORLANDO, Fla., April 2.—(AP).—E. F. Bolte, 70, retired vice-president of the International Harvester Company, died early to-day, increasing to 10 the number of deaths among a group of persons here given injections of a serum for treatment of cancer.

Bolte, who came here from North Dakota, died while investigators of various agencies worked intensively to determine what caused the deaths. Eight of the previous victims were women.

Dr. W. G. Workman of the United States' Public Health Service, indicated the results of autopsies and analysis of the serum would be known shortly.

Meanwhile, four women were in a hospital with the same symptoms as those who died. Their condition was not critical, although anti-tetanus treatment was having little effect.

Physicians said symptoms were similar to those of tetanus (lockjaw) except in the lack of reaction to treatment.

Dr. T. A. Neal said 13 of those affected had been given injections at his clinic from a single bottle of the serum. He first said the se-

SAVED CHILDREN FORGET PAL, SAND SMOTHERS HIM

TORONTO, April 2 — (CP). — Suffocation of Paul Riddell, seven, under the sand of a 15-foot bank which collapsed and hurled four children into an excavation was attributed to-day to fright of his three playmates. Three of the children, when rescued, failed to say another youngster still was buried beneath the sand.

First intimation that the Riddell child was a victim of the cave-in came nearly an hour after Frank Hughes, five, Doreen Colley, 10, and James Alexander, eight, had been rescued by persons attracted to the pit by screams of the children when the bank on which they were standing gave way. Then the Riddell boy's body was found under four feet of sand.

The cave-in occurred yesterday on Dundas street west. Ted Oakleaf, one of the rescuers, said that the three children taken from the pit "never said a word about another boy being in the excavation." Oakleaf, employee of a nearly welding company, said "we could have saved the other poor lad if we had known in time."

Rescue Too Late

Young Alexander blurted out the information that sent rescuers scurrying back to the excavation to find Paul Riddell buried, face down, in the sand. When he reached home he told his father an incoherent story of somebody still being "down there."

Oakleaf was working when he heard the screams of the children. Only a few minutes before Joseph Simpson, owner of the welding firm, had chased a group of children away from the pit. Oakleaf dashed outside and saw the heads of three children sticking from the sand. Aiding by Simpson he dug out the three children.

Jack Riddell, 10-year-old brother of Paul, saw the two men extricating the children and ran home to his parents to tell about it. He did not know that his younger brother was even then slowly suffocating in the deserted pit.

3,000 Loyalist Spaniards Puzzle For France

Paris Hesitates At Shipping Refugees Back For Fear Of Violating Neutrality

BAGNERES DE LUCHON, France April 2—(AP)—Three thousand Spanish government soldiers who fled into France to escape the insurgents were interned today awaiting the French government's decision on whether their return to Catalonia would violate neutrality.

Orders had been issued for the Spanish militiamen to be sent back to their own country on three special trains but Paris countermanded these orders last night at the last minute. French officials gave no reason for the change of plans. Their policy heretofore had been to permit refugees to choose the Spanish faction to whose territory they wanted to return.

(The Ministry of Interior announced in Paris that measures would be taken to "cut short" the stay in Franceof Spanish militiastay in France of Spanish militianature of the measures expected to provide for return of these deserters to Spain was not made known immediately.)

Cancellation of yesterday's orders indicated the issue had arisen whether such a move now would constitute an act of intervention in the civil war in violation of the non-intervention agreement.

Besides the soldiers there were some 2,000 other fugitives, mostly women, children and old men who had crossed the border in the past three days.

Swing Artists Duck As Empire's Travelling Saleslady Arrives

Fan Mail Threatens To Bog Down Scottish Exhibition's Publicity Agent

MONTREAL, April 2.—(CP)—The travelling saleslady for the British Empire Exhibition is in town and swing artists are hiding their copies of "Annie Laurie" and "Loch Lomond" until things blow over a bit.

When Miss Marie Kane is around, it's a kind of anxious time for a fellow whose only vice is that he likes to hit the Scottish ballads with, say, a hot trumpet. For Miss Kane is the lady who stopped a Chicago night club because she didn't want it swinging her country's songs.

For that act, young and personable Miss Kane is being hailed by the transplanted Scots of this continent as public benefactress No.-1. It's got to the stage where anti-Scottish swing fan mail threatens to bog her down in her job of selling the huge exhibition that opens in Glasgow next month.

They want her to do more about the swing menace, maybe organize a campaign or something to stamp it out. The lady who wrote from Rhode Island was especially caustic about it, particularly since, as she pointed out in her letter, "Robert Burns (the great Scottish poet) was

Season For Muskies May Open June 20 But Old Bass Dates Will Hold

Toronto, April 2 (CP)

FISHERMEN may have an additional 10 days fishing for maskinonge this year if present plans of the department of Games and Fisheries are carried out.

Following representations to the department from camp owners and outfitters in Northern Ontario, D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of game and fisheries, said the department is considering opening the "muskie" season June 20 instead of July 1 as in the past.

The speckled trout season will open one day earlier this year, since May 1 comes on Sunday.

After exhaustive study, the department has refused to open the black bass season on June 20, in line with the muskie dates, since it has been found the bass were not through spawning in some waters until after July 1.

Oxford Crew Beats Cambridge In Famed Thames Race

Hundreds Of Thousands See Dark Blues Take 42nd Victory By 2 Lengths

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, England, April 2 (CP Cable)—Oxford for the second successive year today won the annual boat race with Cambridge. The Dark Blues won by two lengths.

Oxford covered the 4¼ miles along the winding Thames in 19 minutes, 30 seconds, nearly three minutes better than last year's time.

The dark blues took the lead at the outset, held off a determined challenge by Cambridge midway and drew away to win.

It was Oxford's second successive victory after 13 consecutive defeats and the dark blue's 42nd triumph since the classic was inaugurated in 1829. Cambridge have won 47 races and one, in 1877, was a dead heat.

The course record is 18:03, set by the 1934 Cambridge crew.

The heavy Oxford crew, after rounding the last bend in the teeth of a strong wind, finished strongly, having apparently rowed well within the limits of their strength.

Cambridge, on the other hand, leaned heavily on their oars after crossing the finish line.

Ontario Jobs Looming For Prairie Teachers

Toronto, April 2.

APPLICATIONS from teachers in the distressed areas of Saskatchewan for positions in Ontario are being received constantly by the Department of Education, it was learned yesterday. One official of the department stated that as many as half a dozen were received some weeks.

"Because of the growing tendency toward a scarcity of teachers in Ontario . . . many inspectors report no surplus of teachers in their districts . . . it will be possible to place many of these after they have completed the qualifications required for them to teach in this Province," he said.

Pet Of Chicago Zoo, Giant Panda Baby Eats Oak Twig And Dies

Chicago, April 2 (AP)

SU-LIN, first giant panda brought to civilization from the Tibetan wilds, died yesterday in the Brookfield zoo.

The bear-like little animal swallowed an oak twig, zoo officials announced, and since Monday become progressively more ill. Zoo attendants said the exact cause of death would not be determined until a post mortem examination.

Su-Lin was one of two baby pandas whose antics and odd markings had captivated zoo visitors. Both she and her smaller playmate, Mei-Mei, were captured by Mrs. William H. Harkness Jr., of New York, near the Szechuan province of Western China.

Been Trying Months For Opening To Make Statement

Blocked by Early Action on Defence Estimates, House Uneasy Lest Canada Be Involved in War

OTTAWA, April 2—(CP)—War clouds hovered over the House of Commons again yesterday as debate on the national defence estimates continued. Private members carried on the debate all day and many were apprehensive lest Canada be involved in a war either by an external attack or through relationships with the United Kingdom. On the whole the defence estimates met with support. The only outspoken critic was Wilfrid Gariepy (Lib. Three Rivers) who declared he would oppose them as he had a year ago. M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) was another critic but directed his fire at the government's alleged lack of foreign policy rather than at the estimates themselves.

This attack drew from Prime Minister Mackenzie King a forecast that he would make a comprehensive statement in the House concerning foreign policy possibly after the Easter recess, April 8 to 25.

He said he had been trying for nearly two months to have an item in external affairs taken up by the House so he might have an opportunity to make such a statement on foreign policy but defence department estimates had been brought in ahead of time and he had to forego any declaration.

Seeking Chance 2 Months.

"But for two months I have consistenly asked for a chance to bring external affairs before the House," he said. "Personally I wanted to have the matter off my mind before the Easter vacation, but I am afraid that will be impossible now."

Mr. Coldwell's criticism also brought from the Prime Minister comment on certain British newspaper reports of his speech at the Paris Exposition last summer which had him say any threat to Eng-

EXPORTERS' BIDS SEND WHEAT UP

WINNIPEG, April 2 (CP)—Exporters for top-grade Canadian wheat to meet opening of Great Lakes navigation commitments established Winnipeg Grain Exchange in leadership to higher prices this week. Late recessions failed to dampen bullish confidence that No. 1 northern wheat would hang close to the $1.50 mark.

Spectacular rise of the No. 1 cash wheat in store at Fort William-Port Arthur, increasing premier about the May future to 29 cents, highest since Great War years, topped dealings in all world markets.

With supply and demand governing the mixed trend, May and July futures strengthened 4¼-2½ cents at $1.21⅛ and $1.10, respectively. October, subject to bearish improved moisture conditions in virtually all North American wheat growing belts, slumped to a seasonal low of 88⅝ cents but closed only 1¼ cents down at 89¼-⅜.

Supplies of common break wheats in store at the lakehead for the week ended March 25 totalled 5,477,710 bushels, about half of supplies a year ago. It was intimated seaboard firms had not obtained their full requirements for shipment on first boats to move out of Lake Superior in the near future.

UPPER EGYPT VOTE VICTORY FOR KING

CAIRO, Egypt, April 2—(AP.—An avalanche of votes indicated a smashing victory today for King Farouk in yesterday's Upper Egypt election.

Of 41 seats in the new Parliament decided, only one was won by the Wafdists, whom the King dismissed from office in a constitutional dispute. Forty-seven seats are yet to be heard from.

The young King dissolved parliament February 2 when the majority Wafd Party voted non-confidence in the month-old Cabinet headed by Mohamed Mahmoud Pasha, who replaced the Wafdist leader, Mustapha Nahas Pasha.

In the struggle between the King and Nahas Pasha, Farouk had demanded disbanding of the Nationalist Youth organization.

Lower Egypt votes tomorrow and the Government moved to crush an alleged Wafdist plot to rush polling places. A number of members of the outlawed Wafdist Blueshirts were arrested "preventatively," and all available police were moved into Lower Egypt.

At least six persons were killed and scores injured in election riots yesterday.

PROMISE TO LEAVE TOWN IN HURRY

Two transients, Frank Browning and George Naish, arrested on Rubidge Street this morning, lined up before Magistrate Langley at Police court and pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy.

"I'll plead guilty," said Browning when the charge was read, "but the officer did not see me get the stuff. We was just rolling a cigarette when he came along."

"What stuff?" said the Magistrate in a puzzled voice.

"He didn't see us begging," explained Browning.

"There's nothing about begging here," replied the court.

Naish told the Magistrate that the two were just passing through Peterborough, heading for Norwood.

"And the police stopped you," commented Magistrate Langley. "They should have let you keep going."

"Oh, they were just doing their duty," returned the accused.

The men promised to get out of town in a hurry if they were released and they were allowed to depart.

The old bridge has been through a lot of strains in its day, and it came through this with only the top structure carried away, and that's not very serious. But, the money spent on restoring the railings is just a complete loss. We could have used it for other larger repairs."

Mr. Forsythe said William Curtin walked across the bridge from Ennismore this morning, an unpleasant experience on the icy surface with a strong wind blowing from the west. Friday afternoon a boy named Twomey made the trip on a bicycle, a hazard that would cause the ordinary pedestrian to shake his head.

Rex Forsythe and Ray Nicholls have been rowing along the shore salvaging the wreck of the railing, and when an Examiner reporter was there this morning Harold Churnside brought in another punt load, throwing his load on to the pile that was collected yesterday.

Whether the bridge withstands the forces of April depends upon the wind and the eventual dissolution of the main expanses of ice to east and west. Renewed pounding may cause a break in the structure.

seven pounds to the man, put up a despeate fight almost to the finish.

The high wind and rough water handicapped the lighter Cambridge crew despite the fact the Light Blues had won the toss and chose the Surrey, and more protected, side of the Thames.

Oxford got the jump on Blues at the start and picked up a quarter length lead in the first 50 yards. When Oxford had increased this to more than a length at one mile, it looked as though the Dark Blues would have it all the way.

But the Cantabs uncorked a brisk spurt that got all but a quarter of a length of this back by the time the two-mile mark was reached. The crews were about even at 2½ miles, but that was the closest Cambridge came to victory.

Slowly the Oxford shell moved to the fore again until the Dark Blues enjoyed a half-length lead at four miles. In the finish sprint over the last quarter-mile Oxford steadily extended its advantage. At the finish there was no longer any doubt as to which were the better crew.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg wheat futures followed stocks to higher levels Friday to close ⅝ to ¾ cent higher, May $1.21¼, July $1.10, and October 89¼ to ⅝ cents.

Minor export demand, higher Liverpool cables, firm cash prices and scarcity of offerings featured the quiet session.

May wheat slumped ⅝ cent lower on hedging sales and profit-taking, but quickly rallied to advance 1⅞ cents above yesterday's final quotation. May and July averaged a cent higher through, but October was sluggish.

Slight pickup in spot wheat demand resulted in Nos. 1 and 2 Northern advancing more than a cent. Spreads on these grades were 25c and 15c above the May future. The navigation shipment prices were 26c and 16c premium, respectively.

Liverpool closed ¼d to ⅝d higher, due to moderate demand for cash wheat and short covering in an oversold market. Chicago advanced ¼c to ⅝c, but Buenos Aires lagged, unchanged to ¼c lower at noon.

Chicago also responsive to unexpected upturns of Liverpool quotations and New York securities rose 1¼c, but failed to retain more than fractional gains.

Action of the Liverpool wheat market was in the main attributed at Chicago to fears of a reduction of Australia's planted acreage because of persistent dry weather. Southern Hemisphere wheat shipments, however, were reported to have increased, and this ended to check price gains.

Possibility of a bumper United States wheat crop, with almost assured possibility of a crop larger than last year is suggested by Agricultural Development Dept. of the Santa Fe Railroad. In a summary yesterday of conditions in the States through which the road operates, special notice was taken of improved prospects in Kansas and Oklahoma. Leading trade authorities considered the report exceptionally auspicious.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James
Toronto

A BIBLE STUDY

Christ raiseth Lazarus.—St. John 11.

Our Lord's first miracle at the wedding in Cana of Galilee, to save embarrassment to His friends, was in the home circle. His last miracle was also in the home circle, to bring joy to His dear friends and comfort to the end of the age.

What a beautiful home that was in Bethany. Simple, everyday people, Martha, Mary and Lazarus. The two sisters keeping house for the brother. They are in comfortable circumstances, neither rich nor poor, but able to give generous hospitality to the Lord and His disciples. It is the home atmosphere that enables the Lord to perform this miracle. There is love, harmony, tenderness, consideration for one another; above all, faith and trust in the Master. In His own home village "He could not do many miracles because of their unbelief."

"Now a certain man was sick, named Lazarus." At once the sisters send a messenger. Notice the touching brevity of the message, so true to life. "Lord, behold, he whom Thou lovest is sick." He has only to know and He will come, say the sisters to one another.

"Now Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus." The English translation does not bring out the fullness and depth of the statement. It may be translated: "Now Jesus was all the time loving Martha and her sister and Lazarus." "All the time." Let the words sink into your heart. When sickness comes into your home remember that "all the time" Jesus loves you and your loved ones, especially "he whom thou lovest."

"When He heard therefore that he was sick He abode two days still in the same place where He was." "Therefore." Are you astonished at the expression? The writer looks back fifty years upon the scene that has been stamped indelibly upon his mind. Deliberately he writes "therefore" that you and I may lift up our hearts in the hour of anxiety and delay. He is all the time loving you and yours. "What I do now thou knowest not but thou shalt know hereafter."

"Then said Thomas unto his fellow disciples, let us also go that we may die with Him." What a light it throws upon the disciple who doubted the Lord's resurrection. He is a man who cannot be carried away by enthusiasm. He is not afraid to speak his mind and he is not afraid to die for His Master. It is the characteristic of men of independent and enquiring mind.

"Many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary to comfort them concerning their brother." This is the social aspect. The sisters are highly respected and their friends from the City put themselves out to call and sympathize. Moreover, Lazarus was a young man of promise. He must have been when Our Lord was so drawn to him.

"Martha went and met Jesus." How characteristic of the active, practical Martha as pictured by St. Luke. She is full of energy; she cannot sit still. You will notice also that she stands in the presence of the Lord—unlike her sister who "fell down at His feet." How true to life that they both make the same statement. It was the uppermost thought in their minds.

"Lord, if Thou hadst been here my brother had not died." No reproach but deep regret. They believe that the Christ could have healed him but their faith and hope could not rise to the thought that He could raise him from the dead. The gradual progress of Martha's faith is true to psychology. No forger of the second century could have written this.

"Jesus said unto her: "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in Me though he were dead yet shall he live. And whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." Can you not see why the Lord delayed His coming? If for nothing else than to give us this clear statement that has comforted countless mourners.

"Believest thou this? Lord, I believe that Thou are the Christ, the Son of God, Who is to come into the world." The R.V. brings out the deeper force of the words. Not "I believe," but "I have believed," which to the Greek mind means not only I have believed but I will continue to believe.

Cast thy care on Jesus,
What is death to those
Who deep in submission
On His love repose;
But a short step further,
Nearer to His side.
Where thine eyes shall see Him
And be satisfied.
—Canon Frederick George Scott.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 3, is Mark 7:24-37, the Golden Text being Acts 10:34, "God is no respecter of persons".)

"IN CHRIST there is no east nor west, in him no south nor north; but one great fellowship of love throughout the whole wide earth." Paul expresses this same thought of Christ as unifier of all races, by saying, "There can be neither Jew nor Greek, there can be neither bond nor free, there can be no male or female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

Christ and a Foreigner

Tired of the bickering of his critics about such insignificant matters as how to wash hands, Jesus felt the need of getting away. So, he made one of the longest trips of his whole earthly life, an excursion into the gentile country of Phoenicia, "the borders of Tyre and Sidon." Here a gentile woman, whose little daughter was grievously afflicted, came and besought his help in behalf of her child. Mother love ignores geographic and racial lines. she was a Syrophoenician Greek and Jesus a Jew, but her prayer leaped over the racial barriers between them, as she besought his help for the child of her love.

A Battle of Faith

There followed one of the most unique battles of history, a battle of faith between this gentile mother and the Saviour of the world. At first he manifested a strange indifference to her heartrending appeal, as "he answered her not a word." When he did break the silence, it was with an apparently sectarian remark that seems strangely foreign to the lips of Christ, unless we realize that his gracious purpose in uttering it was to draw out and test this mother's faith: "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Equal to the test, she came and worshipped him, and, although she was not of that house of Israel, yet she prayed to him, "Lord help me." Then came this still stranger and sterner remark, "Le the children first be filled; for it is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs." The word Jesus used here was really "doggies" and herein she saw her chance. She would not ask to sit at the first table with the children of the family, she would not even expect to share their bread; she would ask only the crumbs the children would leave. She was even happy over the privilege of the status of the "doggies" in the household of such a Lord and Master. So she prayed, "Yea Lord: even the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs." This humble faith was her victory. And Jesus gladly gave her the blessing he was only waiting the development of her faith to bestow, as he replied, "O woman, great is thy faith." "And her daughter even as thou wilt." "And her daughter was healed from that hour."

All Things Well

From Phoenicia Christ swept in a wide circle back to Galilee through the borders of "the 10 cities" of Decapolis, keeping in foreign parts as long as possible. Here he healed a deaf mute, using as his unique means of grace his own spittle with which he touched the man's ears and tongue, crying, "Ephatha," that is, "Be opened." And the people spread the report which so aptly describes his entire ministry to all races and conditions of men, "He hath done all things well."

Wed Schuschnigg

Following the "protective arrest" of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria by the Nazis, came the insistent report that Schuschnigg had married the beautiful Countess Vera Fugger, ABOVE. The wedding is said to have taken place in the Belvedere Palace, Vienna, where the ex-chancellor is in custody.

Branch Notes

ONTARIO PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

Plans are going forward for the preparation of receiving about five hundred delegates to the Seventh Ontario Provincial Conference.

Several of the sub-committees are hard at work getting the preliminary arrangements made before the summer months come, when activities will have to be suspended for a time.

The Conference to be held in Peterborough will be the seventh annual conference of the Ontario Provincial Council of the A.Y.P.A., when ways and means of furthering the work of the A.Y.P.A. in this province and particularly in the branches of the many parishes of the province will be discussed under the general theme "Fourfold Living for Christ and the Church."

This theme is quite adaptable to the A.Y.P.A., since the principles of the association are four-fold: Worship, Work, Edification and Fellowship. From this we see that the Association stands for (1) Promotion of the attendance of the members and others at Divine services; (2) Co-operation in all forms of church work, locally, generally and missionary; (3) Furthering Christian Edification and fellowship among the members.

This four-fold aim of the Anglican Young People's Association therefore promotes the religious, social and intellectual welfare of the young people of the Church of England in Canada.

The motto of the Association is "For Christ and the Church." The members of the Association are therefore reminded that what they do for the Association should be done for the advancement of the Kingdom of Christ here on earth and anything that is not for this purpose should not find a place in the life of the Association.

The badge of the Association which the members are asked to wear, is in the form of a shield, being emblematic of the "Shield of Faith." This Shield is divided vertically into three parts, the two outer parts are blue, symbolical of Christian hopefulness, while the centre part is white, symbolizing Christian purity. The central feature of the shield is the ancient and sacred monogramme, known as the "Chi Rho" which is a combination of the two Greek letters X (chi), and P (rho), which are the first two letters of the Greek word for Christ. This symbol has been in use for many centuries and is to be found cut in the solid rock of the Catacombs (burial vaults) of ancient Rome. As well as this monogramme, there are the four letters A.Y.P.A. around the outer edge of the shield.

The ideals of the A.Y.P.A. are extremely high and it is for the purpose of furthering and encouraging this work in the various that these annual conferences are that these anual conferences are held. It is our earnest and sincere hope that the conference to be held in Peterborough this year will mark a new milestone in the history of the A.Y.P.A. in this province and that it will go on and up from strength to strength.

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH

On Monday last the weekly meeting was in charge of the minister of fellowship, Miss Edith Abraham. After a short business meeting, Miss Abraham and her committee led in the study of another portion of the book "Go Ye."

The Branch have their place well on the way now—don't forget practice nights, members.

Will Make Reply To Perkins Bull

William Perkins Bull, Toronto lawyer and author, is quoted in the Examiner of March 30, as follows: "Religion is the easiest thing to sell, people want it—but not the way it is dished out today. You never saw a man who did not wish his children to attend church or Sunday School. But they don't want to go and listen to the uninviting tripe which is coming from many pulpits."

This criticism opens up the question, What is the best method to sell religion? The minister is really a salesman, and he wants to sell his wares. Are we making the best approach to the people? Are our failures due to a lack of appreciation of the value of our goods? Or to a wrong method of approach to our prospective customers?

There are two methods of selling religion. There is the dogmatic way in which the minister speaks strongly of the value of his goods, and gives the person no chance to state whether he wishes to buy them or not.

There is the other method of allowing the buyer to state his needs. People are ready enough to do this, and if the minister can link on his wares to the hunger of the people he is likely to make a sale. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman proved this to be true in his "Answers to everyday questions" over the radio. He became one of the most successful salesmen of religion in North America.

On next Sunday night in St. Andrew's church four issues will be dealt with which came to the minister from people in Peterborough during the past month:

"I don't go to church, but I consider myself better than a lot of people who go."

The service clubs do far more good than the church, they do practical things."

"Is not all business, and life insurance a gamble?"

"When Jesus said: 'The Sabbath was made for man,' he implied that it was merely a rest day or holiday."

Acts 10:34—"God is no respecter of persons."

A National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard, LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

Because Israel is ignorant of her own birthright and of the fact that she is hedged about by the Divine promise and the Divine power, she has faced in the past, and shall still face these things with the courage which prepares for and discounts the worst instead of marching forward in the consciousness of the invincible might of God. She, who might have been free from sickness, has been scourged and suffering through the ages. She, who might have been free from poverty, has had a great proportion of her people suffering want from the cradle to an early grave. She, who should have wage victorious and bloodless wars as far as she was concerned, has stained every sea and every land with the blood of her slain.

She, who should with a light have led the nations in the path of light gropes as one blind, and carries the burden of the World upon her shoulders as a weary Atlas. These things will pas sat the revelation and the restoration of Isreal. But, for the great mass of people, that Day shall not arrive until she has drunk to the dregs, even to "The Day of the Lord," the cup she has filled for herself by her own rebellion against the "Law of the Lord." Turn to Ezekiel's descriptions of the last great conflict between Gog and his confederation, and the merchants of Tarshish and all the young lions thereof. So everwhelming is her deliverance that the veil is rent from her eyes and she knows at last that she is Israel and that she has been delivered by Israel's God. (Ezek. ch. 38 and 39.)

Ezek. xxxix, 22: "So the house of Israel shall know that I am Jehovah the Lord their God from that day and forward."

The following conclusions seem clear:

1. God has done all the constitutional (as distinct from administration) legislation which He has allowed for, in the national constitution in the Bible.

2. In the application of the principles of that constitution to new cases and circumstances as they arrive, He has made provisions in the department of the judgments, which are the commandments and statutes applied from time to time and from age to age. The principles of right action are few; they are all included in the constitution; they are changeless and eternal; therefore the constitution is perfect for our age and is capable of full application in our complex life.

3. Constitutional legislation belongs to God only, and he has not trusted men or nations to make laws for the government of their fellows.

4. The Divine plan of government does not favour one more than another and class is not known.

5. The way out of the present world-struggle for power is to go back to the Divine constitution.

6. The restoration of the Divine constitution as our system of Law, will enable the nation to test the Divine challenge as to health, prosperity and peace.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, . . . and all these things shall be added unto you."

TRAVEL HAZARDS IN SIBERIA

With the approach of spring, snow is melting rapidly in Siberia and avalanches are making any kind of travel in the highlands extremely dangerous.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

There have been many attempts to found a universal religion, that is, one that would embrace and reconcile all forms of belief and so be acceptable to the majority of mankind. These attempts have all failed in their appeal principally because it was not realized that the essential unity of the various religions was an inward mystical thing that the outer congregations were unable to appreciate, and had never even heard of. For instance, how many professing Christians know of the "Disciplina Arcana" of the early church and what was taught therein? Or the difference between these inner teachings and the lesser mysteries of the outer church? Yet all the records show that the early church possessed great powers and that the command of these spiritual forces was lost when Christianity became the state religion under Constantine. It was then that the leadership of the Church was given into the hands of the worldly-wise and self-seeking, when, in short, it became institutionalized. It was at that point in the Church's history that the great tragedy occurred and Christians first persecuted their fellow-Christians in the name of the Lord. Love degenerated into hate and Christ was crucified afresh by those who sought to serve Him. So was intolerance introduced into the Church and to some extent it survives to this day. Whether the Bible is literally true as we have it today, or not, is of little moment if we do not weave its spiritual truth into the fabric of our lives. If we believe the Bible to be true and do not live according to its teachings, then we condemn ourselves. If we do not believe it to be true, but yet in all sincerity love our God and our neighbor as the Master taught, then we are living the truth that the Bible teaches. So in reality, the argument is useless. It is obvious to one who is unprejudiced, that truth whether found in the Bible or elsewhere, cannot in the least degree be injured by any criticism whatever. It must be remembered that the letter is not the vital thing but the spirit that the letter represents. The comprehension of that spirit is in ourselves. If in ourselves we sincerely seek and desire the truth then, and then only, will the letter yield up the spirit, the truth which it conceals.

Scripture—Mark 7:24-37.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Jesus was heckled by the religious leaders who followed him, to quibble over such matters as the washing of hands. To get away from it all Jesus went up into Phoenicia.

Here a Syrphoenician mother begged him to heal her little daughter. At first Jesus did not answer Then he seemed strangely sectarian as he spoke of his duty to his own people rather than to foreigners.

After testing the woman's faith Jesus commended her, saying, "O woman, great is thy faith, be it unto thee even as thou wilt," and the little girl was healed by him at that very moment.

Returning to his own country, Jesus healed a deaf mute by touching his tongue and ears with spittle and saying, "Be opened," and the amazed multitudes said, "He hath done all things well." (GOLDEN TEXT—Acts 10:34.)

No Other Course Open

There was an intimate picture given in the House of Commons when Finance Minister Dunning was explaining why it was necessary to vote an added two million dollars to aid Saskatchewan. It means that in two years the federal government has had to extend aid to the extent of $3,500,000 apart entirely from what has been given for relief or seed. This money is for ordinary government services.

It was stated also that four-fifths of the people in Saskatchewan required relief or assistance in some form or other, and the reason is not difficult to trace. Dry weather cut the value of the grain crop from 101 to 34 million.

One can work it out from the standpoint of sound economics and conclude that Saskatchewan is not the place to live or farm, but such reckoning fails to consider the blunt fact that the people are there, doing what they can to prepare for the reaping of the crop they are always hoping for, and in the interval they must be cared for.

In Two Chapters

Toronto has the dual system of government; that is, the Board of Control and City Council. The Board of Control is considered the senior body in many ways, and contests for positions there are more vigorously sought than for the aldermanic seats. Also members of the Board of Control receive more salary than do the aldermen.

CHAPTER ONE: When it became necessary to trim the estimates in Toronto the City Council proceeded to cut official salaries. They brought the Mayor down from $11,500 to $10,000 a year; the Controllers were lifted from the $5,000 class and placed in the category labelled $4,000, while the Aldermen themselves submitted to the pruning hook to the extent of being trimmed to an even $1,000 per year instead of the previous $1,200.

The Mayor and members of the Board of Control voted against the reduction, but there were sufficient votes to make it effective. And when they were at it the decision was made to cut the expense of operating motor cars from $14,000 to $10,000. The result of all this is a reduction of $9,600 in expenditure.

CHAPTER TWO: At the next session there was a motion to rescind all the above relating to salaries, and it carried on a division of 11 to 8. The tax rate was also set at the highest point in the history of Toronto. So it looks as though high salaries and high tax rates go hand in hand.

The Better Way

There is a new mental hospital under construction in Elgin county. It will be the property of the provincial government. The place is not yet completed, but the position of superintendent has been given to Dr. Wilfred D. Smith, a former Liberal member of the Legislature for Dufferin-Simcoe. He is at present senior assistant physician in the Department of Health. The appointment has been open to criticism on the ground that it was made for political purposes.

Being superintendent of a mental institution is a position which requires special qualifications. It would require training in the general field of psychiatries, and in order to bring prestige and competence to such an office the occupant should be recognized as a man of standing in the field of mental disorder.

Such an appointment could well come on the recommendation of some central organization of physicians. They would know and recognize the men who had been specializing in that work, and they would have no reason to consider the political angle. Nor should they.

A Good Thing

In the vote of the Ontario Legislature the result was 48 to 34 for the measure. That does not in itself mean that we will have a legalized sweepstakes outfit in this province. The question has to go to Ottawa and the prospects of favorable consideration there are not particularly bright.

The vote at Toronto was not on party lines. For the measure there were 42 Liberal votes and 6 Conservatives. Against there were 16 Conservatives, 1 U.F.O. and 17 Liberals. One report coming from Toronto says word was passed among Liberal members to the effect that it was to be a party vote and it was necessary to support the stand taken by Premier Hepburn. Against that is the plain statement made earlier by Mr. Hepburn that members were to be free to vote as they pleased.

It is well that there should be such a vote recorded—one where members by their vote say exactly what they believe should be said regardless of what party leaders desire them to say. In no other way is it possible to have an honest expression of opinion. Such a method is also a good thing for the party in power although it is difficult to make a Prime Minister understand it. If he is made aware that there is a degree of independence in his following which will not submit to a party order taking precedence over a member's own judgment and conviction then the party leader is going to be a great deal more careful in selecting the policy of his party. It will do much to halt any tendency toward one-man government and it will put the brakes on the idea of a few men dominating the situation. Independent voting and speaking is generally frowned upon in political circles, and the man who persists in such an attitude is liable to find himself moving about pretty much alone. That has been the experience in the past, and that is why there is encouragement for something better in the vote recorded at Toronto.

Are You A Cabbage Head?

The foreign offices of Britain and United States are reported in a state of confusion or something approaching it, and all on account of the use of one word in their correspondence. That stumbling block of a word is "escalation." It means the building of bigger battleships when other nations do. The British did make use of the word once in February when making inquiries regarding Japan's naval building activities, but it is said the word was used because United States had previously used the same word. These exchange notes are being continued but Britain has dropped the word "escalation." It appears some person looked in the dictionary and found it was not there.

The word had been built up from escalade, meaning to climb; from that we get the word escaltor, a moving staircase. But there is no recognition given to escalation," although it is difficult to understand why such a word should not be used. Possibly if such impressive departments as the Foreign Office in London and Washington persisted in their usage of the word it would gain recognition.

An American-English dictionary is being compiled at the University of Chicago, and one of the co-editors is Sir William Craigie, who was also a co-editor in the production of the Oxford English dictionary. The word "escalation" although not recognized appears to be somewhat of a classic when compared with other phrases which are soon to gain recognition in this Americanized edition of the English language. Advance notices indicate that these expressions will be recognized:

In cahoots (in league with.)
Take the cake (take the prize.)
Cash in one's checks (to die.)
On the carpet (to undergo a scolding.)
Cabbage head (a stupid person.)

Such phrases are in use; they are frequently heard in conversation and some of them can be found in present-day writing. The rigidity of those who compile dictionaries—lexicologists they are—appears to be yielding to the law of usage, but it is difficult to understand why so reasonable a word as "escalation" should be considered doubtful and refused recognition when "cabbage head" is granted space to designate a not overly-brilliant individual.

Better Wait For It

Hon. William Finlayson, former Minister of Lands and Forests in the Conservative government, believes the Ontario Legislature has too many members. He seems certain fifty members would do the work and do it well. And at the moment we can think of no good reason why they could not.

When Mr. Finlayson made such a reduction in the personnel of the major governing body in Ontario he would not stop. Next in order he would operate on county councils. He would not reduce their size, but rather would he do away with them entirely. It is said the matter will come up for consideration at the next session of the Legislature.

Meanwhile we have the Rowell commission holding its sessions across the Dominion, considering the problems of the provinces and in general the manner in which we are governed. The whole question of government will probably be handled in the report of that commission.

We are quite content to allow provincial bodies to lessen their numbers. That is a wise act because there is a growing feeling in Canada that the best plan would be to strengthen the central governing body at Ottawa. We have entirely too much confusion of interests between federal and provincial bodies; too many issues where claims of authority conflict and too many departments where the same work is being done too many times. There are those in provincial legislatures who say the county councils should go, and there are those who are outside of any governing body who will assert with equal assurance that the provincial legislatures as at present constituted should go. The sensible course appears to wait until the Rowell commission furnishes its report. Then we should have something on which to act intelligently.

He Got Laid Off

There is a woman and her child of four visiting in Peterborough. Just how long they will remain here depends. Depends on how soon the husband and father is called back to work. The experience of this little family of three is probably not at all unusual. It is like this:

"My husband has a fairly good job, and by that I mean he can make enough to keep us and pay the bills and have a little left over. For that we have been thankful, but it is this getting laid off that hurts. When that time comes our savings account seems to get out of hand in no time because everything is going out and nothing is coming in. It's a sort of one-way traffic which is no good for the family or the family purse. We are pretty cheerful people as a rule but I admit that gets us down. That's why I am here on a visit. We rented our few furnished rooms while my husband is looking for something else or gets word to come back to his old place.

"People who don't live through it can hardly be expected to know what the lay-off means. My husband expected it to come a week before he was handed his notice. He didn't say much about it but I could tell what was in his mind. The day he got word he didn't need to tell me a word of it; I knew it when I saw him coming up the street. He and a neighbor who lives two doors down from us work at the same place, and they had both been laid off. They were coming down the street like two old men and neither of them wanted to go home and break the news. I guess a man likes to come home and tell his wife that he is getting along, that he has had a raise or anything like that, but he finds it hard to come in and say he's been laid off. We both know what it means. When he does get started again it will mean we will begin from scratch once more because what little progress we had made will be wiped out. We generally try to keep a dollar in the savings account so it will not be closed out. That dollar will not go far but it makes us feel that we at least have a start.

"It isn't as though we were very ambitious and seeking for a lot. Not that way at all, but we would like to feel what you might call secure. By that I mean if we have only a small amount to get along on we would like to feel safe that it was not going to be taken away from us. I like to come and visit now and then but I don't like to come because my husband has been laid off and we have to fold the little home up until he gets working again."

It is not necessary to add much comment to that. It is just a plain and human way of stating what a good many people feel—that they would like to have that sense of security which puts a foundation under the home.

HE TRIED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When Joe ran first for parliament, he did it with a good intent, he was an honest soul; he yearned for justice in the land, so men could walk or safely stand, and not slide in a hole.

¶ He wanted taxes cut in two, so men could travel safely through, and keep what they might get; when men were such that none would hire, Joe felt they ought to then retire, and not be sunk in debt.

¶ Joe wanted nothing for himself, nor was he seeking fame or wealth, his motives were all right; too many people walked in woe, and that's what first appealed to Joe, he was prepared to fight.

¶ Joe found himself in parliament, a strong, expectant sort of gent, his chance was sure to come; upon high tax he'd close the gate, then to his folk he could relate, the good things he had done.

¶ But Joe found he had little say, when there were stacks of bills to pay, in vain he took the floor; when he had spoken out his mind, he was distressed and grieved to find, they had to pay some more.

¶ And people said Joe was a fake, and just another party rake, they branded him no good; Joe spoke out fair and straight and loud, but he was swallowed in the crowd—he'd done the best he could.

Where Will This Debate Head Us?

From Official Parliamentary Debates

Mr. BENNETT: I am quite content that the hon. gentleman has said so, but the misunderstanding on the part of the less intelligent public who listen to a lot of words, such as I have been using, which perhaps they are unable to understand fully, leads to the result that they gather up just a catch-word. They say, 'By jove, this bank business must be a terrible thing. There is that bank with its deposits, and it is lending $20,000 on deposits of $2,000.'' I will tell you that the banks have to deliver just what the deposits call for, and the banks will liquidate their obligations to their depositors in the terms of the deposits. Let there be no misunderstanding about that.

Mr. DUNNING: We could not have a banking system for five minutes if that were not true.

Mr. BENNETT: It must be true, and that is just why new banks are so difficult to start. In the beginning they have no deposits to deal with, so they start out and lend money to make good fellows of themselves. The next thing that happens is that when my cheque is drawn on that bank I am told that the amount of my deposit is out in a loan that has not been paid, and the bank closes its doors. That is the story.

I am afraid I have gotten far away from what I intended to say—

Mr. McGEER: Just on that point the right hon. gentleman might give us a little information about the $35,000,000.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Sit down. (Mr. Bennett.)

Mr. McGEER: What I should like to point out to the right hon. gentleman is that I did not ask a facetious question. What I wanted to know was why, in the 1934 bank act, the government of that day decided that a five per cent cash reserve was sufficient security against all deposits issued. What has happened is this, that the banks have far more than five per cent of cash on deposit, but in 1934 the government apparently concluded that five per cent of cash was an adequate reserve against deposits in Canadian banks. If that is so the banks can create deposits, as far as the limitations of the law are concerned in Canada, to the extent of $20 for every dollar of cash that they can deposit with the Bank of Canada.

Mr. BENNETT: What was the question?

Mr. McGEER: My right hon. friend does not need to do that.

Mr. BENNETT: What was the question?

Mr. McGEER: The question is this—

Mr. BENNETT: Why did the government do so and so?

Mr. McGEER: "The bank act of 1934 sets up a specific quantitative reserve which the chartered banks are required to hold against their deposit liabilities. In form this reserve must consist of a deposit in and notes of the Bank of Canada. In amount it must be equal to five per cent of the deposit liabilities in Canada. As a result the chartered banks as a group can legally create deposits amounting to $20 on the basis of a $1 reserve. A much larger secondary expansion is made possible, however, for the Bank of Canada is required to hold only—"

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: I would remind the hon. gentleman that he must ask his question, and that he can interupt only with the consent of the right hon. gentleman who has the floor.

Mr. McGEER: My question is: Why did the government decide in 1934 that five per cent was adequate reserve?

Mr. BENNETT: I think there were two reasons. One was that this was the amount required in a preceding bank act.

Mr. McGEER: There was no reserve at all.

Mr. BENNETT: There had been, by practice. There was no central bank, but they had to maintain a reserve in Dominion of Canada bills. That is what the law was. I take it that the hon. gentleman read from that very valuable handbook, McGeer on Progress and Poverty, was it?

Mr. McGEER: I am reading from The Canadian Banking System, by James Holladay, but I can tell my right hon .friend that if he will read that book of mine he will know more than he indicates knowing today.

Mr. BENNETT: I was mistaken. It was not McGeer on Progress and Poverty he was reading from. But I note with interest his observation that if I read his book I would know more. I always feel we should pay tribute where it is due. He presented me with one. If I were to follow his suggestion and read his book I would know more of what he knew, but I would not know more than I know today. It is a very fine distinction.

SWEEPSTAKES.

(Christian Science Monitor)

THOSE WHO wish to see state lotteries set up in the United States will try to make capital out of the fact tht more than 55 per cent. of the tickets drawn in this year's Irish Hospital Sweepstakes went to holders in the United States. Doubtless they will argue—as they have in the past—that since many Americans are determined to play the foreign lotteries, it would be better to establish lotteries in the United States so that the state's share in taxes and the patrons share of the winnings will be kept at home. In other words, they urge the country to legalize lotteries in "self-defense."

This argument tends to confuse the real issue, which is: Do the state or federal governments want lotteries? Obviously they do not because states which once operated lotteries found them socially and economically unsound and banished them by law. The need is to reduce the proportion of American participation in foreign lotteries rather than increase the gambling problem in America by setting up a lottery system of its own.

A Smart Move in Taxation.

(From the St. Catharines Standard.)

WHEN PREMIER HEPBURN abolished the system of municipal income tax collection and imposed therefor a provincial income tax, it was without question a smart move—for the province.

Last year the province collected income tax revenue the sum of $5,950,000 and returned to the municipalities only $2,641,190.59. The assumption by the province of certain social services by no means covers the difference.

The province took over income tax on the basis of municipal returns in a depression year. There was a rising tide in 1937, as it was expected there would be, but it is all in favor of the provincial treasury.

Winnipeg is one city in Canada which has shown that property can be taxed too heavily. A larger tax rate there merely brought in a lower return. Toronto City is aiming at new cources of civic revenue. St. Catharines can struggle along but there is no doubt that the rate in this city is sufficiently high to handicap normal civic development. Few people realize that the mill rate ordained by the City Council is really a tax on capital or savings of the property owner. If a man has $6,000 in government bonds, he pays on the earnings of the bonds in income levy. On a house, he pays arbitrarily on the need of municipal revenue without reference to rent of the house or anything else.

Toronto suggestions for more revenue include licensing chain stores, which might well be considered unfair discrimination and not likely to stand up in the courts. The taxation of public utilities is a fairer proposition an increased poll tax and an amusement tax are equitable. But the whole set-up is one of makeshift demanded by expediency. What is required is an overhauling of the whole tax system of the province, and to make it conform to modern conditions. It assuredly was never intended that a municipality should ever carry the tremendous social service expenditure which is a feature of the annual civic budget, over seven mills on the dollar in St. Catharines.

Too Many in the Legislature.

(From the Edmonton Journal.)

THE REDISTRIBUTION bill put through by the Saskatchewan legislature did not reduce its membership as much as was expected. But there will be 52 seats in the next house as compared with 55 at present. There are 63 in Alberta, which has a population about four-fifths of Saskatchewan's, and the need of cutting the number to a large extent before another election is apparent.

The indications are that this step will not be taken at the session which is now nearly over. Last week Mr. Aberhart said the government was not sure that it would have a bill ready, though it had been doing some work along that line. But, if such a measure is not brought down, it will mean the disregarding of a resolution passed by the house last April which was moved by one of the Calgary Social Credit members, Mr. Anderson. It recited that "the progressive increase in the membership of our legislature has resulted in an unwarranted increase in the cost of government" and recommended to the cabinet "the desirability of giving immediate consideration to this question" with a view to introducing a redistribution bill at the next session.

"A substantial reduction" in the membership was called for by the resolution and Mr. Anderson expressed the opinion that twenty seats would be enough.

The question has been under discussion for a long while and there is much impatience throughout the province over the failure to take action. At the last session of the U. F. A. regime Mr. Duggan suggested a simple method by which the size of the house could be cut down without delay. His proposal was that the federal constituencies be adopted for provincial purposes and that two members be elected from each, making 34 the total number. That would be a reasonable arrangement and it could be put into effect promptly now.

There is no telling when a general election will be held, though Mr. Aberhart stated the other day that he had no intention of asking for an early dissolution. Circumstances may arise easily which will lead to a fresh appeal to the electors before another session. It would be most deplorable in that event to have 63 members chosen again.

GASOLINE TAX

Editor Examiner:

Sir: What is the tax charged on gasoline in other provinces of the Dominion. I have heard it said we are paying more in Ontario than elsewhere. Is that so, and if it is so why should we have to pay so much.

DRIVER.

Lakefield, April 1.

The tax according to provinces is:

Prince Edward Island	10c
Novia Scotia	10c
New Brunswick	10c
Quebec	6c
Manitoba	7c
Saskatchewan	7c
Alberta	7c
British Columbia	7c
Ontario	6c

It will be seen that Ontario and Quebec have the lowest gas tax rates in the Dominion.—Ed. Examiner.

COURTESY COUNTS.

THE DEPARTMENT of Sanitation in New York recently gave ten boys and girls "politeness medals."

Courtesy and politeness are much the same thing.

And it is a good idea to begin practicing them at an early age.

Seventy-five per cent. of the traffic accidents in this country are ascribed by authorities to lack of courtesy or politeness on the road.

Good manners are not to be sneered at, when the absence of them fills hospitals and morgues.

CLAIM HIGH POSTS KEEP TELEPHONE RATES UP 25 P.C.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Paul A. Walker, communications commissioner, informed the United States Congress yesterday that the Bell Telephone Company could reduce its rates 25 per cent by eliminating "unnecessarily high posts."

These costs, Walker said in a proposed report on the telephone investigation directed by the commission, result from manufacturing, engineering, depreciation, bookkeeping and other policies for which the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is responsible.

Walter S. Gifford, president of the A.T. and T., said in a statement released simultaneously with the report, that if a summary available to him correctly reflects the report, "it presents much that is simply not true and has been prepared with the same unfairness that characterized the investigation proceedings."

Gifford, asserting that a full copy of the report had not been furnished him, declared that Bell System earnings have never been excessive and a suggestion rates might be reduced 25 per cent, by changing policies and practices of the system was absurd.

The A.T. and T., Walker said, has "complete control" of the Bell System, and the latter includes 90 per cent or more of the telephone industry.

Walker recommended the federal communications commission be given jurisdiction to "review, approve or disapprove all Bell System policies and practices promulgated by the central management group of the American company."

Pending delivery of the full commission report to the capitol, Walker's findings were submitted to the Senate commerce and the House of Representatives interstate commerce committees for study.

Some of the Findings.

From the subscriber's point of view, the chief conclusions Walker reached in the 1,500,000 commission investigation of the A.T. and T. and its affiliates included:

Costs of protection from competition have been assessed against customers rather than stockholders.

Invention has been suppressed and installation of superior equipment delayed.

Equipment has been bought from a sister company at "artificially controlled" prices.

Subscribers have had to contribute to excessive depreciation reserves.

Royalties from non-communication activities have not been credited to subscribers, who pay for such developments, but accepted by the company as "windfall" profits.

Public relations policies of the Bell System, Walker said, "are directed toward the maintenance of its monopoly position."

"Such policies have been accomplished by indoctrination, by economic contacts, and by political pressure.

HASTINGS

CHURCH REOPENING PLANNED BY W. A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 2.— The Women's Association of Trinity United Church held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. V. Fuller on Thursday afternoon. Miss Mae Huycke presided. The worship period was opened with a hymn, scripture by Mrs. D. E. Scriver and a solo, "I must have Jesus with me," by Mrs. W. Tate.

Correspondence included two letters of thanks for flowers received during bereavements.

Business in regards to matters pertaining to the newly rebuilt church, resulted as follows:

The new cupboard will be painted in ivory enamel and Mrs. H. Oliver and Miss Mae Huycke were appointed as a kitchen committee for the month of April. Two members will be appointed each month to look after the dishes. Fourteen sets of rose-colored glass cream and sugar sets were donated by members present.

The Virginia Jubilee Singers will be in the Hastings town hall on April 8th.

A grand re-opening service for Trinity United church will be held on Sunday April 24th. (the Sunday after Easter) when a very special service will be held.

On the Monday April 25th, following the re-opening service, a dinner will be served in the basement of the church, by the W. A. and at the close of the dinner, a play will be presented in the Hasting's town hall by a cast from St. Jame's United church, Peterborough.

Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, Mrs. H. Oliver, Mrs. W. Way, Mrs. R. Collins, Mrs. G. Faux and Mrs. W. Buck were appointed as conveners of the dinner and Mr. Faux and Mr. Buck to take charge of the receipts at the door.

Miss Mae Huycke had planned something novel in the form of a program. Each member was asked to contribute towards the program by giving something in keeping with the spring season or April Fool's Day.

Twenty-one ladies responded to the roll call. Mrs. F. W. Newell presided at the piano for the community singing.

In honor of Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe's birthday, Miss Huycke crowned her "Queen of All Fool's Day" and requested her to read a poem, "April." Mrs. R. C. Collins read a short poem and her daughter Helen told a witty story. Mrs. Flo German gave a humorous reading on "husband" and Mrs. H. Orr a reading on "the Ladies Aid."

Mrs. C. Hoard, Mrs. A. V. German and Mrs. L. E. Kelley as a trio sang "Now I'm Coming Home", with Mrs. Kelley as accompanist.

A conundrum was asked by Mrs. J. Cruikshank. Mrs. A. M. Brook's reading was entitled "Gossip". Mrs. H. Edwards and Mrs. W. Buck gave some April jokes.

Mrs. G. Faux gave a piano solo, "Rolling Jelly". Miss Mae Huycke imitated a little boy telling of something that happened to his sister. Mrs. F. W. Newell sang, "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star; Mrs. C. Baker and Mrs. W. Orr gave short recitation; Miss C. Doxsee gave a demonstration of a pupil playing one of her first music lessons, "My Last Waltz"; Miss Grace Orr told of her recent dream.

During the meeting, Mrs. C. Baker one of Hastings artists sketched the portraits of six members. These were passed around before the close of the meeting.

MUSIC IS KEYNOTE KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Friday was music day for Kiwanians lunching at the Empress Hotel. A school children's choir, a piano duet by two eight-year-old children, a song by Max Gordon, and a speech on "Music and Its Message," by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, were all part of the programme. Fred Haines, principal of the Ontario College of Art, was a guest.

Barbara Jean Craig and Jackie Sutcliffe, both eight, played a piano duet. They are both pupils of Miss Laura MacFarlane, who was also a guest. Both children started playing only last fall. Feature of the entertainment was the singing of a children's choir under the direction of Miss Musa Cox of King George public school. More than thirty pupils, both boys and girls, participated, singing two numbers. Gwen Craw accompanied on the piano. The program was under direction of Dr. Jack Craig.

"Music tells its own story," declared Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe in his short address. "No words are an adequate substitute for music." He said that music's sphere is not of the mind, but of the soul. It cannot be rationalized, although it is governed by fixed laws and may be calculated mathematically. Nevertheless, the speaker declared, a man need not know music in its technical form in order to have a deep love for it; and contrariwise, many a man may know music thoroughly in its technical form and yet be not appreciative of it. Nor do people need to be able to play or sing in order ot appreciate and love music, he said.

"We must emphasize good music if we are to have a good community," the speaker said. He praised the quality of the music heard at the luncheon and urged more instruction of music in schools. Kiwanian Tom Mark moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, who had been introduced by Kiwanian Carl Brown.

Members of the club were urged by Kiwanian Cliff Hall to give full support to the Peterborough Concert Association in its membership drive. He paid tribute to the work of Dr. Jack Craig in sponsoring the idea of this year's concerts, and hoped for an even greater membership next year. Guests at the banquet included Y.M.C.A. officials whose annual drive for funds started Friday night. Those present were G. H. Roper, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; James G. Wharry, general chairman of the drive; W. A. Richardson, director; Charles Shaw, director; Nelson McEwen, national council representative.

JANETVILLE W.I. ENJOYS EUCHRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, April 2.—On Wednesday evening the third in a series of progressive euchre parties sponsored by the local branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson at Yelverton.

The weather and roads were bad but nevertheless more than fifty people gathered to enjoy a social time.

After the games lunch was served by the ladies of Groups V and VI and the winners of the prizes were Mrs. Robert Wright for the ladies, and Omer Capstick for the men.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, music being supplied by Mrs. David Wilson and Mr. George Fowler.

The proceeds amounted to almost $6, the result of a 10c fee.

Gerald McGillI, twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McGill, suffered an unfortunate accident on Wednesday. Gerald was splitting wood at his home here, when in some way he missed the stick and severely gashed the sole of his foot.

The victim was rushed to the office of Dr. Gleeson of Lindsay, where four stitches were found necessary to close the wound. Gerald will be unable to use his foot for some time.

PLAINVILLE

CHOIR SPONSORS CROKINOLE PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PLAINVILLE, April 2.—Tuesday evening the choir of the Plainville United Church sponsored a crokinole party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Carruthers. Twelve tables were occupied for the games and a very enjoyable evening was spent. First prizes were won by Miss Evelyn Brisbin and Murray Manley; consolations by Mrs. Grant Carruthers and Art Newman. The choir members provided a bounteous lunch and the proceeds raised is to purchase new music. A vote of thanks to the host and hostess was moved and seconded by Messrs. Wilbur Cole and T. S. McKinley.

Wednesday evening the Painville-Gore's Landing young people were the guests of the Camborne society. The visitors provided the program, consisting of scripture reading by Miss Emily Pratt; story by Miss Lucy Lander; prayer, led by Edgar Buttars. A quartette composed of Misses Evelyn Brisbin and Bernice McKinlay and Messrs. H. Mellow and Clifford Manley sang "Somebody's Praying," accompanied by Mrs. Mellow. Allan Dines read a poem. George Gray had a very fine topic in keeping with the Passion theme for the evening. Miss Dorothy Harris gave as a piano solo, "In a Monastery Garden." Edgar Bowman was in charge of the program. A sing-song was afterwards led by Mr. and Mrs. Mellow. The Camborne young people entertained with some interesting contests and served a dainty lunch. A vote of thanks was moved to Camborne by Malcolm Buttar.

Collegiate Notes

CONCERT

Two featured artists of the Canadian Concert Association gave a piano recital for the students of P.C.V.S. and St. Peter's High School. The artists, Misses Etta Coles and Naomi Yanova, entertained the audience with eighteenth century dance tunes including gavottes and minuets.

This was the last in a series of recitals given by the members of the Association to the students of the Peterborough high schools. Mr. L. J. Pettit, acting in the absence of Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, announced that by special arrangement, students tickets will be issued by the Canadian Concert Association. These tickets are for the concerts next season. They will sell at $2.50. Provision has been made for an easy payment plan. The first instalment, one dollar and a quarter due anytime this week. The balance is to be paid sometime next October.

The artists featured next year include Reginald Stewart, Miss Gertrude Lawrence, Metropolitan Opera star, and the Truda Schoup Ballet.

This reduced rate gives the young music lovers of Peterborough a real chance to enjoy classical entertainment.

CADETS

The officers and N.C.O.'s have been preparing for considerable time for the annual cadet drills. The organization drill will be held next week. Capt. H. A. Craig is expecting another successful corps this year. Plans are being made for a rifle company. The scheduled officers' drill for Wednesday night was called off because of the pictures. Drills will continue next week as usual.

Cadets who hope to be officers this years must turn out soon to drill as ranks will be given in proportion to the number of drills attended. The corps needs you, so let's see you in the Armouries next Wednesday night after four.

NEW MESS PRESIDENT.

The next mess will be held on the first Friday after Easter. This mess will be presided over by the newly installed president, Capt. Don Duncan and planned by his new committee.

The signallers are drilling regularly now and will have a first class corps under Capt. John Hooper. Captain John Craig is drilling his first aiders now in preparation for certificate examinations.

ECHOES

The time for the publication of the Echoes is drawing near. The magazine will be put into circulation after Easter. A capable staff is looking after it again this year. The editor-in-chief, Ron Dick, is devoting much time to the advancement of the magazine. Each department has its own editor. E. McMahon is in charge of the typing; Edna Borland, art; G. Eason, humour; Bob Hamilton, Format; Ruth Robinson, School News; W. Trotter, advertising; and Catharine White, Form News. With such a capable and conscientious staff, the Echoes of 1938 should be an outstanding success.

OBSERVATION PLATFORM

The Camera Club is not meeting regularly now but the members have been developing and printing as usual. . . . . The Cobourg girls basketball team which ousted our Senior girls last week, defeated Midland to win the C.O.S.S.A. by a score of 24-16. . . . A brightening touch was added to the morning assembly last Friday when a new piece, "Home Town" was introduced. The orchestra received hearty applause from the student body. . . . . The students of P.C.I. will regret to learn that Mr. Bamforth was operated on for appendicitis on Tuesday morning. . . . Congratulations to that fifth former who shamelessly exhibited his new Easter suit just four weeks in advance. . . . Mr. Pettit has been presiding at the morning assemblies owing to the absence of Dr. Kenner.

MOTION PICTURES

The students council has just bought a new motion picture projector and sound track. A comparatively small crowd turned out to see two good reels. The first reel, entitled "Men and Oil," is an educational film depicting the story of the first oil well. This reel was taken from the Paramount feature picture, "High, Wide and Handsome" starring Irene Dunne. It tells the story of the battle between the farmers and the railway companies concerning the establishment of pipe lines. This was one of the dark chapters in industrial history. The other reel was "The Plough that broke the Plains" and is one of a series of American documentary films concerning the re-settlement of sufferers from the drought area. It depicts the story of the middle west and its fight against high winds and hot sun. It shows the agricultural tragedy resulting from the combination of improper use of grazing lands and the rather poor climatic conditions.

ONLY FIVE OTHERS.

The students of P.C.I. should feel proud to know that we are the sixth school in Ontario to buy this apparatus. There are four machines in Toronto and one in Hamilton. The school has paid a large sum of money for this means of educational entertainment and it is only fair that you, as students, should give your support one hundred per cent. There were only a few out to see the pictures and it does not give much encouragement to the school to try other projects to entertain the students. Therefore we want you to see the next show. The admission is only five cents.

BASKETBALL

Both boys' teams journeyed to Toronto to enter the basketball playdowns. The Juniors defeated Trenton by a score of 41 to 12 and the Seniors ousted Picton by winning 39 to 20. Juniors then played Niagara Falls and were eliminated 28 to 11. Following this game the Seniors battled with Niagara Seniors and won the C.O.S.S.A. championship by the close score 21 to 19. On the whole the teams had a successful week-end and returned safely. In all probability the Seniors will go to Kingston to play Ottawa for the C.O.S.S.A. championship and the right to play St. Thomas for the provincial honors.

BODY WASHED UP.

WHEATLEY. — Washed up on a Lake Erie beach five miles east of here, body of an unidentified man in an advanced state of decomposition was found to-day by Forest Renwick, district farmer. Clothing on the body indicated to Provincial Police the man had been a United States sailor.

BODIES OF 2 MEN PROVE MYSTERY

LA SALLE, Ont., April 2 (CP).—Bodies of two men, believed to have been members of United States military and naval units, presented a puzzle to Canadian and United States authorities today.

The bodies, unidentified, were found in Canadian waters yesterday. Both apparently had been in the water for about two months, said Provincial police officers who communicated with United States municipal and military and naval officers in efforts to identify them.

One was picked up five miles east of Wheatley on the shores of Lake Erie. The second was taken from the Detroit River near La Salle, a few miles from the entrance to Lake St. Clair. Wheatley is about 35 miles southeast of La Salle by air line, but approximately 75 miles around the indented coast.

The body found near Wheatley, on the border of Essex and Kent Counties, was that of a man about 50 years of age. It was clad in clothing suggesting he had been a United States sailor. A note found on the body gave the address of F. D. Andrews, R.F.D. 2, Nelsonville, Ohio, and the name of a Miss Elizabeth Gilbraith. It bore no marks of violence.

The La Salle body, taken to a morgue at Windsor, seven miles east, was that of a man of 45. A pin on the coat lapel bore the insignia of the veterans of foreign wars, a United States veterans' unit, and the initials "J. W." on the back.

Looking Back On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

One hundred and forty years ago to-day (April 2, 1798) the little citelled around the small community mostly officials of the government or of the army that during the night there town of Newark, as Niagara had been renamed by Governor Simcoe, had a sensation. Early in the morning news travhad been a jail delivery. At first the good folk thought they were the victims of a belated April fool joke; but they were assured on this point by the town crier who, to sound of bell, told his world that one Allan MacNab had during the night absconded from the jail in which he was imprisoned for debt.

Fred Williams

This Allan NacNab played his part on the stage of early Ontario life, but is mentioned chiefly in history because he was the father of his famous son, Allan also, who was sailor, soldier, legislator, baronet, and generally one of the most colorful figures of the lot. Allan, senior, was in 1798 sergeant-at-arms of the legislative assembly of Upper Canada, and, officially at least, in a good social position; but he was always in debt and ever striving to keep ahead of his creditors. The record does not say at whose instance or for what amount he was in the debtors' prison in that spring of 140 years ago, but it was only one of many, for the MacNabs all had the name of being "fine gentlemen but poor pay." Indeed, the son, in his days in York, followed in his father's footsteps, and was more than once in the debtors' section of the York jail.

The official proclamation announcing the escape was emphatic and in no way complimentary to the escapee, for whom the sheriff had no affection.

"Two hundred dollars reward;
'Home District, Upper Canada, Newark, April 2,1798.

"Broke the jail of this district on the night of the 1st instant. Allan MacNab, a confined debtor. He is a reduced lieutenant of horse, on the halfpay list of the late corps of the Queen's Rangers; aged 38 years or thereabouts; five feet three inches high; fair complexion; light hair; red beard; much marked with smallpox; the middle finger of one of his hands remarkable for an overgrown nail; round shouldered; stoops a little in walking; and although a native of the highlands of Scotland affects much in speaking the Irish dialect. Whoever will apprehend the said Allan MacNab shall receive the above reward and all reasonable expenses."

Dr. Scadding who relates the incident does not tell the sequel. Doubtless Allan MacNab made some compromise with his creditors, for he was soon back at his official duties at Navy Hall, and he attended the baptism of his famous son in St. Mark's church later in debtor would hardly have done unless the sheriff had been satisfied. Nor are we told whether the said fugitive gave as his reason for taking "French leave" of the the spring, which an escaped sheriff's hospitality that his good wife was expecting a visit from the stork and that Newark jail was no place for a man whose son was to become the "greatest Tory of them all," and who was born while the reward quoted above was still displayed on official doors and on taproom walls.

ADMITTED TO BAR IN 10-YEAR FIGHT

TORONTO, April 2.—(CP)—Ontario Legislature private bills committee Friday carried a bill authorizing the Law Society of Upper Canada to admit William E. MacDonald of Mimico as a barrister.

He has been seeking such permission for more than 10 years. The bill carried by a narrow majority.

Mr. MacDonald recaled his membership in the Legislative press gallery as reporter for a Teronto paper and his experience in the press gallery at Ottawa. He set forth in his bill that he was articied as a law student in 1918 but was unable to file articles of clerkship with the Law Society because of absence of a matriculation certificate.

In 1924 the committee approved a bill authorizing the Law Society to admit him as a student in this third year but representatives of the Society subsequently induced him to request withdrawal of the bill on the understanding the Society would obtain the necessary authority to admit his as student.

Mr. MacDonald said he had been engaged in practice with practising solicitors for more than 18 years. He sought only admission as a barrister and would not seek retainers from municipal councils or appear around Toronto police courts seeking clients.

Shell Oil Dealers Hold Meet In City

Head office executives and J. L. Airth, local branch manager of Shell Oil Company of Canada, Limited, held a meeting of Shell dealers and salesmen from this territory at the Canadian Legion Hall.

R. O. Watson, Divisional Manager, greeted the men on behalf of the Shell Company and outlined briefly, plans for 1938. Two talking pictures were shown during the meeting. One of these illustrated in story form, the Company's standards as to the performance of Shell service and station management. Another film, entitled "Wings Over the Atlantic" showed Shell refuelling activities in connection with the transathantic test flights by Imperial Airways. A short skit, enacted by members of the Shell organization was a feature of the program.

QUAKER DEBS ELIMINATE 'Y' GYM JUNIOR BASKETBALL SEMI-FINAL

MAIDS DEFEAT ST. JOHN STARS BY 11-5 COUNT

A big crowd of enthusiastic fans witnessed three sparkling Ladies' Basketball League playoffs last evening in the Y.W.C.A. gym. They were the most exciting fixtures seen there this year, and had the place in an uproar repeatedly as the girls battled it out in all-important tilts.

Quaker Debs eliminated "Y" Gym, 8-4, in the first junior sudden-death semi-final match. Quaker Maids ousted St. John Stars by an 11-5 count in the other sudden-death junior affair. The senior struggle saw St. John Teenites take a 19-16 victory over Westclox in a thriller, the first of their two-in-three finals. Next one will be next Friday at 8.15, while the Debs and Quaker Maids have a sudden-death final at 7.30 that night.

Play was fast and keen in every contest, with some fine passing, shooting and checking shown. The winning gangs all earned their decisions while the losers bowed out only after hard fights. The place was packed with fans, who cheered lustily at the heated action, particularly in the senior playoff.

Tight Battle.

Quaker Debs had a battle on their hands in the first junior playoff before rubbing out the "Y" Gym girls by two baskets. The count was 4-all at the halfway mark, and the losers were scrapping away enthusiastically at the finish. Each side scored twice on free tosses. R. Farr sparked the winners' attack with five points, wrile H. White added three. M. Mitchell topped the losers with two points, and H. Tighe and S. Zacks had one each. The winners showed some neat checking. The teams:

"Y" Gym: M. Mitchell, L. Miles, D. Leeson, S. Florence, H. Tighe, A. Millard, S. Zacks.

Quaker Debs: H. White, M. Andrews, R. Farr, M. Duncan, E. Roberts, B. Frizelle.

Referee, W. Thirnbeck; umpire, J. Cooper.

The senior setto provided plenty of competition for players and thrills for fans. While the Teenites earned a 13-8 margin in the first half, they were outscored in a rousing second session. Led by J. Coleman, who notched 10 points in a fine showing, the Saints' dished up a heap of dash against their strong opponents. E. Gynane got five points for them and A. Bowler four. A. Flynn topped the Clockmakers in scoring with six points, as M. Allison and L. McNaughton got four points apiece. The teams:

Teenites: E. Gynane, J. Coleman, I. Young, A. Bowler, A. Bowler, E. Clark, T. Law, E. Harte-Maxwell, D. Groombridge.

Westclox: J. Crowe, L. McNaughton, C. Metcalfe, M. Allison, A. Flynn, M. Hawthorne, D. Dawson, N. Pammett, P. Wolstenholme, M. Goldie.

Referee, Joe Cooper.

The final fixture of the evening was a speedy junior tussle which saw Quaker Maids show too much offensive punch for St. John Stars and earn the 11-5 decision. But it was a good game with the losers putting up a stiff argument all the way through. The score was 6-2 at the halfway recess, and the Maids had a slight edge in the last chapter. R. Dalliday led the way in sniping for the victors with seven points, and M. Boyle got two. L. Wesley topped the Stars with three and E. Craig had two. The teams:

Stars: E. Craig, L. Ellis, M. Clark, L. Wesley, J. Varty, E. Law, H. Harte-Maxwell.

Quaker Maids: M. Sullivan, M. Boyle, R. Dalliday, E. O'Leary, V. Woods, E. Alexander, D. Frost, A. Frost.

HITTING THE headpins

The Automobile League, hottest aggregation of pin trundlers in Duffus Alley history, wound up their regular schedule on Thursday night. The big timber jam tie for first place among Automotives, Dodge and Hudson teams was finally busted when the desperate Chryslers held a staggering Automotive gang to a 4-4 tie, while Hudsons moved out in the clear with 6 from Cadillacs and Carl Duck's strikeout in the last frames barely saved third place for Dodge team Buicks. Chevrolet fought another heart-breaking battle with Nash, but took another tumble for the whole works. Fords bye gave them 2.

Arnold Worboy of Hudsons, with 724 led Fitzgerald (Buicks) 659, O'Neil (Hudson) 643, Wemp (Hudson) 619 and Holyman (Dodge) 609.

On Thursday, April 7, Automotives and Hudson play off for first and second prizes, and Dodge will take on the winner of a fourth place tie between Buick and Cadillac for third and fourth prizes.

Final Standing

Hudson	50
Automotives	48
Dodge	46
Cadillac	44
Buick	44
Nash	42
Ford	40
Chrysler	28
Chevrolet	18

High three—G. Copping, 809; high single—G. Copping, 330; J. Allen, 300.

Port Hope Bowlers Win

On Thursday night an invasion of Port Hoper's took on a local five and walked out with 3383 pins to 3166. Huffman of Port Hope turned in a nifty 784, while Tom McPhate chased him hard with 774, including a 313 single.

ODDS HOLD EVEN IN JUNIOR TILT

TORONTO, April 2 (CP).—Sudbury Cub Wolves and Oshawa Generals clash tonight in the deciding game of their Memorial Cup playdown series with the betting about even now that burly Johnny Godfrey has returned to the Sudbury lineup.

Godfrey, ace defenceman with the Northern Ontario champions, missed the second game against Generals because of a tonsolitis attack Generals took that one 7-1 and an indication of how much Godfrey means to the team may be gleaned from the fact that when he played in the first game Wolves won 3-2.

Of course, Godfrey is by no means a one-man team, but Manager Maxie Silverman thinks that with the sturdy-blocking defenceman back his rearguard won't be as easy to penetrate as in the second game when Generals romped through almost at ease.

There's a possibility Roy Heximer, one of the Sudbury club's better forwards, might be back for the game. Heximer, who starred last season with Copper Cliff Redmen when that team reached the Memorial Cup final, has been out for a Inside Sporting Dope. Sport Page

CHICAGO CUBS NEED SOMEONE LIKE HUBBELL

If two or three men live up to what is expected of them this year, the Cubs should win the National league pennant without too much trouble. The men are Clay Bryant, pitcher, and Jim Asbell, outfield recruit, from Knoxville.

Clay Bryant has all the stuff he needs to become a standout pitcher Boss Charlie Grimm lacked last year, a fellow like Lon Warneke who can stop a losing streak with one brilliantly pitched game. And if "Big Train" Asbell can live up to that .352 he hit in the Southern last summer, Grimm's outfield worries are over. Another prospect for an important outfield job is H. Coaker Triplett, who is a slugger from the south, also, though his name suggests the Long Island horsey set.

Bryant the Standout?

Grimm expects, with good reason, to get most of his pitching out of Bill Lee, Larry French, Curt Davis and Tex Carleton, with LeRoy Parmelee to help Charley Root with the important detail of finishing games. To make the path to a pennant easier, Grimm wants a standout pitcher, and has just one young man who can fill the role—Clay Bryant. Grimm believes that all Bryant lacks is self-confidence. The manager's job is to convince the Zanesville Zipper that he is the best chucker in the league.

The Cubs lost confidence last summer, which is not surprising in view of some of the casualties, such as Rip Collins' broken ankle and Bill Jurges' bad shoulder. Should anything happen in the infield this year, the Cubs are prepared amply in the person of Tony Lazzeri. Tony is a great help in fetching a crowd of panicked ball players out of a tailspin. The little Italian is calm, a confident fighter, and what's more he thinks. His value to the Cubs cannot be stressed too much.

Grimm counts on Joe Marty to start in centre unless one of the other young men beats him out, and is keeping faith in Augie Galan for left. His belief in Galan, however, is not so abundant, because there are four other people working for a chance at that position — Carl Reynolds and Tuck Stainback, besides Asbell and Triplett. Phil Cavaretta will return to the outfield if Rip Collins can wrest back that job at first.

Counts on Ken O'Dea

Ken O'Dea is being groomed to take Gabby Hartnett's job behind the bat. O'Dea has improved rapidly since he has been told that he is to be the No. 1 catcher.

To conclude with a summation: The Cubs lacked a championship drive last year because they had no trouble-shooter—a pitcher like Hubbell who could stave off demoralization by hurling a masterpiece, or an infield with the experience, brains and confidence to rally the jittery legions around him. That is where Clay Bryant can prove of great service to God and country and the Cubs. And if he doesn't, we'd like to have you watch the technique of Tiny Lazzeri.

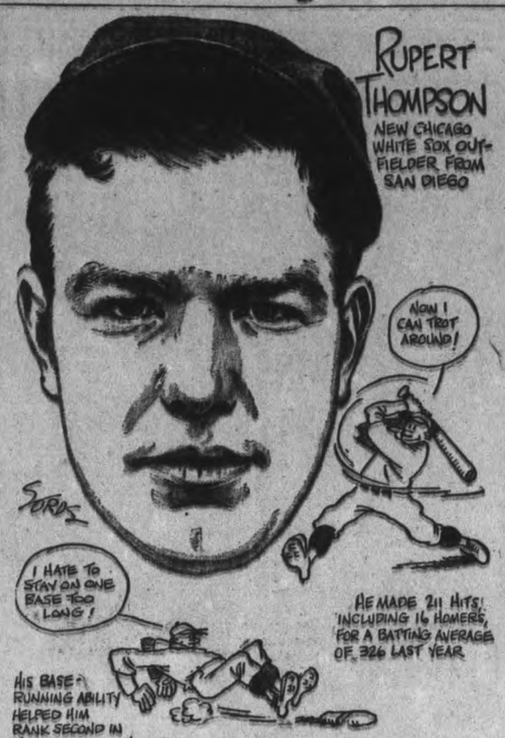
All previous overtime records were broken five years ago tomorrow when Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins clashed at Toronto to decide the National Hockey League title. Little Ken Doraty gave Toronto the title when he banged in the only goal of the game after 164 minutes, 46 seconds of play. Montreal Maroons and Detroit Red Wings eclipsed the mark in the 1936 playoffs when they played 176 minutes, 30 seconds, Red Wings winning 1-0.



Sports DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

SINCE APRIL came in like a snake in sheep's clothing, we imagine chatter of lacrosse, softball or baseball should be somewhat slight for a few days. This is more like hockey weather. And this is a good time, before summer sports steal away the thunder of winter pastimes, to give a parting salute to the local pucksters. To all the minor loops of the town, the Church League, the Southend Circuit, the School Loop, the Junior City League ,the Blood and Thunder Loop, the shop leagues, and the rest. They are very much in the puck picture during the long cold evenings when the motorists are wondering if they have enough anti-freeze in the rad, and they are developing many future O.H.A. stars, as well as keeping a flock of boys busy on the ice and away from the police courts.

* * * * * *

AND, OF course, the O.H.A.-ers, the Colts, Bees and Petes. Hundreds and hundreds of local fans trekked to the Brock St. winter gardens through January, February and March to see the Ontario Hockey Association contests. Scheduled and playoff games, nearly as many of the latter as the former. They saw quite a flock of puck teams in action, and certainly had their best hockey year in a long time. In the slim junior setup the faithful saw Peterborough, Belleville, Havelock and Kingston playing. In intermediate competition, they got a look-see at Peterborough, Whitby, Oshawa, Port Hope and Cobourg. And in senior struggles, they had the opportunity of seeing Peterborough, the Fliers, Belleville, Kingston and Niagara Falls. That makes 14 teams, quite apart from district squads in the Senior City Puck Loop—and that totals up to a raft of puck games.

* * * * * *

AS FOR our O.H.A. outfits, they didn't do too badly, when you consider the size of the town. Our Colts had what we all figure was a bad year, and yet they gave Kingston quite a battle—and the Kingstons look like they'll walk through to cop the O.H.A. junior "B" championship against Barrie No team but Barrie beat them, yet Pat Hayden's locals tied 'em in the first round of the group playdowns Our intermediate Bees started slowly but picked up momentum to grab a third-place playoff slot and then rub out a good Oshawa outfit in group semi-finals, before bowing out to the strong Whitby Red Wings. And both these local teams played before slim home crowds all season.

* * * * * *

YEAH, PAT Hayden's and Herb Payne's crews didn't do too badly at all. The juniors lacked decent competition all winter, else they might have done something. We hope to gosh they get a fair group next cold spell. The Bees went well, and we enjoyed all their games. We missed but one of their out-of-town scraps and took in their playoffs as well as their home fixtures. A good bunch of guys. Didn't see so many junior jousts on account of there weren't so many, anyway! And had to pass up their best showing, that against Kingston in playdowns, on account of we were on the road with the senior "B" Petes that night. The latter crew were a good outfit and we enjoyed going around with 'em.

* * * * * *

THE PETES had all the popularity with the fans this past winter. They could have taken on Fowler's Corners in an exhibition match and quite a raft of cash customers would have been on deck to ante up at the gate. They drew well even against the Belleville Redmen in the schedule, and had bumper crowds for scheduled tilts with the Fliers and Queen's. While their group playoffs with the Airmen packed in the customers here and in Belleville. And the playoff with the Falls jammed in about 2200 fans at increased rates, over 2,000 being paid fans.

* * * * * *

JUST WHY this is the case, we don't know. True the Petes had a lot of color and all kinds of keen competition, but didn't our intermediate Bees have some color and some tough battles, too? But the fans, who pay the freight, said ixnay, and passed up the intermediate and junior O.H.A. tilts in big numbers, and also stayed away from the Senior City Hockey League and other minor scraps by the hundreds. And all th plugging in the papers wouldn't change that. They decided early that they would take in the Petes' tussles, a pretty heavy schedule at that, and that's just what they did. And they certainly saw a lot of fine ice contests. However, we suppose we'd better forget this hockey business now and turn our faces toward the summer's sun.

* * * * * *

C.G.E. GAL softballers already are sort of getting squared around for a summer's activity. Some of them are doing some indoor working out already. Operative 41,763,241½ tells us. The Electrics are getting a bit fed up on seeing Keene and Westclox shift titular honors back and forth, so they plan to be more than a threat this year. They have a new pitcher, name of Forsythe, and an unnamed catcher on deck, so far, our spy says, and they'll trot out a nifty squad. No manager named as yet. We dunno about the Westclox gang but imagine they will more or less stand pat on their last year's championship outfit. And Ab Delahaye will probably again pilot the Armour Hill maidens.

* * * * * *

OUR LACROSSERS are again bestirring themselves, after pulling a bruin act hibernating all winter. Three officers, Vice-Prexy Harry Tudhope, Secretary Jim Lehane and Treasurer Doug Miller, hit up the City Council the other eve for dough for dressing rooms at their arena on George St. But the city pops said nothing doing, as it was a private enterprise, even if the club did spend nearly $1,500 on the spot last year. However, they stated the Council might provide a grant to the club later on, same as a year ago, and the parks' committee was handed the problem. The boys have a fine new arena down there, and the fans educated to seeing this game under the arcs, and it would be nice to finish it off with suitable dressing rooms. But that will come in time, we expect.

* * * * * *

UP AND down Sports' Rialto: First of the City Cage Loop final playoffs is tonight at nine in the "Y" between St. Paul's and C.G.E. . . . . Gal's basketball playoffs at the Y.W. last eve provided plenty of action; dope is in elsewhere . . . . The ball outfield in Riverside Park is nearly all under water now, the usual spring condition . . . . Kingston made it two straight in the best-of-five junior "B" puck playoffs last night over Barrie, 6-4; they meet again Monday . . . . Waterloo Cubs ousted Woodstock last night and now meet Campbellford today in Oshawa in a sudden-death Ontario hockey bantam final . . . . Tony Bonk, London first-sacker, who refused to come to Oshawa, is now in the Louisiana loop . . . . 'Tis said the Harty Arena in Kingston plans to purchase a bigger ice-making plant, and Belleville may be mildly interested in buying the old one . . . . Nothing new on plans for artificial ice here . . . . No word received on last night's O.B.A.A. executive meeting in Niagara Falls . . . . And that winds up this week's work—well, this week's output, then!

SUDBURY PLAYER IS ELIGIBLE FOR JUNIOR SERIES

TORONTO, April 2.—Glen Sutherland yesterday was pronounced eligible to play with Sudbury Wolves in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's junior playdowns.

Sutherland, who came from Brandon, Man., was the bone of contention between Wolves and Oshawa Generals, now engaged in a junior playdown series here. His eligibility was put to a telegraphic vote of members of the Hockey Association's Registration committee, and yesterday W. A. Hewitt, Registrar of the C.A.H.A., announced the vote was in Sutherland's favor.

Wolves and Generals thus will continue their best two-out-of-three Eastern Canada semi-final series on even terms. Each team has won one game, and the deciding contest is scheduled for tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens. Had the vote gone against Sutherland, Sudbury's, win would have been thrown out and the game ordered replayed.

Sutherland originally was granted a transfer by the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association to play with Toronto St. Michael's College, but later lined up with the Wolves, who on their return from a tour of Europe won the junior championship of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association. While in Europe Wolves won the world's amateur title.

DUNCAN DRAFTS FINALS DATES

OTTAWA, April 2.—(CP).—President Cecil Duncan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association last night announced sites and dates of the Allan and Memorial Cup Eastern Canada finals.

The Eastern Allan Cup finals will be played April 4, 6 and 8 provided the series between Cornwall and Falconbridge does not go three games. Cornwall won the first game of the best-of-three playdowns last night and if Falconbridge is eliminated in the second game here to-day, Cornwall will meet Quebec Aces in Montreal April 4 with the second game scheduled for Ottawa April 6 and a third game, if necessary, also in Ottawa, April 8. If the series between Cornwall and Falconbridge went three games the Quebec-Cornwall series would be played April 6, 8 and 11.

If Falconbridge won the series from Cornwall, the first game between the Northern Ontario team and Quebec Aces would be held in Montreal April 6, and the second game at Ottawa April 8. If a third game was necessary, it would be played in Montreal April 11. The second game of the Falconbridge-Quebec series (if Falconbridge eliminates Cornwall) would be played in Ottawa because of another attraction at the Forum in Montreal on April 8.

If Oshawa Generals win their series from Sudbury, the first game of the Perth-Oshawa Memorial Cup Eastern final would be played in Oshawa April 5 and the second here April 7, with a third contest, if necessary, also scheduled for Ottawa April 9. Should Sudbury win from Oshawa, the Sudbury-Perth series would be played here beginning April 5.

BRADENTON, Fla.—Casey Stengel is beaming and that April foolish victory over Dodgers is not the only reason. Casey, who has been crying for basehits since he took over Boston Bees, boasts his club has totalled 65 in the last six games, four of which were against major leaguers.

LAKE CHARLES, La. — Burgess Whitehead, New York Giants' second baseman who missed all the training season at Baton Rouge because of his slow recovery from an appendicitis operation, brought his doctor along when he reported. The doctor is to see that he doesn't overexert.

BRADENTON, Fla. — General Manager Larry MacPhail of the Dodgers, after viewing his club wants to discourage any talk of Brooklyn's finishing in the first division. "We have a better ball club than last year," he said, but otherwise there are "too many ifs."

ORLANDO, Fla. — Catcher Rick Ferrell wasn't at all pleased when Manager Bucky Harris relegated him to eighth place in the Washington batting order, but he w quick to find solace. "I'm the best eight-place hitter in the league," Rick declared.

Four All-Star Ball Victories Show Americans' Superiority

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, it seems to me I kin still hear the customers giving me a barrage of ha has on account of me picking the Boston Bruins to cop the N. H. L. honors from the Toronto Maple Leaves and then the Smythemen turning round and licking the Bostonians 3 straight games. Well all I kin say is if they was starting in to play another 3 outa 5 series tomorrow nite I'd still call the Bruins to win and the chances is they would come through and do it.

True Toronto win 3 in a row but you gotta remember they just had a goal margin in each and 2 of the fixtures went overtime and after all you gotta get a big share of the brakes to win by a nose 3 times in succession.

They Didn't Crack

I'm handing it to the Leaves for I thing. They showed all kinds of fight and they refused to crack up in the face of I one of the hardest and toughest power attacks in hockey. They was time in the last 2 games when the Toronto gang was huddled in behind their own blue line for minutes at a time and yet they battled on and done such a good job of it that Boston never was in front at any stage.

The Wrong System

Personally if I was looking for a goat for this series I'd pick Mister Art. Ross. I may be screwey but the way the thing looks to me is that Boston used the wrong tactics. Here they was with admittedly the best defence in hockey, playing in front of the best net guardian. Obviously a team equipped like that would have its best chance playing orthodox hockey and as the players sez just laying back there waiting for the brakes. Instead the Bruins in the overtime period of the 1st game and practically all through the other 2 battles, staged a continuous ganging act. That not only tossed all their defensive strength into the discard but it seemed to gum up their attack as well because most of the time it was a mad scramble around the Leaves' net, with science forgotten and everybody fighting to bat the rubber into the cage and not showing any system or finesse in the attempt.

Mebbe those tactkicks mighta win for them 99 times outa of a 100 because they had opportunities galore to score but I for I believe they tossed away the serious because they robbed themselves of their strongest asset by the style they chose to play.

Aint going to attempt to do no more picking except to say that all that it requires to make a real joke outa of the Stanley Cup serious is for the Chicago Black Hawks to eliminate the Amerks and then come in to lick the Leaves. That would make it perfect to have a team which finished over 20 points behind the Bruins cop the highest honors. And that wouldn't be much more of a reversal of form and an upsetting of dope than was the tossing of Boston for 3 straight losses.

Well anyway we'll know the answers before long and, meanwhile take care yourself.

Sportfully Yours,
A Wise Cracker.

Nationals Won Mythical Title Once In 1933 At Boston

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP). — Apart from world series results in their favor, American Leaguers argue that victory in four out of five all-star games is clinching proof of their superiority, as a whole, over the Nationals.

A symbolic home run by Babe Ruth topped off the first triumph for the American Leaguers at Chicago in 1933. The Babe has now passed out of the picture, but the Yankees "ganged up" at Washington last year to rout their rivals for the fourth time. The Nationals won only in 1926 at Boston, by a 4-3 margin.

This event, the brainchild of Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune sports editor, began in 1933 as a side-show for the Century of Progress Exposition. Subsequently it was taken over by the two big leagues and has developed the best features of a feud.

National leaguers, starting out, a bit naively perhaps, with the idea it was more of an all-star parade than a "do anything to win" ball game, suddenly found themselves on the defensive. The Americans "levelling for victory, used a minimum of players, stuck to their best combination, and kept pitchers in the box as long as it seemed desirable to produce results. On the average, the Americans used only 14 players per game to the Nationals' 18.

For example, Mel Harder worked the last five innings of the second all-star game, while the Americans came from behind to win by 9-7 at the Polo Grounds. The hero of this contest, however, was the National League's Carl Hubbell, who pitched the first three frames and electrified onlookers by striking out Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons and Cronin in a row.

At Cleveland, in 1935, Lefty Gomez pitched the first six innings of a game that the Americans won by 4-1. As a consequence the rules were changed to limit any pitcher's stint to three innings. This was a bow to the Nationals' theory that the fans wanted to see as many of the all stars as possible in action. Selection of the teams by popular vote, as was done originally, was discarded in favous of having each league pick its own squad. The 1935 game illustrated the lack of unified purpose or action within the National family. The pennant race was close. Managers were reluctant to hold out their aces, for all-star purposes. All but one of the flingers selected, Hal Schumacher of the Giants, worked full games within two or three days of the big show. This influenced Frank Frisch, as team manager, to gamble with a long-shot, Bill Walker, who proved a soft touch for the Americans.

Prexy Ford Frick sounded the rallying call in 1936, with the result the Nationals turned the tide, but they succumbed again to Yankee batting power last year.

JOE LOUIS STOPS THOMAS IN FIFTH ROUND OF CHICAGO FIGHT

BROWN BOMBER IS CONFIDENT SCHMELING WIN

CHICAGO, April 2 (AP).—Brown Bomber Joe Louis, with another notch in his blazing fistic guns, trained his sights today on the only man ever to bring him down—Max Schmeling.

A clashing, fifth round knockout of Harry Thomas last night, Louis' third successful heavyweight title defence since he won the crown last June, was "just another fight" to the Detroit negro. Ahead of him, and constantly in his mind, was the long-awaited chance of settling an old score.

"I'll go at Schmeling from the start and I know I can beat him," he said after the Thomas victory, the Bomber's 38th in 39 professional battles. "I been thinking of Schmeling ever since he knocked me out two years ago and I'll even things up."

"Boy, can that Louis hit!" Thomas exclaimed through puffed lips. "I don't see how Joe can help but stop Schmeling because he hits harder and sharper with both hands than Max does."

The Bomber toyed with Thomas for most of the first three rounds, constantly jabbing and hurting the Eagle Bend, Minn., veteran, who never had been completely knocked out in 60 bouts. Fifteen seconds before the end of the third stanza, Joe made his lightning-fast move for victory.

He threw a terrific right hand smash which caught Thomas between the ear and temple, spinning the Minnesotan completely around. Thomas, his eyes glassy, slid along the ropes, turned around and then sat down on the stool his manager, Nate Lewis, slid under him. Louis was bewildered, but a moment later the bell rang.

Makes Game Stand.

Louis cracked Thomas to the canvas four times in the fourth stanza with vicious rights. Thomas fought back gamely, occasionally landing wild rights, most of them caroming off Joe's arms and shoulders. The end came after two minutes 50 seconds of the fifth round. Thomas went down once for an eight count from a left hook, then staggered up and caught a barrage of lefts which left him groping on hands and knees as the final count ended. Louis, unmarked, lolled against the ropes.

Salt Lake City— Sandor Szabo, 215, Hungary, defeated Ira Dern, 210, Salt Lake City, two of three falls.

KINGSTON WINS FROM BARRIE

MIDLAND, April 2.—Kingston Indians, Limestone City's representatives in the O.H.A. Junior "B" finals handed the Barrie Colts a 6-4 April Fooling here last night before 1,200 fans as Goodfellow and Burtch blasted home two goals in the final 38 seconds of the last period to give their team a 6-4 victory. It was Kingston's second straight win of the three out of five series. The third game will be played here Monday night.

Kingston, notoriously strong finishers, outdid themselves by tallying four of their six goals in the final seconds of the first, second and third periods.

Sunderland Applies For Spot In League

COBOURG, April 2.—Lakeshore Baseball League will have at least one additional team this season, it is expected, Sunderland having asked to be admitted, it was revealed at a meeting of the league executive last night in Cobourg. Teams contemplating entering are to have entries filed in time for the next meeting on April 28. Officers elected last night are: President, Roy Dodge of Cobourg; vice-president, Sid Little of Bowmanville; secretary, Allen Brown of Port Hope.

APOSTOLI WINS FROM GLEN LEE

NEW YORK, April 2.—Fred Apostoli, belting bellhop from San Francisco, smashed back into the middleweight throne room last night by pounding out a decision over sawed-off Glenn Lee of Edison, Neb., in their 15-round return bout before 15,218 fans at Madison Square Garden.

It was an important decision for the handsome, well-proportioned Californian, who had been hailed as "uncrowned king of the middleweights" before losing a decision to young Corbett 3rd on Washington's birthday. It strengthened Frisco Fred's claims as No. 1 challenger.

Not a Savage Battle.

Last night's battle lacked the savagery that Apostoli and Lee displayed in their first 12-round meeting on February 4. That bout was a good old-fashioned back-alley brawl, which Apostoli won by such a slight margin that a return engagement was arranged immediately.

The crowd was officially announced as 15,218. The gross receipts, $43,496.86, and the net $37,243.64.

After the first five rounds the action slowed down, and at times the fans were stamping and yelling for exchanges.

Apostoli, pacing himself beautifully and waiting for openings, won by virtue of his superior boxing and heavier artillery — although Glenn was constantly on the offensive. The decision of Referee Eddie Josephs and Judges Bill Healy and Marty Monroe was unanimous.

AMERKS RULED AS FAVORITES TO BEAT HAWKS

NEW YORK, April 2 (CP)—The last long mile that leads to possible Stanley Cup glory, faced New York Americans and Chicago Black Hawks, two ice-weary hockey teams that arrived in New York today.

Underdogs in their respective preliminary series, the Hawks and Americans reached the cup semi-finals only after bitter three-game struggles and tomorrow night they battle to the finish to decide which club faces Toronto Maple Leafs, National Hockey League champions.

The Hawks who surprised the dopesters by upsetting Montreal Canadiens, downed the Americans 1-0 in overtime at Chicago Thursday night to deadlock the series. Due to their home-ice advantage the A's ruled 7 to 5 favorites along Eighth Avenue.

Manager Red Dutton ordered his charges to report to their Madison Square Garden dressing room this afternoon. Masseurs will work on the aging Americans, weary and tired after playing the equivalent of almost seven games in eight days.

Along the hall, many of Bill Stewart's Hawks will also take turns on the rubbing table. Their playoff campaign has not been as strenuous as that of the Americans but they took a heavy pounding in Chicago.

While the Americans and Hawks worried over their aches and pains, Toronto's young Leafs rested for the final series. They have not been in action since last Tuesday when they crushed Boston Bruins 3-2 for their third straight victory.

Of the three teams in the hunt, only the Americans have never won the trophy presented by Lord Stanley of Preston in 1893, when His Excellency was Governor-General of Canada. Chicago won the cup in 1933-34 while the Leafs were crowned world professional champions in 1931-32.

Nearly 40 per cent, of all goods received into Ecuador last year were from the United States.

34 CATTLE SOLD AT ANNUAL SALE HASTINGS BREEDERS

BELLEVILLE, April 2.—Increased prices over last year were noted at the annual sale of the Belleville District Holstein-Friesian Breeders' Club Wednesday here. Thirty-four cattle were offered for sale during the afternoon, and increases in the prices received ranged from $10 to $25, officials of the club said.

High quality was noted in the animals, and Earl Burnside, president, and Dunam N. Foster, sales manager, were delighted with the success of the auction, 26th held since the club was organized. Norman Montgomery, Belleville, acted as auctioneer.

BETTE DAVIS SUSPENDED

HOLLYWOOD, April 2 (AP). — Bette Davis, first ranking actress on Warner Brothers' lot, was suspended to-day for refusing a role in "Comet Over Broadway." She will draw no salary until she goes to work in another picture, probably six weeks hence.

Miss Davis, a Massachusetts blonde whose most recent screen portrayal was a New Orleans coquette in "Jezebel," has been at odds with her studio before.

In her first strike, she went to England when Warners wanted her to play in "God's Country and the Woman." Legal action forced her to return, but she came back to a different picture.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, April 3

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds auguries of very sudden, surprising and probably mysterious events. While mystical and religious affairs hold lively interest, other matters, suddenly precipitated, may have a rather radical effect on sabbath calm. Peculiar, intriguing or unexplainable situations may arise, causing excitement, sudden moves, much perplexity and some financial hazards.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden and surprising events, with much excitement, commotion, intrigue and peculiar situations to be sagaciously and cautiously managed. Money is at stake, but these singular or subtle matters may be turned to profit by tact, vigilance and shrewdness.

A child born on this day may have a very versatile talents, with forces and faculties out of the ordinary. However, its subtlety, shrewdness and peculiarities may not always result in financial success.

For Monday, April 4

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a very interesting and eventful day, with the mind particularly stimulated to creative and progressive insight and originality. These may incite unexpected change, adventure or inventive achievements of unusual order, but all may win the support of elders or established organizations, although employment seems at cross purposes.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very active and progressive year in which their own original talents or creative genius figure prominently. These may enlist the support of elders or old institutions and cause some important changes, but employment itself may offer certain anxieties. Writings and possessions should flourish.

A child born on this day may be unusually versatile and original thinking of a creative nature. It in its mentality, having sound judgment as well as much advanced may win the support of its elders but not its employers, although it may have much social and friendly popularity.

SWEEPS MAY DIE IN FEDERAL HOUSE

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP)—Legalization of sweepstakes is an issue in Parliament this session as well as in the Ontario Legislature, which passed a resolution yesterday requesting the Dominion Government to legalize sweepstakes to benefit hospitals.

A bill which would amend the Criminal Code to legalize sweepstakes still awaits second reading in the House of Commons. It is sponsored by Ernest Bertrand (Lib., Montreal-Laurier).

It would permit the Dominion or any Provincial government to organize one sweepstake annually with the net proceeds going to "recognized and legally constituted universities and hospitals of the Province" holding the sweepstake.

Mr. Bertrand's bill did not result from agitation in Ontario for legalization of sweepstakes but was put on the order paper several weeks before the subject was broached in the Provincial Legislature.

Observers here are not enthusiastic concerning chances of the Bertrand bill's successful passage. It will likely be referred to committee on second reading and some authorities predict it will be killed there.

It is also uncertain when the House will again consider the Bertrand bill. Being a private member's measure, it can only be discussed during private members' hour Tuesday and Friday nights.

Several sources point out that the Commons threw out a Senate bill of 1934 to legalize sweepstakes and there has been no indication the House has changed its mind to favor such legislation in the interval.

Ontario members have not voiced any opinions in the House yet on the measure.

Grasshoppers Do Millions Of Dollars Of Damage

Grasshoppers do millions of dollars worth of damage to farm crops each year. One method of destroying the insects is shown ABOVE; a sled-like contraption is pulled through the infected field and the 'hoppers, after hitting the back-board, drop into the traps filled with a poison mixture. The 'hopper illustrated ABOVE measured four inches in length and, although larger than the usual grasshopper, is typical of what the farmers must fight.

Canadian-Born Actress Back In A Broadway Hit

Lucile Watson 59, In 582nd Performance Proves Youth, Glamor Not Always Dominant

MONTREAL, April 2 — (CP). — Youth and what they call glamor may dominate the stage, but you can't prove it by Lucile Watson. At the age where most actresses have to look back to find their careers, she's heading toward her 600th performance as the start of a hit show and turning her feet again toward Hollywood.

Miss Watson is not very young; she admits it was back in 1879 she was born in Quebec City. And women of 59 don't have much glamor. So maybe it's just plugging away at being a darn good actress that's been geeting her top billing all these years.

At any rate, she is back in Canada, putting over light comedy in the Montreal of 16 years ago and talking things over with grandmotherly ladies who used to be schoolgirls with her. And chatting of this and that with fascinated young men who've wondered for a long time what an actress' dressing room looks like just before the curtain goes up.

Her 582nd Performance

With the stage set for "Yes, My Darling Daughter" and a call boy warning that curtain time was close, Miss Watson went on discussing the drama and actors and Hollywood while she fixed herself up as the daughter's mother for the 582nd time. She holds decided opinions on all three subjects.

Hollywood especially. She's going there this summer to play in a picture or two, but she'll leave it as fast as she can. "I wouldn't stay there for anything. I'm an actress," she insisted, "not a Hollywood . . ." (Miss Watson fumbled for the word and finally came up with it) . . . "Person."

"Why, of course they're not actors," she said, seeing a look of disbelief or maybe disillusionment. "Surely you knew that before now."

Real acting is found only on the living stage, the veteran trouper said as she tacked on a gadget that pulled in a facial wrinkle or two.

WAR GAMES COST 11 LIVES, 3 PLANES

HONOLULU, April 2 (AP).—Loss of 11 lives and three $100,000 war planes in mock defence of the Hawaiian Island failed to lessen United States naval officials' enthusiasm for aircraft today.

Despite the tragedies and the fact that six other planes were forced down at sea without damage, a high navy officials said the aircraft "performed wonderful services" in scouting thousands of miles of ocean in all directions.

Six of the victims were missing in a plane which dropped out of a six-plane formation during scouting duty Wednesday. Bodies of three other fliers were recovered from a bombing plane which crashed off Oahu Island in a rain squall yesterday. Two more bodies were believed in the submerged fuselage.

The crew of a third plane, forced down and sunk earlier, was rescued.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN HENRERSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, April 2. — The death of Mrs. John Henderson on Sunday at Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, came as a severe shock to her many friends and relatives. Early in the new year the late Mrs. Henderson was seized with a heart attack of a rare nature. Continued similar attacks culminated in her sudden departure at the early age of fifty-eight. She had spent several weeks in hospital where she received medical attention from Toronto as well as Lindsay and sufficiently recovered a fortnight ago to come to the home of a friend in Lindsay to convalesce further before coming to her home at Lifford. However a somewhat serious seizure caused her return to hospital last Thursday and early afternoon Sunday she slept peacefully away. Her remains were brought to her home on Sunday night.

Before her marriage the late Mrs. Henderson was Lizzie Lathangue, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lathangue (Anne Colvin), pioneer residents of this district. She was born at the family homestead at Lifford and received her education at Lifford school. A happy girlhood was spent with her parents, brothers and sisters, she being fifth oldest in a family of nine children.

Twenty-four years ago she was united in marriage to John Henderson by Rev. Finlay MacKintosh of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Lindsay, the greater part of their happy married life being spent in this settlement. To their union was born one son, Kenneth, who survives with his father. The sisters are Mrs. Archie Staples (Minnie), Fleetwood, Mrs. Robert Bell (Annie) Burketon, Mrs. Wm. Patterson (Phoenie) of Toronto, Mrs. Albert Finney (Ola), Fleetwood, and Miss Emma Lathangue at home. The brothers are Edward and William Lathangue on adjoining farms at the old homestead and Obadiah Lathangue of the Western provinces.

The funeral on Tuesday was very largely attended by friends from far and near. The service at the home was conducted by Rev. V. Walsh, pastor of the Janetville Presbyterian church and Rev. Bury, pastor of the United Church at Janetville.

During the service an appropriate solo was feelingly rendered by Percy Preston accompanied by Mrs. Herb Neals. A magnificent abundance of flowers testified to the high esteem in which the deceased lady was held.

The remains were laid to rest in Riverside cemetery, Lindsay, where the aged parents of the departed were laid to rest a few years ago.

MISS ANN HETHERINGTON.

LAKEFIELD, April 2. — The funeral of the late Ann Hetherington, whose death occurred at her home on William street, Lakefield, on Tuesday afternoon, March 29, was held from her late residence on Thursday afternoon, March 31.

Miss Hetherington, who was seventy-nine, died just five days after celebrating her seventy-ninth birthday on March 24. She has been in ill health for many years.

Born in Smith township on March 24, 1859, the deceased was the daughter of Thomas and Mary Hetherington. She spent the first thirty-three years of her life on the farm in Smith, now occupied by Max Kidd, and in 1892, after the death of her father, moved with her mother and sisters to Lakefield where she made her home until her death.

She was predeceased by her father in 1892, by her mother in 1900 and by six sisters and one brother. The late Mrs. Jim Watson of Douro, who died almost thirteen years ago, was a twin sister of the deceased.

The late Miss Hetherington was a member of St. John the Baptist Anglican church, Lakefield.

Rev. Creighton, pastor of the church, conducted the funeral service. The pall-bearers were six nephews, Messrs. Stanley R. Rosborough, Everett R. Rosborough, G. Alex Rosborough, all of Smith; Archie Rosborough of Peterborough, T. J. Watson of Cobourg and Victor Sweeting of Springville.

Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

ROBERT VANSICKLE.

HAVELOCK, April 2. — The funeral of the late Robert Vansickle, whose death came quite suddenly on Tuesday evening, was held on Thursday afternoon from his home on George street, Havelock. The service was conducted by Rev. S. A. Kemp of the United church, with Rec. C. A. Harris, of the Pentecostal church, assisting.

The late Mr. Vansickle was born at Vansickle Settlement, north of Marmora, 74 years ago, one of a family of eight sons. He married the former Sarah Hamilton, of Marmora and farmed near Oak Lake until he moved to Havelock about 18 years ago. Until four years ago he was a foreman on the county roads. He has not been enjoying the best of health for several years.

A sad feature connected with the death was the misfortune of his wife to break her collar-bone yesterday morning, making it impossible for her to attend the funeral. She suffered the injury in a fall following a heart attack.

Besides his wife he is survived by an only daughter, Mrs. Stanley Miles, of town, and two grandchildren; also seven brothers, John of Vansickle Settlement; Harry, of Marmora; David, of Havelock; Thomas, of Timmins; Fred, of Colborne; George, of Dakota; and Joseph of Toronto.

Interment took place at Maple Grove cemetery. Pall-bearers were: Messrs. John Wiggins, Fred Wrightly, Eugene McLaughlin, Henry McLaughlin, George Newton and Charles Menzies.

FIND HEAVY WATER SLOWS UP CANCER

BALATIMORE, April 2.—(AP). — Newest step toward the control of cancer was reported to-day before the Federated Biological Societies by two Yale University scientists who said "heavy water," a weightier twin sister of ordinary water, will slow up the growth of some types of cancer.

Dr. Henry G. Barbour and Dr. Edgar Allen announced they had been able to check the growth of carcinoma and lymphosarcoma, two of the many kinds of cancer, in mice merely by giving them heavy water to drink instead of ordinary water. It has not been tried in human beings.

In the experiment reported, the Yale scientists transplanted cancer growths into the mice. Then they divided the group, half of which received heavy water to drink, the other half ordinary water. The half which drank ordinary water died twice as quickly from cancer as those which drank heavy water.

The condition of the mice drinking heavy water was "compatible with healthy existence for four months, and perhaps indefinitely," they added, but additional experiments must be done on normal mice drinking it.

Nevertheless, scientists attending the meeting declared that the new use of heavy water, a scientific curiosity a few years ago, opens up an unexplored field in cancer research 'which may prove profitable.' It is already in wide use as a "label" in medical research. When mixed with various drugs and chemicals it is not absorbed as readily as ordinary water and its presence serves to trace the other materials to any organ.

TWEED

6 ARE BADLY CUT AS 2 CARS CRASH IN STIRLING AREA

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 2.—Six persons sustained severe injuries and two automobiles were almost demolished during a rear-end collision on Highway No. 14, north of Stirling. The cars were driven by Wm. H. Ketcheson, Flinton, and Robert McMurray, of Harold. The injuries sustained were the direct result of flying glass.

The injured persons were Robert McMurray, cuts on forehead; Mrs. McMurray, bruises and shock; Christine McMurray, 24, cut on hand and bruises; Clayton McMurray, 20, concussion and head lacerations; Asa Lloyd, Belleville, who was a passenger in the car driven by Ketcheson, sustained severe facial injuries, suffered from general shaking up, while Ketcheson escaped uninjured. The injured persons received medical attention at Stirling.

Motorcycle Patrolman Caldwell of Trenton investigated the accident and found McMurray was proceeding northerly out of Stirling when the car driven by Ketcheson overtook the McMurray car travelling in the same direction. Caldwell found that the Ketcheson driven car must have smashed into the rear of McMurray's vehicle.

Hillier Thompson, Northbrook flier, escaped with minor injuries when the aeroplane which he recently purchased from Leavens Brothers, Toronto, crashed at St. Petersburg, Florida, last week. The machine was a complete wreck. According to Thompson's story to newspapermen, he was flying at an altitude of one thousand feet, when the 'plane appeared to be losing speed and the pilot had visions of a forced landing in the city's business section. However, he was successful in bringing the 'plane to earth near one of the public parks. Striking a large pine tree the engine was driven backward into the cock-pit. Thompson's escape from serious injury or possible death was miraculous. No attempt will be made to repair the 'plane, and the owner is proceedings to his home at Northbrook. He left for the south several weeks ago, in company with two Bancroft men. While in the south he was engaged in commercial flying.

Hubbel and Son have closed their lumber camps after a very successful season. Sawing operations will commence shortly. Between six and seven million feet of lumber will be manufactured this season in their plant at Paudash Lake.

The unsettled conditions and the war scare in Europe make the lumber market very uncertain at present. Hubbel and Son provide employment for a number of men, summer and winter. Other heavy operators are Martin Bros. at Baptiste and D. K. Card at Porterville.

The waters of Stoco Lake have been rising rapidly during the past few days, but still are some distance below the high water level of two years ago. The ice is gradually breaking up owing to the extremely mild weather, and there is little likelihood of a further rise in the water. No damage has been reported at the Park, which is partially flooded, as is usual at this time of the year.

The open season for muskrat trapping now being open, the prospects appear better for the trappers this year than for several seasons past. In this district muskrats appear to have come through the winter without loss from rising and falling water and other conditions which caused the death of many last year, as they were driven from their homes or destroyed by high water.

Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the log house situated on the Madoc-Belleville highway, one mile south of the village of Madoc. The house was an old landmark dating back many years, and was built by the late James O'Donnel ,on O'Donnell's Hill. It was occupied by Mrs. Taylor, and owned by the Misses Danford. The house was partially covered by insurance.

LAKEFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sherin and son Harry, of Lakefield, who spent the past three months in Orlando, Florida, returned on Tuesday last to their home here.

Mrs. F. J. Burgess returned on Thursday, March 31, from Peterborough, where she spent the past week with her sisters, Misses Verna Lelia and Doris Burgess.

Navy Fliers Who Died Off Hawaii

Pilot L. O. Crane, of Nashville, Tenn., (in uniform) and Aviation Cadet W. A. Lear, Davis, Cal., were among the five U.S. navy fliers who died when their giant patrol bombing plane crashed into the Pacific during annual manoeuvres off the Island of Oahu, Hawaii.

Artificial Livestock Breeding Gives 40 p.c. More Calves

90 New Jersey Herd Owners To Try Plan Using Sire Named Alice

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 2—(AP).—With artificial breeding many of New Jersey's future calves are going to have the same papa and his name is Alice.

This is the outcome of inauguaration here recently of the first artificial insemination society in the United States. It was organized by the Holstein-Fresian Association of America. Allen N. Crissey of the association's extension service today told of the plans.

The first sire chosen for the experiment of N.J.E.S. Sir Mutual Ormsby Jewel Alice—known for short as Alice. He was leased for the experiment.

"He is," Mr. Crissey said, "one of the oustanding proved bulls of the United States. His first 13 daughters averaged 15,470 pounds of 3.85 per cent milk and 506 pounds of fat."

More calves are expected from the new arrangement. Mr. Crissey said that a similar organization, started in Denmark two years ago, and known as the Elite Breeding Society of Dams, reported a 40 per cent better record of conceptions than by natural means.

The New Jersey association started with 90 farmers owning nearly 1,000 cows which they wished to breed by the new method. One advantage claimed by the artificial breeders is that the space now used for a bull can be turned over to calf pens or for additional milk cows.

Toronto Loses Out On Anti-Noise Bill

TORONTO, April 2—(CP).—Toronto's effort to stamp out "unnecessary noise" failed to-day. The Ontario Legislature Private Bills committee killed a clause in a city bill seeking validation of its noise-regulation by-law.

Samples of what the invalidated by-law called unnecessary noises: Any sound made by any animal or bird which disturbs the peace, quiet, comfort or repose of any individual in the neighborhood; the grating, grinding or rattling noise or sound caused by a condition of disrepair or maladjustment of any motor vehicle, motorcycle or other vehicle whatsoever or part thereof.

The committee also threw out a clause in the city bill saying it should not be necessary for council in any year to raise or levy for purposes of any existing sinking fund any sum exceeding in amount a sum to be certified by the city auditor as sufficient to be raised in the year to keep the fund actuarially sound.

Many A Man
Has escaped a nervous breakdown

It is now becoming generally known, by word of mouth from one person to another, that scores of nervous, worried business men attribute their escape from nervous collapse to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Business cares and worries of recent years have made men old before their time. Almost daily you read of prominent men dropping out in the very prime of life.

Others have survived, because they learned in time of a way to restore nerve force to the body. As a result, weak, halting vital organs have again assumed their natural functions. Rest and sleep have become possible, and mind and body have been restored to normal. If you find yourself slipping ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. In almost every family there is some one who has profited by use of this modern restorative.

CONTROLLER DR. FRED CONBOY LAUNCHES Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN

Need For Y.M. Never Greater Should Go Out And Grasp Young Men Needing Attention

Financial Drive To Secure $8,500 Is Given a Rousing Start

"More people at the present time need the assistance of such organizations as the Y.M.C.A. than ever before," declared Controller Dr. Fred Conboy of Toronto in an inspiring address before the members of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. campaign teams at a lively banquet last night that saw the financial drive for $8,500 given a rousing start.

Dr. Conboy's earnest and convincing tribute to the great contribution to community welfare that has been and is being made by the Y.M.C.A. was a most fitting start to a campaign that is bound to succeed, if the enthusiasm shown by the teams last night is any criterion.

With James G. Wharry, general chairman of the campaign, performing the duties of banquet chairman in able fashion, the opening function was a most enjoyable affair. An excellent menu was efficiently served by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

At the head table, in addition to the chairman and guest of honor, were: John R. Marshall, W. A. Richardson, George A. Gillespie, J. J. Turner, Ross Dobbin, and Nelson McEwen, national boys' secretary of the Y.M.C.A., who is assisting in the local drive.

A novelty that made a decided hit was the appearance of Ralph Pollock, a member of the beginners' section of the boys' department who, clad in a rugby suit, helmet an dall, like the boy whose picture appears in the campaign folder, started the affair off at the right tempo with "Let's go, boys," appeal to the canvassers.

The campaign majors are J. A. McKone, leading the Blue Roosters, and Ken N. Kingston, in command of the Red Roosters. Under them ten teams in command of the following captains, T. A. MacKay, Chief George E. Gimblett, Col. J. A. Dewart, Paige Rowell, C. H. Elliott, D. T. Diplock, G. H Eastwood, G. E. Nicholls, D. A. Loomis and Robert Simmons.

At the conclusion of the repast John R. Marshall expressed the thanks of the gathering to the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

In a breezy speech General Chairman Wharry thanked the members for the very fine assistance they had already given him and for the very fine spirit of co-operation they had shown. He also paid a tribute to Charles Shaw for the organization he had built up in previous financial campaigns. Mr. Wharry introduced the speaker, Dr. Conboy, as likely to be the next Mayor of Toronto.

Toronto's Greetings

The guest speaker began by saying that he brought with him the best wishes of Mayor Day and the members of Toronto city council for the success of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A's campaign. There was great need, he pointed out for such organizations and many people who had been hard hit by the depression and afterward by the recession who required the assistance of the Y.M.C.A. In many cases the home had broken down, the speaker said, connections with the church had been severed and it was essential that organizations of the type of the Y.M.C.A. should be available, in fact not only available but they go out and grasp the young men who needed their help.

Controller Conboy said that he was glad to see that the members of the committee were prepared to put the thing through by their own efforts and the generosity of private givers. More and more people were trying to load all kinds of obligations upon governments and the consequence was that real estate would soon not be able to carry the burdens that were being piled upon it.

"No institution outside of the Christian church has a better record than the Y.M.C.A.," declared Dr. Conboy as he went on to stress what the institution had done to build up young men physically, intellectually and morally. A very fine piece of work was being done, he said, in providing for the physical well-being of young men, and here Dr. Conboy stressed the importance of health as a success factory.

How to Live

Again the Y.M.C.A., the speaker argued, was teaching youth how to live, how to get proper nourishment, make proper use of his body, and protect himself against the enemies of injury, poisons, germs and fatigue. Further as the poor boy's university it was building up the mental power of young men, teaching them to think, remember and imagine and finally the institution was strengthening the moral fibre of young men and teaching them to put first things first.

"It is a partiotic duty to rally to the support of such an organization," Controller Conboy declared emphatically.

W. A. Richardson voiced the thanks of the gathering to the guest speaker.

Nelson McEwen, national boys' secretary, added a few words of inspiration and advice to the members of the campaign teams before prayer by Rev. George Easton ended a most happy function.

Farewell Banquet

John I. Allen bade farewell to a business career of 29 years in Peterborough on Friday night when he was host to nearly a hundred employees and associates of the Prudential Life Insurance company, at a banquet held at the Kawartha club. Company home office officials were present from Newark, N.J., to do honor to the retiring district superintendent on the eve of his retirement. TOP LEFT shows a group of company officials and friends. Seated from LEFT to RIGHT are John I. Allen, his son Fred Allen, now with the home office, and Mayor James Hamilton. In the back row from LEFT to RIGHT are A. R. Traynor, Dominion supervisor; Ellis Crater, Canadian division manager; F. L. Hilliard, inspector and acting Peterborough superintendent; E. J. McIvor, assistant secretary; Dr. A. W. McPherson, medical examiner for the company here. Mr. and Mrs. John I. Allen are shown in TOP RIGHT behind of the huge baskets of flowers that topped each table. Three pretty guests are seen BELOW. From LEFT to RIGHT they are Miss Helen Ludbrook, Mrs. F. Maybee, Miss Marion Best.

Business Associates Pay Tribute To John I. Allen

Presentations Are Made To Both Mr. And Mrs. Allen

John I. Allen, retiring district superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance company, bade farewell to his business associates, some of them of as long as 29 years standing, at a banquet at the Kawartha club on Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Allen were hosts to nearly a hundred people who have been his business friends since the couple came to Peterborough in 1909.

The club's banquet hall was crowded and beautiful spring flowers tumbled in profusion at every table. At the conclusion they were sent to Nicholls and St. Joseph's hospitals at the expressed wish of Mr. Allen.

A long banquet at which nearly a dozen speakers paid tribute to the retiring insurance leader, reached its climax when members of the staff answered the "board call", a regular morning office routine, by reading brief messages of congratulation and affection. A. W. Wray, oldest employee of the company in Peterborough, presented the manager with a wrist watch on behalf of the employees; Thomas Best, assistant superintendent, presented a pipe as a token of esteem from the assistant superintendents. Mrs. Allen received a large bouquet of roses from the staff. The banquet was followed by cards and dancing until a late hour.

Mayor James Hamilton paid tribute on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough to the retiring insurance man "for the contribution he has made to the well being of the people of this city." His insurance sales have resulted in happiness for hundreds of people and his keen interest in civic affairs has been of untold benefit, the Mayor said.

E. J. McIvor, assistant secretary of the Prudential Life; A. R. Traynor, Dominion supervisor; Ellis Crater, Canadian division manager; and Fred Allen, son of John I. Allen, all paid tribute to their business associate. All had travelled from the company's home office at Newark, N. J., to honor their fellow employee who has spent 34 years in insurance, 29 of them in Peterborough.

Company Officials Present

"He is a good citizen, a faithful insurance servant, and a good friedn," declared Mr. McIvor. "I am proud to count him my friend because of what he is and what he has been."

"Today Mr. Allen is the company in this part of Canada and I am sure the company is content to be considered on that understanding," said A. R. Traynor.

"His record as a superintendent speaks for itself," declared Ellis Crater.

"I am glad we are not going to lose the Allen influence, for I have on my right a chip off the old block in the person of his son, Fred, who is with us in our home office."

"If I can measure up in any way to my father, I will count myself a success," said Fred Allen in touching tribute.

Vincent Eastwood, who, as manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here 29 years ago, took the branch's first deposit of twenty cents, and H. C. Sootheran, present manager, also spoke briefly in tribute. Dr. A. W. MacPherson, the firm's senior medical examiner, spoke feelingly.

NATIONS OF WORLD ARE MAKING READY FOR GREAT BATTLE

"The nations of the world are making ready for the last and greatest battle of the twentieth century, the scene of which will be centred in Palestine," were the opening words of Eric B. de Pendleton, former Anglican pastor of Wilberforce and representing the British-Israel World Federation to the largest meeting of the season in the Paragon Hall Friday night.

Speaking on the subject of Armageddon, accompanied by lantern slides, he began by proving that it was a British not a Jewish army which conquered Palestine in 1917 A.D. Prophecy clearly indicated that Jerusalem would cease 'to be trodden down of the Gentiles,' as a result of this deliverance and therefore it is obvious that the nation which effected this deliverance could not have been Gentile. If the British people are not Gentile, they must be Israel. This is evident from the very logic of the situation apart from the many other vital facts establishing identity.

The deliverance of Jerusalem marked an important stage in the period defined as being the end of the times of the Gentiles. The 'blindness in part,' which it was prophesied would prevent the Israel people becoming conscious of their identity until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in,' has been steadily passing away since this date.

It was to Abraham, father of the British, that the promise was made: "All the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it and to thy seed forever.' The promise was repeated and confirmed by covenant in 1913 B.C.: 'Unto thy seed have I given this land fro mthe river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates; and again: "I will give unto thee and to thy seed after thee, all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession.' Thus across the span of years 1918B.C. to A.D. 1918 the people of Israel once again took possession of the land of Israel.

To-day the British people have become the 'nation and company of nations,' of Gen. xxxv, 11, that it was the declared destiny of the seed of Abraham to become.

When the northern kingdom of Israel was taken away captive into Assyria, they changed their name from the House of Israel to the House of Issac. It was clearly predicted that the covenant line of descent, would be invested in this name, thus: 'In Isaac shall thy seed be called.' As the Beth-Sak, Sacae, or Saxons, the Israel people migrated across Europe into the British Isles. Angles, Jutes and Danes were all sections of the Saxon race during its migration. The Anglo-Saxon race are the Israel people charged with the supreme task of establishing on earth, the conditions of the kingdom of God.

"When the southern kingdom of Judah was taken away captive into Babylon, only a remnant had survived the previous assault of the king of Asyria, 'who took all the fenced cities of Judah' into captivity. A remnant of the Babylon captivity ultimately returned to Palestine under Ezra and Nehemiah and formed the nation of the Jews, which was in existence during the time of our Lord. This nation was finally destroyed in A.D. 70 by Titus, and the survivors were dispersed all over the world.

"It is vital to understand the distinction between the Israel migration and the Jewish dispersion. The Jews are a remnant of Judah who have remained dispersed throughout the Christian dispensation, but have always retained the name Israel. The Israel people are the so-called lost ten tribes, migrated under the name Saxon into the appointed place or isles of the sea, where they have developed as prophesied into a world wide commonwealth but under another name.

Canadian Legion Notes

A chield's amang ye takin' notes, and, faith, he'll print them.—Burns.

The newly elected president, officers and executive of branch No. 52 send their greetings to all members and ex-service men of the district and beg to assure them that during their term of office they will consistently endeavor to promote the welfare of all ex-service men. They ask for the co-operation of all the members in the prosecution of the work of the branch and in an endeavour to make the Legion a live force in the life of the community.

If any member has a grievance or complaint place the matter before the executive and talk it over. You will be received with courtesy and if the complaint is well founded an effort will be made to rectify it. Do not talk the matter over in a beverage room, they cannot rectify it—they only sell beer.

If you see two members talking quietly together don't jump to conclusions, they may not be plotting to blow up the Legion Hall, one may be explaining how his cancer is coming along.

The cribbage contest is well under way with twenty-five contestants and to date Comrades Hawthorne, Airies, Mackness, Wilford, Bacon and Gracie have won their heats.

A grand carpet bowling tournament will be held in the auditorium of the Legion Hall on Wednesday, April 6th, at 7 p.m. It is expected that a large number of teams from the district will compete and members are invited to see the games.

The Ladies' Auxiliary hold their meeting in the ladies' room on Monday next, April 4th.

MUSIC ENJOYED.

Harry and Stanley Northrop supplied a most enjoyable musical interlude at the Y.M.C.A. banquet last night, with two very finely played violin and piano duets, "Pale Moon" and "From the Cane Brake." Their music was thoroughly appreciated.

LESSOR IS CHARGED IN CRAP GAME RAID

There were more echoes from the police raid upon a crap game at 169 Charlotte street last week in police court this morning, when William Miller was charged as the lessor of the premises, with knowingly permitting a part of the building to be used as a disorderly house. The case was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Three young men charged with being "found in" when the police squad raided the place were each fined $10 and $3.25 costs.

L. J. Evans of Lindsay, charged with the heft of the use of a car belonging to Arnold Bruce, pleaded not guilty and obtained an adjournment until Tuesday morning.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER I

THE MUSICIANS had gathered early to rehearse for the Rinehart-Jameson nuptials which were scheduled for four o'clock, according to the engraved invitations that the postman had delivered to 200 local doors. Now the cello and violin sweet and tremulous, followed the well-worn path to happiness as Barbara Kingsley walked down Center street.

But Barbara, instead of throwing her bright head higher to hold the rhythm, suddenly put her tanned hands over ears and ducked into the back entrance of the Martinsville Post. She was weary of weddings. If it hadn't been for her job as society editor, she murmured to herself as she climbed the stairs to the editorial room, nothing could have coaxed her to Marie Rinehart's wedding.

"Not 100 invitations all embossed in gold braid on white satin," she magnified the bride's social gesture as she tossed her large leghorn hat on the exchange table where it would be in everyone's way, ran slim, restless fingers through her unruly chestnut curls, and slid a sheet of yellaw copy paper under the rubber roll of her typewriter. "Weddings should take place at a city hall at noon, and there should be no flowers!"

"Why?"

She didn't know that she had spoken out loud until Peter Baxter, the managing editor, interrupted her reverie. He strolled over to her desk and leaned against it. He was tall, gangling and kindly. One lock of hair persisted in falling over one eye, and his face was homely but rugged and distinguished, though no one ever could decide where the distinction lay.

"How can a bride know if she loves the man when the whole frameup is influencing her that way?" Barbara asked candidly.

"Her mind should be made up earlier, my dear young lady! What is eating? The church doings make swell society copy, don't they?"

Barbara nodded slowly, studying Peter under the thick dark lashes that screened her gray-green eyes. "Excellent, Peter! Grist for the mill—except I'm running out of adjectives to describe the bride's dresses. Peter, they all follow the same pattern but they all want to look different."

Peter laughed, and the smile made his face very young.

"You're doing all right, Babbs." He surveyed the green lace frock that his society editor was wearing. "Good looking dress."

"It was cream-colored last year. I dyed it. But it will make the grade, don't you think? Especially at weddings. Nobody sees anyone but the bride and her bridesmaids."

Peter was not inspecting the dress. His eyes were lingering on the large, dark eyes of the girl at the desk, her tilted nose, and the red mouth that flew upward after the manner of her eyelashes. There was something about her—winging, singing. He could not define it. When he spoke his voice was light enough. "Some day, when we have an hour off between editions, remind me to ask you to hunt up the marriage license bureau with me, honey."

Barbara laughed but her eyes clouded. Good old Peter! He was grand—about the grandest person in Martinsville. They had been close friends, good companions, since that day two years ago when she had come home from college to apply for a job on his paper.

She remembered the scene now. "What do you want to do?" Peter had asked.

"Write," she answered cheerfully, though her heart was doing a series of figure eights. "I'd like a typewriter, a desk, and a lot of work."

"I can give you all three. Miss Abbie, the society editor, is leaving us next month. She's retiring. Suppose you sit in on her beat, get the hang of it. Then, if you like it, we can talk business."

So now, for two years, she had informed the public through the columns of the Post when one person married another, two people had a baby, the churches held chicken dinners, and people's relatives came to visit.

Peter had asked Barbara, that day, why she was leaving college.

"I'm necessary at home," her answer came. "Or maybe just unnecessary away from hime. My uncle reared me with my cousin Julia, his own daughter. His life insurance wil itake care of Julia and my aunt but I'm on my own. And there isn't any place to go, in my penniless state, except home."

"Julia Kingsley?" Even now Barbara remembered the man's surprised voice.? "So she's your cousin!"

"You know her?"

Ever since she was nine and Julia 10, Julia had knocked Adam's grandsons for so many colored loops. Her hair was yellow as spun sunshine, and if her eyes were as calculating as an adding machine, her voice was so soft it screened the direct glare.

"Ive met her. Are you alike?"

"Not very much."

"Good! Come on and meet Miss Abbie."

It wasn't until later that Barbara learned about the young reporter on the staff whose heart had been knocked east and west by Julia's charms and finally dropped into her romantic wastepaper basket, Peter, fond of the boy, had taken a dislike to Julia.

The wedding music came singing through the windows.

Peter stood up. "I'm going to lunch. Haven't eaten yet. Keep house, Babbs." She heard his step going down the stairs.

Then she got up and banged down the wide window.

"So that's what you think of weddings!" The voice that spoke was young and deep and amused.

Barbara turned swiftly. The man who went with the voice was tall and bronzed and his hair was light and bright. His profile was decidedly worth a second glance. His eyes didn't release hers. He was a stranger.

"I'm tired of keeping step to Mendelssohn," Barbara answered, and her voice was a little breathless. "I even type to rhythm. But is there something I can do for you?"

He smiled again. "Is your editor around?"

"He's across the street at the Brown Shanty eating lunch. He never stays long." Inconsistently, since her desk held a sheathe of notes waiting to be typed, she wished that this man would loiter.

"I'll catch him there, then. By the way, how do I contact a girl named Julia Kingsley? I just arrived and it seems I am supposed to find her."

"Oh, you're here for the wedding?" Julia was a bridesmaid. One usher had been unable to come for the pre-nuptial festivities. This must be the man. "Julia is beautiful. She'll like you, and you'll turn a somersault for her." Barbara knew her eyes were mocking and her voice a little bitter.

When the man had gone, she put another piece of paper in her typewriter with such vollence that the whole alphabet trembled. Why had he come to the office, anyway? What did he want?

Peter returned and the time for the wedding drew near. Barbara jammed some copy paper in her bag, pulled the leghorn hat over her curls, and picked up her gloves.

Across the church a tall young man with mischievious eyes was escorting the bridegroome's friends to their places. He did not see Barbara until the wedding party was standing before the minister. Then recognition came swiftly and he smiled. All of a sudden the bridesmaids' frocks were a lovely pink, the minister was bequeathing Paradise to two people, and the music to which the bridal party presently marched away was a shining ribbon of sound.

Barbara went to the reception just long enough to wish the bride happiness. When she passed the tall usher with the rought, bright hair, he said: "Your staying for the wedding supper, of course? I'll see you later."

She smiled. There was no real reason for telling him that she was not even invited to the wedding supper. She would go back to the office and work.

Why Does a Man Fall in Love With a Girl?

Win Man of Your Choice

What is it that makes a man fall in love? What must a girl do and say to kindle the light of love?

Girls who win know that no single word or act does the trick. It's a hundred and one little wiles, none very effective alone. Cleverly combined, they sweep a man off his feet.

Here are a few! Appear to be happy—all smiles—in his presence, yet don't let him think he absorbs your entire interest. Be lavish in appreciation of little things he does for you. Yet show that you expect courtesies and considerations.

You, too, can easily attract suitors or hold a husband.

Our 32-page booklet teaches you to be irresistible. Allure is an art. Master it—and win the object of your affections.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of HOW TO WIN AND HOLD LOVE to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

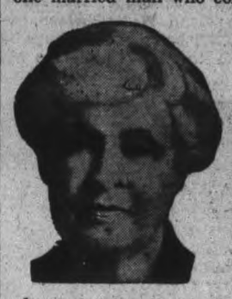
DOROTHY DIX

Don't Look at the Failures When You Contemplate Marriage —Five Out of Every Six Are Successful, and It Will Be Entirely Up to You if Your Venture Is to Be a Happy One.



DEAR MISS DIX—There are six girls in our office and we all have marriage as our aim in life. However, there is one married man who constantly discourages us at every turn. He does nothing but talk against it and says there is no such thing as a happy marriage. He has been married twice. What is your opinion on this subject?

SIX ANXIOUS DAMSELS.

Answer:

Marriage is like everything else on earth. Whether it is a success or a failure depends altogether upon the individuals who go into it and what they put into it. There are people who never make a go of anything they undertake. There are others who always put it over. It is the men and women, not the job, that counts.

If you never attempted anything that was not a foolproof cinch, in which you could not lose out, you would never go into anything. You would sit on the do-nothing stool with folded hands the balance of your life and starve to death. But you don't do that. You Say to yourself: "Maybe Mary Jane is a bum saleswoman, but I'll show 'em. Maybe Sally is always getting fired as a stenographer, but I bet they will never fire me. Maybe Jane can't cook, but I'm going to be a chefess." And so you roll up your sleeves and tighten your girdle and tackle a job, and you succeed where the other girls have failed.

And it is just exactly that way about marriage. A lot of marriages do go on the rocks. A lot of girls do get husbands who are poor pickups instead of Prince Charmings. A lot of girls do think they made a bad swap when they exchanged a mahogany desk and a good pay envelope for a cook stove and no salary. A lot of husbands are inconsiderate, grouchy and hard to live with. One marriage in six does end in divorce. But that one needn't be yours, and it won't be yours if you work as hard to be a good wife as you are a good secretary or saleswoman.

For if there are mean husbands, there are good ones, too. If there are cross and surly ones, there are those who are sweet-tempered and tender and kind. And if marriage is often a fourteen-hour-a-day job, it is working for yourself and building up a home for your old age, and the toil that you do for those who you love better than you do yourself isn't slavery. It is the finest and keenest joy in the world. And if the wife job isn't as spectacular as it is to be the head of a department, it is one you can't be fired from when times get slack or you get old.

And when a woman gets married and has her husband, children and home she is doing the work that God intended her to do ,and she is happier and better satisfied in it than she is in any career. So don't listen to the pessimist who warns you against getting married and says there are no happy marriages. There are millions upon millions of them, only we don't hear about them. It is the fighting husbands and wives who attract the attention of the neighbors, not the devoted couples next door. There mere fact that five people out of six are happily married is a pretty good ratio in favor of the holy estate.

* * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—Five years ago, after an unhappy love affair, I lost all interest in men, refused to have anything to do with them and buried myself in work. Now I realize that I made a mistake, that the man was not worth grieving over and that I am better off without him. I would like to get back into he social swim again, have dates like I had before, but I don't know any men, as all of my former friends have married. Is everything over for me because I made a fool of myself? I am 28 years of age and rather attractive.

KATHERINE.

Answer:

Not at all. At 28 you are probably much more attractive than you were at 23, and you should be more interesting, because no woman can go through the experience of having her heart dented without coming out of it with more poise and wisdom and being less self-centered than she was as a girl.

The best way to give notice that you have come out of your doldrums and are in the running again is to follow the example of widows, who subtly announce their altered status by their cloths. Doubtless during your period of wearing the willow you let yourself go and neglected your personal appearance. So now blow yourself for a lot of pretty, gay frocks, have a new hair-do and some facials, get your friends to give you some parties or give them yourself, and you can depend upon it that the men will begin to take notice.

But here are three points I would call to your attention: In making your second debut; so to speak, at 28 play up to men older than yourself and avoid boys. Widowers are a good bet for you. Second, don't lean too heavily on the girls you used to go with who are married and have children. Their youngsters date you too much. Third, and most important, don't ever, ever, EVER, talk about your previous romance. Forget it. Men are always suspicious that broken hearts are never entirely healed, and, anyway, no man wants to hear of how much you loved some other man.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—A mother has decided that she and the rest of her family will go with her son and his bride on their honeymoon. She says she knows they would have such a good time together. The bride is timid and doesn't want to offend her future mother-in-law, so doesn't know what to do. But what do you think about seven people on a honeymoon?

A FRIEND.

Answer:

I think the mother-in-law must be crazy and her son a sissy if he lets her put the idea into execution. Honeymoons were built for two, not for Mamma and all the little sisters and brothers.

NO MORE EXPEDITIONS

EDMONTON, April 2—(CP).—Probably never again will the Canadian Expeditionary Force leave to fight in foreign lands in case of war, Col. K. W. Savory of Vancouver, Dominion President of the Imperial Veterans Association, told members of the Edmonton Branch last night.

"Not only would the British Fleet be too busily engaged on several fronts to escort slow convoy ships from Canada, but we would be required to protect our own shores from invasion," he claimed.

THE EXAMINER FASHION SERVICE

Smart little grown-ups adopt the coat and dress ensemble to join the Easter parade. It is so admirably suited to girls from eight to twelve. Either garment may be worn separately. This model might combine a red and navy cotton challis print dress with a navy blue wool coat. The warm fitted and flared navy blue coat will be a grand topper for almost any other dress in her wardrobe. It will be smart and useful all summer, too. The dress pattern may be used again and again for summer cottons. The coat is darling in white pique over print frocks or of print over solid colored cotton frocks. The easy to follow pattern includes both the dress and the coat. Complete illustrated sewing instructions accompany the pattern.

Style No. 2553 is designed for sizes 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material for dress; and 2¼ yards of 39-inch material for redingote.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SPINNING WHEEL

When Uncle Wiggily saw his wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy talking together in the hollow stump bungalow one day, the rabbit gentleman said to Mrs. Longears:

"I am going out adventuring, my dear. Will you please tell me if my pink nose is twinkling straight. I don't want to go up to the bath room to look in the glass."

"Your nose is quite all right, Mr. Longears, and twinkling very nicely," squeaked Nurse Jane, that being her way of talking.

"But we were hoping you weren't going out right away," said Mrs. Longears. "Nurse Jane and I want to go to the movies, but we don't want to lock the house because the children will soon be coming home from school and they couldn't get in."

"Oh, I see," said Uncle Wiggily. "You want me to stay home as I did before to let the children in, is that it?"

"Yes," said his wife, "if you will be so kind."

Up Again

Uncle Wiggily was so kind and away hopped Mrs. Longears and Nurse Jane to the movies. To pass the time, as he did before when he was waiting for the rabbit children to hop home from school, Uncle Wiggily decided to go up to the attic again and get his golf clubs.

"It will soon be time to go out and play so I may as well do a little practice with my clubs," thought the rabbit gentleman.

Now, as it happened, the Woozie Wolf was waiting outside Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. The Bad Chap saw Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears hop away.

"Ha! Uncle Wiggily is all alone in there!" growled the Wolf.

The Bad Chap, peeking through a window, saw Mr. Longears hop up to the attic.

"Ha! I can get him easily now!" chuckled the Wolf. "The Bob Cat and the Fox tried to get him in the attic but they couldn't and they would never tell me why. But I'll get him."

As you know, the reason the Bob Cat couldn't sneak up and catch Uncle Wiggily in the attic was because the bunny gentleman whammed the Bad Chap on the head with a golf club. And when the Fox tried, why Uncle Wiggily jingled some old-fashioned sleigh bells and the Fox, thinking they were bells on the Police Dog's patrol auto, ran away.

So while Uncle Wiggily was up in his attic to get his golf clubs, the Wolf sneaked up after him. Mr. Longears, knowing nothing about the Bad Chap, looked around the attic, which was stored with old-fashioned objects. Among them was a spinning wheel.

Spins

"Oh, my! I had forgotten all about that old spinning wheel!" said Mr. Longears. "My grandmother used to spin fur yarn for my mittens on that wheel. What a relic!" He gave the wheel a few spins.

"How fast it goes," said the rabbit gentleman. "Just like a merry-go-round!"

"Oh, please give us rides on the merry-go-round!" buzzed some little voices and, in a dark corner Uncle Wiggily saw some June Bugs awakening from their Winter's sleep.

"Hop aboard!" invited Uncle Wiggily. This the June Bubs did and when they were on the spinning wheel Mr. Longears sent it twirling right merrily. The June Bugs were having a lovely ride when, all of a sudden, up the attic stairs crept the Wolf.

"I have you now, Mr. Longears!" howled the Bad Chap.

"No you haven't!" buzzed the June Bugs and they flew off the spinning wheel merry-go-round and banged the Wolf so hard in his eyes and on his soft nose that he fell backward down the stairs so he didn't get the rabbit gentleman.

And if the marshmallow candies don't all cling together, pretending to be a snowball, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily shaving a pig.

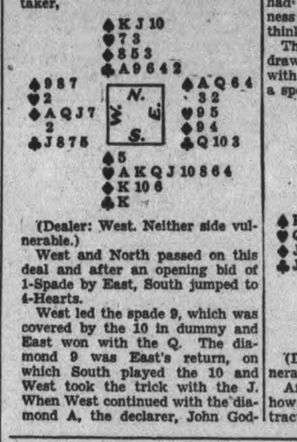
NO TIME FOR TRUTH

SCRUPULOUS attention to the defenders' play can frequently disclose to a wise declarer the nature of their plot against him. Sometimes his only chance to foil them is to deceive them about his holding by timely false-carding. This usually means playing a higher-than-necessary card to some trick, perhaps wasting one which at first glance looks like a potential trick taker,



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West and North passed on this deal and after an opening bid of 1-Spade by East, South jumped to 4-Hearts.

West led the spade 9, which was covered by the 10 in dummy and East won with the Q. The diamond 9 was East's return, on which South played the 10 and West took the trick with the J. When West continued with the diamond A, the declarer, John Godfrey Saxe, prominent New York attorney, did some rapid calculating and decided that East was hoping for a third round ruff. To confuse West, Mr. Saxe casually dropped his diamond K on the A. The ruse was successful, for West then switched to the spade 8, as he felt sure East held three diamonds originally. It seemed inconceivable to him that South would have sacrificed a possible winner. He had not reckoned on the shrewdness of his opponent, whose quick thinking earned him a victory.

The spade A was ruffed, trumps drawn and the club K overtaken with the A. The spade K provided a spot for the losing diamond.

After the lead of the spade K, how should South play for his contract of 6-Hearts?

Delightful Tea-Musicale Trinity Women's Association.

A very large number of guests attended during Friday afternoon the delightfully arranged Tea-Musicale under the auspices of Trinity Church Women's Association, and for which Mrs. W. R. Widdiss lent her home, 292 Stewart street.

Receiving were the hostess and Miss A. Wood, and assisting as hostesses in the living room were Mrs. R. J. Wolstenholm and Mrs. J. W. Pierce. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. J. Kidd and Mrs. Sheldon Smoke at a lace-covered table beautifully arranged with shaded pink and rose carnations in heavy silver bowl and matching candles in silver candelabra. Mrs. G. N. Gordon and Mrs. G. E. Porter were general convenors for the tea room, and assistants included Mrs. C. L. Upper, Mrs. H. Martin, Mrs. W. Derry, Mrs. B. V. Moore, Mrs. D. J. Hall, Mrs. N. Andrew, Miss E. Morrow and Miss T. Mather.

In the sun-room an attractive display of homemade cooking was sold by Mrs. H. V. Dobson, Mrs. W. Stocker, Mrs. F. Jobbitt and Mrs. N. Hamley. Miss L. Morrow acted as treasurer, assisted by Mrs. W. F. Skitch.

All through the tea hour the guests were treated to a most enjoyable musical program, arranged by Miss Mabel Clarry, and containing vocal, piano and violin selections by gifted artists Miss Clarry was accompanist for the singers and Mrs. W. A. Logan accompanied her daughter, Mrs. P. Hooper, who played as a violin solo, "Capriccio."

The vocal numbers were as follows: Mrs. R. Cowan, "Cherry Ripe" (Horn); Mrs. A. Mitchell, "A Lovely Night" (Landon Ronald), "The Little Damozel" (Novelle); Miss Olga Westbye, 'Gathering Daffodils", (Somervel) "O Willow, Willow" (Healey Willan); Piano selections by Miss Margaret Widdiss included "Prelude in C Major", "Prelude in F Major", "Etude in E Major" (Chopin); "Cradle Song" (Palengren) "Etude Mignon" (Edward Schuett), "Arabesque" (Dubussy).

Society Presents Amusing Concert

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church is divided into groups, each with the objective of "doing things" during the year financially, later to budget the outcome of their efforts in the general funds of the society to be expended when necessary in the upkeep of the church. One of these sections, the Ashburnham Group, arranged a Major Bowes' amateur concert, and last night presented the program before an attendance which comfortably filled the Sunday School Hall. At the microphone as Major Bowes was Hurrell Dodds, who capably did his duty as the well - known "friend of amateur stars."

The performance of each and every artist, varying in age from three to —— years, and almost everyone was a resident of East City —was of a very high standard, and the audience was not slow to show appreciation.

Kazoo Band Performs

Special mention should be made of the kazoo band, the Nervephonic Orchestra, a group of talented ladies who armed themselves with these instruments, and under the tuition of Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., speedily mastered the special music, and, in ancient and flashy costumes, made a name for themselves in this their initial public appearance. The audience received their musical efforts with acclaim.

The program was as follows:

Harry Hanwell, solo; Beverley and Joan Reynolds, tap dance and solo; Charles Lawrence, Jr., solo; Ashburnham Nervephonic Orchestra, Horace Steer, conductor, as Prof. Finklebaum; Mrs. T. Hendry as Mrs. Snoodlegrass; Mrs. Moorhead as Carolina Applegate; Mrs. Rudd as Dinah Jenkins; Mrs. Morgan as Mrs. Altanalt, Miss Isabella Brealey as Mary Crumpleton; Mrs. H. Dodds as Mrs. Snits; Mrs. Fraser as Sarah McWharter; and Mrs. Arnold as Madame Twitchgrace, (presentation of a bouquet of vegetable tops was made to Prof. Horace Steer Finklebaum from the band, for his sterling performance). Bob Henry, solo; Ruth Harris, guitar solo; Colin Jack, violin solo, Jim McClenaghan of the Y.M.C.A., with a short boost for the Association; Ruth Sage, piano solo; Jean Millard, telling of Y.W.C.A. pageant, also gave the Highland Fling; George Hall and Ivy James (Charlie Bergen and Charlie McCarthy) gave realistic skit of the originals; Harry Lockington, cornet solo; Girl Guides, Peggy Howden, Zita Kennedy, Hawaiian guitar, and Dorothy Grady, piano solo; Pearl Smith, piano solo; Shirley Fitzsimmons, tap dance; Carlyle Jaquith, popular piano solos; Mrs. Arnold, vocal solo; and William Leyburn, short talk on "Aims of the Boy Scouts."

Miss Isabella Brealey, convenor of the East City Group, returned thanks to all who had assisted their efforts by attendance and as artists; Mr. Chenhall and other accompanists for the musicians and vocalists; and "Major Bowes." The National Anthem concluded this debut of the East City Group, and refreshments were served to the amateurs.

Canada Must Have Distinctive Art, Says Fred S. Haines R.C.A.

"All art that is worth while is a record of intense life, and each individual artist's work is a record of his special effort, search and findings, in language especially chosen by himself, and devised best to express him, and the significance of his work can only be understood by careful study."

Fred S. Haines, R.C.A., vice-president of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts and principal of the Ontario College of Art, Toronto, addressed an audience at an open meeting of the Lyceum Club and Women's Art Association in the Y.W.C.A. last evening, where the Tenth Annual Travelling Exhibition of the Ontario Society of Artists was on display. The diversified collection of brilliantly executed paintings by many of Canada's foremost artists was studied with interest by the audience, and the speaker's address was followed by an instructive commentary and criticism of the pictures.

"It is well to realize what art is," said Mr. Haines, "so many associate it only with pictures but it is everything in life. These pictures are important," he continued, "because we are establishing a Canadian art and it must be Canadian and unlike the art of any other country." Attention was drawn to the modern painter's effort, as shown in many of the pictures, to try and make the objects exist in space, with the clever suggestion of a world stretching behind them.

The speaker urged a more understanding attitude and greater effort to see what the artist is trying to express in a picture. Speaking of the sharply clear atmosphere of the north, he said, "Quiet colors will often not make the spectator react and feel the emotion experienced by the artist, and the forms must be strong and fully modelled." In Canada we will have a great art because of the vivid colors and clear atmospheric conditions, he contended.

The part women artists have played in the history of art was discussed by Mr. Haines, "We can hardly think of art without thinking of women. Whether practicing it or not, they have at least been the inspiration and stimulus of the rank and file of men. Think of Rembrandt — Saskia's name occures; Leonardo—Mona Lisa; Romney—Lady Hamilton."

Women painters played a large part in the early art of China, where tradition makes the first Chinese painter a woman, and thirty-seven were famous enough to be recorded in the Imperial Dictionary. Fabulous sums were paid for an inch of the work of Lady Kuan, greatest of them all, and among others were two empresses, whose work was copied for generations on pottery and porcelain. There were also women painters of note among the ancient Greeks and Romans.

At the time of the Renaissance the Italians were very proud of their women artists, many of whom were miniaturists; enamel painters and pastellists. The Antwerp of the Middle Ages also was famous for its women artists, who were frequently the daughters and sisters of famous painters and excelled at painting flowers and fruit.

The two first noteworthy English women artists were Mrs. Mary Beale, (1632-1697) and Ann Carlyle. Two women were among the original members of the English Royal Academy, formed in 1768, with a woman largely instrumental in getting its charter. This was Angelica Kauffman, an infant prodigy who was a fashionable portrait painter at the age of eleven. She had an eventful life, was the friend and painter of Royalty, and created the fashion for painted decoration in furniture.

Among French artists the career of Marie Elisabeth Vigee le Brun is outstanding. In spite of astounding industry she was never able to carry out all her orders for portraits. An interesting sketch of the life of Marie Rosalie Bonheur was given by Mr. Haines. As a student she had a hard time finding animal models, and she actually did dissecting to learn anatomy and visited veterinary schools and abattoirs. Rosa Bonheur was just over thirty when she painted the celebrated "Horse Fair."

Only two other members have been elected to the Royal Academy, Annie Swinnerton and Dame Laura Knight. "If you have not read 'Oil Paint and Grease Paint' by Laura Knight you have missed a decided thrill," said the speaker. "She proves conclusively that, like so many of the earlier painters, women have the physical energy to carry out great projects. Her picture, "The Green Feather" in the National Gallery at Ottawa was painted in one day.

Famous American women sculptresses and artists, such as Anna Hyatt, Malvina Hoffman and Cecilia Beaux were mentioned by Mr. Haines and a number of women in the front ranks today, including Dod Procter and Georgia O'Keefe, for one of whose flower pieces Elizabeth Arden recently paid $10,000.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. F. E. Hooper, who also expressed the thanks of the audience to Mr. Haines. Appreciation of the Women's Art to C. A. Shaw for his help and co-operation in bringing the pictures to the city, was voiced also by the president. The exhibit will be on view till Sunday, and is open to the public.

Are Favorites

Close fitting lines are almost obliterating the loose boxy ones as Easter draws on apace. Neat, trim, mannishly tailored, seem to be the leading words to describe the present mode.

The classic main-tailored suit continues to be popular in dark colors and gray. In twill, wool gabardine and wool covert cloth the sharply tailored type suit is appearing, with coat edges bound in matching braid.

This mannish treatment is strikingly well illustrated in this well tailored suit of navy wool tricotine which follows masculine styling in details. It has a trouser-pleated straight skirt and white broadcloth weskit, a white gilet under a fitted single-breasted jacket with sharply prassed lapel collar.

The white silk gilet ties in a bow at the high neck front, and a watch chain hangs in truly gentlemanly fashion from the band to the mannish hip pocket.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The ludicrous has its place in the universe... There are not a few who, even in this life, seem to be preparing themselves for that smileless eternity ... by banishing all gaiety from their hearts, and all joyousness from their countenances. I meet one such on the streets not infrequently, a person of intelligence and education but who gives me (and all that he passes) such a rayless and chilling look of recognition—something as if he were one of heaven's assessors, come down to doom every acquaintance he met—that I have sometimes begun to sneeze on the spot, and gone home with a violent cold, dating from that instant. I don't doubt he would cut his kitten's tail off if he caught her playing with it. Please tell me. Who taught her to play with it?"

—O. W. Holmes.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes I go wandering around to see how the other half or the other ninety-nine lives, what fun, if any, they are getting out of life. But it seems to me that most of us take our fun far too seriously. And when I feel an impulse to see these things, it is because, if I only mingle with one kind of people, I cannot know anything from the other's angle.

Besides, "a little nonsense now and then, is relished by the wisest men." We are too much inclined, when we are trying to live a good life, to crowd out all fun and pleasure, to be too earnest about it, so we get a sort of a joyless life.

So, recently, I went to a certain place to see what sort of fun they were having. They were there to be pepped up, but I saw no pep. They were supposed to be "living" but I saw no signs of "life" in their attitude, nor joy in their countenance.

They were seeking pleasure, but not finding it, and I thought "poor humanity, how sadly they take things in trying to find happiness." Some looked as if they felt they shouldn't be there, some looked tired and weary, some looked as if they were waiting for joy to arrive, but not one looked cheerful or as if they were really enjoying themselves.

Life shouldn't be like that. If you have been seeking fun, and not finding it where you sought, seek some other kind. If you feel as if you are lowering yourself in going to certain places, just realize that you cannot find it while you are wondering what people would say if they saw you there. It's a something inside of you which tells you that joy is not there for you.

Then again, there are those who, when they are seeking to live as they should, give this way such a bleakness that it turns others from it. The minister and all the other officers of the church must do thus and so, else they are not living the true way. We as members of the church must have a sad and sober countenance, else we are headed in the wrong direction. We must not have fun, we must not laugh, we cannot have joy in any form.

You would think by their looks they were at a funeral all the time, and they really are for they are kill-joys and have put fun and merriment to death. They want us to mourn too, but I for one, refuse to do it. There is enough in life as it is to make us sober, instead of killing all forms of innocent joy.

So, even with that type of person, look for the funny side of them when they go around looking like mourners. Look also for the humour in all things for a smile will help you along the way. I remember once, a friend and I were having an argument, and we were going at it tooth and nails, when all of a sudden I burst out laughing at both of us getting all worked up over something not worth bothering about.

And when you set out to have a good time, have it, don't sit waiting for someone else to make your fun for you. Neither think that what you put in your body, nor what you put on it will make you joyful. You have to have it within you.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

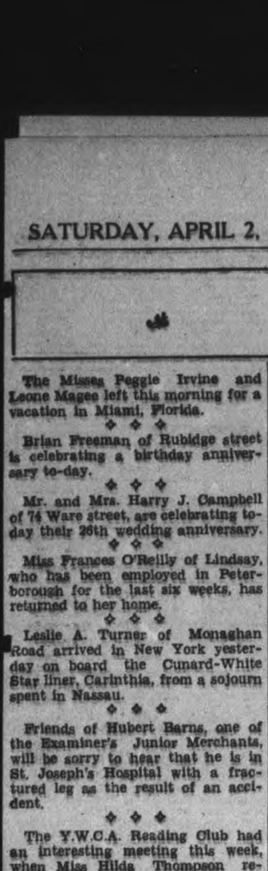
So Bad With Nerves Would Lie Down and Cry
It is generally admitted that nerve troubles are more frequent than formerly and growing more so every day.
Wherever there are people whose health is poor, and their nerves shattered, they will find in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills a tonic that will help to restore the deranged centres, and bring the nervous system back to its old time condition.
Mrs. K. M. Harvey, Bramber, N.S., writes:—"I got so bad with my nerves I would lie down on the bed and cry. Most of the time it just seemed I could not help it and would not know what I was crying for. I used to feel as if I would go crazy I was so bad.
I tried several different medicines, but received no relief. I then took Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, four boxes of them, and started to feel better after the first few doses. Now I feel better in every way."
Put up by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd.

Lingerie Frock



It is many a day since we wore lace-trimmed lingerie summer dresses. With a gay '90 motif so prominently in the style picture, however, this type of dress is staging the well known and justly celebrated comeback. It is going to be tops for summer.

Claudette Colbert is wearing such a dress in the picture used to illustrate this homily.

Claudette is extremely decorative in this sort of thing. Her dress is done in tailored but feminine styling. Narrow rows of Valenciennes lace accent the front of the bodice and skirt, from the turnover collar to the hem. Puffed short sleeves are pleated at the top in a way that gives them a new look.

With this dress Claudette wears a broad brimmed hat of pale blue milan, short white gloves and large white envelope purse. Truly a most delectable picture!

BORN

DELPELLARO. — At St. Joseph's Hospital, on Friday, April 1, 1938, to Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Delpellaro, (nee Joy Green), 190 Perry street, a daughter.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bateson, Water street, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Helen Ilene, to Leonard N., son of Mrs. and the late Mr. Noble White, Bonacord street; the marriage to take place the latter part of April.

DIED

ROBSON, Mrs. Elspeth. — At her residence, 435 George street, on Saturday, April 2, Elspeth, relict of the late John T. Robson. Funeral service will be held from the residence of her sister, Mrs. J. A. Middleton, 569 Reid street, on Monday, April 4, at 3 p.m., with the Rev. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church officiating. Interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

PORTE, John.—On Friday, April 1, 1938, John Porte, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Blanche Dawson, Funeral Monday, April 4, at 2 o'clock, from Bailieboro United Church.

IN MEMORIAM

BALL. — In loving memory of our dear Husband and Father, James Ball, Sr., who passed away April 2, 1931.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of affection
And a heartache still for you.
More and more each day we miss you
Though our hearts are not revealed.
Little do they know the sorrow
That is within our hearts concealed.
—Ever remembered by Wife and Family.

DAWSON. — In loving memory of Mrs. Eva C. Dawson, who passed away April 2, 1937.

What is home without your Mother?
What are all the joys we meet?
When there is no one to welcome
The coming of our feet.
To those who have a Mother:
Cherish her with care.
There will never be another
To fill her vacant chair.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Daughters.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Ellen Jane McAdam wish to thank the employees of Silverwoods Limited for flowers, also relatives, friends, and neighbors for kindness shown during their recent bereavement.

land would bring Canada to her side.

The Prime Minister said he had said the nations of the British Commonwealth enjoyed liberty in common and any peril to that common liberty would bring them together. He was seeking to correct an impression in Europe that the establishment of separate legations in foreign countries by Canada indicated a desire to break away from the British Commonwealth.

It was a coincidence that the English-born Mr. Coldwell assailed the present British Government and the American-born John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, defended it.

Mr. Coldwell said the policies pursued by the British Government were dangerous and Canada should steer clear of them. Prime Minister Chamberlain had shattered the ideal of the League of Nations.

Mr. Blackmore thought the British Government was doing and had done everything possible to avoid war, that Canadians should leave British policy to the British, and refrain from criticism when there were many things to be done in Canada.

"I am in favor of collective security, but I would like to know whom to collect with," he said.

It was peculiar, he added, that those who were loudest in favor of collective security were most critical of the other nations of the Commonwealth who would, in the nature of things, be the first nations with which Canada would collect.

Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) believed the only real hope of peace lay in a return to Geneva. The nations should not lose hope of making the rule of law and justice prevail over the rule of force.

Estimates Reasonable.

The Government had a definite foreign policy, and by its actions had clearly indicated its intention of keeping Canada out of foreign wars. The defence estimates were reasonable, having regard to Canada's economic resources, but were not to be regarded as insurance for Canadian homes. If war came homes would be destroyed.

Vincent Pottier (Lib. Shelburne-Yarmouth-Clare) and A. J. Brooks (Con. Royal) urged adequate defence measures for the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Pottier pointed to Canada's relatively low expenditure on defence as compared with other nations, but agreed economic conditions in Canada would not justify a much greater outlay.

The two Maritimers differed as to the merits of an air force as defence measure. Mr. Pottier favored increasing the air force at the earliest moment, but Mr. Brooks said experience in the Spanish conflict had demonstrated airplanes were more effective as an offensive weapon than defensive.

For maritime defence Mr. Brooks urged coastal batteries and naval strength. The first line of defence was the British Fleet, he said, and Canada's foreign policy should be based on a recognition of this and of this country's position in the Empire.

Howard Green (Con., Vancouver South) thought too much reliance was being placed on the assistance of the United States fleet on the Pacific. He recalled that during the Great War it was the Japanese and not the United States fleet which protected British Columbia.

Peace First.

H. S. Hamilton (Lib., Algoma West) said Canada's foremost objective should be the continuance of peace and he complimented the government on its record in this respect. He referred particularly to the government's record in relation to oil sanctions against Italy.

A sword was hanging over Europe and every man must guard his language and actions or it would fall, Mr. Hamilton continued. If for no other reason, this was not the time for Canada to shut off exports of munitions.

If war came to Canada, he was sure the nation would rise to a man in defence of it. Barbarities similar to those in Shanghai and Barcelona were a possibility in Canada.

Mr. Hamilton was glad Canada had no commitments. Events would determine Canada's action in time of war. For instance, there might be a situation where Canada could not sit back and watch Great Britain or the United States wrecked or defeated. Canada, in that event, would not be able to safeguard her own position.

Many factors would decide whether Canada would go to war, he continued. London bombs differed from Barcelona bombs and Ottawa bombs were still different. These were factors which could not be seen in advance but they would be all-important in deciding Canada's policies.

Divorces Pushed Through.

Great sacrifices were made by Canada in the last war and many disappointments had come since but all the things for which Canada had fought had been lost, said Mr. Hamilton. The integrity of Canada and of the British Commonwealth remained. No one could say the war was futile unless he knew what would have occurred had events turned out differently.

If the day ever came for Canada to participate in combat in conjunction with other nations of the Empire Canada's forces could be a powerful unit just as they did in the Great War. Defence policy should be directed to the provision of a force of which Canada could be proud.

A large batch of divorce bills were approved during private bills hour and drew from J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) a suggestion that Parliament cease granting divorces.

Persons in Quebec who wished divorces should be required to establish residence in provinces which had divorce courts instead of coming to Parliament. Many of those who came had been born outside Quebec anyway.

rounding up various odds and ends of legislation) a provision widening the Fatal Accidents Act," said Mr. Macaulay.

50-Year-Old Provisions.

The Strachan bill brought a number of lawyers in the House to their feet. It was explained by Mr. Strachan and other members the Fatal Accidents Act, a 50-year-old statute, gave the family of a victim the right to sue the person responsible for the fatal accident for out-of-pocket expenses. The Trustee Act gave the victim's estate the right to sue. The Lords' decision allowed the executor to collect damages for loss of each year of life below the estimated life expectancy.

Under the Lords' decision, the father of a girl killed in an accident was awarded $1,500 damages provided in a statute dealing with fatal accidents. As executor, he received another $7,500 for loss of expectancy of life. Mr. Strachan called the resulting situation "ridiculous."

Once that debate ended, the House had smooth sailing for the rest of the afternoon. It heard Col. Fraser Hunter (Lib., Toronto St. Patrick) argue Legislature members should be called M.P. (member of Parliament) instead of M.P.P. or M.L.A. and gave second reading to his bill providing for that. Second reading was given the Game and Fisheries' Act, establishing a closed season for moose in parts of Northwestern Ontario and a section of Nipissing district. Another bill receiving second reading amended the Damage by Fumes Arbitration Act extending its provisions to include damages occasioned by sulphur fumes from smelting in roasting iron ore.

Appeal Provided For.

The Grand River Conservation Bill, incorporating a commission with wide powers to carry out flood conservation work, emerged from committee with an added provision giving the Municipal Board the right to review findings of the Board of Engineers. An appeal from the board's finding could be taken to the Court of Appeal.

Heeding Conservative protests, the Attorney-General dropped his plan for ending interest protection provisions in the Mortgagors' and Purchasers' Relief Act next October 31. Original intention had been to extend the part protecting non-payers of principal on mortgages from foreclosure until June 30, 1939, but cut short the one protecting persons who defaulted on interest and carrying charges.

Opposing the Strachan bill, David A. Croll (Lib., Windsor-Walkerville) declared only one group—"the insurance companies"—was interested in seeing the life expectancy judgment did not become law. Mr. Strachan replied the contention was "totally erroneous." A. W. Roebuck (Lib., Toronto Bellwoods) also opposed the bill.

Action on the Cancer Commission Bill, creating a commission to probe cancer treatments, was deferred pending a protest by Mr. Macaulay against a provision giving blanket protection to the Health Department and all those associated with the commission against any actions that might be launched against it. Premier Hepburn agreed to consider the advisability of leaving in the provision.

Expected yesterday, the debate on a bill validating new contracts with Quebec power companies did not materialize. The Premier said it would be called for discussion Tuesday.

British Cruiser Visits U.S.

The Examiner Goes To A Children's Birthday Party

Happy birthday to Nancy Barr, daughter of Rev. Dr. A. T. and Mrs. Barr, 540 Water street, who was 10 years old on Thursday. Nancy isn't superstitious because guests at her party numbered 13. All are art pupils of Miss Amy Matthews. Four Nancys attended the party. They are seen in UPPER LEFT. Nancy Barr is seated, while from LEFT to RIGHT standing are Nancy Eastwood, 498 Hunter street; Nancy Stanton, 576 Homewood avenue; Nancy Sootheran, 455 Gilmour street. And three of the four are 10 years old, while Nancy Eastwood is 11. In UPPER RIGHT, seat from LEFT to RIGHT are Margaret McElroy, 633 Charlotte street west; Dorothy Ballard, 527 George street; Dorothy McGee, 526 Water street; Beverley Pringle, 377 Water street; Ramona Jackson, 163 Murray street; and Marjorie Lacheur, 550 Aylmer street. Behind them from LEFT to RIGHT are three older girls who were supervisors: Flora Craig, 601 Water street; Madeline Charlton, Lakefield; Betty Barr, Nancy's older sister. In the picture BELOW are some other guests, all of whose second names are the same. CANADIAN STOCKS SET UP NEW LOWS

TORONTO, April 2.—(CP). — The tendency of Canadian stocks to travel with the New York market landed them in the breakers again this week and new low prices for the year were registered by the miscellaneous mines and new lows since 1934 by the industrial stocks.

Pivotal issues to crash down in Wall street included International Nickel, Noranda, Consolidated Mining and Smelting, International Petroleum, Ford A, Brazilian, Bell Telephone and other heavy industrials. Nickel dropped on Thursday to $37 where it was only 25 cents above its low mark for the last three years.

With all the excitement in New York, Canadian exchanges had a series of comparatively dull sessions. In the sharp declines of mid-March stocks had shifted in volume from weak to stronger hands and the audit of brokerage houses in the last week of March had put margin accounts in a sound condition.

Despite the smart recovery of Friday, International Nickel shows a net loss of $4.65 for the week while Hudson Bay is down $2.50, Smelters $2.25 and Noranda $1.50. Falconbridge, Coast Copper and Ventures were other base metals to register substantial losses. Falconbridge touched $4.70, its low price for several years.

Starting next week the Toronto stock exchange will issue daily an index of the price movements of the Turner Valley oil stocks. More than 30 western oils have been listed by the Toronto exchange and 15 of them will be used in making up the index. The exchange will also start on Monday a base metal share index.

BOYS' CLASS GIVEN POT-LUCK SUPPER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 2.—The Boys' Class of the United Church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening, commencing at 6 o'clock with a pot-luck supper. About twenty boys were present with Howard Harnden, president in the chair.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mr. John Evans of town, who gave the boys a very helpful and instructive lesson on First Aid. The subject taken was "Insensibility."

Group games were played during the evening and a social time spent.

THE EXAMINER BULLETIN BOARD

The Quebec Legislative Assembly yesterday approved a measure authorizing $50,000,000 expenditure over a four-year period to give the province a first-class road system.

Figures compiled by the Department of Mines and Resources estimate that the tourist traffic into Canada last year was 18,248,285, a gain of 1,850,413 visitors over the previous year.

Ontario's fire loss for the first quarter of 1938 totalled $2,630,299, official statistics show. That is an increase of $206,171 over the same period a year ago.

Two Royal Air Force fliers, Sergt. William A. Sutherland and Corporal William Robert Hunter were killed yesterday when their plane crashed in Renfrewshire, Scotland.

Prayer Day Refused

The Archbishop of Canterbury has turned down suggestions that he call a day of national prayer because of European war threats.

When tons of earth fell in on a gang of men digging a sewer excavation at Granby, Que., Nadiere Picard, 30, was killed and Napoleon Lajinoniere, 50, injured.

James McKenty ,Canadian National Railways yardman, was badly hurt at London, when he lost his footing and fell from the top of a freight car.

Mining operations were at a standstill in the Hinton, Alta., collieries last night as an investigation was being made into an explosion that killed five miners.

A Heavy Fine

In York County Police Court yesterday Gilbert Macher was fined $500 for performing a dental operation, not being a member of the Royal College of Dentists.

Three Kitchener youths, convicted of 12 charges of housebreaking were sentenced to two years in the Ontario Reformatory.

Joseph Gore, 25, died in Chicago shortly after telling police that two companions had forced poison down his throat and then robbed him of $10.

At Welland, Roy Smith and Ross Williams of Port Robinson were acquitted on a charge of branding Roy Lesdow on the cheek with a hot coin.

Not Much Support

A random cross-section of 36 members of the House of Commons showed 27 opposed to the legalizing of sweepstakes, eight in favor and one indifferent.

Four-year-old Ruth Obernick of Toronto was killed yesterday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile near her home.

The Ontario Government has posted a reward of $200 for information leading to the discovery of the person or persons who insulted Hon. Dr. Bruce in the Parliament Buildings last Tuesday.

One room in the Meaford Public School has been ordered closed by the health officer because of an outbreak of scarlet fever.

A BOARD JUMPER

SARNIA, Ont., April 2 (C.P.) — Police yesterday issued a warning to operators of rooming and boarding houses to be on the lookout for a well-dressed man of 55 to 60 years, who represents himself as a Federal Government engineer and gets board and room on credit, borrows money and then departs. Chief of Police W. J. Lannin said the man, who is also wanted at Brantford, Ottawa and Cornwall, usually represents himself as a Government engineer, surveyor or inspector, and he expects his baggage to arrive in a few days.

Brands it Barbarous

Miss Kane has emphatic views on the subject too. "It's barbarous," she says, to make the stately music of "Loch Lomond" come cavorting out the end of a saxaphone. That's what they did in the Chicago night club when she was giving the customers a little sales talk for the exhibition. And that's when she put her foot down on the highland swing, telling the orchestra to stop.

Most of Miss Kane's energies, though, are directed toward disposing of her stock-in-trade, which is Empire good-will, to prospective customers for the exhibition. She's the only ambassador it has sent abroad. Already she has raced through 28 Canadian and United States cities spreading the tidings that Glasgow will have plenty to offer its expected 20,000,000 visitors between May 3 and October.

"I'm just selling the British Empire," she said. It was, said the 24-year-old artist-ambassador, a commodity everyone in Canada should be willing to buy.

OBITUARY

BRIDGET ELLEN JONES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 2.—A life-long resident of this community, Miss Bridget Ellen Jones, 69, passed away at her home near Brickly yesterday afternoon after a month's illness.

She leaves four brothers, John, Patrick, Hastings; Peter, Rochester; Michael, Buffalo; one sister, Mrs. W. R. Hogan, Rochester.

The funeral will take place from the home of her brother Patrick Jones to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Interment will be made here.

ANNUAL BREAKUP CHEMONG BRIDGE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, April 2.—The annual breaking up of Chemong Bridge took place about three o'clock on Thursday afternoon, which makes it very inconvenient here. It is much earlier this year owing to the fine weather. The ice loosened from the shores and the wind piling the ice against the bridge. It broke very quickly, some having just crossed it, and a number of cars having to turn back. If there had been anyone on it, they would have lost their lives as the ice piled on with such a force that it moved the approach on the Ennismore side.

Cobourg Considers Collegiate Addition

COBOURG, April 2.—A revision in the school board estimates for an addition to the collegiate is being considered by council. The collegiate board presented the plan to cost $61,120, which is $20,000 less than the cost at first considered.

The board announced that $12,000 of the cost would be borne by the government. On a debenture issue over 30 years, this would mean a one mill tax increase.

MANVERS GIRL SAVES BROTHER FROM MAD BULL

Mother, Daughter Tortured, Slain In Texas Desert

California Society Pair Trapped Driving Alone; Girl's Hands Show Burns—Back Been Jumped On

VAN HORN, TEX., April 4—(AP)—Peace officers scoured the sun-baked West Texas brush country today for the killers who tortured a socially prominent California woman and her daughter, clubbed them to death and left their partially stripped bodies side by side on the desert.

Dr. W. W. Waite, who performed an autopsy on the bodies of Mrs. Weston G. Frome, 46, and her 23-year-old daughter Nancy reported each knuckle of the girl's right hand had been burned by a cigar or cigaret, and that there were four other burns on the back of her hand.

Marks upon her back he said indicated someone had jumped up and down upon her. Her diaphragm was punctured and she had been shot in the left temple.

Dr. L. P. Walter of the El Paso city-county health department said a piece of flesh had been torn—perhaps bitten—from Mrs. Frome's right forearm.

Dr. Waite said he did not believe the older woman had been criminally attacked but that he was withholding decision in the daughter's case pending further examination.

Found After Three Day Hunt

A searching party came upon the women's bodies yesterday three days after their abandoned automobile was found near Balmorhea, on the San Antonio highway east of here.

Draped with a light blanket and scuffed over with dust, the bodies were found face down in a clearing near the mesquite covered foothills of the Davis mountains, six miles east of here.

The mother and daughter left their home at Berkeley, Calif., 12 days ago, bound for Parris Island, S.C., to visit Nancy's sister, Mrs. Benjamin McMakin.

Col. W. S. Conger Dies In Ottawa

OTTAWA, April 4—(CP).—Funeral services for Col. W. S. Conger, 60, retired member of the Canadian Army Pay Corps, who died here Sunday, will be held to-morrow at Belleville, Ont., his birthplace.

During his long military career, he served with the Fifteenth Regiment at Halifax. While a member of the Canadian Army Pay Corps, he was stationed at Kingston, Ont., Winnipeg, Ottawa, Montreal and London. He retired in 1920 and took up residence here.

A keen lawn bowler, Colonel Conger took an active part in the Ottawa Lawn Bowling Club of which he was president for a time. He won the Governor-General's Trophy for bowling shortly after it was first offered by Lord Willingdon.

Last Minute News Flashes

MOSCOW—Japan to-day protested to Soviet Russia against military assistance which she alleged the Soviet government was lending to China.

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japan's Ambassador, warned Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Commissar, that Russia would have to "assume responsibility for the consequences" if such aid were continued.

TORONTO— Notices of appeal against a decision throwing out their claims to part of the $500,000 Charles Vance Millar stork derby prize were filed here to-day by attorneys for Mrs. Lillian Kenny and Mrs. Pauline Mae Clarke. Appeals are to the Supreme Court of Canada.

WINDSOR.—Struck last night by an automobile that stopped momentarily then continued on its way, Bryden J. Mackenzie, 39, Windsor, died in hospital to-day.

RIMOUSKI.—Mrs. Harvey Isabel and her half-month old baby and Willie Pineau, of Atholville, N. B., were burned to death in the blaze which razed the wooden dwelling nearly 300 miles below Quebec city.

HENRY ADVOCATES $5,000,000 BOOST IN SCHOOL GRANTS

TORONTO, April 4 — (CP). — The Ontario Legislature, opening the final week of the session, was scheduled to-day to debate a private member's motion urging the Government to increase grants to secondary schools so the Government would pay 50 per cent of costs. Sponsor of the motion is George S. Henry, former Conservative Premier and Minister of Education.

Education Department officials estimate approval of the motion would mean additional government expenditure of $5,000,000. At present Government grants cover 10 per cent of high school education costs and 21 per cent in vocational schools. Administration leaders have given no public hint of their attitude to the proposal.

Big day in the Legislature as it enters the stretch drive will come to-morrow, when debate resumes on a bill validating new contracts entered into last December with the Gatineau, Beauharnois and Maclaren-Quebec power companies. Once that is over, the house can concentrate on remaining legislation and passage of estimates providing for expenditure of more than $99,000,000 in the fiscal year which opened Friday.

Lengthy Discussion

Mr. Henry, who adjourned debate on the Power Contract Bill when it first came up, is expected to speak at some length Tuesday. The contracts replace agreements cancelled by the Legislature in 1935.

Conservatives have opposed passage of the measure until a legislative committee of injuiry to start in May, investigates circumstances surrounding negotiation of the new contracts and other Hydro matters. Premier Hepburn, however, insisted the bill be passed before prorogation of the session.

Legislative committees will finish their work early in the week. The Legal Bills Committee has an argument on its hands, provided by a bill amending the Trustee Act to prevent the estate of an accident victim suing for loss of the victim's expectancy of life.

GOOD FISHING IN MINE

ATKINSON, Ill., April 4—(AP).—Fishing in a coal mine may sound fishy, but it is actually done here. Five small land-lock lakes created by strip mine operations were stocked with game fish by mining company employees, aided by a nearby state fish hatcher. Fishing is permitted one a week on permits issued by the mine office. Miners say the fish help out on the grocery bill.

MEDICOS GIVE HETT HIS PLACE AGAIN ON ROLL

House Abandons Bill On Hearing Discussion

TORONTO, April 4 (C.P.). — Dr. J. E. Hett, of Kitchener, claimant to a cancer treatment and dropped from the rolls of the Ontario College of Physicians and surgeons, has been restored to the college rolls and can practise medicine, it was announced to-day at a meeting of the Legislature Private Bills Committee.

As the committee was about to consider a Bill asking Dr. Hett be reinstated, Chairman D. A. Croll (Lib. Windsor-Walkerville) read a statement from the Medical Council that it had reinstated Dr. Hett to practise following his written undertaking that he would divulge his treatment to the proposed Government-appointed Cancer Commission.

Dropped Year Ago.

Dropped from the college rolls more than a year ago for his refusal to divulge that formula, Dr. Hett sought a private bill giving him the right to practise. Discussion on the bill opened Friday but was postponed until to-day to give the Medical Council a chance to clarify its stand.

A letter was read at the Friday meeting, written by Dr. Hett to Health Minister Kirby offering to disclose his treatment to the Cancer Commission which will be established by a bill now before the Legislature.

After reading the statement, Chairman Croll commented the Council's action had 'got rid of a difficult situation." He suggested the bill seeking Dr. Hett's re-admission be withdrawn and this was done.

Girl Of 15 Rescues Child From River

NEW YORK, April 4— (AP)—Lauretta Wilson, 15, who battled at ebb tide in Long Island to save a drowing three-year-old child, couldn't see herself as a heroine today

"Heroine nothing! she smiled. 'Any-body would do it."

The girl heard the screams of Lorraine Webb yesterday as the child tumbled off a pier into Eastchester Bay near Locus Point.

Lauretta kicked off her shoes and dived fbully clothed int the water. She located the submerged child and brought her ashore, where a police emergency crew labored an hour to revive her.

Key Into Catalonia Lerida Falls

Franco's Rebels Swing Down Road to Barcelona Now Only 80 Miles Off—Capital's Food Runs Low

HENDAYE, France, April 4—(AP)—The Spanish insurgent offensive entered its decisive phase today, with General Franco's army striking down the main highway to Barcelona and the Ebro Valley to the sea after having taken two immediate objectives, Lerida and Gandesa. The insurgent legions drove into the vital stronghold of the government militia, hoping to capture Barcelona, the provisional capital.

General Garcia Valino's Navarrese Corps and the Italian Black Arrow division moved against the village of Cherta, about six miles above Tortosa, which looks down on the Mediterranean, after having pushed southeast from Gandesa yesterday.

General Yuan Yague's Moorish Corps, after entering Lerida last night, threw out advance guards on the road to Barcelona, 80 miles to the east, while mopping up the last bitter resistance within Lerida.

On either side of these two main lines of attack, the wings of General Franco's forces pushed towards the Pyrenees frontier with France on the north, and towards the Mediterranean coast in the south-east, menacing Catalonia with isolation and conquest.

Counter Attack Fails

The Government yielded Lerida, historic key to Catalonia, after terrible hand-to-hand fighting. Yague's troops, surrounding the city, faced a violent counter-attack on Sunday as they proceeded with the occupation. Twenty Government tanks and a body of 10,000 men advanced along the right bank of the Segre

LABORITES INSIST CHAMBERLAIN QUIT AND TRY ELECTION

LONDON, April 4 (AP).—The Opposition renewed its fight today on Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign and domestic policies.

The Labor Party in the House of Commons decanded that the Government resign to permit an election test between the Labor policy of collective security and the Conservative plan of seeking separate peace agreements with major powers, including Italy and later, perhaps, Germany.

The Liberal Party, at the same time, used immediate consideration of its motion urging a League of Nations assembly to consider action against aggression.

Outside of the House, Mr. Chamberlain sought to reach an agreement with the Amalgamated Engineering Union to speed rearmament. Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, placed the Government's proposals before the union's executive council, which represents the largest workers' organization in the arms industry.

The Government is asking for the co-operation of workers in manufacturing more and better arms, without losing time in protracted debate over details such as hours, wages and conditions of labor.

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative), commenting on the labor question, declared "that call for help is a test of the right of democracy to survive in competition with dictatorships."

Jabs Animal In Neck With a Fork As It Gores Youth

Victim Tossed Over Beat's Back As He Enters Stall, Gets Badly Trampled Till Sister Risks Life in Pen

LINDSAY, Ont., April 4 (CP)—Quick action on the part of 18-year-old Connie Earl is credited with saving the life of her elder brother, Grier, when she diverted the attention of an infuriated bull which was goring him long enough to allow the young man to drag himself to safety.

Son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Earl who reside on the 14th concession of Manvers township, they were feeding the livestock. Grier entered the animal's stall and closed the door. The beast charged him, tossing him over its back against the side of the stall. Before he could get up the bull charged again and was goring and trampling him when Connie heard the commotion. She ran to the rescue with a pitchfork and plunged it in the beast's neck. The sudden attack diverted the attention of the animal long enough for the brother to gain safety. He suffered severe cuts, bruises and shock.

YEARLY CUSTOMS GAIN 44 MILLION

OTTAWA, April 4 (C.P.). — Revenue Minister Ilsley to-day announced preliminary figures for the fiscal year ended March 31 showing customs and excise collections at $319,046,054, a gain of $44,701,518 over the 1936-37 fiscal year.

The minister's statement said largest receipts were derived from excise taxes which climbed to $174,-451,397, a net gain of $28,852,023. Customs duties amounted to $91,-636,718, a net increase of $9,564,821, while excise duties totalled $52,162,-117, a net increase of $6,191,051 Sundry collections totalled $795,758, a net gain of $73,622.

Receipts for March were $21,855,-889 against $23,406,163 in March, 1937, a drop of $1,552,274. Net receipts in detail:

Customs duties $6,468,639, decrease $1,354,865; excise taxes, $11,432,311, decrease $457,151; excise duties, $3,-886,287, increase $247,179; sundry collections $66,582, increase $12,564.

45 Women Killed In 45 Months

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 4 (CP). —Forty-five women had been killed in Ontario, one a month, for the 45 months that beverage rooms had been in operation here, and five of these had met death in five weeks, Rev. George Little, D.D., Toronto, told the congregation of Zion United Church Sunday in a temperance address.

"Drunkenness played its part in the death of these women," Rev. Mr. Little declared. "You have had an instance of it right here in Brantford. It is a record. I just wish some member of our Legislature would stand up before this session is over and tell the assembly that we have had 2,000 killed on our highways in these 45 months, many of them because of drink, 2,000 women have been arrested for drunkenness, 1,000 of them in Toronto the Good, the City of Churches, and thousands of juveniles are being served nightly in our beverage rooms."

Ex-Alderman Dead

JOSEPH CROWE

Ex-alderman and veteran of the Northwest rebellion who died at his home on Sunday, on his 77th birthday.

BROTHERS HURT WHEN BUGGY IS STRUCK BY AUTO

John G. and Harry Ayotte, two brothers living at Young's Point had a narrow escape from death on Saturday afternoon, when a car crashed into the rear of the buggy in which they were riding north on the Lakefield Road, just above Nassau, and completely demolished the vehicle, throwing its occupants out. The two escaped with minor injuries, John G. Ayotte suffering face lacerations while his brother had his chest and leg bruised.

The horse, frightened by the impact, broke loose from the wreckage and jumped a fence into a field, scratching one leg in the process.

The car involved in the accident was allegedly driven by H. W. Welsh of Louis Street, Toronto, who was also driving north.

The crash occurred just around the first curve north of Nassau, the automobile smashing into the horse-drawn vehicle just after negotiating the turn.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton.

DEATH CLAIMS JOSEPH CROWE 77TH BIRTHDAY

In Northwest Rebellion And City Ex-Alderman

On his seventy-seventh birthday, Joseph Crowe, former alderman of this city, in which he had been a resident for three-quarters of a century, died suddenly at his home, 376 Brock Street, on Sunday.

Born at Scott's House, Monaghan County, Ireland, on April 3, 1861, son of Charles Crowe and his wife, Margaret Jane Hall, Mr. Crowe came to Peterborough as a child with his parents in 1862, and had lived here continuously for seventy-five years. Eldest of the family of seven sons, he was the last survivor, one brother predeceasing him less than a year ago in the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crowe and their children were one of the thirteen families originally comprising St. Luke's parish in Ashburnham of which Rev. Mark Burnham was the first rector. Joseph Crowe received his early education in the old school across the river under Miss Stratton and John Wood, who is still remembered by older citizens as the father of E. R. Wood of Toronto. As a youth Mr. Crowe served an apprenticeship as an iron moulder with the Peter Hamilton Company, later was engaged with the William Hamilton Company, with whom he was employed for forty-eight years.

On First City Council.

Mr. Crowe was always interested in the general affairs of the community, and that sense of the duty of citizenship induced him to offer his service as an alderman. He was elected to the City Council in 1905, when Peterborough was incorporated as a city, and was later re-elected in 1919, continuing as an alderman for nine consecutive years. He was a member of Peterborough Library Board. The Northwest Rebellion broke out when he was a young man, and in 1885 he enlisted in the Midland Battalion under Colonel Wil-

LOVER KILLS RIVAL, DROWNS IN RIVER

CLINTON, N.C., April 4—(AP)—Coroner Paul Crumpler listed as murder and suicide today the deaths of a 21-year-old farmer and a 20-year-old jazz orchestra player who loved the same girl.

The bodies of the two, Cameron Tew, a Clinton youth, and the rival he shot, Rudolph Smoka, Elmira, N.Y., musician, lay side by side in an undertaking parlor.

In a Fayetteville hospital, not expected to live, was the 17-year-old girl, Grace Carter, shot four times while she and Smoka sat at a piano in the Carter farm home Saturday.

Sheriff Carlisle Jackson said witnesses told him that the shooting occurred as Grace was playing, "It Doesn't Pay to Play With Fire," with Smoka singing.

Tew, the sheriff said, shot Smoka in the back, then turned the gun on his sweetheart. Tew fired a remaining bullet at Mrs. Melvin Butler, the girl's sister, but missed and he fled from the house. His body was found later in Six Run Creek.

Minister Fights 'Jam Sessions' With Punch, Doughnuts, Songs

Attracts 200 In Program To Show Youth Can Enjoy Sunday In Good Environment

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 4—(AP)—Pleased with the result of his first counter-attack on swing music "jam sessions," the Rev. George W. Cooke planned to-day to continue his Sunday "jubilee programs.

The concertina-playing, crusading Methodist minister attracted some 200 persons yesterday to a program of community singing and string ensemble music, with fruit punch and doughnuts.

'It was very, very successful," said Mr. Cooke. "And next week we'll do even better. We want to prove youngsters can have a good time on Sundays without going into an undesirable environment."

His first jubilee, however, lacked the spice of competition from the Sunday tavern swing jam sessions against which he had crusaded for several weeks. They had been banned by the alcoholic beverage authority.

Mr. Cooke strolled through the hall during the program, playing his concertina and singing, and stopping often to say a word into the microphone.

"This isn't a jam session," he said. "We might call it a preserve session—designed to preserve the intellectual and moral heritage of America."

Racer Crashes Crowd Killing Seven

ROME, April 4.

SEVEN spectators were killed and twenty injured yesterday when Auto-racers Bruzzo and Mignanego, driving a Lancia Mille Miglia car, crashed into a crowd on the sidewalk between the Zambonie and Mascarella bridges. The drivers were badly injured when their car, after hitting the spectators, struck a tree.

Halifax Protests As Its Batteries Go West, Leaving City Defenceless

Halifax, April 4 (CP)

"HALIFAX is being stripped rapidly of any semblence of defence against possible wartime attackers," the Halifax Chronicle said today in a news-page story. "Within recent weeks almost the entire armament of the city and port has been dismantled and shipped to the Pacific coast.

"Aside from Chebucto Head, where a lonely pair of 9.2 guns stand on guard for Canada, every battery in and about Halifax is without a gun. Even the citadel has lost its armament, except for the noon salute cannon.

"From York redoubt, from Fort Ogilvie, from the Armouries, from the Citadel, from MacNab's Island, from the dockyard—wherever a gun was to be found that could still be used—the Department of National Defence has removed all the available machinery of war for the defence of British Columbia.

Club Manager Breaks Fingers Fighting "Back-Door" Gang

Refused Admittance Dozen Toughs Wreck Kitchen— 8 Later Arrested

HULL, Que., April 4 (CP)—Four men suffered slight injuries and eight others landed in jail yesterday as the result of a fracas at the Essex Club in Geatineau Point three miles east of here on the Hull-Montreal highway.

According to David Brosseau, proprietor and manager of the club, about a dozen men stormed the kitchen by the back door when they were refused admittance at the main entrance because of their shabby attire. They broke everything they could lay their hands on before leaving in an automobile. Damage was $300.

Brosseau suffered broken fingers and bruises and his three waiters, Eugene Blondin, Aime Madore and Edmond Crevier were also slightly injured in the scuffle that followed the forced entry. Eight of them were arrested by Hull police a short time after.

Those arrested were Roy Duncan, Charles Rombough, Herbert Chamberlain, Robert Thompson, Frank Pigion, Richard Gray, Orville Genoe, and Kenneth Goode, all of Ottawa. They were all released on bail and will appear in court today on charges of assault, causing property damage and disturbance in a public place.

Dog Evens Up Count For Jailed Owner

Montreal, April 4 (CP)

WHAT fate befell the master of an Irish Terrier was not to befall the dog.

The master, found intoxicated while driving a motor car, was taken to police headquarters and locked up. Then Constable Howard Dickey, 24, who made the arrest, remembered there had been a dog in the car. He returned, reached into the car and leaped back, holding his nose. He left the dog and drove to hospital where four stitches were made to close the wound.

Series Dates Set For Stanley Cup

TORONTO, April 4 (CP). — The National Hockey League's Stanley Cup finals between Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks will open here Tuesday night, with the second and fifth games, if necessary, also on the ice of Leafs, league champions.

The second game will be played Thursday night, with the third in Chicago Sunday night and the fourth, if necessary, in Chicago next Tuesday night. If a fifth game is needed it will be played here Thursday night, April 14.

KILL HIGHER

HALIFA—(CP). — Hunters killed 1,030 moose and 2,185 deer in the 10-day season last year, increases of 108 and 235 respectively over the figures for 1936, according to the report of the Lands and Forests Department tabled in the Nova Scotia Legislature.

Forest Hill Village Is Created A City With 13,000 Citizens In Square Mile

Toronto, April 4 (CP)

A NEW city on Toronto's north-west boundary—Forest Hill village—was created by the Ontario legislature private bills committee today, and permission was given the adjoining York Township to apply to the municipal board for incorporation into a city.

Forest Hill, with an area of one square mile, has a population of 12,000 and assessment of 13,000,-000. York township's population is 74,000 and assessment more than $28,000,000. A 17-15 vote carried the bill.

York county opposed both requests. Representatives argued creation of these two new cities would place additional burden on county taxpayers.

Sweep Backers Held Unworthy Of Government Positions

So Pastor Claims Painting Canada As Turning To-Nation Of Gamblers

WINDSOR, Ont., April 4.—(CP)—Any person who supports a proposal to legalize sweepstakes is not worthy of a position with any government, Rev. C. D. Farquharson pastor of Westminster United church here, contended in a sermon last night.

He charged the real motive behind the Ontario Legislature's proposal to legalize sweeps was not to aid hospitals, but a desire on behalf of the proponents to decrease present taxation, or a wedge to be inserted by gambling interests who hope eventually to discredit present gambling laws and do away with them.

"No intelligent, conscientious study of the question can reach any other conclusion but that this is fostering a disease of the State, and a moral cancer in this country," Mr. Farquharson said. "We are fast becoming a nation of gamblers," he added. "If subversive forces are not suppressed, we will become more so. I have never gambled myself, nor do I believe any minister of the United church would openly advocate adoption of this measure."

SYRUP PLENTIFUL FARMERS' MARKET DROPPED TO $2.25

Maple syrup was rather plentiful on the Market Saturday with prices ranging from $2.25 to $2.50 a gallon. William White and Sons of Ida quoted $2.25, and W. F. Payne had an attractive display in pint, quarter and gallon bottles. The quarts were offered at 65 cents including the container. They were stoutly capped and were evidently a handy method of selling, avoiding the messy ladling plan of other days. Some of the other syrup men had most of their product in tin gallon containers.

Butter was steady from 35 to 38 cents, and eggs sold all the way during the morning from 17 cents to 22 cents. Chickens were 25 cents a pound.

J. A. Moore of Campbellcroft brought in a truck load of commercial white winter potatoes selling at 50 cents a bag. Most of his stock from last season has been marketed. Henry Gill of the Peterborough-Lakefield road had one of the few loads of meat for sale. His prices were beef 9 to 11 cents, pork 14 to 16 cents, lamb 16 to 18 cents and mutton 10 to 12 cents.

W. L. Snowden from the Bowmanville fruit belt quoted Spies at $1.90 the bushel, Talmans $1.50, Russets $1.50 and Starks at $1.00. McIntosh Reds at 50 cents were also seen.

Certified Cobbler and Dooley potatoes were generally around one dollar a bag, and some other farmers quoted commercial at 65 to 70 cents.

LIFE HANGS ON WIRE

KANSAS CITY, April 4 (A.P.).—On a thin steel wire looped about her breast bone depends the life of Mrs. Thomas Edwards. Her chest crushed in an auto accident, Mrs. Edwards, 34, was suffocating from the pressure of mangled ribs on her lungs. Surgeons made an incision on each side of her breast bone, pulled the wire through with a needle. A four-pound weight on the other end of the wire raises the bones and allows the lungs to fill.

liams of Port Hope. His interest in music and in the militia was a phase of his life that made him a member of the 57th Regimental Band for more than thirty years, earning for him the Northwest and long service medals.

Another of his attachments was reflected in his life-long support of the cause of labor. As a member of the Moulders' Union, he was appointed to the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council at its inception thirty-two years ago, and was always a sincere, constructive and moderate advocate of improved conditions of workingmen. He was a veteran member of Peterborough Lodge No. 111, Independent Order of Oddfellows, and, an Anglican all his life, he was a member of All Saints' Church up to the time of his death, a sudden summons on Sunday morning.

Joseph Crowe is survived by his wife, who was Mary Olive Cottingham, and his daughters: Mrs. Paul S. Epperson of Oconomonac, Wis., Mrs. Arthur A. W. Clydesdale, and Mrs. Arthur G. Metheral of Peterborough, Mrs. Ronald McCondach of Chester, England, and one son, Howard W. Crowe of Toronto.

The funeral will take place Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence, 376 Brock Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. Canon Paterson.

MADRID SHELLING TAKES FIFTY LIVES

MADRID, April 4 (AP)—Wrecking crews today moved swiftly in the wake of ambulances to clear away the destruction from Sunday's artillery bombardment of Madrid, worst of the civil war.

The salvage crews, mobilized after the manner of fire and police departments and operating by wards and districts, had as their first concern a search for charged wires, the replacing of twisted street car rails and the filling of craters caused by the huge torpedo-like shells, which rained on the city from heavy stationary Insurgent batteries in the former Royal Park west of Madrid.

The death toll approached 50 today. More than 200 were injured, and at least 308 buildings were damaged, some heavily, by the large calibre shells.

During the shelling, residents at the only hotel still open for foreigners watched firemen bravely risk a hail of shrapnel to fight a department store fire, caused by a direct shell hit.

The victims mostly were caught by the first shells, before they could take cover.

The bombardment brought from Madrid authorities the thought that it was designed to destroy civilian morale in connection with the Insurgent drive through Aragon and toward the Mediterranean.

CAPTURES FOUR PANDAS

CHENGTU, China, April 4 (A.P.)—Floyd Tangier (Animal) Smith, United States big game hunter, arrived here on Sunday with four giant Pandas from the wilds of Western Szechwan Province.

In his record catch were three cubs, believed to be the only males of the teddy bear-like members of the raccoon family in captivity.

(Su-Lin, one of the two female giant Pandas taken from China by Mrs. William Harkness, Jr., died on Friday in Chicago.)

LIVE DEBATE SEEN ON EMPLOYMENT PROBE PROPOSALS

OTTAWA, April 4.—(CP).—Labor Minister Rogers will move in the House of Commons to-day for introduction of the annual bill providing for government relief expenditures.

The government policy is expected to be fully outlined as Mr. Rogers makes his annual general statement on the situation. Every administration since 1930 has brought in a bill each year to empower the government to make the necessary provisions for relief during the fiscal year and the last bill expired March 31.

The final report of the National Employment Commission was tabled in the House Friday and strenuous debate on its recommendations is anticipated. The report urged that the provinces and municipalities be relieved of the burden of unemployment relief and that the problem of giving aid to those able to work but unable to find it be assumed by the Federal government.

There likely will be considerable debate on the unemployment insurance issue in connection with the relief bill. At present the government seeks to amend the British North America Act to put employment insurance within Federal jurisdiction. The proposed amendment has been sent to all provinces but Alberta, Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick have not replied.

Previously, Alberta, Quebec and New Brunswick withheld approval of the original proposal to establish a national scheme of unemployment insurance.

Adjourns This Weekend.

Parliament will adjourn at the end of this week for the Easter recess and will not re-assemble until April 25. Shortly after the recess it is expected Prime Minister Mackenzie King will make a comprehensive statement in the House concerning Canadian foreign policy.

Next weekend the Conservatives will begin preparation for the national convention to be held to select a new leader in the place of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who is retiring. A convention committee will meet, probably under the chairmanship of John I. MacNicol, member for Toronto-Davenport, to choose a date, with sometime in June generally favored whether Parliament is in session or not.

Parliament Hill continues to speculate on possible candidates for the leadership but it is generally conceded the race still is wide open with any of half a dozen prominent party men having a good chance.

CHALLENGE SEEN TO FREE PRESS

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 4 (CP).—The freedom of the press is challenged today as it never has been before, and with it the ideals of liberty and democracy dear to the hearts of all Britishers, Arthur R. Ford, managing-editor of the London Free Press, said in an address here yesterday.

Mr. Ford told the We-Ne-Ju Young Men's Class of St. John's Anglican Church and the Argos Club of First United Church of early struggles between the British Parliament and the press. The press finally won the right to attend and report all parliamentary proceedings, he said.

He added: 'We are too prone to accept as a matter of course our uncontrolled press and its free and untrammelled news service and its right of comment, without realizing that these liberties, along with those of free speech, assembly, the right to worship according to our own conscience and impartial justice were handed down to us as a result of hundreds of years of struggle by our forefathers."

BRITISH M.P. GETS HIS FACE SLAPPED BEFORE COMMONS

LONDON, April 4.—(CP Cable.)—Emanuel Shinwell indignantly strode from the Opposition front bench to-day, crossed the floor of the House of Commons to the Conservative side and, with the flat of his hand, struck Commander Robert Bower a resounding smack on the left cheek. The sound of the blow echoed through the astonished chamber. Then uproar began.

It was a question over an application from an assistant secretary on the Duke of Alba's staff for exemption from the five shilling driving license that led to the trouble. Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, gave a detailed reply in which the position was taken that the government was not granting diplomatic status to the Duke of Alba, General Franco's agent in London.

"Isn't it a piece of humbug?" Mr. Shinwell shouted.

"Withdraw! Withdraw!" the govroy, rose to quell the rising tumult.

The Speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, orse to quell the rising tumult.

"If the honorable gentleman persists in telling half truths it is the only way to describe it," Mr. Shinwell hotly returned.

Then Commander Bower, whose interruption could not be distinctly heard, was understood to tell the Labor member to go "back to Poland."

Shinwell Acts

Mr. Shinwell immediately strode across the floor and struck Commander Bower in the face. The Conservative remained seated and did not attempt to return the blow. His colleagues al laround shouted protests.

"It is I norder, a Conservative member appealed to the speaker, "for a member of the opposition front bench to cross the floor and grossly assault an honorable member?"

"Is it in order," John McGovern, Independent Labor, called back "for one honorable member to tell another to go to another country, suggesting that he belongs to Poland?"

Mr. Shinwell walked quickly out of the House, stayed outside for about half a minute, and then returned to take his place on the front Labor bench.

"I have been grossly insulted," he exclaimed, still unrepentantly. "I was born in this country. I am a British subject. He has no right to make such a statement. It seems to me I took the only way open."

The speaker again intervened. He had not, he said, distinctly heard Comander Bower's remark and thought it better under the circumstances to ignore what had happened.

Mr. Shinwell: "I recognize that the action I took was taken in a fit of temper. Nevertheless I think there was some justification for it. I beg humbly to apologize to you, Mr. Speaker."

Mr. Shinwell, former minister of mines, defeated the late Ramsay MacDonald in the 1935 general election in the Seaham division of Durham. He is 54 years old. Commander Bower, veteran of naval service in the Great War, is 43.

Commander Bower explained his remark was not meant to be taken as derogatory. He would have apologized to Mr. Shinwell if the Labor member had had the courtesy to wait. He said he would like to apologize to the House, Mr. Shinwell, he added, by his action had done himself a good deal more harm than good.

OBITUARY

MARY SHEARER

HASTINGS, April 4. — The last surviving member of the family of thirteen children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archie Shearer passed away on Thursday evening, March 31st, when Miss Mary Shearer's death occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fleming of the Cobourg Road.

Deceased who was 82 years of age was a daughter of pioneers of Asphodel, and was born on the farm now owned by James Moore of Asphodel. For the past twenty-six years she has made her home with her nephew, Arthur Fleming and his wife, where she always enjoyed working for those around her. She was able to be about the home until a week previous to her death, when she became ill with chronic bronchitis.

Many neighbors gathered for the funeral held on Saturday afternoon, when the Rev. F. W. Newell conducted the service and chose his text from Timothy 4, verses 7-8, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course." He also read three favorite hymns of the family.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. H. Oliver, W. Pulfer, Ezra Peters, Don Beamish, Arthur Beamish and N. Rusaw, all neighbors. Interment was in Trent Valley Cemetery. Friends from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Johnston of Havelock, Mr. and Mrs. A. Buchanan of Trent River and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Shearer of Seymour.

JOSEPH A. QUIGLEY.

The death occurred this (Monday) morning at his residence, 175 Dublin Street, of Joseph A. Quigley, aged 50 years. Born in Oshawa, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Quigley, deceased came to Peterborough 10 years ago, and has been employed with T. Ephgrave, and his death came very unexpectedly.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Mary Godfrey, and two daughters, Aileen and Teresa, and one son, David, all at home. Also one brother, Michael, of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. James O'Brien of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday, April 6, from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral at 9.00 a.m., where requiem mass will be celebrated. Interment will be made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Now Only A Small Creek

Foot bridge across the flume of what, in earlier years, was known as "McIvor's pond," but which has become so filled in with weeds and rushes that only the fresh water creek, which can be seen in the foreground, now remains. Older residents remember McIvor's mill, which was operated by a genial, Irish pioneer resident of that name, when the pond was quite a full sheet of water, and when a brisk business was done, oatmeal and other coarse cereals being ground. It has been suggested that the site of the proposed municipal swimming-pool might be located at this point, provided the scheme is successfully carried through this summer.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

World wheat markets followed Liverpool's lower trend to-day with Winnipeg futures, aided by apathy on part of buyers, closing ⅝ to 1¼ cents down, May $1.19⅝, July $1.07⅞ to $1.08, and October 87¼ cents.

October future sagged to a seasonal low and other wheat options were down more than a cent, despite keen cash wheat demand and minor Canadian export business of 100,000 bushels.

Sales for shipment abroad consisted of Nos. 1 and 2 and 4 Northern and Durums. Other dealings of the quiet session were intermarket and local spreading on a light scale.

GIELGUD KEEPS BIG SPOTLIGHT IN OLD LONDON

LONDON, April 4—(CP).—Even as London is still packing into the Queen's Theatre to see Gielgud in Chekhov's "The Three Sisters," as presented so artistically by Michel Saint Denis, it is announced the Gielgud troupe will present "The Merchant of Venice" in the same theatre on April 21.

No matter how you look at the 1937-38 theatrical season you find John Gielgud's experiment of presenting four great plays with virtually the same company the high-spot. Best paying enterprise of the season, it is the best entertainment and a dramatic success. The three fruits rarely grow on the same tree.

Gielgud took a secondary part in the Chekhov work, but he'll play Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice" and also produce it. Peggy Ashcroft, who took lead roles in Richard II and School for Scandal, will play Portia. Gielgud is not abiding by his original decision to present each of his chosen four plays for just six weeks. The public liked each well enough to keep them on the boards for probably six months or more, but he's withdrawn them at about two months each. He announced at the outset that if his repertory idea worked well he would repeat it next year—but he hasn't committed himself on that any further.

Looking elsewhere through the West End you find Priestley's two plays—"Time and the Conways" and "I Have Been Here Before"—maintaining the popularity they won early in the season. Other than these six plays, counting the Geilgud foursome, the season hasn't hit any great pitches of brilliance but the general tone has been what Wall Street calls "buoyant."

Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper did not impress the critics with their conception of Sinclair Lewis' "Dodsworth" as dramatized by Sidney Howard. Perhaps the screen version of Walter Huston and Ruth Chatterton was too fresh in the memory. England was most enthusiastic about the Huston-Chatterton combination, but Merivale was too dear to be "Sam" and Gladys Cooper had no middle-west straw in her manner.

Canadian's Part

Carla Lehman of Winnipeg is doing a nice job of a medium role in "Mary Goes to See" which presents to faithful England her faithful Dame Marie Tempest. The play is drawing crowds, but were it not for the widespread affection for Dame Marie it might have suffered an earlier fate. The critics agreed Miss Lehman's part was fully and worthily played. If she gets something to get her teeth into next time Miss Lehman may easily bite off a good chunk.

Charles B. Cochran has resigned the managership of the Royal Albert Hall, beginning July, to devote himself entirely to theatre activities here and in America. He has been manager since 1926. The famous old Hall presents anything to Londoners from a ping pong tourney to the Royal Choral Society concerts. In 1937 it was let for 130 occasions at a loss of £2.113 ($11,565).

Toscanini will return to England this spring to conduct a series of symphony concerts for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

The Londonderry Corporation has decided jazz must not be played on its famouns Guildhall organ.

11,000 CABBAGES PLANTED

WINDSOR, Ont, April 4—(CP)—Approaching an all-time record for early planting in Canada, cabbages were planted by growers in Essex south fields this week. A total of 11,000 plants were set outside Thursday on the farms of John Barna and Paul Stap. Should fair weather continue, they plan to plant head lettuce and cauliflower the early part of next week.

Don't Keep on Having Constipation!

If constipation's got you down—so you feel heavy, tired and dopey—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B₁.

Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Tornado Leaves Trail Of Destruction In Mid-West States

Thirty-six persons were killed scores injured and thousands made homeless by a tornado that swept though the mid-western States. This aerial view, TOP, shows the wreckage done by the twister in a residential district of Columbus, Kansas. Many children were among the victims of the tornado and a grief-stricken mother is shown, BELOW, comforting her badly injured baby amid the wreckage of their home.

Hepburn Rejects Overtures For New School Bill

Deputation Sought To Have New Bill Presented This Session

TORONTO, April 4. — Recent demands from an influential cross-section of leading Ontario Roman Catholics for the introduction by the Government before the present Legislature session ends of a brand-new schools tax bill are reported to have been definitely rejected by Premier Hepburn.

While the Prime Minister has turned down their overtures, he will, it is understood, discuss the whole situation with them after the House prorogues.

It was last Thursday, it is said, when a delegation seeking to replace the measure repealed in the House a year ago visited Queen's Park and reportedly sought audience with Mr. Hepburn. No interview, however, was forthcoming, although they are said to have been advised subsequently that no legislative action would be undertaken this year, if at all.

The Prime Minister's refusal — especially in the face of alleged ardent advocacy of a new Bill in Cabinet circles by Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines, and Hon. P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture —is said to have brought him some measure of criticism over the week-end from certain sections of the Roman Catholic Church It was rumored that further pressure might be attempted this week to have Mr. Hepburn commit himself publicly to some action that would give the Separate Schools what, in the opinion of their supporters, they are entitled to have.

The private Liberal members of the House are said to have learned of the situation, and to be anxious that at least nothing be done now by Cabinet that would bring about any recurrence of riding conditions with which they were faced both when the old legislation was passed, and later, when it was struck off the statute books.

BAN "THE ROAD BACK"

AUSTRALIA WANTS YOUTH FOR FARMS

CANBERRA, April 5—(CP). — Details of the Commonwealth government's immigration proposals, announced by Prime Minister J. A. Lyons, revive the Empire settlement act agreement and cover persons nominated by individuals and organizations and immigrants wanted by Australian states, such as domestic servants and youths for farms.

The immigrants must pass a medical test to satisfy Australia House, London, as to their suitability for conditions in this country. The Commonwealth is endeavoring to co-ordinate the activities of organizations like the Salvation Army, the "Big Brother" movement, the Fairbridge Farm Schools and Dr. Barnardo's Homes and other bodies, to provide after-care for settlers.

Ministers belonging to the trade delegation being sent to Great Britain shortly will discuss when in London an extension of the agreement to cover persons emigrating with a supply of capital.

Reciprocity regarding National Insurance is to be provided. The Commonwealth government has also agreed to pay half of the fare to attract to Australia retired army officers and other ranks as well as civil servants from India. Britain would not participate in this arrangement.

Mr. Lyons added that he did not anticipate any considerable flow of immigrants at the outset. As the nomination system had proved to have a snowball effect in the past, however, he expected that once immigration had started it would increase rapidly and offset the influx of aliens.
